HYDRO IS POPULAR

Over By-laws Get Big Majorities All Over Province

CITY FATHERS ELECTED

Two outstanding features marked the municipal contests throughout the province of Ontario, the overwhelming sentiment in favor of the Hydro-electric system and the setback given to local option, which failed in 23 municipalities of even a straight majority.

The Hydro-electric bylaws were carried wherever they were submitted, in many cases only from 2 to 10 voting against public power.

In Brantford the majority contest was fought out on this issue, and resulted in the return of Charles H. Hartman by a majority of 269.

Among the other cities and large towns which voted for Hydro power were Kingston, Owen Sound, Goderich, Clinton and Prescott.

Mayor Hopewell is again chief magistrate of Ottawa by a good majority, and Mayor Lees still retains the confidence of the electors of Hamilton.

Charles M. H. Graham is mayor of London, and F. J. Hoag had an acclamation in Kingston.

The city of Berlin voted to spend $180,000 for a number of civic improvements.

In Toronto.

Toronto, Jan. 2.—Toronto's civic elections yesterday resulted in a turn down for the proposed subways and a win for most of the other bylaws. F. S. Spence, the well-known temperance man, and J. J. Ward, for a long time a controller, were defeated in the running for the Board of Control. The mayor was re-elected by acclamation. The new council is:

Mayor, G. R. Geary. Controllers, H. C. Hocken, J. O. McCarthy, T. Foster, T. Church. Aldermen: First Ward, D. Chisholm, Z. Hilton, W. J. Saundersen; Second Ward, J. O'Neill, H. A. Rowland, R. M. Yeomans; Third Ward, S. McBride (accl.), A. Maguire (accl.), M. Rawlinson (accl.); Fourth Ward, G. Weston, J. Wanless, G. McMurrich; Fifth Ward, J. Dunn, R. H. Graham, J. T. V. May; Sixth Ward, F. Mc Brien, D. Spence, J. A. Austin; Seventh Ward, A. J. Anderson, S. Ryding.

In Hamilton.

Hamilton, Jan. 2.—Hamilton's City Council for 1912 will be constituted as follows:

Mayor—George H. Lees (elected by acclamation).

Board of Control—W. G. Bailey, Charles W. Gardiner, John Allan, Thomas W. Jutten.

Aldermen—Ward 1, J. H. Horning, J. H. Milne; Ward 2, Hugh S. Wallace, Charles G. Bird; Ward 3, David Carson, Charles W. Homing (accl.); Ward 4, J. E. Davey, Norman Clark (accl.); Ward 5, James MacKay, F. W. Littlewood; Ward 6, Wm. Ryan, Dr. Hopkins; Ward 7, David Newlands, Walter Elliott; Ward 8, P. F. Lalonde, Nathaniel Merigold.

Of the four money bylaws submitted to the ratepayers all were approved except the one for the purchase of a park site on the north shore of Burlington Bay. This measure was defeated by only 47 votes. The voting on the bylaws was as follows: East end park site: 2,363 for, 1,986 against. Waterworks extensions: 3,706 for, 1,169 against. New fire regulations: Gowerh against. New fire station: 2,908 for, 1,498 against. Underground lavatory, Gore Park: 2,620 for, 1,408 against.

London.

London, Jan. 2.—Charles M. A. Graham was yesterday elected mayor, defeating Ald. Hebert and Ald. Stevenson by a large majority. The business men's slate of eight, endorsed by the Board of Trade, was elected. Only three of last year's council go back again—Ashplant, Richster and Bennett.

G. E. Rose, a Labor man, who was disqualified last year by Ald. Wilson, is returned. Ald. Bennett is also a Labor man. The council is as follows: Robinson, Moore, Richter, Ashplant, Wright, Coles, Blandford, Spittal, Rose, Murphy, Johnston, Bennett.

Ottawa.

Ottawa, Jan. 2.—All circumstances combined to make yesterday's municipal vote the heaviest ever polled in this city. With the keenest fight for the mayoralty that has occurred for many years, and the biggest struggle over for the Board of Control, the people had a great incentive to turn out in throngs to the polling booths.

The figures of the vote for mayoralty were: Mayor Hopewell, 4,156; E. J. Laverdure, 3,337; Ross, 3,240; re-electing the old mayor by a majority of 219.

The vote for controllers was a close fight as regards the three last of the four elected out of nine candidates: McGlenaghan 6,026, Parent 4,943, Hinchey 3,920, Hastey 3,549, Wilson 3,543, Pepper 3,326, Draper 3,266, Champagne 2,861, Stanley 2,256.

The aldermen elected in the different wards are: Rideau Ward, Parney and Shinn; Capital Ward, Nelson and Ault; Victoria Ward, Green and Garland; Dalhousie Ward, Forward and Black; By Ward, LaPointe and Desjointes; Central Ward, Hogg and Kent; Ottawa Ward—Valin and Desjardines; Wellington Ward, Campbell and Black.

Kingston.

Kingston, Jan. 2.—Kingston had four bylaws to vote on and interest centered there, as there was no mayoralty contest, Ald. F. J. Hoag having been elected by acclamation. All four carried. The bylaw asking for a reduction of ten liquor licenses was carried by a majority of 128, while other three giving a fixed assessment of $400,000 to the Canadian Locomotive Co., concessions to box factory, and giving city council power to open negotiations with the Hydro Electric Power Commission were carried by very large majorities.

The aldermen elected were: Ald. Wm. Clubston, Ald. J. W. Litton, Ald. W. P. Peters, R. D. Sutherland and Allan Stroud.

Brantford.

Brantford, Jan. 2.—Charles H. Hartman was elected here yesterday on the Hydro-electric ticket by a majority of 269 over Joseph Ruddy. The bylaw to raise $85,000 for the improvement of the John H. Stratford Hospital was carried by nearly 500 majority, having received influential support in all the wards.

Berlin.

Berlin, Jan. 2.—The municipal contest yesterday resulted as follows: Mayor, William H. Schmals; reeve, W. D. Euler; first deputy, N. Armuson; second deputy, H. A. Dietrich; third deputy, Fred Rirleder. Aldermen: E. W. Clement leads the poll, Carl Krantz, David Cress, William Pieper, C. H. Mills, H. A. Hagen, N. B. Wotweiter, Joseph Winterhalt, George Pucher, C. B. Dunk, Wm. O. Knichtel, J. R. Schilling, W. V. Utley, John S. Schwartz, John Schnarr.

Bylaw to raise $100,000 for extensions to the waterworks system was carried by 576 majority. Bylaw to raise $10,705 for depression of Wilmot street storm drain was carried by 223 majority.

Belleville.

Belleville, Jan. 2.—The municipal elections yesterday did not create much of a stir, notwithstanding that there was a mayoralty contest. Ald. Vermilyea was elected mayor for 1911 by a majority of four votes over Ald. Thomas, the vote being 719 for the former and 715 for the latter. In Coleman ward, the only ward in which there was a contest for alderman, R. Bogle, F. Sisterson and R. P. White were elected. In the ward Mr. S. T. Harris was elected public school trustee by a majority of 53 over C. Greenleaf. In Bleecker ward, J. B. Ives was elected school trustee by 58 over W. H. Wrightman.

Sault Ste. Marie.

Sault Ste. Marie, Jan. 2.—In a spirited contest for the mayoralty yesterday Mayor Munro defeated J. Stevenson by a majority of 236. The councillors elected are: George Boyd, A. G. Blain, J. A. McPhee, H. Sargeant, A. E. Crawford and P. M. Everett. School trustees: C. J. Leaney and U. McFadden elected by acclamation, and H. Mageean defeated R. G. Campbell in ward three.

Woodstock.

Woodstock, Jan. 2.—The municipal elections which took place yesterday aroused very little interest. Dr. A. B. Welford was elected over Clifford Kemp, barrister, for mayor, by a majority of nearly 500. Others elected were: Aldermen, J. G. McBeath, Geo. King, T. D. Wilson, John Butler, W. D. Hobson, Allan Manning, George Parker, W. West, J. W. Scard; Board of Education, G. Whitlaw, E. A. Ras, F. Dodge, Dr. John Mearns and W. S. Beam; water and light commissions, R. Butler and John Bain.

St. Thomas.

St. Thomas, Jan. 2.—Mayor, R. N. Price. Aldermen, Gilbert Roche heads poll, M. Josson, K. C. Sanders, W. Trotter, R. Martin, Frank Brinkman, A. E. Hookway, P. Weehan, C. Scrace. Chapter, W. K. Sanderson. School trustees, Henry Ros, Dr. Lumley, A. E. Smith, W. Bennett. Hospital bylaw carried. Street railway bylaw plebiscite defeated.

Windsor.

Windsor, Jan. 2.—Mayor, J. W. Hahn (re-elected by 1,108 majority over T. J. Eansor). Aldermen—First Ward, F. Howell, H. J. McKay and N. Irwin; second ward, P. M. Keogh, P. M. Eagle, J. H. Shepherd; third ward, A. Mersky, H. Trumble, J. E. Banwell; fourth ward, Euclid Jacques, A. J. McTavish and W. Lanspeary. School trustees—G. A. Courtenay, B. Allison, Henry Clay and E. A. Edgar were elected.

St. Catharines.

St. Catharines, Jan. 2.—There was no local mayoralty contest here yesterday, Dr. Merritt being elected by acclamation. The ratepayers, besides electing city council with three new men, carried the bylaw empowering the city to purchase "Old Corner Lot," known as Athletic Lacrosse grounds, to save them as permanent playground. The cost to the city will be $4,000.

Aldermen elected—St. Andrew's Ward, J. D. Chaplin 436, Thomas Nihan 308, W. B. Burgoyne 251; St. George's ward, W. A. Sherwood 220, C. M. Gibson 278, Byron Hensberger 280; St. Patrick's Ward, Robt. Black 295, J. A. Wiley 343, Melvin Meyer 343.

Chatham.

Chatham, Jan. 2.—Aldermen received a death blow in Chatham yesterday. On a straight vote it was defeated by 503 to 1,

The following municipal representatives were elected: Mayor, W. Anderson. Aldermen: A. J. Dunn, Ed. Wanless, James Pritchard, C. E. Lister, S. B. Arnold, P. G. Piggott, A. D. Westman, J. W. Wilson, Sam Holmes. Board of Education: Frank D. Laurie, Dr. T. L. McRitchie, John A. Walker, W. E. Gundy. William Gordon was elected water commissioner by acclamation.

Freight Wreck In West.

Moose Jaw, Sask., Jan. 2.—At 2.45 o'clock Sunday morning as an eastbound freight ran into another freight at Nord water tank, between Mortlach and Parkbeg.

The casualties were: John Bradshaw, section man, Parkbeg, in caboose of stationary train, killed; Gorman Reynolds, brakeman, Moose Jaw, leg severely crushed, condition dangerous; Glenn Ashlock, brakeman, bruised and head injured; Joe Macdougall, conductor, both legs fractured, will recover; William Rusk, blacksmith, Caron, not in Canadian Pacific Railway service, traveling on freight, both legs severed above the ankles.

CANADIANS HONOURED

New Year List Adds Four to Roster of Knights

BORDEN TO PRIVY COUNCIL

London, Jan. 2.—The New Year's honor list this year is a short one, as a result of the honors conferred by the King during the Durbar, but the selection covers a wide range of civil servants, politicians and men of distinction, the various professions and commerce being included.

Canada is well represented in the colonial list, which is headed by R. L. Borden, the Canadian Premier, who becomes a Privy Councillor. Only three peerages are conferred, the new barons being Sir Thomas Gibson-Carmichael, governor of Madras; Sir Alfred Thomas, for many years leader of the Welsh party in the House of Commons, and Samuel Hope Morley, ex-governor of the Bank of England.

Among the new baronets are: Wm. Nelson, chairman of the Nelson Steamship Line; Thomas Skinner, a director of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and deputy governor of the Hudson Bay Co.; Joseph Beecham, Valentine Chirol, director of the foreign department of The London Times; H. Rider Haggard, the novelist, and S. J. Pocock, a large land owner of England and Canada.

The Canadians honored besides Premier Borden, are Col. John Mortison Gibson, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, and Joseph Pope, Under Secretary for External Affairs, who are made knights commander of St. Michael and St. George; Thomas Cooper Boville, Deputy Minister of Finance, companion of St. Michael and St. George, and Lieut.-Col. Rodolphe Forget of Montreal, and Edmund B. Osler of Toronto, both members of the Canadian Parliament, knights bachelor.

Congratulations To Premier.

Ottawa, Jan. 2.—The Right Hon. Robert Laird Borden was occupied yesterday in answering the messages of congratulation which came pouring in from Conservatives and Liberals alike. Among the first to congratulate him were His Royal Highness, the Governor-General, and the Right Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

The conferring of the title of right honorable came as a surprise to the many who anticipated a knighthood, which bears with it the title of Sir. But while it is no secret that the Prime Minister could have had the knighthood if he had wished, it is taken among the friends of Mr. Borden as an evidence of his unassuming disposition.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier was created knight in 1897, and a month afterwards a member of the Imperial Council.

There are fifty gentlemen in Canada with the title of "Sir," while there are only five gentlemen who are entitled to the rank of Privy Councillor.

Killed In Rochester.

Rochester, N.Y., Jan. 2.—A man believed to be George L. Smith of Troy was struck by a Rochester, Syracuse and Eastern Railway car here yesterday afternoon and instantly killed. A card in his possession asked that Mrs. Eva Smith of 712 King street, Toronto, or Mrs. Maria Muriel of South Bose, N.Y., be notified in case of accident. Smith's body was caught under the front truck, his skull crushed and one leg amputated.

Fire at Brockville.

Brockville, Jan. 2.—The village of Westport, 45 miles from here, stood in danger of being swept by fire Sunday night when the residence of P. J. McFarland, in the most thickly settled part of the village, was burned to the ground. The loss is estimated at $4,000.

BAD FOR ALLIANCE

Temperance Workers Fail in Thirty-Four Municipalities

OWEN SOUND STOPS DRY

Toronto, Jan. 2.—Slightly more than 20 licenses will be cut off as a result of the voting on local option bylaws throughout Ontario yesterday. Bylaws were carried over the three-fifths requirement in thirteen towns, villages and townships; while in eleven municipalities a majority was recorded, but the bylaws failed to get the necessary three-fifths.

In 23 municipalities the bylaws failed of even a straight majority. In all the cities where the reform was voted on it was defeated. Chatham, Fort William and Port Arthur were the most conspicuous of these, and they all defeated the measure, the antis were unsuccessful in securing a repeal in Owen Sound.

The liquor party were also successful in securing repeal in thirteen other municipalities, though figures are not available to show in how many places the three-fifths requirement prevent a return to license.

On the whole the local optionists have no reason to complain, since they held what they had and gained a few more.

Kingston voted on a bylaw to reduce the number of licenses from 28 to 15. This was carried.

The results are:

Sustained.

Richmond Hill—For repeal, 44; against repeal, 120. Majority, 88.

Coldwater—For repeal, 35; against, 88. Majority, 53.

Wyoming—For repeal, 46; against, 111. Majority, 65.

Thedford—For local option, 73; against, 56. Majority, 17.

Peel Township—Against repeal, 74; for repeal, 46. Majority, 28.

Tara—Against repeal, 76; for repeal, 97. Majority, 13.

Durham—Against repeal, 208; for repeal, 120. Majority, 23.

Lakefield—For repeal, 169; against repeal, 175. Majority, 16.

Carried.

Lanark—For local option, 209; against local option, 70. Majority for, 139.

Kinloss—For local option, 220; against, 135. Majority, 185.

Calbogie Township—Carried by 3 to 1.

Cannington—For local option, 196; against, 84. Majority, 99.

Defeated by Three-Fifths Clause.

Sherbrooke Township—For local option, 40; against, 39. Defeated by the three-fifths requirement.

Goderich—For bylaw, 694; against, 449. Allowing for the three-fifths clause, this defeats the bylaw by a majority of 18.

Chesterville—For local option, 128; against, 109. Majority for, 14.

Hepworth—For local option, 43; against, 35. Majority for, 8.

Hagersville—For local option, 59; against local option, 48. Majority for, 11.

Wroxster—For local option, 56; against, 42. Majority for, 14.

Caledonia—For local option, 153; against, 119. Majority for, 34.

Defeated by Straight Majority.

Dunnville—Local option was defeated in Dunnville by a vote of 284 for and 434 against.

Elgin—For local option, 182; against, 234.

Waterloo Township—The local option vote in Waterloo Township yesterday resulted in a victory for the local optionists, being about twenty vote behind the anti vote.

Hastings—Against local option, 121; for, 84. Majority, 47.

Alvinston—The local option bylaw was defeated by the following vote: For, 109; against, 140.

Missisco—Against local option, 188; for, 148. Majority, 30.

Ontario Alliance workers were somewhat disappointed at the results of the battle between the drys and the wets. They had discounted the victories for their side in advance so far as the repeal contests, and were not surprised when the fourteen of the total fifteen repeal contests heard from were received in their favor to remain dry. The Alliance executive held the results announced in Room 411, Confederation Life Building. About 40 representative local option-ists were present, including several ladies.

At first the meeting was marked by evidences of grave anxiety, and a tendency on everyone's part to lapse into deep silence.

When the announcement came that Owen Sound had been held by the drys, the meeting began to assume a normal appearance, but the defeat of local option in all the new urban municipalities attached precluded any exuberant enthusiasm.

Gift of $200,000 To Quebec.

Quebec, Jan. 2.—Mayor Drouin has been officially notified of a nice New Year's gift to the city in the shape of the $200,000 which was subscribed toward the construction of the ill-fated Quebec bridge. It has been known for some time that such refund was to be made, but the matter has been finally settled by the Federal Cabinet, as the following telegram will show:

"Ottawa, Dec. 29.—H. Drouin, mayor, Quebec: Cabinet definitely decided $200,000 will be refunded not later than end of March. (Signed) L. J. Pelletier."

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

—BY—

J. W. BROWETT

Optometrist

Q. Why is it that glasses are worn so much more now than years ago?

A. Years ago the science of optics or correcting errors of sight was not understood. It is to-day; only old persons or those near-sighted wore Glasses. Now we correct with lenses all errors of sight.

Q. Why is it that cheap glasses do not give satisfaction?

A. Cheap glasses are so faulty in construction and are of such poor quality that they distort the vision and cause pain in the eyes. The optical glass used by us is brilliant, clear and perfect, insuring comfort and ease to the wearer.

Q. Can my headaches be relieved with glasses?

A. A personal visit will be necessary. Let us talk it over.

TWO ARE DROWNED.

Eleven Others Narrowly Escape Death While Skating.

Smith's Falls, Jan. 2.—A sad drowning fatality took place here Saturday evening, the victims being Keble Gibson, aged 16 years, a clerk in the Frost and Wood office, and Minnie Pruner, only daughter of J. J. Pruner, aged 15 years.

With hundreds of others the young couple were skating on the river, and at the time of the accident, were chatting together. At a point near Beech Island, a mile and a half above Smith's Falls, the ice gave way beneath them. Despite the fact that there were so many on the river, no one witnessed the accident. Both bodies were recovered in a short time, but life was extinct.

Miss Pruner's body was frozen in the ice at the place where she went in and Gibson's was found just below in the open water. The two were great favorites with their young companions and their tragic death has cast a gloom over the town. The parents of both victims are well known residents of Smith's Falls.

In addition to the two who were drowned, eleven others had miraculous escapes during the day. The ice appeared to be solid, but it had numerous weak spots and in these the party were caught. Among those who had a narrow escape were Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Warwick, Ottawa, who are spending the holidays in the town. They were returning home after spending the afternoon on the river, and when half a mile from town, they skated into an air hole. As in the case of Gibson and Miss Pruner, no one saw them go in, and it was only by the most heroic efforts on the part of Mr. Warwick that he succeeded in getting his wife and himself out, as the ice kept breaking away as soon as they seized hold of it.

Mrs. Warwick swooned from shock, which made it all the harder to effect her rescue, she being in a precarious condition for some time after being taken out, but is now recovering from the effects of her experience.

Roy Boyd, a clerk in the Bank of Ottawa, and Miss Ella Carwell skated into the hole where Gibson and Miss Pruner went in, and after carrying experience, succeeded in reaching ice strong enough to support their weight. They were in the water ten minutes.

The Cry of the Canadian West.

Winnipeg, Jan. 2.—At last the Canadian West is bursting its mysterious bands that have crippled public opinion in regard to unjust and unreasonable railway charges—freights, passenger and telegraphic—that have prevailed, and now the cities and towns, farmers and dealers are demanding action on the part of the Government and the Railway Commission. Equally strong is the movement against the insufficiency of the railways and their equipment to move the crops. There is a cry coming from the West that will arouse the east to action and to redress.

THE SACRIFICE

(Short Story.)

He hated the stony hillside farm, hated the unyielding soil that so grudgingly produced the living they wrested from it. Through generation after generation his forefathers had fought their dogged battle with nature, never advancing, never receding; and David Grayson's father and mother, stern, silent, grim, were the stunted and stunted outgrowths of this weary warfare. It was not until he was a young man grown that the first ray of light glimmered in upon his own darkness. Down in the trough of the hills lived a girl. Hitherto she had been merely a part of his environment, like the barren encircling ranges and the little stream which, trickling through the valley, made its only strip of bounty. There, too, green trees and waving grain flaunted their richness in derision at the bare knolls looming above them; and amid these she dwelt, heiress of the valley.

There came a day when David Grayson awoke to find that this one detail of his environment had ceased to be commonplace. In that day Ruth Wirtman became no longer a part of his mere landscape. In that day he discovered that her sinuous grace was the waving of the barley, her hair the gold of the grain, her eyes the blue of the sky, her cheeks the pink of the dawn, and the knowledge of these things only brought him the more misery.

He could not know that in the moment when their eyes had met, in a glance of new understanding, he, too, had been transformed into a stranger in her eyes. She noted the firm set of his figure; the poise of the head that was kept erect by the unquenchable spirit of protest within him; the decisive jaw and the stern mouth that told of emotions suppressed, of self-mastery, of an indomitable will firmly in hand and under control. Well, he needed control now, and he used it, but her quickened intuition fathomed him. One other fathomed him, too; but his gaunt and withered mother had the seal of hopeless habit upon her lips, and it was a kindness that the seal remained unbroken.

With the untrammeled naivette of a child, Ruth watched for this grave young neighbour; she threw herself in his way, she tried to break down the barrier of reserve that he had builded up between them for his own protection. One day she stopped him underneath the big oak at the roadside, as he was trudging home from the poor little village at the end of the valley.

"I found your picture, Dave," she said. "Just look here."

She held open a magazine which flared up at him a pulse-quickening picture. The artist had drawn a farmer boy standing erect at his plough handles and gazing with half-parted lips into the sky, where his fancy had painted a vast city, alive with the restless energy of human achievement. The artist had named it "The Call," and the figure might have been drawn with David Grayson as a model, it was so startlingly alike.

To the girl this likeness was the all-important thing, but to the boy only the vision was worthy of note. The dream was his own! He sat down upon the grassy knoll at the roots of the tree to study it more closely, and she was beside him, quiet, happy that she had chained his interest.

Presently he turned the leaf in despair, crushed with the weight of his own hopeless longing; but soon the clean, white pages with their crisp illustrations caught his interest again and held him fascinated. An article on bridge-building arrested his attention.

"Look!" he said, bitterly. "Men have made all the wonderful things. I don't mean the workmen who bolted them together, but the men who thought them out. And they were just men—men like me!"

She noted his broad, high forehead, his keen, thoughtful eye, his pliant fingers.

"You could do it, too," she said.

"Me?"

He drew a deep breath, and sat lost in a reverie of wild conjecture. With instant sympathy she followed his train of thought.

"We've an encyclopædia over at the house," she presently ventured. "It tells all about bridges. Come over and I'll show it to you."

He went gladly, and the visit was a revelation. He had heard rumours of the books and magazines that Hugo Wirtman had bought "to spoil Ruth," but his eyes glistened as he saw them. She took down the volume that contained the article on bridge-building and he delved eagerly into it! Alas, here was only more despair! The article was comprehensive, but technical, and required learning to understand it. The illustrations spoke a plain language, however, and carried him from the simplest trusses to those vast spans of weblike steel that are the world's wonders of modern engineering.

Plain Hugo Wirtman came through the room where they were sprawled upon the floor, absorbed in their eager quest.

"Don't you spoil Dave with your books, Ruth," he good-naturedly admonished. "He's too good a farmer."

"He's spoiled now," she retorted, with a glance of pride at David.

Hugo pursed his lips, but said nothing. Dave Grayson was a steady young fellow, and if Ruth wanted him, all right.

"You may take the book and the magazine home with you if you want," Ruth offered.

"I—I have to," he replied, and he wrapped his jacket around the precious volumes.

The awakening of his starved soul to this new oportunity was pathetic. Here was the key to his dreams. Unlocking the door that had denied him so long, he strode forth, eager and feverishly energetic, into a wider, more virile world. That anguished cry which had welled up from his inmost self took form and shape and he could give it a name—ambition!

The way once shown, the task set; he worked as he had not worked before—and Ruth worked with him. Again a bitter abstraction came upon him, but this time he was fathomed by the intuition of only one woman, his mother. With Spartan muteness she herself unlocked the last barrier that held him back from the world into which she knew she must lose him, into which she could never follow him, where she would be an alien—nay, almost a pariah. She dug from a hidden recess her own meagre savings; she coaxed other savings to the last cent from the sparse, unwilling pockets of Abner Grayson; and she gave her boy—money!

Again gleamed the light of promise. He bought textbooks, instruments, materials; he worked as if a demon drove him; he surmounted obstacles with a desperate energy that might, with broader opportunities, have made him conqueror of worlds.

Such fierce earnestness was bound to achieve. Then came a day when, after correspondence and samples of his work had passed to and fro, an offer came at what seemed to him like a fabulous remuneration. On the way home from the village he met Ruth at their usual trysting place, and showed her the letter, a new gleam of fire in his eye, and answering wave of colour in her face. Together they sat under the shade of the broad oak and planned it all out their wonderful future.

But fate, for those who would grasp her golden prizes, holds the test of the white hot crucible. At the door of his home David's joy was blackened by the announcement that his father had fallen from the mow of the barn to his death. David went into the house. His mother sat stunned by the bedside. He knelt down beside her. She clasped her arms about his neck and bent her head upon his shoulder, but she did not cry; she could not, nor had she, even yet, when she and David drove back from the hillside graveyard to the desolate cabin. Two or three of the good women folk of the valley had remained to prepare such cheer as they might, and one of them was Ruth Wirtman. Mrs. Grayson, giving way to their kindly urging, consented to lie down and rest a while: but for here there was no rest, and presently she crept out, unnoticed, to sit alone upon the porch, where she could look across at the gleaming headstones upon the hillside and see that new yellow mound which was to be her beacon from now until her own release should come.

With eyes that burned because there had come no tears to quench their aching, she sat, still numbed, still unawakened to the weary days that were yet to be lived through. Presently she became aware of a voice that came out to her through the open window, and the voice was that of her son.

"The happiest hour of my life has come and gone for ever, Ruth," David was saying. "That hour was when I came back from the post office with that offer, and, with it as my fortune, asked you to be my wife. The offer is still open, but I must answer it to-night. I am going to refuse it."

There came no answer to this, but presently her son said, in a voice filled with emotion, "My girl!" And the woman on the porch knew that Ruth had crept into the shelter of his arms to comfort him.

"There is only one thing for me to do," he went on presently. "I must take up father's place, as he took the place of his father before him. I must dig into these barren fields as he digged, and never let mother know how bitter is the sacrifice I must make."

There ensued another silence and then the gentle voice of Ruth answered:

"I'll wait, dear."

Wait! That one word opened at last for the woman on the doorstep the floodgate of her tears. She, too, had loved, even though of a race that stifled tender speech, even though oppressed by poverty, even though held in by an environment which admitted of no raptures. When the first paroxysm of her grief had passed, she raised her head and gazed around upon the encompassing hills. Away across yonder, its disintegrating chimney showing above the tops of the sparse trees that struggled for existence about it, was the home where she was born; strangers occupied it now. There, on that other hillside rested, sleeping, all her kin. She could almost pick them out from where she sat, this and that and the other rumbling headpiece that marked only one all that she had known and loved and lost; and now had come the other lonely mound to bind her for the rest of her life to this spot.

She could not go away to leave them friendless in that inhospitable earth. They were hers. She might pass her declining years within sight of that consecrated earth, to which she herself must finally be borne to lie beside her husband. There was no spot on earth so dear to her. The roots of her being had sunk deep, deep into the soil; and to pull them up now and transplant them would be for her to wither and die. She must not, could not would not think of leaving it!

Presently she rose with a strange peace upon her. As she moved forward, her face came into the light of the sun, which threw into sharp relief the shadows round the same firm jaw and stern lips and open, fearless eyes that had descended to her son. Turning, she went quietly into the house and came upon David, where he stood caressing with his broad hand the head that rested upon his shoulders.

"David, my boy and you, my daughter," she said and her clear, even voice gave no hint of the stern cost, "I've been thinking, after all that's happened here, that this place is a mighty sorrowful place to me, and I wish you could go away off somewhere and take me with you."—Geo. R. Chester in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

DOCTOR ADVSED HOSITAL

But Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her.

Upper Sandusky, Ohio.—"Three years ago I was married and went to housekeeping. I was not living well and could hardly drag myself along. I had an awful tired feelings, stomach hurt, my face ached, I had terrible dizzy trouble and I could not eat or sleep. I had headache too, and became almost a nervous wreck. My doctor told me to go to the hospital. I did not like that idea very well, so, when I saw your advertisement in a paper, I wrote to you for advice. I have done as you told me.

"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, and now I have my health.

"If sick and ailing women would only know enough to take your medicine, they would get relief."—Mrs. EMMA H. STANBERRY, Route 6, Box 18, Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

If you have mysterious pains, irregularity, backache, extreme nervousness, inflammation, ulceration or displacement, don't wait too long, but try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and such unquestionable testimony as the above proves the value of this famous remedy, and should give everyone confidence.

MISTAKES ABOUT SHARKS

Sharks are both cowardly and cruel, but it is difficult to study their ways from the deck of a ship, as they move slowly in a refractive medium as far as water some twenty or thirty feet below the observer. Hence the many erroneous deductions of seamen with respect to these unsociable denizens of the deep which appear to justify not only the statement of Le Conte that the evidence of the senses is often unreliable, but also the jocular opinion of a novelist that "no story with a shark incidentally thrown in can fail to be interesting."

Yet the shark belongs to a type which has survived the flight of time, while other more attractive species have ceased to exist. The early voyagers were wont to attribute supernatural prescience to the shark.

Often during light winds one of these sea scavengers will follow a slow sailing ship for several successive days and night, and it was erroneously assumed that he does so because aware in some mysterious way of an impending death on board which will insure for him a sumptuous repast.

Heredity has similarly been put forward as an explanation of this tendency for a solitary shark to keep company with a ship, writes W. Allingham in Chambers' Magazine, although the experience of countless generations has not sufficed to impress upon him that death by torture awaits any shark who dares seize a bait that trails attractively from a ship's stern and encloses a stout hook that will not be denied. Naturalists' history notes by illiterate seamen are imperfectly appreciated data are worse than useless for they are misleading.

Many a shark is preceded by a few shimmering companions known as pilot fish because they are supposed to warn the shark of danger ahead, but they never prevent this hostis humani generis from swallowing the tempting morsel and its cunningly concealed hook. These irridescent pilot fish move hither and thither in close proximity to the shark's cruel mouth, and some assert that they occasionally take refuge therein should danger threaten.

Inasmuch as the shark's mouth is inconveniently placed behind his snout and underneath his body this can only be discerned from above when he turns on his back, and despite travelers' tales to the contrary it is simply unbelievable that either pilot fish or young sharks seek safety within the cavernous jaws of a mature shark, for he would never permit egress to any tasty bouche so easily obtainable.

A shark's voracity is not less marvelous than his digestion. Whether he be a man eater by choice (as seems the more probable) or by the compulsion of hunger (as is occasionally asserted) the fact remains that any one who happens to fall overboard in the vicinity of a shark is likely to be snapped up by the latter without ceremony. It is the evil reputation attaching to the whole shark tribe as regards indifference whence comes a meal that renders them so abhorrent of seafarers.

Old sailors never weary of enlarging upon the voracity and the digestion of sharks. When in the Chinese sea, as related by the late Capt. Basil Hall, a large shark was caught by H.M.S. Alceste which was found to contain, among other things, a buffalo hide that had been thrown overboard the preceding day.

One of the sailors explained this in a way which seemed irresistibly logical in the opinion of his shipmates. "There, my lads," said Jack, "what d'ye think of that? He swallowed the whole buffalo right enough, but he couldn't digest the hide." As a matter of fact, the carcase of the buffalo, unknown to these amateur makers of history, was still on board the Alceste.

There are not wanting writers who would have us believe that men lose their lives owing to panic when in the presence of a shark in his native element, but probably the result is equally against the man did he have all his wits about him. Nevertheless circumstantial accounts are in evidence of instances where the shark has been defeated by the man.

At Jamaica a huge shark is said to have been a terror to frequenters of the harbour he affected. Once he overturned a boat carrying provisions to the shipping and devoured the wife of the boatman. The maddened widower reached the nearest ship, seized a sharp knife, invoked the aid of his patron saint, leaped into the water, gave battle to the shark despite the awful odds and succeeded in avenging his wife by slaying her destroyer. At Barbadoes similarly, if we may accept the report as authentic, a seaman fought with and killed a shark that had eaten a shipmate.

Young Maoris, male and female, were once proficient in the slaying of sharks in open water. They would swim into the surf armed with a knife, dive under the nearest shark, rip open their enemy and return to the shore. During the last decade it is said that the sailmaker of the American warship Alliance, then at anchor at St. Thomas, West Indies, leaped overboard and killed with a knife a huge shark which was gaining upon some of the vessel's crew who had disobeyed orders by venturing on a swim. A dog which was with them was seized by the shark, but the latter did not get beyond this hors d'oeuvre.

A single female shark is quite capable of stocking a modern aquarium with young at considerable size at one birth, and were it not for the want of something to eat and the liability to be eaten, certain parts of the ocean must teem with such voracious and fecund visitors. In July, 1910, on the passage from Australia to New Zealand, the crew of a sailing vessel caught a shark containing 44 young, and in 1906 a nine-foot long specimen captured on the Australian coast had 27 young almost mature.

Records of catches set forth in ships' log books show that the number of young sharks produced at one birth vary from 83 to 2. With this minimum total a doubt is pardonable, because parturition may have been nearly completed just prior to the shark's capture.

Many Years an Invalid—Untold Agony From Headaches

Dizziness, Sinking Spells and Excessive Weakness Disappear With Use of

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Nearly every woman will read with interest the letter of Mrs. Geo. Bradshaw, quoted below. It tells of years of great suffering from nervous Headache and other symptoms arising from weak, watery blood and a starved and exhausted condition of the nervous system.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Cosy Nook, Harlowe, Ont., writes: "I am glad to state that I received benefits from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food which I failed to get any place else. I was troubled for many years, in fact from my early womanhood, with weak, watery blood, and given to dropsy. I suffered untold agonies from nervous sick headaches, dizziness, and sinking spells, in fact was a semi-invalid for many years. I tried many kinds of patent medicines and got no help, and tried every new doctor that came along, but all failed to help me. Doctors told me I had no blood, and that my heart and kidneys were diseased, and that I had so many complaints there was not much use in doctoring up one or two. Four years ago I took six boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and was glad to see I felt better, and then got six more, and they have cured me of many of my complaints. When I began taking Nerve Food I weighed 110 pounds and to-day I weigh 139, and am 45 years old.

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

THE JAPANESE COMPLIMENTED

Noted Preacher Discourses on Importance of the Will and its Proper Direction.

Tokio, Japan, Dec. 31st.—The Foreign Missions Investigation Committee is here and are accorded every courtesy and every facility. Pastor Russell, Chairman of the Committee, delivered two addresses to-day. He had one of our finest Auditoriums, the Y.M.C.A., and a large attendance. In his audience of English residents were many Japanese. Very earnest attention was given him. We report one of his addresses from the text, "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve." (Joshua xxiv, 15. He said:

I am deeply impressed with the great progress which your nation has made, which is manifest on every hand. But alas! I fear that here, as in civilized lands, some of the progress is injurious. The Japanese and every other people need a faith ballast. It is necessary to strength of character and a permanent civilization. Without it, in a little while the whole world will be swept into anarchy. Indeed I foresee that awful condition approaching rapidly—in Europe, in America and here in Japan.

The basis of anarchy is a lack of faith ballast; and alas! our wonderful schools, with their fine equipments, are the real cause of the condition which is approaching. In Europe and America this infidelity is glossed over with the name of Higher Criticism, but here I see that you more candidly label it Agnosticism and Atheism. It appalled me to find that the progress of your scholars from Shintoism, Confucianism and Buddhism has not been toward Christianity, but toward total unbelief. I have been handed a report from three of your schools which has made me heartsick. Out of a total of 400 students 4 professed Christianity, 17 the religion of your fathers, 60 declared themselves Atheists, 288 registered as Agnostics and 45 were so bewildered as to be non-committal.

Alas, my friends, even your proverbial politeness, gentleness, kindness of character and willingness to die for your Emperor cannot exist long under the influence of such a lack of faith ballast. And what your scholars of to-day believe will surely reflect in your masses shortly. And I am bound in candor to admit that a very similar condition of things prevails throughout Europe and America. The outlook is ominous indeed.

Whatever we may be, the closing of one year and the opening of another furnishes a favorable opportunity for retrospection as well as for good resolutions. I trust that my audience agrees with me in this. The greatest power in the universe is the power of the will, and we are all learning how important a matter it is that our own wills and the wills of our fellow-creatures be rightly directed. It is in line with this thought that the Wise man declared that "greater is a man that ruleth his own spirit than he who conquers a city"; and, "As a man willeth in his heart, so is he." (Proverbs xvi, 32; xxiii, 7.)

Of old Alexander the Great willed to be the conqueror of the world, and at a cost of wealth and streams of blood he accomplished wonders. We are gradually learning, however, that war and repine are not sufficiently noble objects for the human ambition and will. Instead, the bright minds of the world are turning toward the conquering of the earth. Highways are cast up, rails are laid, trains are run, mountains are pierced, rivers are spanned with bridges, and the human will is using steam and electrical power in every direction in a marvelous manner. I am not emphasizing these well known facts so common to our observation, but calling attention to the will behind all these results, without which they would not be attained.

And what is thus noted in the achievements of the world reminds us that we each and all have wills, which should be rightly directed and forcefully exercised in all of our personal affairs, our lives, our ambitions, our family and social attainments. A will-less man is a good-for-naught. How important, then, it is that all of our wills should be wisely, rightly directed, that our lives may be made as successful and useful as possible, for the glory of our Creator and for the welfare of our fellows, as well as for our own sakes. I suggest to you, therefore, in harmony with our text, that we "choose this day" our course for the coming year, yea, for life, and, finding that we have chosen wisely, that we bend every energy to the outworking of that resolution or will.

This choice does not necessarily mean that all must turn right about face and go in the opposite direction to that in which we have been going. I am not a believer in the theory of man's total depravity. Wherever I travel I perceive marks of sin, depravity, human imperfection, weakness, but I also perceive evidences of good intentions, good endeavors, noble resolves.

Is it not because sin at the present time is profitable, advantageous, pleasurable, or seems to be one or all of these, that it is sought after, desired and given so large a control in human affairs? Is not this true because we are now under the domination of the Prince of darkness, the Prince of this world, whom the Scriptures declare shall be bound for a thousand years and deceive the nations no more, by putting light for darkness?

When the deception shall pass away and mankind shall see clearly the joys and rewards of righteousness, will they not prefer them? And if in that glorious Epoch right doing brings blessing and pleasure, and wrong doing brings all the disadvantages and stripes, may we not expect that the majority of humanity will seek righteousness, seek harmony with God, and thus seek the joys and blessings of Divine favor and everlasting life?

My brief stay in Japan has given me a keen appreciation of what the Japanese have already attained as a people—entirely aside from Christianity. I perceive many things in Japan, closely connected with your religious customs, which put to the blush certain conditions prevalent in Europe and America, where Christianity has been dominant for centuries. We are to acknowledge the good wherever we see it, and so now I freely acknowledge that I perceive amongst your people an esthetic taste, a gentleness of demeanor and a loyalty of heart which I fully appreciate, even though these qualities came to the Japanese, not through Christianity, but through Shintoism and Buddhism. Indeed, I must apologize for much of the rudeness and crudeness of the so-called Christian nations, of which you have heard through your learned men and of which you know something through contact with the soldiers and sailors of these lands who come to your ports.

I would have you understand that the teachings of Christianity cover every form of courtesy, politeness, brotherly kindness and hospitality. The very keynote of Christ's instruction to His followers is love, out of a pure heart—and that each should do unto his neighbor as he would that his neighbor should do to him. The fruits and graces of the Holy Spirit of Christ are prominently set forth in the Bible—meekness, gentleness, patience, long-suffering, faith, hope, joy, love.

You should know, moreover, that, while these qualities are very generally ignored amongst the representatives of Christendom, there are, nevertheless, faithful disciples of Jesus who study daily to put into practice all these qualities marked by Divine approval. The difference seems to be that these esthetic qualities or graces in your land have become a national trait with the Japanese, while in Christendom, so-called, they are practiced only by a proportionately small number, the remainder rather boasting of and cultivating qualities the reverse of these, as more helpful in the battle for life and for money which is manifest everywhere among them.

I find myself unable to agree with the teachings of the missionaries which have reached you, however honest some of them may have been. Knowing that an essential feature of Shintoism is reverence for deceased ancestors, many missionaries, I fear, have done violence to your tenderest feelings and most deeply seated convictions when they told you that your ancestors, instead of being objects of worship, are damned of God and have begun their experiences of a torture which will last to all eternity, because they did not know and therefore did not accept Jesus Christ as their Messiah and Saviour, and did not become His followers.

I will not discuss the sincerity of these brethren in thus doing violence to your most sacred and tender sentiments; I will merely say that to my understanding they have misinterpreted our great Creator's Plan and the explanation thereof furnished us in our sacred Scriptures. Instead, I give you the Bible Message, that your forefathers, whom you so deeply venerated, are, according to the Bible, asleep in death, sweetly resting from all labor, strife, vexation and turmoil, awaiting the morning light of a new Epoch.

That glorious period, when they will be awakened and come forth under more favorable conditions than the present, under a reign of righteousness, and to a clear knowledge of the Truth, is to be inaugurated by the coming of Christ, the world's Messiah. He comes to establish His Kingdom and to overthrow the Prince of Darkness. He comes to break the shackles of ignorance and sin, sickness and death, and to set mankind free from these. His Kingdom will set up the glorious standard of righteousness and truth and render every assistance possible for humanity to come into harmony with the Divine will.

In that glorious Day, which, I believe, is very near at hand, everything that you and your ancestors have learned in harmony with meekness, gentleness, patience, long-suffering, brotherly kindness, love, will be that much of an assistance in your uplift toward the full perfection of the Divine requirement of character. And, similarly, be it noted, those who have failed to cultivate these heart and character qualities, whether they were Japanese or nominal Christians, will have that much whereof to be ashamed, and to overcome and rectify.

Do not misunderstand me. I am not ignoring the fundamental Christian doctrine that "Christ died for our sins, according to the Scriptures, and rose again for our justification." I am affirming that doctrine and carrying it to its legitimate conclusion. The Bible, the inspired Authority of Christendom, clearly teaches that the sacrificial death of Jesus, the Just for the unjust, was not for a mere handful, but for the entire race. That sacrificial death took place more than four thousands years after Adam's sin, but it is to be made efficacious for Adam and all of his race—not merely for those who have heard the Message of Divine grace, nor merely for those who have lived since the sacrifice took place, but, as the Bible declares, "Jesus Christ by the grace of God, tasted death for every man." (Hebrews ii, 9.)

Another Scripture distinctly shows that the Divine favor and blessing resulting from Jesus' death is not only to be a benefit to the Church, to those who now believe and walk in the footsteps of the Redeemer, but will ultimately benefit all the remainder of mankind. Thus we read, "He is a propitiation (satisfaction) for our sins (the Church's sins), and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world." (1 John ii, 2.) All mankind, therefore, must ultimately receive a benefit, a blessing, as a result of Jesus' death, and this will include your countrymen. This is the method God has adopted for the fulfilment of His glorious promises of thirty-five hundred years ago to Abraham—to which promise our Creator gave His oath, that we might have strong consolation and faith in its fulfilment. The promise is that "All the families of the earth shall be blessed," and additionally, that the blessing shall come to them through Abraham's Seed.

The great mistake made by Christendom has been in overlooking the fact that God's great Plan for the Ages calls only for the selection of the promised Seed of Abraham, through whom the blessing will reach all peoples. Primarily, this gracious offer was made to Abraham's natural posterity, the nation of Israel, if they could keep perfectly the terms of their Law Covenant. But they were unable so to do because, like the remainder of the race, they were fallen, imperfect. Then it was that God revealed to them that He would send them a Saviour, who would deliver them from their own sentence and war them in carrying the blessing and favor to the whole world.

In due time God sent His Son, Jesus, to be the Redeemer. Jesus left the glory which He had with the Father and humbled Himself to human nature, yea, even to death, the ignominious death of the cross. Thus doing He provided the Ransom-Price for the sins of the whole world, for the penalty upon the race was a death penalty, the resultant curse mostly disobedience. Then the death of a just One for the unjust is sufficient to constitute a satisfaction of the Divine Law, the redemption of the race from its death sentence. Thus was secured to all an opportunity for resurrection: "As by a man came death by a Man also cometh the resurrection of the dead; for as all in Adam die, even so all in Christ shall be made alive, every man in his own order"—not all at once.—I. Corinthians xv., 21, 22.

Jesus, the Redeemer, having finished His sacrifice, was returned to heavenly glory at the right hand of Divine Majesty, far superior to angels, etc. He now is ready for His great work.

Why the delay, do you ask? The Scriptures very clearly inform us that a special, patient class, to be gathered out of all nations, peoples, kindreds and tongues, is to be associated with the Redeemer in His great work of blessing the world. It is for this foreordained company to be called, chosen and found faithful that the Messianic Kingdom delays. It is my opinion that the delay is nearly over—that very soon the last member of the glorious company will have passed beyond the veil, and that then, forthwith, the sufferings of The Christ, Head and Body, being ended, Messiah's glorious Kingdom will begin.

St. Paul points us to the fact that the Jewish Age, up to the time of Jesus, accomplished a great moral uplift in that nation, but that the nation as a whole was not saintly and hence, as a whole, could not be the Redeemer's associates in His Messianic Kingdom. When Messiah came to His own and they received Him not, but crucified Him, they as a nation were rejected from Divine favor for a time. But some of them were Israelites indeed, some of them received Jesus, became His disciples, and were accepted of God by the begetting of the Holy Spirit, at and after Pentecost, to be members of the House of Sons—members of spiritual Israel.

Since then Divine Providence has been selecting the saintly ones from every nation under heaven, to complete this spiritual Israel. Thus St. Paul declares again, "If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's Seed, and heirs according to the promise"—the promise that all the families of the earth shall be blessed through this Seed.—Galatians iii, 15, 29.

So to-day, on the threshold of the New Year, I urge upon you a recognition of the power of the will, and the importance of its proper exercise in choosing the best things—the things represented in Christ and His glorious Gospel of the love of God. "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve"—God or Mammon.

Her Only Correction.

A young widow went to select a monument for her recently deceased husband. After due consideration she picked out a stone and ordered the following inscription placed upon it: "My Grief Is More Than I Can Bear."

The man who was to erect the monument was a little tardy in doing it, and the widow remarried before it was done. This fact worried him, as he feared that he might have to change the wording of the inscription. So he called upon the lady and told her that he was now ready to do his work and after some hesitation asked her if she wished to change the wording of the inscription in any way.

She politely replied, "No, just as I gave it, only add at the end the word 'alone.'"

Cooley, Coward!

BY JAMES WILLIAM JACKSON.

"Now's the time to see which is the better man. On, Cooley! On, Parker! Show us a bit of good wrestling!" In the shadow of the big mill, which stood half-built on the bank of the river, the carpenter crew was stripping for a noontime swim. Parker turned quickly at the invitation; and a little colour came into his face as he involuntarily rubbed the muscles of one arm.

"Yes, come on, Cooley!" Parker's big brother shouted. "Malstead has a lame arm; but he can throw you at that."

Cooley's only answer was a shake of his head as he hastily finished his preparations and dived into the water.

"Coward!" Parker's brother bawled after him. "Somebody jump in and drown him."

A burly mechanic, eager for a good-natured rumpus, followed Cooley quickly; but he was no match as a swimmer for the muscular young fellow. Without half-trying, the "coward" kept away from the crowd and from the succession of duckings that it threatened.

The day before an argument had risen as to which of the two youngsters was the better wrestler. Cooley looked capable; but he was of such a quiet, almost shy, nature that a suspicion of his pluck had arisen.

Big Harrison had loudly proclaimed his faith that Cooley was the better man, but now he was disgusted. "Huh!" he exclaimed. "He's nothing but a girl, after all! Chase him away. Go after him, Parker."

But Parker felt, perhaps, that it was not magnanimous to force his antagonist into a scrimmage; and Cooley kept his distance.

Finally the mill whistle summoned the swimmers. There was a quick scramble for shore and some hurried dressing, with Cooley safe in the background. He guessed that the disappointed Harrison was watching for a chance to duck him with his clothes on.

Cooley followed his fellows as another whistle sounded. Like industrious ants, suddenly disturbed, the workers of the mill village scattered here and there among the towering buildings.

Cooley and Parker, with most of the carpenter crew, were at work on the new structure which lifted its steep-pitched roof high above all the others. Ladders led from the ground to the eaves, which the two young fellows mounted nimbly.

A line of cleats led up the sharp incline from eaves to peak. The present task of the crew was to cover in the upper, unfinished part of the roof. Heavy cleats here and there on the completed portion held the hemlock boards which they were using from sliding away. A perilous part of the work was carrying these boards from storage-place to nailing-point. To a novice the slope would have been utterly disheartening. Even these experienced mechanics, as they moved about, had to exercise great care. Nearly all the men wore rubber shoes, to make their footing more secure.

Purchase and Harrison came up the ladders after Cooley.

"Don't you get too far away from your nurse, son!" Purchase called to him, with a sly glance at Harrison. Cooley grinned as he filled his apron pockets with nails and pounded his hammer-handle in tight. There was no ill humour in all the chaffing; it merely lightened labour and made the minutes fly.

Bit by bit the area of finished roof increased. The two young fellows and Purchase were working near each other. Purchase was trying to convince Parker that he must force Cooley into a contest the next time; and he backed his argument with the threat that he would chastise Parker if he did not do so.

Parker kept silent, however, and Cooley maintained his diffident attitude.

Just then a whistle sounded below, and Cooley, glancing across to an open space in the roof, saw that some one was twitching the line that hung there. This line was used to lift tools and nails and to send plans back and forth between the foreman and his superior. Cooley tended it. He started over the intervening twenty feet or so to where the line was tied about a purlin.

He found at the end of the line a package of bolts, which were to be used in fastening the wooden purlins in place on the steel rafters. Parker and Purchase had orders to set the last purlin near the peak as soon as the bolts arrived. Cooley called to Parker:

"Here you are!" he cried, and flung the bolts in a bunch out upon the roof.

He led the line down again in obedience to a call and waited for another lot to be tied on. He sat idly with his fingers on the rope, waiting the signaling twitch. His eye absently roved down the even, yellow incline that stretched away to an untrimmed border and empty space at the eaves.

Over that jagged point far below he could see stacks of timber, a crawling little locomotive of the shop type, freight-cars and piles of steel. Workmen were moving back and forth without apparent purpose; they seemed too small to have any real object in view.

Beyond was a table-land of city roofs broken with streets like canons, and covered with a forest of stark chimneys, smoking at their tops. Cooley's seat was well up near the ridge-pole. With something like a shudder, he found himself wondering what it would be like to go hurtling over the edge suddenly.

"Pull in, you've got a bite!" Harrison shouted to him. Parker approached as he hauled it in.

At that instant a workman farther along the roof clumsily dropped his hammer. It slid down the incline more swiftly than any one might dare to follow. The next moment it disappeared over the edge, to imperil the head of any one who might be directly underneath.

"Hey!" Cooley exclaimed. In the incident, following so quickly on his musings, there was an unpleasant suggestion. It was, of course, a highly improper and unworkmanlike thing to let such an accident happen. The foreman saw the hammer from his position farther down the roof. He gave a quick yell of rebuke in his deep voice. Parker, until then unaware of the incident, swung round just in time to see the tool flit overboard.

The act was unfortunate. Parker had evidently forgotten that a climbing cleat was immediately in front of his advancing foot. Cooley might have warned him had he not been busy hauling in his "bite."

"That man will slide off the job himself if he does that very often!" Parker muttered, as he faced about once more.

Then, before his eyes fell cautiously and naturally to watch his steps, the toe of his shuffling foot came squarely against the cleat. His equilibrium was instantly disturbed, and in his natural terror he made matters worse by a spasmodic effort to regain his balance.

Through long familiarity with dangerous work, men become callous to the peril, but they also become vividly conscious of it. Parker's low cry of fear showed a full realization of the fate that menaced him. He reeled half-round, and fell prostrate on the steep roof. Pointed head downward toward the eaves, he started to slide with appalling rapidity. So fast, indeed, was his motion that he could not hope to stay it unless he could get a handhold.

But he fell his full length away from any cleat! There was nothing in his path to grasp. There was nothing but the even, unobstructed slide to the edge, and then the long, horrible drop through clear space to the timber-piled ground at the feet of the steel walls.

One or two men saw the accident, and their cries attracted the attention of the others. But of the twoscore men scattered over that yellow mountainside of roof, not one was near enough to lend a hand, except, perhaps, Cooley.

"Oh, help!" Parker's terror-laden voice called in a quick, high-pitched wail. His fingers picked vainly at the roofing-boards down which he glided with sickening speed.

He had fallen behind Cooley, who, you remember, was lifting a bundle of bolts over the top of the purlin. But the sound of the fall told its own terrifying story. Startled, he turned round just as Parker slid beyond his reach.

The unfortunate young fellow was already past all help unless it came with a speed almost impossible for any man, however sure-footed, on such a dangerous incline. For there men did not run, or even walk. They crawled cautiously from point to point.

For a breath Cooley felt that there was no possible aid to give. Parker was not only going fast, but he was increasing his speed by his mad efforts to stop himself.

Then a single chance flashed into Cooley's mind. There was only a second in which to act, and the risk was great.

The coiled line lay beside Cooley's knee. He hastily caught up a central loop, and giving it a quick turn about his left hand, faced toward the eaves and the sliding Parker, who was tearing the flesh off his fingers as he fiercely clutched at the boards.

Crouching low, Cooley set one foot before the other, as a child sliding on the ice prepares for the long, exhilarating "shoot." Then, his teeth set grimly, he pushed himself toward his mate.

One end of the line which he held was tied fast to the purlin above. He had tied it himself and could trust the knot. Moreover, the light braided rope was exceedingly strong. He need not fear a break.

But there were seventy feet of rope and not more than forty-five feet of roof. Cooley had made a lightning guess at the middle of the coil, but how nearly was his guess correct? There had been no time to verify his judgment by a second glance. Was there more or less than forty-five feet of slack behind him?

Already he was going down the roof like a flash. In a second all would be ended—one way or the other. If there was too much slack he would go over; and the consequent jerk would tear his hold away from the rope. Then—he wanted to shut his eyes against the awful prospect. But to save Parker he must keep his eyes open.

The line suddenly tightened. Cooley was wrenched half-round. When the rope snapped taut, the pain in his hand was like the white-hot burn of a branding-iron. The tips of the fingers of his right hand touched Parker, then dragged away. But he made a desperate effort, reached out and clutched his mate's trousers leg with an unbreakable grip.

At the moment Cooley grasped him, Parker's hands had already gone over the edge, and they remained so, hanging limply down. Cooley, although wincing at the weight his own and Parker's bodies made the rope cut into his flesh, held him securely until Purchase, Harrison and Parker's big brother came.

They carefully drew up the two young fellows behind a board cleat, where they could rest. Parker glanced round with a white face and a feeble smile of gratitude. He caught his brother's eye.

"Well," the elder Parker conceded, heartily, "I guess Cooley is not such a coward, after all, even if he was afraid to wrestle you."

Parker frowned quickly. "Oh, you fellows quit it!" he begged, wearily. "That wrestling question has been settled. I tackled Cooley over on the lots last night, and he wiped the ground with me."—Youth's Companion.

Warden Tender To His Convicts

ATLANTA, GA., DEC. 30.—"The only forbidding thing about the United States penitentiary in Atlanta is its name. So humane is its management by Warden W. H. Moyer that but for the knowledge that it is a prison the inmates might well imagine themselves in a sanatorium for the cure of maladies which impair their usefulness to society."

COMPLIMENTS OF A CONVICT.

So spoke a man of intelligence who recently completed a term of six years in the federal prison for an infraction of the rules which society has framed for its protection.

"I entered the prison believing I was doomed to six years of misery," continued this former guest of the Government. "The word pictures of prisons as they used to be, and as some of them are still, obsessed me, and I thought for six years I would have to fight desperately to keep myself from being brutalized. But I soon found that old prison methods were not in vogue under Warden Moyer, and that his idea is to treat the inmates as sick citizens who have been sent to him so that he may try to restore them to civic health. I left the prison a better man physically, mentally and morally than when I entered it. I have a better conception of my duties to society. I feel that I have been restored to civic health by my confinement in the Atlanta prison. And so I repeat that the only forbidding thing about the Atlanta federal penitentiary is its name."

MODEL PRISON.

This testimony in regard to Mr. Moyer and his methods is corroborated by the evidence of others who have served sentences under him. All agree that he does not consider himself the custodian of a prison, but rather the head physician of a hospital which makes a speciality of treating persons who are afflicted with maladies that render them unacceptable to society.

Pursuing this idea, Mr. Moyer has in a few years made the penitentiary here one of the model prisons of the world. The sights which used to shock visitors to prisons are not in evidence under Warden Moyer. There is no lockstep in the Atlanta prison, and the inmates no longer wear stripes which mark them as outcasts. The inmates walk as they did before they entered the prison, and have clothing which does not loudly proclaim that they are under the ban of the law. Mr. Moyer believes that the first step toward reclaiming persons who have offended against society is to restore their self-respect, and he thinks that such things as the lockstep and stripes tend to further degradation.

KEEPS ALIVE SELF-RESPECT.

"There is no telling," said the warden, "how many men have been prevented from striving to reform because of the lockstep and stripes. They felt that they were being degraded out of pure malice, and finally the sense of degradation became chronic.

"When men arrive at that stage there is not one chance in a thousand of reformation. So long as a spark of self-respect can be kept alive in a man there is hope for him. The lockstep and stripes have been abolished here because they create in the minds of the prisoners the idea that society wanted to degrade them to the uttermost. This created resentment on the part of the prisoners, and it was necessary to rid the prisoners of this before they could be brought to a sense of their obligations to themselves and society. When a prisoner feels that he is not being imposed upon it is much easier to start him on the road to reformation and to subsequent usefulness to society."

CLUBS IN LEAGUE.

In an effort to cure persons of the maladies which have made them objectionable to society, and forced them into retirement, Warden Moyer has introduced novelties at the prison.

No one ever associated the national game with convicts, but, nevertheless, there is a baseball league in the Atlanta prison, composed of six good clubs. There are about eight hundred men in the prison, and it was easy to get material for a six-club league. The prisoners were keen for the sport, and some of the games played on the prison grounds would do credit to big clubs. The prison grounds cover many acres, inclosed by a wall. When baseball is in season, persons passing along the road by the wall have frequently wondered at the shouting inside the prison grounds, thinking there was a mutiny in progress. But there was no mutiny—the shouting was simply the effervescing enthusiasm of the convicts while watching a contest of the clubs that make up the prison league.

"Playing baseball," says Mr. Moyer, "is good for the prisoners in every way. Above all, the game makes them feel that they are still in touch with that unfettered world beyond the walls to which they hope to return for another try at the game of life."

The warden has organized a prison band. There are nearly one hundred members, and Jacob Matthieson, orchestra leader in two of the Atlanta theatres, was employed to train them. Matthieson found plenty of talent among the prisoners, and organized a band that is high grade. The band gives concerts for the prisoners during the week.

HEAR OPERATIC STARS.

Besides the entertainment furnished by the band, operatic stars when in Atlanta frequently visit the penitentiary and sing for the inmates. Last spring Geraldine Farrar sang for the prisoners.

Several times theatrical troupes while in Atlanta have been induced to go to the prison and give performances. There is a prospect of the formation of a theatrical club at the prison, as some of the inmates have histrionic talent.

For a time the illiterate among the prisoners worked with Mr. Moyer. There were many who could neither read nor write. Finally, with the aid of the chaplain, Mr. Moyer organized a prison school, and illiteracy rapidly disappeared from the prison. Some of the convicts assist as teachers, and many persons will leave the prison with the rudiments of education who would have remained densely ignorant if they had not violated the laws of society, and been turned over to the prison for treatment.

ABDICATION REPORTED

Correspondent Says Chinese Emperor Has Fled.

London, Jan. 2.—The Daily Telegraph's St. Petersburg correspondent says that news received there from Manchuria reports the secret flight of the Emperor and the Dowager Empress of China through Mukden, on the way to the Imperial residence at Jehol, near the Mongolian frontier.

Yuan Shi Kai is suspected by the Manchus of playing double. He has had some shaved his days and does not sleep. He is being attacked and betrayed in every quarter, according to the correspondent, but still is holding his own courageously, like a lion at bay.

Fighting Renewed.

Hankow, Jan. 2.—Fighting between the revolutionists and the imperialists, which began Sunday evening, was renewed yesterday morning twenty miles up the river, by the republicans, who had not yet received notice of the promulgation of an armistice. The republican commander ordered the fighting to cease, but a desultory gun fire was heard throughout the day.

Yuan Welcomed Attack.

Pekin, Jan. 2.—Much depends upon whether the fighting near Hankow was authorized by the republicans and whether it will be followed up by the republicans or imperialists. The Associated Press is informed that the news of the attack was welcomed by Yuan Shi Kai, who will now await the issue of the battle. If the Imperialists are victorious it will give the throne a brief lease of life, while a reverse to the Imperial arms, it is believed, would precipitate the abdication of the Emperor.

Must Surrender Wealth.

Paris, Jan. 2.—A special despatch to the Paris edition of The New York Herald from its Pekin correspondent says that Yuan Shi Kai, the Premier, to-day will present to the throne a signed document of all the commanders of the northern army that the wealth of the princes and nobles shall be commandeered for the maintenance of the war.

The memorial [illegible] the dictatorial attitude of the revolutionists unbearable, [illegible] loyalty to the monarchy and a [illegible] to fight the issue to a finish. It insists that unless the princes [illegible] they shall be treated as traitors. It is stated that if this memorial is rejected by the throne Yuan Shi Kai will insist that his resignation be accepted.

NEW YEAR'S IN LONDON.

Great Merriment and Revelry Marks Entrance of 1912.

London, Jan. 2.—Scenes of revelry in the city and west end of London heralded the birth of the New Year. All the leading hotels were crowded, and some of the schemes devised for the entertainment of dinner and supper parties were highly ingenious.

At the Carlton a huge basket of flowers were brilliantly illuminated, from the centre of which appeared a well-known actress, who sang "Auld Lang Syne." The guests joined in the song with great fervor.

A pretty surprise awaited the guests at the Savoy. Marie Tark, a charming little actress, attended by 16 diminutive fairies, danced down the restaurant, distributing crackers and to the ladies handsome theatre bags.

A gigantic cracker which at midnight opened to allow Father Time to emerge and distribute souvenirs was the principal feature of the celebration at the Waldorf. Here also 24 singers from the London Opera House, dressed in mediaeval costume, sang carols to welcome the New Year.

The Hotel Cecil had a Roman chariot, drawn by a pony and driven by a fairy, to distribute crackers and souvenirs to the guests. At 12 o'clock the lights went out and when they were restored, it was seen that ten waiters, who had been ranged around the room, had been suddenly changed and formed the greeting "A Happy New Year to You All."

Killed by Dynamite.

Lindsay, Jan. 2.—An Italian named Valentine Luedano met death on Saturday afternoon at the construction camp on the line of the C.P.R. eastward branch near Glenarm. It appears that Luedano was in the act of sawing dynamite when a spark got into one of the cases causing a terrific explosion. Luedano's body was blown to atoms, and a companion assistant some distance away was seriously injured and is now lying at the Ross Memorial Hospital here.

Six cases of dynamite exploded. Luedano was a fine young fellow, about 22 years of age, unmarried, and a brother resides in town.

Protest Against Masons.

Montreal, Jan. 2.—It has just transpired that when the Canadian Roman Catholic archbishops met at Quebec to attend the consecration of Mgr. Mathieu, Bishop of Regina, they decided to send a letter of sympathy and protest to the archbishops and bishops of Portugal, in view of the attitude of the Government of that country towards the Catholic Church and its orders.

The language used by the prelates is very vigorous and Freemasons are held to be behind what is called an odious persecution. The Canadian archbishops, through [illegible] Begin of Quebec, who sent the [illegible] say that they hope the better feeling and better educated men of Portugal will clear their hand in the course they have already outlined.

Merger of Steamships.

Boston, Jan. 2.—The consolidation of the Eastern-Metropolitan and [illegible] Steamship Companies into one [illegible] became effective yesterday, notwithstanding protests made [illegible] Algerald and others. The properties [illegible] now owned by the [illegible] Steamship Corporation.

White Plague.

New York, Jan. 2.—The [illegible] was spent during the year [illegible] in this country in the war against tuberculosis, according to a statement issued last night by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

Rail Passengers Injured.

Caribou, Maine, Jan. 2.—The forward [illegible] of the [illegible] passenger train from Presque on the Mountain division of the Maine Central was injured in a collision with a freight train yesterday.

One alderman re-elected, three ex-aldermen returned to the Council Board and one new applicant to civic honours, elected, were the results of the municipal elections yesterday. Of the three members of last year's Council who went to the polls yesterday, one, Ald. Buller, was again chosen, while the other two, Ald. Metheral, in the Centre Ward, and Ald. Edgar, in the West Ward, were defeated. Three former members of the Council accomplished the feat that Jas. J. Jeffries found impossible—they "came back". These were ex-Ald. George A. Gillespie, in the Centre Ward, ex-Ald. Jos. J. Duffus, in the West Ward, and ex-Ald. Wm. J. Johnston, in the North Ward. The only new member is Mr. George N. Gordon, who was elected to fill the vacancy caused by Ald. Bradburn's resignation in the Centre Ward. Although quiet, as is usual when there is no contest for the Mayoralty, there was considerable interest taken in the results, and a comparatively good-sized vote was polled.

In the South Ward, Ald. Buller had as his opponent, Jas. Garside, the latter making a very creditable showing for a new man, Ald. Buller being returned by a majority of 32. Mr. Garside had a majority [illegible] ing five up at Henry's and eleven at Div. No. 5, but the big vote polled by Ald. Buller, in the other three divisions saved the day for him. The keenest fight in the city was in the Centre Ward, where Ald. Metheral and ex-Ald. Gillespie battled for the two-year term. Both men were well known and both had had considerable experience, and it was felt that there would be the warmest kind of contest. There was. Ex-Ald. Gillespie captured the seat by exactly two votes, the figures reading: Gillespie 280, Metheral 278. The first division in No. 8 gave Gillespie 19 majority, and then came Div. 7, with 49 for Gillespie. Div. No. 9, however, changed the complexion of affairs, as it gave Metheral 61 majority, and cut Gillespie's lead to 7. Everything depended upon the result of the vote at Div. 6, (F. Mason's store), when it was finally in, it was found that Metheral had a majority of 5 here, and that Gillespie was elected for the Ward by two votes.

The battle between Geo. N. Gordon and W. G. Morrow, in the same ward, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Bradburn, was not so close, Mr. Gordon being returned by the substantial majority of 271. He had a good margin at each poll, Mr. Morrow's best showing being at Div. 6, where Gordon's majority was 16.

There was a three-cornered fight in the West Ward, where Ald. Edgar, ex-Ald. Duffus and H. Cyril Hill went to the polls. It was an interesting contest all through. Mr. Duffus was returned by a majority of 27 over Ald. Edgar. Mr. Hill polled a good vote, in view of the fact that he was a new man against an Alderman and an ex-Alderman.

Ex.-Ald. Wm. J. Johnston comes back to the Council from the North Ward, yesterday's election returning him over Wm. Langford, Jr., by a majority of 114. He had a majority in each of the five divisions, although the two were almost even at Div. 15, where the figures were: Johnston 53, Langford 52.

There was no contest in the East Ward, where Ald. Anderson was returned by acclamation.

Following are the figures:

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

Is Guaranteed by McDermid and Jury and Payne's Drug Store, Special Agents

Nearly everyone has dandruff, and must reconcile themselves to the idea of becoming completely bald or resort to the use of Newbro's Herpicide.

The manufacturers have absolute faith in Herpicide to kill the germ and remove all traces of dandruff. So perfect is this belief that all dealers are instructed to sell the preparation with a "money back" agreement.

Such supreme confidence is the best evidence in the world of the merit of Herpicide. They know the result, hence the guarantee. It protects the purchaser.

Used as directed, Newbro's Herpicide kills the germ that causes dandruff and prevents the hair from coming out. It stops itching of the scalp, which is so disagreeable.

Send 10c. in postage or silver for sample and booklet to The Herpicide Co., Dept. E., Detroit, Mich.

Herpicide is for sale by all druggists, and applications may be obtained at good barber shops.

Election For School Board

There will be an election for the North Ward representation on the Separate School Board to-morrow, with Messrs. J. W. Fitzgerald and James Clancy as the candidates. The polling booth will be at Mrs. Lee's shop, Smith street, and polling will take place between the hours of 10 a.m., and 5 p.m.

HOUSE WAS DESTROYED

Residence of E. J. Ferguson, 255 Roger St., Was Visited by a Disastrous Blaze Yesterday Morning

A HARD FIGHT

Fire destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Ferguson, at 255 Rogers street, yesterday morning, incurring a loss of about $1200. Shortly before ten o'clock Mr. Ferguson had occasion to go out to the stable, and on his return he noticed smoke issuing from the attic. He promptly sent in an alarm but when the Fire Department arrived on the scene the fire was beyond control. They were further handicapped by the fact that the nearest hydrant was 1200 feet away, necessitating the laying of 24 lengths of hose. Their troubles were also augmented by the bursting of two lengths of hose, which delayed the work of extinguishing the fire to a considerable extent.

Willing helpers were soon on the spot, and a large portion of the furniture removed from the building, including an organ and a valuable sideboard. About 10.15 the roof of the building fell in, and two of the firemen who were just inside of the building in charge of a line of hose, had a narrow escape. The smoke was so dense that they were not aware of their danger until a number of spectators, who were in a strategic position, uttered a warning cry, apprising the firemen of their danger. They stepped back just in time to avoid the falling timbers.

The building, which is owned by Mrs. Dover, will be a total loss, amounting to about $800. Damage to the contents will be in the neighborhood of $500. There is $100 insurance on the contents, and a small amount on the building.

BECK IS PLEASED

Says Hydro-Electric Commission Will Spend Thirty Millions of Dollars

Examiner Special:

LONDON, ONT., JAN. 2.—Hon. Adam Beck is more than pleased with the support that the municipal vote throughout Ontario has given the Hydro-Electric power project. "It shows" he stated this afternoon, "that everywhere the people have the greatest confidence in our work. We are going ahead immediately with a most expensive plant that will be of immense importance in the development of this country. We expect to make an expenditure of about 30 million dollars the next few years, and link up a system that will be complete from Sarnia on the west, to Cornwall and Ottawa on the east."

A Substantial Xmas Gift

LONDON, ONT., JAN. 2.—Fred Rousseau, a Toronto traveller, who recently had both legs cut off at Blyth, when he fell under a train, found $1,435 in a purse for him on a Christmas tree, held for the patients in the Wingham Hospital. The money was from the Commercial Travellers' Association.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC BY-LAW WAS CARRIED BY 1295

Practically No Opposition to the Measure as Every Division in the City Showed Substantial Majorities in Favour of the By-law—The Complete Figures.

The by-law asking the ratepayers of Peterboro' to say whether or not they favoured the city securing a supply from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, was answered decisively in the affirmative yesterday, the by-law being carried by a total majority of 1295. There was practically no opposition to the measure, every division in the city showing substantial majorities for the by-law. The first figures in were from the East Ward, No. 21, giving the by-law 51 majority. This first return was speedily followed by other top-sided votes in favour of the by-law and it was soon seen that the majority would be a heavy one. In one division out of 47 votes there was only one against it, and in another, out of 102, but 3 voted nay. Such majorities were general throughout the city. Following are the figures:

POULTRY ASSOCIATION SHOW WILL BE SUCCESS

The regular monthly meeting of the Peterborough Poultry Association will be held in their hall on Thursday night, January 4th, at 8 o'clock. As this will be the last meeting before the annual show which opens on Jan. 9th, all members are asked to be present and renew their membership for 1912. Every member who intends to make an exhibit at the show should be present and hand in their entries, and this will greatly facilitate the work of the secretary of making out entry tickets for all exhibits.

Mrs. Wm. Dawson of London East, Ont., will be present at the show and will lecture on the hatching and care of chickens, and also on preparing birds for shows.

All special prises should be turned in at once. Please be in time with your entries, and oblige the secretary Joseph Kelly, 204 King street, City.

Officers And Men Of 57th Regiment Hold Enjoyable New Year's "At Home"

The Officers, Sergeants, Corporals and Privates of the 57th Regiment "Peterborough Rangers," observed New Year's by making it a festive occasion at their respective quarters at the armouries.

From three o'clock until five yesterday afternoon, the officers held an informal "at home" in the Officers' mess. The room was artistically decorated for the occasion. Refreshments were served and splendid music was supplied, which tended to brighten the proceedings. All the officers attended and also a very large number of friends.

The Sergeants held a very successful social function in the Sergeants' mess also. Dainty refreshments were served and a very social afternoon was held. Nearly all the sergeants were present and their quarters were filled to their capacity with friends and visitors.

The feature of the day's entertainment, consisted of a number of fine vocal solos by Sgt. Frederick W. Leach.

The recreation room was the scene of a most enjoyable "at home" held under the auspices of the corporals and privates. A very enjoyable programme was arranged, and during the afternoon they were favoured by a visit from Col. Clegg, Hon. J. R. Stratton and a number of the officers of the regiment. The gathering broke up about 5 o'clock by the singing of "The Maple Leaf."

All the rooms at the armouries were magnificently decorated for this occasion, showing the deep interest taken in the regiment by its officers and members.

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Mr. Wm. Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble wasted nerve cells.

Holmer Second In Marathon

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, JAN. 2.—Tom Longboat and Fred Cameron, the Canadian marathoners, evidently didn't do anything very startling in the annual Powder Hill International marathon. Cablegrams to-day do not mention them among the leaders. Kolehmama, a Finlander, was the winner. Hans. Holmer of the Canadians, second.

Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

TUESDAY, JANUARY 2, 1912.

A STATUE OF MRS. NICHOLLS.

The new City Council has presented to it the discharge of a plain duty—to recognize in some tangible form, and in conformity with universal usage, the splendid benefactions of the late Mrs. Nicholls. Everybody knows of and is reaping the benefits of her generosity, expressed in such a way that every citizen, from the oldest to the youngest, derives therefrom pleasure and benefit. We owe to Mrs. Nicholls, three splendid parks, maintenance included, whose purchase would represent a very large expenditure by the city. We owe to her an excellent hospital, munificently endowed. We largely owe the Y.M.C.A. buildings and grounds, and every Sunday school in the city has profited from her generosity. Yet the people of Peterborough, have erected no public monument in recognition of the benefactions of Mrs. Nicholls. In the hospital bearing her name, there is not even a mural tablet in her honour. In an article to be found on the tenth page of this issue is a reference to the model of a statue of Mrs. Nicholls, moulded by the celebrated sculptress, Miss Katharine Wallis. Those who have seen the model, testify to its excellent likeness. It represents Mrs. Nicholls seated, and will, if the order is given by the City Council, be made in heroic size. Miss Wallis holds the model in Paris, subject to a commission to execute it in bronze for erection in some prominent place in Peterborough, as a permanent memorial of a lady whose liberality to the city condpces to the benefit and happiness of all classes.

It will become one of the duties of the new City Council, to see that something practical is done in this direction. Any course, within reasonable limits, they may take will be assured of public approval. By taking action to erect a monument to Mrs. Nicholls, they will remove the reproach of ingratitude and failure of recognition which now rests upon the city, and will at the same time give recognition to a Peterborough-born lady, whose merits as an artist have been more warmly and practically recognized in the great art centres of the world than in her own native city.

THE ELECTION RESULTS.

The results of the exercise of their franchise by the electors yesterday was generally satisfactory. A good selection of aldermen was made, and the power by-law voted upon under the conditions, for which the Examiner contended — recognition of the people as the final court of appeal in case of money by-laws—was overwhelmingly endorsed.

The by-law would, perhaps, have been carried in any event, but, no doubt, the pledge of the Chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission, absence of which was the only objection urged against the by-law by the Examiner, had a very large part contributing to the exceedingly large affirmative vote on the by-law. From the moment Mr. Beck gave his pledge that no contract would be entered into by the Commission, till the people had been consulted upon any money by-law involved, the opposition to the by-law practically ceased. Now that the people have spoken so emphatically it is certain that the new council will carry out the wishes of the ratepayers in the spirit in which they were expressed. And there is every indication that, if this is done the people will derive the largest benefit from their decision of Monday. An additional guarantee of good management is provided by the special legislation procured by the City Council, when negotiating for acquirement of the interests of the Light and Power Company. This legislation provided that in case the electric system was secured by the city its management should be placed under the Water Works Commissioners. If the same generally satisfactory results should proceed from their administration of Peterborough's electric power interests, as have attended their administration of the Water Works, the people, if the conditions upon which they voted are observed, will have no regrets for having so strongly adopted the power by-law on Monday.

As regards the City Council elections the results are also satisfactory. Messrs. Duffus, Buller, Gillespie, Gordon and Johnston were the members elected. Mr. Buller has much reason to be proud of the confidence of the people of ward in which he was born and reared, and of the emphatic endorsation of his four years of excellent service in the City Council. Mr. George N. Gordon, a new member of the Council, has shown in his campaign, and in his general relations as a citizen, an energy and enterprise that guarantee an equally energetic and enterprising course as alderman, and this largely accounted for the splendid vote he received. He replaces in the aldermanic circle, Mr. W. H. Bradburn, whose term as Mayor should be made more successful and valuable in virtue of his experience and good services as an alderman, as well as by his recognized business ability. Messrs. Gillespie and Duffus bring to their new position the experience of former terms in the Council, and should make valuable members of the Aldermanic Board. Taking the City Council of 1912 as a whole, including the two-year term members, Peterborough can congratulate itself on having a promising Council, which in dealing with the important questions that confront it, will have full scope for the exercise of its best efforts in the interests of the public good.

YOU CAN HAVE HEALTHY HAIR

Use Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, A Harmless Remedy That Makes the Hair Grow.

What a pity it is to observe so many people with thin and faded hair and then realize that the most of these people might have a fine, healthy head of hair if they would but use the simple "sage tea" of our grandmothers combined with other ingredients for restoring and preserving the hair. No one, young or old, need have gray hair, weak, thin, or falling hair, dandruff or any trouble of the sort if they would but use Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. On the contrary it is possible to have healthy, vigorous hair, of perfect colour, by a few applications of this remarkable preparation.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy quickly removes dandruff, leaves the scalp clean and healthy, promotes the growth of the hair and restores the natural colour of the hair which has become faded or gray. It is a clean wholesome dressing, which may be used at any time and with perfect safety. Don't neglect your hair. Start to-day with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

TELL A STORY

GARMENTS FOUND IN A HIDDEN CUPBOARD RECALL TRAGEDY

It had been papered over and forgotten so many years ago that no one had even guessed at its existence until the old wall had required attention at the hands of the builder, and in stripping off the paper he had found the closed door of the cupboard. Even the key was lost. With keen interest and vague wondering as to what secrets we were penetrating my cousin and I watched the workmen force the lock.

The door sprang open and showed the shelves piled with neat boxes covered with quaint checkered blue paper. My cousin took up a box and opened the lid. It was full of strings of dull black beads.

"Whatever are these?" she mused, as she lifted up a string.

"Look at the box," I suggested, and she read out the word "pomanders." We were both no wiser, but on referring to a dictionary we found that pomanders were perfumed balls formerly carried in the pocket or else worn around the neck or suspended from the girdle. A faint old-world perfume still scented them; in fact, the whole cupboard was still full of vague sweet scents as of half forgotten memories. Somehow the presence of our unknown ancestress appeared to haunt the spot where she had stored her treasures.

Was she young or old? Had she in the heyday of her youth closed the door and concealed it under a layer of paper, hiding them until ages after her descendants should find her treasures? Or was it some dame, frail and feeble with the weight of years and the trouble that had been the lot of the family in those days, that had laid the things there, and in dread of the vandal's hands had sealed them up for centuries?"

We laid the box aside and its pomanders and took up a leather-bound volume and opened it. In a quaint, old-fashioned handwriting and in faded ink were written the words, "Dooratio B——'s Book of Simples."

We turned over the pages with reverent fingers and read recipes for curing all manner of evils. How some hair from the dog that bit you chopped finely and laid between slices of bread and butter was an infallible remedy for hydrophobia. A handful of snails sprinkled with salt and placed in a clean linen handkerchief hung up by the four corners and the liquid that drained away taken fasting, would stop the ravages of consumption.

"I'm glad I didn't live then," observed my cousin with a grimace. "I am sure I should have died at the very thought of taking such awful things."

We laid down the Book of Simples and turned to the boxes that filled the shelves. They all contained something of the personality of the dead and gone Dooratio. Dainty fans with porcelain figures daintily tinted and fixed to the silken surface. Gorgeous flowers and still more vivid birds covered others. Ribbons and laces in sandal wood boxes that scented the air as we lifted the lids. Feathered flowers that rivalled nature in their dainty colouring and marvellous imitation. Scores of glittering beads and embroideries.

Last of all we drew out a large box that stood at the bottom of the cupboard. We lifted the lid and the heavy perfume rose like incense. It was full of handsome clothes. We lifted up the first. It was a petticoat heavy with jewelled embroidery. Among gorgeous silken flowers, quaint peacocks and pheasants strutted. It must have taken years of work, and the thick white silk was stiff with the embroidery, while the weight of the whole was enormous. We laid it tenderly away as we picked up the next garment. It was a man's cloak, a deep wine colour outside; simple and plain. But the lining was literally a piece of gold cloth. The flowers of the precious metal covered nearly the whole of the white silk on which they were either woven or worked. Perhaps it was such a coat Raleigh had laid under the feet of his queen.

Hester, my cousin, shook out the heavy folds and made as if to throw the cloak over her shoulders. As she did so a gash in the lining showed up grimly. The dark stains around the edge showed that the wearer had been stabbed in the back. With a shudder we hastily folded up the cloak and laid it aside, wondering what tragedy had left its marks on that fair cloth of gold lining.

We took out the treasured garments that formed the store in the box. Evidently they had illustrated some life story, for among the clothing of grown men and women were dainty half worn shoes and baby robes. Just the things a wife and mother might hoard as relics of the tragedies and events of a saddened life—relics of baby feet that had trodden life's thorny way too short a time to have felt the pricks. We sadly replaced them and had almost filled the box again when from the folds of the petticoat dropped a slip of paper. In it was written, in a trembling hand in the crabbed and ill-spelled writing of the day:

"I am growing old and weary with much marrying and the loss of children. I lay my treasures in these boxes and seal them up. I have none to care for them, and my husband's sons' wives would spurn them as they are of no value. Only they are precious to me, and I beg of those who find them in days to come to treat them tenderly as they would receive an old woman's blessing.—Dooratio B——."

"I'm glad she didn't put a curse upon the finder," added Hester, as she finished translating the missive. "I know who she is now. She was old Sir John's third wife, only she is always called Dorothy in the family stories. No wonder she was weary of much marrying. She was married first at ten years old, and then when her husband died she was married while still little more than a child to another man, handed over a reward to one of the king's favourites. Then when she was again widowed the king married her to our ancestor, who was a bigwig of some importance and a favourite of the king's. Poor Dooratie. I think her children were those of her second marriage. She outlived them all."

Then we shut the door of the cupboard and went sadly away, haunted by the memory of the weary woman who had been so much married and into whose life had never come the joyousness of a love match.—London Chronicle.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARY McSALLEY.

The death occurred in the House of Providence early yesterday morning of Mrs. Mary McSalley, relict of the late Major John McSalley.

The deceased, who was seventy-five years of age, spent twenty-five years with her husband in India. In 1881, Major and Mrs. McSalley came to Peterborough and a few months later the Major passed away. Mrs. McSalley was possessed of many estimable qualities, which rendered her beloved of all those who were fortunate enough to know her. For many years after the death of her husband she worked as a housekeeper and has been in the House of Providence for some two years. The news of her death met with deep regret among her friends in the city. She is the last of her family.

The funeral will take place to-morrow at 9 o'clock to the St. Peter's cemetery for interment.

SAMUEL WHITE.

There passed away last evening a very well-known resident of Bailieboro, in the person of Mr. Samuel White, aged 73 years.

The deceased resp, in creed, a Presbyterian, and a valued member of the Centreville Presbyterian Church. The late Mr. White was well known in the vicinity, and was held in high esteem by all those with whom he was associated.

Mr. White is survived by five sons and one daughter, namely, Porter S. White, of Peterborough; J. W. of Bailieboro; Joseph, of Clavan; Thomas of South Monaghan, and James and Minnie at home. One sister also mourns his passing in the person of Mrs. McKnight of Millbrook, and two brothers, John of Chesley, and William of Bewdley.

The funeral will take place in Bailieboro to-morrow at 2 o'clock.

NO MORE DISTRESS FROM THE STOMACH

No Dyspepsia, Gas, Heartburn or Indigestion Five Minutes Later

Every family here ought to keep some Diapepsin in the house, as any one of you may have an attack of Indigestion or Stomach trouble at any time, day or night.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a distressed, out-of-order stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of Indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin, and take a little just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach. Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it prevents fermentation and takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is at your drug store, waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin contain more than sufficient to cure any case of Dyspepsia Indigestion or any other Stomach trouble.

LAID TO REST

The funeral of the late Mrs. James Matchett, of Murray street, took place yesterday afternoon. The Rev. Robert Pogue officiated at an impressive service at the house at 2 o'clock, and at 2.30 the funeral cortege proceeded to the Little Lake cemetery for interment.

The attendance, which was a large one, included many out-of-town visitors, and the pallbearers were Messrs. R. J. Matchett (Lindsay), Wm. Mein, George Mather, Melville Stewart, R. McGregor and A. Weir.

On Sunday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, the remains of the late Mr. Albert Henry Cobb of 551 Aylmer street, were interred in the Little Lake cemetery. The Rev. Canon Davidson officiated.

Though by request there were no flowers, a large number of friends attended the funeral, to pay a last tribute to the deceased. The pall-bearers were Messrs. H. Bush, R. Morrow, A. Johnson, F. Brownscombe, Jas. Laing and S. Knapman.

Try This Pinex "Sixteen Ounces of Cough Syrup"

A Family Supply for 50c, Saving $2. The Surest, Quickest Remedy You Ever Used or Money Refunded.

A cough remedy that saves you $2, and is guaranteed to give quicker, better results than anything else, is surely worth trying. And one trial will show you why Pinex is used in more homes in the U. S. and Canada than any other cough remedy.

You will be pleasantly surprised by the way it takes right hold of a cough giving almost instant relief. It will usually stop the most obstinate, deep-seated cough in twenty-four hours, and is unequaled for prompt results in whooping cough.

A 50-cent bottle of Pinex, when mixed with home-made sugar syrup, makes sixteen ounces of the best cough remedy ever used. Easily prepared in five minutes—directions in package.

The taste is pleasant—children take it willingly. Stimulates the appetite and is slightly laxative—both excellent features. Splendid for croup, hoarseness, asthma, bronchitis and other throat troubles, and a highly successful remedy for incipient lung troubles.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of Norway White Pine extract, rich in guaiacol and other natural healing pine elements. Simply mix with sugar syrup or strained honey, in a 16-oz. bottle, and it is ready for use.

Pinex has often been imitated, but never successfully, for nothing else will produce the same results. The genuine is guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. Certificate of guarantee is wrapped in each package. Your druggist has Pinex or will gladly get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

LOCAL O.H.A. SEASON OPENS THIS WEEK
COBOURG AND LINDSAY TO PLAY HERE

Juniors Open the Season With a Game on Thursday Night, While Intermediates Meet Old Rivals on Friday.

TWO GOOD GAMES

The local O.H.A. season will open this week with two games, Cobourg playing the local juniors in a Junior O.H.A. game on Thursday night, while the Lindsay and Peterborough Intermediate meet on Friday night. These should prove two great battles and form a fitting introduction to the season. The Friday game on Thursday night should be a corker. The game against Peterborough for district supremacy last year will be remembered by local fans and they will look forward to seeing just such another battle on Thursday night. Cobourg have the majority of last year's seven in action and they are in good shape, having been in training for over a month. The Peterborough team will trot out almost an entirely new aggregation, Art Hall and Jerry Coughlin being the only available members of last year's team, but they have a host of good boys to pick from and will be represented by a well-balanced team on Thursday night. There were twenty-five out at yesterday morning's practice and the team will be out again to-night between 7 and 8 o'clock, when the following men and these only, are asked to be out: Hall, Coughlin, Dwyer, Latimer, Milloy, Kennedy, Clancy, Cook, O'Dette, Callaghan, Weir, Halpin.

The Intermediates will not practise to-night, as they had a good workout this afternoon and will be out again to-morrow between 7 and 8. They are not losing any opportunities to practise, as they were out on Saturday night and had a rattling practice yesterday morning. Among those out were Dempsey, Searle, Bond, Denison, Rev. Gingue, Park, Kelly and Coughlin.

Friday night's game with Lindsay should be about as interesting a game as has been seen around here in many moons. The old-time rivalry between the two clubs will be enough to pack the rink. Word comes from Lindsay that they have a strong, well-balanced team this year, with such stars as Peter Spratt, point of last year's St. Michael's team in line. Bill Stoddard is back in the game and the team is said to be the best Lindsay has had since they won the championship. The Peterborough team, however, is not worrying very much over these reports from Scugogville. They are devoting all their attention to getting into shape and will be fit on Friday night. The team will be strong and the boys are going into the game with the determination of starting the season right by a victory. There will undoubtedly be a big crowd of fans out for the battle, judging by the number of rail-birds who have been attending the practises.

GOOD PROSPECTS FOR PETERBORO' BALL CLUB

Secretary Robinson, of the Canadian Baseball League Talks to the Examiner About the Situation Generally and Peterborough's Chances in Particular.

While a visitor in the city over the holiday Mr. M. M. Robinson, sporting editor of the Hamilton Spectator, and Secretary of the Canadian Baseball League, took up the proposition of placing a club in Peterborough this year. Mr. Robinson, who is an old Peterborough boy, is very eager to see Peterborough added to the league, and stated to the Examiner that he was satisfied that there was enough demand for baseball here to warrant a club being placed here. While in the city the league official went into the matter in all detail with Dr. Wightman and others who all expressed their desire to have a club here, with the result that an effort will be made to round up enough enthusiasts to warrant a meeting in the next few days, when the matter will be carefully gone over, and explained by Secretary Robinson, who has expressed his willingness to attend such a meeting. In speaking to The Examiner about the proposition, Mr. Robinson said: "The League has decided to make the organization an eight club affair. Last year, the initial one, six clubs started, and ended the race. In spite of the heavy expense to be met with in the first season, three of the clubs made money, two broke even, and one lost money, the latter being Guelph, a club which lost 16 games in a row, and naturally, as a result, did not find much favour, either at home, or on the road, and 175 players were brought into the six cities before the six teams were built up, and when the league wound up, after four months of prosperity, it was found that nine players had been sold or drafted by the major league clubs, the greatest showing made by any minor league for the season of 1911. The Canadian League was a huge success, the surprise of the base ball world, and it now enjoys a good connection. But it lacks in one point, and that is that six clubs do not furnish the interest that is to be found with eight clubs. To complete the league, in every way, Ottawa and Peterborough are to be added. Ottawa has already made application and has been admitted. Peterborough is being counted upon and, knowing this city as I do, it should prove a real good ball town. Fine grounds are possessed, very convenient to all the citizens, and the city is plenty large enough to support a team. Baseball is a big game at the present time, and if for nothing else a ball team is a grand advertising medium. A stock company should easily be formed here, and if this is done, and a good playing manager secured, there is no doubt but that the proposition will prove a paying one. An eight-club league composed of London, St. Thomas, Berlin, Guelph, Brantford, Hamilton Peterborough and Ottawa will prove the strongest class organization in America, and will give the fans in Peterborough some of the most enjoyable sport they have ever had."

Mr. Robinson has promised to supply the local parties interested with a few facts and figures in connection with the proposed club, and as soon as these are received a meeting of those interested will be held. In the meantime it is up to all the Peterborough fans to get out and boost.

CURLERS OPEN SEASON AT CHARLOTTE STREET RINK

Mr. John Brightman shot the first stone in the initial game of curling at Charlotte Street Rink yesterday morning. Mr. Angus McIntosh, caretaker of the rink, by taking judicious advantage of the cold spell, was able to have the seven rinks in operation and when such enthusiasts as Messrs E. Hicks, Dr. Wightman, A. Moore, P. Connal, and other local men of light and leading in the "roarin' game" of Scotia, made a casual call yesterday, they found everything in first-class shape for curling.

After the customary exchanges of compliments and season's greetings, John Brightman pushed off the initial "granite" to the great delight of the curlers present. After this important part of the proceedings had been executed, a number of rinks lined up and engaged in a friendly contest.

Games were played in the afternoon and evening.

The first schedule games will be played Jan. 8, and in the meantime, weather permitting, games will be played throughout the week.

SACRED HEART RINK IS ATTRACTING BIG CROWDS

The Sacred Heart rink has been in full swing for the past few days and has been the scene of huge throngs of merry skaters. Weather permitting, the rink will be open for the winter. Yesterday being a holiday, there was an exceptionally large crowd both afternoon and evening. The rink, to say the least, is the largest and best that has ever been thrown open to lovers of skating in Peterborough. It has an ice surface 19 by 90 feet, with sides 4 ft. high all round. The rink is brightly lighted and has two comfortable dressing rooms for ladies and gentlemen respectively. The band will be in attendance frequently during the season. The attendance so far points to a most successful season. Those who enjoy a good skate on a large rink, will find the Sacred Heart ice surface to their liking.

PROMPT SERVICE

During a recent dispute between the Grand Trunk Pacific and their boilermakers, sympathetic interests with the latter endeavoured through several channels to circulate the report that the freight traffic of the Grand Trunk Pacific was badly congested, and they had difficulty in moving freight. The Secretary of the Board of Trade of Watrous, Sask., wrote an unsolicited letter to the General Freight agent of the railway, in which he complimented him on the position of the freight conditions on the line. In this letter he gives the information that in connection with the installation of the electric light plant at Watrous they received a carload of machinery on the 9th of Dec. that was shipped from Montreal on November 29th via Grand Trunk route, and says—"A ten day service between Montreal and Watrous appears to us an exceptionally good service under the best of conditions and it certainly does not go to show that your road is tied up in any manner but further the opposite, that you are able to handle all freight to the best interests of the shipper. I otherwise you on the prompt service rendered.

Ushering in Of The New Year

Very little ceremony or rejoicing marked the ushering in of the New Year in Peterborough. To nearly all people the dying of a year is a matter of happiness rather than regret. The New Year opens up an avenue that fairly dazzles with bright prospects, fine plans and high aspirations, which all hope to see fulfilled before the twelve months have passed.

The transition from the Old to the New was proclaimed by the pealing of the Chimes, which sent forth their messages of welcome over the midnight air, announcing to those who sat up to observe the event, the tidings that the New Year had made its debut.

The Salvation Army, to the number of about 40, also extended the glad hand to the new comer. Headed by a corpet, a band of vocalists made the circuit of one of the business blocks of the city, singing lustily, afterwards returning to the hall, where a genuine watch night service was held.

Similar services were also conducted at St. Andrews. Presbyterian church and Bethany Tabernacle, where the New Year was welcomed in a quiet and decorous manner.

Yet Zam-Buk Has Worked Complete Cure.

This is the experience of a man of high reputation, widely known in Montreal, and whose case can readily be investigated. Mr. T. M. Marsh, the gentleman referred to, lives at 161 Delormier Avenue, Montreal, and has lived there for years. For twenty-five years he has had eczema on his hands and wrists. The disease first started in red blotches, which itched, and when scratched became painful. Bad sores followed, which discharged, and the discharge spread the disease until his hands were one raw, painful mass of sores. This state of affairs continued for twenty-five years!

In that time four eminent medical men tried to cure him, and each gave up the case as hopeless. Naturally, Mr. Marsh tried remedies of all kinds, but he, also, at last gave it up. For two years he had to wear gloves day and night as terrible was the pain and itching when the air got to the sores.

Then came Zam-Buk! He tried it, just as he had tried hundreds of remedies before. But he soon found out that Zam-Buk was different. Within a few weeks there were distinct signs of benefit, and a little perseverance with this great herbal balm resulted in what he had given up all hope of—a complete cure! And the cure was no temporary one. It was permanent. He was cured nearly four years ago. Interviewed the other day, Mr. Marsh said: "The cure which Zam-Buk worked has been absolutely permanent. From the day that I was cured to the present moment I have had no trace of eczema, and I feel sure it will never return."

If you suffer from any skin trouble, cut out this article, write across it the name of this paper, and mail it, with one cent stamp to pay return postage, to Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. We will forward you by return a free trial box of Zam-Buk. All druggists and stores sell this famous remedy, 50c. box, or three for $1.25. Refuse harmful substitutes.

Surveying At Port Severn

A party of the Trent Canal officials made a tour up the Canal to Port Severn last week for the purpose of surveying, in order to get out plans and awarding contracts for the carrying out of the work of building the last link of the Canal from Lake Simcoe to the Georgian Bay. A second trip will be made shortly, and the survey will be continued through the winter.

POLICE COURT

Peter Johnston, who for some time has been in the County gaol, charged with insanity, was arraigned before Magistrate Dumble this morning and was again remanded. A medical examination will be performed, and if he is proven insane by the medical men he will be sent to the Asylum.

The six little children of William Windover, who were taken to the Children's Shelter by Mr. Geo. Cochrane, agent for the Society, were brought into the Juvenile Court this morning, and were remanded to the Shelter. They were very bright little children, and came in for a number of admiring remarks by the Court officials.

T. A. B. NOTES

Owing to the removal from the city of Mr. Geo. Houlihan, Mr. R. P. Grey has been elected president of St. Peter's T. A. B. Mr. George Ahearne has been chosen as a member of the Trustee Board to succeed Mr. Grey.

Next Monday, Jan. 8th, being the 50th anniversary of St. Peter's T. A. B., the Society will celebrate the occasion by a play in St. Alphonsus Lyceum.

THE SHIPOWNER

STEAM HAS STOLEN THEIR OLD ADVENTUROUSNESS FROM THEM

In the old days one could not have shipped a tea biscuit across the quay without speaking a shipowner. A dashing atmosphere pervaded the lower reaches of the foundries, where anchors were cast and chains forged to the harbour wall along which idle riggers lounged and supernumerated in their intervals of unemployment. The bookseller did a larger trade by far in blue-backed charts and nautical almanacs. The watchmakers to a man were skilled adjusters of ships' chronometers. No boy was ever considered to have seen life until he had run away to sea. The family which could not show a merchant skipper for two in its genealogical tree was of small account among the local aristocracy.

It was the natural ambition of every small capitalist of the place to invest his savings in floating property, beginning in a modest way with the acquisition of a few sixty-fourth shares in a superannuated barque along with a little company of adventurers, such as a friendly ship chandler, a sailmaker and a ship store merchant. Flushed by the spirit of maritime adventure, he freighted her with a cargo of coals for St. John's or Cadiz, and thereafter lay awake at night and listened to the wind whistling among the chimney tops with all the uneasiness of the deeply committed ship owner. From such humble beginnings many a noted fleet sprang whose house flag was a familiar sight wherever the red ensign had penetrated.

Those were the palmy days, when money was made easily in gangster ventures. The ship was reckoned an unlucky one which did not return her cost in the first five years of her trading. On the flow of their prosperity owners added vessel after vessel to their profitable fleets, until at one time the port sheltered several score of sail of all conditions, from the handy barques which traded to and from the West Indies to the stately square-rigged ships which came up Channel in the springtime with the first of the easterly winds and swung into port of call ladies with full cargoes of yellow Californian grain. Successful skippers who had dipped both hands into the capacious main hatch retired from active service and built themselves mansions overlooking the sea, with a flagstaff on the front lawn where the old house flag was flown on high occasions and terraces from which the altitude of the sun and the movements of vessels in the roadstead could be observed.

From her launch, which was a ceremonial affair, attended by pleasant sentiment and the consumption of cake and wine, the old-fashioned shipowner followed the fortunes of each of his vessels with individual interest. He had been at the building of her, and would have been ashamed to admit ignorance of any detail of her equipment. Ships had personalities of their own in those days, and established reputations for good or bad luck, which clung to them through life. Even in less flourishing times his profession was always reckoned to be a reputable, if unremunerative, one. There was one shipowner's wife who was in the habit of observing that her husband must have been a very wealthy man when he married her, for by his own admission he had lost money every year since and still was able to maintain a modestly prosperous establishment.

But with the diversion of maritime commerce and the ascendency of steam the trade of the port declined year by year. Somehow or other its merchants missed the tide which might have borne their ventures to further prosperity. Old easy-going ways had been too profitable to change. The more stubborn of them continued to look forward to a revival of the days of sail, which, unfortunately, never came. When shipowning became a financial operation like any other and the ship herself as unimaginative a vehicle as a goods train, they were left high and dry, too old or too conservative to follow the trend of changing circumstances. The home fleet dwindled by loss or sale until it became a rare event for a idle sail lofts closed their doors or fell back upon the manufacture of steamboat awnings and hatch tarpaulins.

From force of habit a few spry specimens continued to scan the weather at noon as they did in the days when their argosies were in every sea and a westerly gale in the Channel strewed the coast with wreckage which might be the ruin of their fortunes. Having seen the sun safely over the fore yardarm, they adjourn for their meridian and shake their heads over the dismal course of the freight markets from the natural deputation of men who remember in halcyon years when six pound a ton was freely paid home from San Francisco in the height of the season. The ships they once owned have been seen picked bare on outlying reefs. A few unfortunate survivors continue to sail the seas under barbarous foreign names and an alien flag. Their fortunes are still followed with a sentimental interest by those who remember their maiden voyages. But it must not be concluded that the old shipowners have entirely relaxed the high hand with which they conducted local affairs. In their time their names were known, profanely, it is to be feared, wherever ships congregated and seamen exchanged grievances. Even now they are designated by shipowners on the boards of the local charities which they direct, although their phantom fleets have long disappeared from the trade routes.—London Globe.

BOOSTING HIS BUSINESS

"I, in common with my colleagues of the profession, receive many strange comments and propositions from queer people," says a Washington physician, "but I rather think that a woman whose children I have treated for some time is to be given a prominent place in this category.

"'Well, what can I do for you?' I asked, as I entered the waiting room.

"'I think that I should have a commission,' she said, quietly, but firmly.

"'A commission!' And what for?'

"'Why,' said she, 'every child in our street caught the measles from my baby.'"—Harper's Magazine.

To the Electors of the West Ward.

I wish to sincerely thank the Electors of the above ward who so kindly gave me their votes in the Municipal Election and take this opportunity of extending the season's greetings.

H. CYRIL HALL

Thanks to the Electors.

Ladies and Gentlemen:

My thanks are due and are hereby tendered to the electors of the Centre Ward for the very hearty and unsolicited support at the polls, which resulted in my being again elected a member of the Board of Aldermen of this city.

That I should be successful in the face of the strong opposition and out of a ballot composed of four candidates and without any personal canvassing on my own part, is satisfactory evidence of public confidence which I value highly.

Trusting that the year 1912 will prove one of advancement and prosperity for Peterborough and that all citizens will share to the fullest extent in this prosperity.

I remain,

Yours truly,

GEO. A. GILLESPIE

Card of Thanks

To the Electors of the West Ward and Citizens of Peterboro'

Please accept my warmest thanks for the hearty support given me yesterday, which resulted in my election as a member of the Board of Aldermen for 1912.

I so thoroughly appreciate this indication of your confidence in my ability to again represent you at the Council Board, that I will consider it my duty to faithfully discharge the important trusts you have imposed on me.

I have already outlined my position regarding some of the important matters in connection with the City's interests, but I will be pleased at all times to hear the views of any of the electors on the various questions as they may arise, which will have my careful consideration.

Yours respectfully,

Jos. J. Duffus

Card of Thanks

To the Ratepayers of the Centre Ward:

Permit me to express to you my appreciation of your having extended to me your confidence for the past three years as one of your representatives on the Council Board.

I can assure you that I did my utmost to serve the Ward and the City to the best of my ability, and, while, I think I may claim, considerable success. Although two votes behind my successful opponent, I feel that I still have the confidence of the ratepayers of the Ward and City, and although for the time being temporarily defeated, I appreciate the support that was extended to me, and I desire to thank all those who exerted their influence on my behalf and gave me their support.

I wish the City and the people every prosperity and shall be glad to co-operate in any way that I can to further the best interests of the City, even though I may not have a seat in the Council for the present.

I am,

Yours faithfully,

Jos. R. Metheral

Dec. 30th, 1911.

Ald. Buller's Card of Thanks

To the Electors of the City of Peterboro

Please accept my hearty thanks for the renewal of your confidence in again electing me as one of your Aldermen for 1912.

Such an independent expression of your good will places me under a strong obligation to do my best in the interests of the city, as well as to give equal rights to all.

The many important questions for the betterment of the city which are likely to come up this year will have my careful attention.

Thank you

W. BULLER

CARD OF THANKS

I desire to thank the enterprising and my many friends in the West Ward who supported my candidature, which I very sincerely appreciate.

I am pleased that the vote on the Hydro-Electric matter was so full and decisive, expressing most satisfactorily the wish of the people.

Wishing you a Happy and Prosperous New Year, I am, Ladies and Gentlemen,

Very respectfully,

JAS. EDGAR.

W. J. Johnston Card of Thanks

To the Electors of the NORTH WARD of the City of Peterborough

Ladies and Gentlemen:—

Allow me to thank you for the confidence you placed in me yesterday by electing me one of your representatives at the City Council Board. I would be very ungrateful indeed were I not to acknowledge that confidence.

I will make an honest effort to look after your interests to the very best of my ability. I realize that a great deal of our future progress hinges upon the action of the present City Council. The great majority vote polled in favour of the Power By-law convinces me that the people are thoroughly in earnest on this great question, and that they want this matter looked after in their interests. I promise you that after this matter has been most rigidly gone into by the Council that not one cent of the people's money will be spent upon it without their sanction.

I want to try and see that the people get the very best results for money expended all over our city consistent with proper management.

Wishing you one and all a very happy and prosperous New Year.

I am your obedient servant

W. J. JOHNSTON.

To the Electors of the Centre Ward

I beg to thank the electors of the Centre Ward for electing me Alderman by such a large majority. During the year I shall make every effort to prove to the electors that their confidence has not been misplaced.

Wishing you a Happy New Year

I remain, yours faithfully

G. N. Gordon

Card of Thanks

I desire to tender my thanks for the support that was given me in the contest for alderman for Centre Ward. I appreciate the fact that in this ward I was not acquainted with a great many of the voters but yesterday's contest will serve as an introduction.

I am pleased the Hydro-Electric by-law carried which had my hearty support.

Again thanking those who kindly gave me their support and wishing all a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

I am yours very truly

RICHARD HALL & SON

"Our Relationship To God" Was Subject Of Interesting Sermon By Rev. C. E. Cragg

Rev. C. E. Cragg, B.D., delivered a most interesting sermon on "Our Relationship to God" at Mark St. church on Sunday evening. The address was the first of a series of sermons on "The Problems of Life," to be preached by Mr. Cragg, and was so impressive, and so instructive to both young and old, that the succeeding ones are looked forward to with great interest by the congregation of Mark Street church. Mr. Cragg needs no introduction to the people of Peterborough, as a minister, and an eloquent speaker.

He chose for his text, the 39th Psalm, 7th verse, "And now, Lord, what wait I for? My hope is in Thee."

The reverend speaker said that the first of the series, that which he was going to begin, was entitled "Our Relationship to God," because it was the greatest problem of human life, and therefore should be dealt with before any of the others.

Repentance.

"I regard our relationship to God a vital problem," began Mr. Cragg. "We should think it over. When we are old enough to grasp the conception of 'right' and 'wrong,' when we know right is right, and wrong is wrong, we should look into the matter. There may be a boy or man, girl or woman, here to-night, who has answered that little question to himself or herself: "Is right not right, and is wrong not wrong," and, concluding that right is right, you ask yourself the question, 'If that is so, then am I a sinner?' Yes'. Then how can I get right with God?' The Bible answers that question. None but the name Jesus, can put us right. Have you been considering that question? If not, why not? What are you waiting for? Perhaps, you answer: 'I think you make your rules too hard; if they were more lenient, I would join your church. I would then have better hope of living up to the rules". Then I say, there may be churches in this very city that can give you easier rules, and easier terms, but there is only one great branch, which is right. Then are you sinning against God? They are violating God's laws, and will. All this is followed by repentance. Repentance is sorrow for sin, but it is more than that. Many men have wept over their sin, which may be a part of repentance, but there is that great repentance that makes us cleave unto God. That is repentance, which makes us right-about-turn for the Kingdom of God. That is salvation, and that is the only road, and if that suits you, all right, and if it does not, you are lost."

The Devil in the Church.

"Many men have walked because they claimed that there were lots of bad people no better than themselves, in the church," continued the speaker, "and if you wait until the church is entirely right, you will perish in the anguish of hell. The Church never was right; from the beginning.' Even in the Church of Christ, one on His disciples betrayed him. You men; who never go to church, think you are so good as those who go, because you always get in touch, or compare yourselves with the devils in the church. You pick out the most crooked, lowest, and worst person in the church, and say: 'Oh, I am as good as he is, and I never go to church. That is the hypocrite, and when he comes before the Lord on that great day of judgment, he will say:: 'Depart from me; I never knew you'. You say, as long as these men remain in the church, I will stay out'. You should not look on it that way at all. You should join the church, do the best you can, and try and get as much good as you can, and improve those who have fallen".

Some Reasons Why We Fail.

"This is almost the first of the New Year, and some of you young men may be trying to do right. You may have made resolves for the New Year. You may have made up your minds that you will turn over a new leaf and lead a better life in the coming year. But after a short period you will break your good resolves, possibly because your parents are not Christians, or for some other similar reason. There are difficulties before every young man or young woman, who is trying to become a Christian. Some try and fail, because they have not the true religious spirit; others win because they have learned the true repentance."

Here the reverend speaker gave several illustrations of young people beginning in their religious life, and the extremely adverse difficulties with which they met, and the terrible trials and troubles that confronted them, and how in the end, they were victorious. In concluding, he said that some people were afraid to start, because they are afraid they will not be able to live up to their good resolves; because they think, perhaps they have not enough religion, but he assured them that if they would only try, that the religion would come to them, and they would progress with the true blessing of God, and be able to say as the Psalmist of old did: "My hope is in God."

The choir deserves credit for their splendid singing, which was a most worthy adjunct to the sermon.

Miss Katharine Wallis Peterborough's And Canada's Sculptress

Mr. Thomas Bengough, of Toronto, has contributed, under the above heading, an appreciative article. It was printed in the magazine section of Saturday's Globe, Dec. 30th, and reads as follows:

One day a lady was sitting in front of the lion's cage in the Jardin des Plantes, Paris, (the "Zoo" as we would call it), absorbed in her task of "fixing" in plastic clay the pose of the animal, when the lion pushed his paw through the cage and caught the end of a fur scarf worn by the young artist.

'Immediately a stranger rushed to her assistance, and was overjoyed to find that the scarf, not having been fastened, fell harmlessly out of the lion's paw. The young lady was Miss Katherine E. Wallis, of Peterborough, Ont., who had spent some time at South Kensington, and had come to Paris to complete her studies. The incident just narrated was the most fortunate of her artistic career, for the friend who came to her rescue was the famous sculptor, Mons. Oscar Waldemann, Learning her story, he at once took her as his pupil, and for ten years has been her "guide, philosopher, and friend."

It was a great privilege for the young Canadian to have the personal help of the greatest animal sculptor in the world, and richly has she profitted by his experience and instruction.

Mons. Waldemann has for a quarter century exhibited in the Paris Salon, and received honourable mention. In 1900 he received a silver medal in the Universal Exhibition in Paris; took first prize in sculpture in a general competition in Paris; received the highest award at the exhibition of the Society for the Protection of Animals, Paris, for an important exhibit; has had several of his works produced in porcelain at the State manufactory at Sevres, while his finest piece, "The Waking of the Lion," was acquired by the French Government for the Musee du Luxembourg.

* * *

Miss Wallis studied at South Kensington, London, under Stephen Webb and Jateri, and won the medallist's free scholarship for two years. She has exhibited seven times in the Royal Academy, London, and eight times in Paris salons. By special invitation she has exhibited at Liverpool, Leeds, Glasgow and London — "Twenty Years of British Art" and "The Animal in Art Throughout the Ages". She received honourable mention in the Universal Exhibition, Paris, 1900. One of her works, "Dachshund" (bronze), was acquired by the exhibition authorities in Dresden after being shown there in 1901. Her "Mercury Charmed by His Own Invention" (stone) was acquired by the Ontario Government in 1908; also "Mignonne" (marble bust) in 1910. The city of Paris acquired two medallion reliefs for the Petit Palais collection. An exhibit of her work, with that of Mons. Waldemann, in Montreal, in 1908, was visited, and greatly admired by the Governor-General and Lady Grey.

Miss Wallis has become very much attached to Paris on account of the artistic atmosphere prevailing there, but I trust events may yet take her back to her native land, where her influence would greatly assist the growth of art. It was a great pleasure to me to visit her studio and that of her enthusiastic tutor."

It is as great a pleasure to note the artistic triumphs, as it is an honour to Peterborough to be the birth place, of a lady who occupies a foremost place in the world of art. Miss Wallis will be well remembered in Peterborough as the daughter of the late Captain Wallis, of "Merino," in the western suburbs of the city. Her work, as a sculptress, has the merit of character and individuality. We are fortunate in having in the hall of the Public Library a splendid specimen of her artistic skill of execution and genius of conception in the statuette—"Mercury Charmed with His Own Invention." It is not of heroic size, but it is of heroic merit, and shows that indefinable quality of spirit that gives to the lifeless marble, or bronze the appearance of animate life, and fidelity of reproduction of natural pose and expression. One of the illustrations of the Globe's article shows Miss Wallis, in her studio, at work, upon this very piece of art. A little study of her face, of blended virile character and piquant, and potential tenderness, fascinates the surprise without chastening the admiration, of her work as an artist. The other illustration is that of another masterpiece of piquant expression, entitled "My Little Beige." It is a materialization of nursery lore of the "origin of species". It shows a chubby baby, of the squirrel cheekie type, seated in the [illegible] a cabbage ball, with an indescribably charming and life-like look, and baby-like hands, frozen into changeless marble by the cold steel of the artist's chisel, but so warm, and fairy breathing in appearance, as the life that shows itself in infinite replication, in millions of nurseries and homes, from the humblest to the highest, and on millions of mothers' knees in all the land, and in all lands, Miss Wallis' "Cabbage Baby" as it is popularly called, laughs its way into every heart. Every mother sees in it her own baby, and we all see in it ourselves when we were, as all babies are, the most beautiful in the world. There are only three pieces of this statute in existence, one of the bronzes was acquired by a gentleman in France, or England; The marble one was purchased by a one of the bronzes was acquired by Mr. E. P. Walter, Montreal, son-in-law of the late William Loch; another bronze has recently been ordered for the Walker Art Gallery, Liverpool, and a condition of the purchase is that no more copies are to be produced from the model.

On her last visit to Peterborough, some three years ago, Miss Wallis moulded a model for a statute of the late Mrs. Nicholls, so large a benefactress of Peterborough. She fired the clay baked in a local pottery furnace, and had some negotiations with the City Council in regard to having a life-size statute made from the model to be presented in some suitable public [illegible] but nothing was decided upon [illegible] Miss Wallis took the model to France, where it is still held, waiting to be used to fulfil an order for a statute of Mrs. Nicholls, from the city authorities. [illegible] further reference to this matter may be found on the eighth page.

HELD CLOSING ENTERTAINMENT

A very pleasant closing entertainment was arranged by the teacher, Miss Mattie Brisbane, took place at the Silver Lake Public school on Friday of last week. The evening was somewhat disagreeable from a weather standpoint, but the children and their parents turned out splendidly and the former acquitted themselves most creditably, making the concert a great success. An admission fee was charged the adults and the proceeds have been sent to the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto. Hon. J. R. Stratton presented each child, to the number of 36, with a Christmas present, Santa Claus being very good to all those in attendance, as the teacher and the oldest parties in the neighbourhood were all remembered. This is the second time that Mr. Stratton has been Kris Kringle for the Silver Lake school and the trustees and children alike appreciate the encouragement.

THINK THIS OVER

This Offer Should Gain the Confidence of the Most Skeptical.

We pay for all the medicine used during the trial, if our remedy fails to completely relieve you of constipation. We take all the risk. You are not obligated to us in any way whatever, if you accept our offer. That's a mighty broad statement, but we mean every word of it. Could anything be more fair for you?

A most scientific, common-sense treatment is Rexall Orderlies, which are eaten like candy. Their active principle is a recent scientific discovery that is odourless, colourless, and tasteless; very pronounced, gentle, and pleasant in action, and particularly agreeable in every way. This ingredient does not cause diarrhoea, nausea, flatulence, griping, or other inconvenience. Rexall Orderlies are particularly good for children, aged and delicate persons.

If you suffer from chronic or habitual constipation, or the associate or dependent chronic ailments, we urge you to try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Remember, you can get them in Peterborough only at our store, 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets, 25 cents; 80 tablets, 50 cents. Sold only at our store,—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

Badly Cut By Shovel

The skating season commenced rather unpleasantly for little Keith Murray of Parnell street yesterday morning. He was standing on the exterior of the fence at the Sacred Heart rink, when another lad, who was engaged in shovelling snow from the interior throwing it over the fence, accidentally let the spade slip, with the result that Keith caught it on the bridge of his nose and sustained a nasty cut.

Some Interesting Figures In Vital Statistics Of 1911

BAL POUDRE WAS SUCCESS

One of the most enjoyable events in connection with the festivities of New Years' Day was the successful Bal Poudre held under the auspices of the Kings' Daughters of Peterborough in the Conservatory Music Hall last night. There was a very large attendance, a feature that in view of the fact that the proceeds are to be devoted to charity, is most gratifying. The dance was one of the most delightful functions that has been held here in a long time.

The reception committee was composed of the following ladies: Mesdames Hasen Ritchie, A. E. Coulthard, George Rubidge, R. J. Devey, F. J. Harvey, Peter Campbell, R. W. Travers, L. M. Hayes, R. E. Hall, Jas. Hamilton, T. D. Mulholland and A. H. Stratton. The stewards were Messrs. Gerald K. Rackam, G. Boss Cameron, W. H. Claxton, F. D. Kerr, Dr. A. W. McPherson, G. W. Landy, G. C. Wainwright, Dr. A. E. Hammond, Arthur Perks, W. H. Munro.

Fiske O'Hara, the Famous Irish Tenor, Who Appears at "The Grand" Next Tuesday, January 9th in the Delightful Comedy Drama "Love's Young Dream"

Robert E. Irwin announces the engagement at The Grand on Tuesday next, Jan. 9th, of Fiske O'Hara in a new play, "Love's Young Dream," by Theodore Burt Sayre, the author of many of the most successful plays of this type seen in recent years. This new play, which is meeting with unqualified success throughout the country, is a delightful romance of that Ireland before the Union, when the native gentry lived in the country and made it one of the most fashionable and brilliant social spots in western Europe. The hero of the play is Barry Carroll, a young physician, who has had the ill luck to fall desperately in love with the most beautiful and accomplished girl in the county, Nora McNamara. It would have been all right if Nora's uncle and guardian, Ignatius Dwyer, did not have an eye to benefitting himself by the marriage of his ward, but he has promised Colonel Lovell, of the British army, the honour of becoming his nephew-in-law with the understanding that Lovell is to give him a handsome sum of money on the day of the marriage. An elopement is the only solution to the riddle that presents itself to the young lovers and they take French leave of the guardian. The latter proves to be on the alert, and with Lovell overtaking the couple at the Jug of Punch inn, on the wild coast of the County Clare. Lovell has discovered that the father of Barry has been aiding a band of smugglers, and obtains a confession of his crime from the old man which he holds over the son's head. The uncle takes the girl away from Barry and the latter shortly after learns that she is being brought to Lovell's house to be forced into marriage with the British officer. Barry, disguised as a highwayman, intercepts the coach, rescues the girl and destroys the confession of his father's guilt. He outwits the colonel and old Dwyer and all ends well for the lovers. Of course the piece is handsomely mounted; Manager Irwin can be counted on for that, there is an abundance of good Irish music and a splendid acting company.

Moderator Of General Assembly Addresses Large Congregation At St. Paul's On Sunday

Dr. McKay Delivers an Inspiring Message Dealing With the Extension of the Mission Work in China

Dr. McKay, Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, addressed a large congregation at St. Paul's Presbyterian church, on Sunday. With simple dignity, and speaking softly, Dr. McKay made a stirring and insistent appeal to his hearers, urging them to accept the responsibilities, and opportunities, which were their's in the dawning of the New Year. He also paid a glowing tribute to that band of workers, known as the Laymen's Missionary Movement, the pioneers of the vast missionary work which we have before us to-day.

Taking for his text the first chapter of Revelations, verses 12, 13, 14 and 15. Dr. McKay drew a verbal picture, illustrating the relative position of this prophecy to present day conditions. St. John, the Divine, to whom God gave the Revelation of Jesus Christ, observed seven golden candlesticks, and in the midst of the seven candlesticks, was one, like unto the Son of Man. The seven golden candlesticks, declared the speaker, represented the seven churches, with Christ in their midst. It bears testimony to the fact that Christ is in His church. He is a witness to the works which are carried on therein. At present there is a great spirit of brotherhood prevailing in the church, forming a cooperative body for the propagation of His word. This you will observe particularly in the mission field. Years ago, when the mission work was in its infancy, the various denominational bodies of missionaries were hostile towards one another. Today it is just the reverse. Conferences are held from time to time, at which missionaries of all denominations gather, and devise ways and means for advancing the work. This all indicates a growth of the Spirit's power. We are beginning to look at it as Christ would look at it. We talk of Church union, whether it materializes or not, we can and will have a union of friendship that will be national, as well as ecclesiastical. Some of us look upon the mission work with an attitude of despair, as though the task were a fruitless one. This is a wrong spirit to cultivate, and it only serves to impede the progress of the work.

Years ago missionaries were accustomed to go to their respective fields of labour in the mission fields in the face of ridicule. Now, they go backed by the sympathies of the church. Surely these things are pleasing to Him, who is in the midst of the golden candlesticks. There is also a growing spirit of nationalism. We hear the cry of China for the Chinese; Japan, for the Japanese; Canada for the Canadians, and so forth. Napoleon once said, "China is a powerful race; if she wakes up she will move the world; so let her sleep". We have not treated China fairly; we have treated her as we would not have treated Japan, who is able to stand up for herself. But the time is drawing nigh when we will be compelled to treat her right. There is a great national awakening. There is a complete change of attitude in the Chinese of to-day. They will listen to you, as they never listened before. They are shrewd enough to discern whether our message is genuine, if not they will reject it, and reject us also. During the first 35 years of mission work in China, six converts were recorded. The second thirty-five years showed a total of thirteen thousand, and the third, thirty-five years, are productive of twenty-five thousand. In Korea, since the mission work was first inaugurated, there has been a convert every hour.

During that notable siege of Port Arthur by the Japanese, we, on more than one occasion, asked the question, would 203 Metre Hill ever fall? Japan did not ask that question. She said that it must fall, and will fall, by virtue of the Emperor, who is God to them. So the barrier that separates heathenism from Christianity must and will fall, by virtue of Him, who stands in the midst of the seven candlesticks.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

THE CHORUS LADY.

Slangy but true-hearted Patricia O'Brien, the "Chorus Lady" made New Year's Day a very pleasant one for those who visited the Grand Opera House yesterday and saw the presentation of James Forbes' amusing comedy-drama of stage life. The production was one of the most enjoyable that has been seen here this season, and the audiences in the afternoon and evening were unanimous in their verdict in this regard. "The Chorus Lady" the vehicle in which Miss Rose Stahl has scored such an enormous success, is a bright, clever, well-planned comedy, with bright lines in plentitude and a strong action. Miss Edith Wall, Miss Stahl's successor in the title-role, made the most of the part of Patricia O'Brien. The breezy lines of slang she got rid of during the production was irresistibly funny and she had the audience with her from the start. The supporting company was an adequate one.

SIGNS OF KIDNEY TROUBLE.

In the early stages kidney troubles are known by backache and urinary disorders. Later come dropsy, stone rheumatic pains, and perhaps diabetes. But don't wait for these. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will help you in a few hours. Their thorough action on the liver, kidneys and bowels will clear away the pains and aches and make you well again.

THE GOVERNOR'S DAUGHTER

She stood on the porch of the great colonial house, the wind ruffling her light hair, one hand toying with her riding whip. Around the corner of the driveway she caught a glimpse of the stable boy bringing her saddle horse; but it was not at him that she looked. Her gaze was concentrated on a tall figure coming up the drive, a young man in a dark suit very much the worse for wear. Neatness could not hide the fact that his coat was much worn at the edges. Nevertheless he carried himself with a certain assurance, which the sight of Juliet Arlington, standing erect and expectant by the door, did not in the least diminish. He mounted the steps. Juliet stopped playing with her riding whip, and looked at him inquiringly. He raised his hat.

"Governor Arlington is at home, is he not?" he queried. His tones, like his eyes, were very direct.

"I really don't know," said Juliet, with polite indifference.

Nothing daunted, the young man reached forward a thin, determined brown hand and rang the bell.

Juliet gave him a sidelong glance. "He looks," she thought, "as if he would stride up to the house of fate itself, knock on the door and demand if opportunity were within."

She turned suddenly. "I beg your pardon," she said, "but I believe I made a mistake just now. My father went for a short ride before breakfast. Yet I remember that he came back by a side entrance. I think he is in his study. Do you wish to see him?"

She waved aside the servant who had come in answer to the bell, and led the way herself, her trim heels tapping now on the bare polished floor, now sinking into rugs so soft that they made no sound. At the door on the right of the hall she paused, touched it lightly with her knuckles, and in response to the deep voice within inquiring, "What is it, Juliet?" answered, "A caller to see you, Father," and flung wide the door. The young man thanked her and entered.

When she returned at luncheon, eyes and cheeks glowing brightly from exercise, she found her father in a very happy mood.

"You look," said Juliet, bending over him, "as if you had found a gold mine!"

"Better than that," he replied. "I've found just the young man I want for my private secretary."

Juliet laughed. "Don't you mean," she said, slipping into her chair, "that the young man found you?"

The Governor chuckled. "I guess you're right," he answered, "and he did it without a mite of pull." He looked past his daughter, through the windows, where a stretch of woodland could be seen, mellowing toward autumn.

"Most people find you that way, father dear," said Juliet, with an appreciative glance.

"The best ones do," he mused, a light on his rugged New England face. The Arlingtons, father and son, had been Governors of that State whose granite hills are not more firm than the hearts of its people. And the wives of the Governors had been women of tact and breeding, who lived quietly and frugally in the great colonial house, but who rose to State occasions with a hospitality that was as lavish as it was brilliant.

"And you're very like them, Juliet," the Governor was fond of saying. "If your mother was alive she would be proud of the resemblance. The way you rule this house and preside over it shows you have a womanly heart and head, and your discernment of character is really wonderful in a girl of twenty-two."

"What is the young man's name, father?" went on Juliet, breaking in on his reverie.

"Eh? Oh, you mean my private secretary? Faxon's his name. John Faxon. Comes of a good family, but very poor. Worked his way through college, and now he's ready for a job."

"I see," said the girl slowly.

The house was very gay that winter with guests coming and going, and Juliet came to rely on John Faxon almost as much as her father did. He was always ready to smooth away obstacles, to make the most of difficult situations. He was courteous, clever and reserved.

The Governor's daughter was surrounded by suitors. She was the belle of every dance and dinner and driving party. But, though rumour engaged her first to this one and then to that, she made no sign.

"When do you intend to give away that cool, young heart of yours?" her father questioned. "And to whom?"

"To the right man at the right time," answered Juliet serenely and tripped away to see the floral decorations of the dinner table, for she was entertaining a large house party, and it was not her custom to leave the details to servants. She was the last to retire that evening, and as she stood in the great hall at the foot of the wide staircase John Faxon lit her candle for her. Then he lingered, watching her as she went up the stairs, the candle's glow making a soft halo for the pale gold of her hair and the delicate beauty of her face. Half way up she paused and looked over the banisters. Her lips were smiling, her eyes were dazzlingly tender.

"Good-night," said Faxon, half beneath his breath, still watching her.

"John Faxon," she said quietly, "haven't you anything else to say to me?"

His face showed a battle between pride and love, and pride assumed the mastery. He shook his head.

"Nothing else," he answered coldly. But the look of admiration that he gave her haunted her dreams that night, and for many nights after.

Outwardly their life went on unaltered the same. Faxon neither sought nor avoided her. Both went quietly about their duties; the incident that had so stirred them seemed utterly forgotten.

Winter melted into spring, and late one evening Juliet came in from a long ramble in her garden. The essence of the flowers seemed still to cling to her, dewy and fresh and ineffable. Moonlight streamed in the windows of the great hall as she entered it. She went to the quaint mahogany table for her silver candlestick, and was aware of John Faxon standing in the shadow. Mutely she held out the candle toward him, and he essayed to light it for her. His hand trembled, and three matches went out before he could accomplish it. He was very pale, but the Governor's daughter was quite cool and undismayed.

"Thank you," she said as he handed it to her. She looked adorable in the half-light."

"Good-night," said John Faxon, bowing.

Juliet paused.

"Have you nothing else to say to me?" she asked him.

"Nothing else," John answered. He spoke with difficulty.

Juliet dimpled bewitchingly, set down the candlestick and leaned toward him. "Don't you think it's time you had?" she queried, laughingly.

"Juliet!" he cried, "you know that I worship you—that I adore you! And you know, too, what has held me silent all this time. I have nothing on earth to offer you but a poor man's love."

"Is love so cheap a thing that you speak of it bitterly?" said Juliet Arlington. "And as for poverty—your life is not lived yet, John Faxon. My grandfather was a Governor, my father is a Governor, and unless I am the first Arlington woman to be mistaken in a man, my husband will some day be a Governor, too."

"With your help, Juliet," laughed Faxon, brokenly. She was in his arms now, her head against his breast.

"Bless me, what's this?" cried her father, entering, and peering through the gloom.

"It means," flashed Juliet, before Faxon could speak, "it means that a candidate for my heart has been elected after a most exciting campaign."

"The right man at the right time," quoted the Governor softly, and held out his hands to them both

The Doctor's Pigs

(Short Story.)

By Clair C. Barnes

It was a familiar sight, summer or winter, to meet the doctor's old buggy and a pair of sorrels jogging along the country roads or entering the village streets. And like as not the doctor himself would be huddled up at one end of the seat fast asleep, for he was busy day and night, and snatched his rest whenever he could.

When people were well, they were more than a little inclined to smile at the doctor's mud-bespattered rubicks and moth-eaten buffalo robe, but when they were sick and shabby rig and long-legged horses were the most welcome sight in the world.

He really was a good doctor, for those times. Moreover, his patients always got their money's worth; for being a disciple of the old school he was never stingy with his bitter mixtures, and it sometimes seemed that, like Mark Twain's doctor, he prescribed doses which could be held only by the largest persons.

He was a shrewd old man and a rich one, too, as rural wealth is measured. His big brick house was the best residence in town, and his daughter who kept it was the prettiest girl in the countryside.

He had a little farm just outside the village, where it was his delight to spend his spare time; and often a man who had come galloping into town, after rushing from office to house, and from house to farm, would find the doctor up to his knees in the creek, repairing the old fence that separated it, or in the hen house giving the walls a coat of whitewash.

One spring he had a particularly fine litter of Poland Chinas. There were six of them, and by the middle of the summer they were as fine and healthy looking sheets as could be seen anywhere.

But one morning they were gone from the pasture. The doctor soon found a broken place in the fence, through which, it appeared, they had escaped, although he could find no trace of them among the fields. So he hired a man named Hinckleman to ride about on his horse and hunt for the missing porkers.

Hinkleman was a thin, dark man, who had a farm of his own, but was rather shiftless, and often left his crops in the care of his large family while he did odd jobs for his more prosperous neighbours.

This man scoured the country for several days but the six young hogs were not found. Their mysterious disappearance created considerable interest in the village, but the doctor showed no desire to discuss the affair.

Summer was waning and the fields were ripening in the warm sunshine. On a pleasant afternoon the doctor was making a visit at the Ashley farmhouse. As he was departing, he turned in the open doorway and said: "I'll just have my team hitched here while I cut across Hinckleman's corn field to Widow Robinson's.

A few moments later he disappeared among the long, green leaves and waving tassels across the road. The field was a large one, as Iowa corn fields often are. The heavy oats on the tall stalks were well filled and fast hardening. As the doctor neared the middle of the field he suddenly came upon a tight barbed wire pen entirely surrounded by the forest of corn. Six briskly, black and white creatures, which had been sleeping in one corner, sprang up with a frightened "Woof!"

The old physician paused and looked over the fence. He noted the number and markings of the shoats, and his look of surprise changed to one of understanding. He stood a few moments looking and thinking. Then he took up his old brown leather bag and walked on.

The doctor said not a word to anybody about his discovery, but went on fighting malaria and other warm weather ills until they at last disappeared and people began to have colds, sore throat and other ailments appropriate to late autumn.

Nearly all the threshing was done, corn husking was in progress, cattle and hogs were fat and ready for market. Early one frosty morning the doctor put on some old clothes and struck himself to the farm. His hired man, coming out after breakfast, was surprised to find him in the wagon shed.

"We'll put on the hog rack, John," he said, "and take some hogs to market."

John wondered what hogs, but as he was not accustomed to ask the doctor many questions, said nothing. The physician himself drove, and presently stopped in front of Hinkleman's house. He gave the lines to the man and climbed out of the wagon just as Hinckleman came out to see what was wanted.

"Hinckleman," he said, "I think those hogs of mine in the corn field are ready to sell. I wish you'd show us the best way to drive in." There was a short pause. Hinckleman looked at the doctor, and the doctor looked at Hinckleman. Then the doctor transferred his gaze to a broken wheelbarrow lying in the dooryard. Hinckleman looked off across the prairie to the blue line of river timber in the distance. Then again Hinckleman looked at the doctor, and again the doctor looked at Hinckleman.

The wordless struggle ended. Hinckleman cleared his throat.

"All right, Doctor," he said.

GOOD SHORT STORIES

"I am here, gentlemen," explained the pickpocket to his fellow prisoners, "as the result of a moment of abstraction."

"And I," said the incendiary, "because of an unfortunate habit of making light of things."

"And I," added the forger, "on account of a simple desire to make a name for myself."

"And I," added the burglar, "through nothing but taking advantage of an opening which offered to a large mercantile establishment."—New York Call.

The American lady, with the inevitable kodak pull flying from her shoulder, rushed breathlessly up to a guide in the Vatican. "Can you tell me—here I seem the Pantheon?" she panted.

"Surely—madame must know that better than I," was the astonished reply, which brought another swift question. "Has it a hole in it?" The admission that it had a hole elicited a quiet sigh of gratitude. "Then," spoke the prodigal of the Great Republic, closing her Baedeker with a bang, "I reckon I'm through with Italy."—Sporting Times.

Robert Henri, the eminent New York painter, was talking about those millionaires who buy, merely to show off, doubtful "old masters" at fabulous prices.

"Their knowledge of art," Mr. Henri said, "is about equal to that of the sausage manufacturer who said to Whistler:

"'What would you charge to do me in oil?'

"'Ten thousand,' said Whistler promptly.

"'But suppose I furnish the oil?' said the millionaire."—Dallas News.

AGAIN RETIRES

Frank Gotch, the wrestling champion, is doing the Adelina Patti stunt again. On Wednesday night at Kansas City, after he "toyed" for 20 minutes with Alex. Munro, the ex-policeman of Govan, near Glasgow, and Scottish champion, before he flattened him on the floor (the first fall taking place after 19 minutes wrestling and the second fall in the next 8 minutes), he said:

"I am going to quit the game—I have quit. My bout with Alex. Munro was my last.—If I went on I would grow stale, and some foreigner would throw me easily. So it's good-night."

Gotch says that he feels he is losing his vim and vigour, and wants to retire before he makes the mess of things that Jim Jeffries did at Reno on 4th July, 1910. His talk sounds real, too.

WEDDING BELLS

WEDDELL—ALFORD.

A quiet but very pretty wedding was solemnized yesterday at 2.30, when Miss Mabel Helena (Lena) Alford, daughter of Mrs. J. W. Alford, of 301 Reid street, and Mr. Alexander Weddell, of Peterborough, were united together in the bond of holy matrimony by the Rev. Jas. Rollins.

To the strains of the wedding march, the bride, charmingly attired in white ninon over white silk, trimmed with Brussels lace, entered the room leaning on the arm of her brother, Mr. Stanley Alford, of Windsor, and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

The bridal couple left for a short trip west, the bride wearing a travelling costume of navy blue, with a navy blue hat trimmed with metallic roses, and carried the gift of the bridegroom, a set of mink furs.

This May Concern YOU

JUST at this time as we are about to start upon a New Year we desire to again call your attention to the fact that it is our earnest and constant endeavour to please every patron of this store perfectly—to carry out our oft repeated guarantee of satisfaction or your money back. So we want to say right now that if anyone has purchased here any article that has not proven to be worth all we charged them for it, we want the opportunity to make it right. No dealers anywhere examine their goods with greater care, and none are more particular about the kind of goods they sell; but we are only human, hence we sometimes make mistakes of judgment, and if we have sold you anything during the past year that has proved unsatisfactory in any way we want to know about it. Drop in at your earliest convenience, tell us about it, and we will see to it that you are reimbursed for any shortcomings in the goods we have sold you.

We make satisfaction sure by guaranteeing it, and we carry that guarantee out to the letter. We want your business for 1912 and we want your friend's business and your friend's friend's business. We consider the advertising our customers give us the best advertising we can have for this store, therefore we make it a point to see to it that every customer of ours gets full value for every dollar he spends here.

NEW LEASE OF LIFE

Yuan Shi Kai is Sure He Can Stave Off Republic

GETS A $2,000,000 LOAN

Pekin, Jan. 3.—The feeling in Pekin last night was that the throne has taken on a new lease of life. Indeed there are some competent observers, who believe that Premier Yuan Shi Kai is still determined that he can succeed in preventing the consummation of a republic.

The Imperial Cabinet has accepted the resignation of Tang Shao Yi, who was sent to Shanghai as the representative of Premier Yuan Shi Kai and the Imperialists at the peace conference between the representatives of both parties there. The Government has also telegraphed to Wu Ting Fang, the leader of the revolutionaries at the peace conference, stating that in future it will negotiate telegraphically. The Government is of the opinion that Tang Shao Yi went beyond his instructions when he signed the agreement as to the calling of the national convention to decide on the future form of government of China with Fu Ting Fang.

The Premier adheres to two points of his original suggestion regarding the national convention, namely, that he insists on the proper selection of delegates to the national assembly and also that its gathering place shall be Pekin.

Premier Yuan Shi Kai again offered his resignation yesterday morning, but it was not accepted. The court also received a round robin from the generals commanding the Imperialistic troops in the vicinity of Pekin, in which they demanded that the princes of the Imperial clan should withdraw their wealth from the safety of the foreign banks, where much of it has been placed quite recently, and deliver it into the hands of the War Office.

Prince Ching, the former Premier and Foreign Minister, received a letter yesterday on behalf of the Manchu troops in the vicinity of Pekin, threatening to destroy his palace unless it was delivered over to them.

When negotiating recently for a loan, Yuan Shi Kai explained that about $10,000,000 would carry the Government on for six months. By that time discord would have occurred among the rebels in the south and the peaceable would return gradually to their allegiance. Yuan Shi Kai has now obtained from the Empress Dowager more than $2,000,000, which will permit the carrying on of the Government beyond the period which the rebels have fixed for the assembling of the national convention.

It is believed here that the lack of funds among the rebels has inspired their haste in settling the date for the national convention.

Seven hundred soldiers guarding the Lanchen arsenal mutinied yesterday. They are part of the Imperial Government troops, among whom there has been a movement for some time past in favor of a republic. The commanding officer fled to Kalping, from which point he sent a message to the railway authorities at Tientsin warning them that the mutineers intended to stop all railway traffic.

Fighting Around Hankow.

Hankow, Jan. 3.—The fighting around Hankow has not been serious and the Imperialists have evacuated Hanyang and entrained for the north with their batteries. Gen. Li Yuen Heng, the Republican commander, has given the Imperialist commanders assurances that he will not occupy the vacated positions. The armistice is again being observed.

Dr. Sun Sworn In.

Nanking, Jan. 3.—Dr. Sun Yat Sen has taken the oath of office as provisional President of the Chinese Republic and yesterday morning was formally invested with the powers of Chief Executive. The ceremony was simple but very dignified, and was attended by all the prominent men of the revolutionary party.

The first official act of the President was to change the Chinese calendar. He made New Year's Day the first day of his Presidency, thus marking the commencement of a new era and making the Chinese year begin henceforth on the same day as the year begins in most other countries of the world.

Many prominent men among the revolutionaries met him at the station and accompanied him to the Government House, the route to which was lined by 10,000 soldiers. The whole town was bedecked, the warships and merchant vessels along the river dressed ship and a salute was fired from the guns of all the forts.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen, who was dressed in a khaki uniform on his arrival, held a reception, which was attended by a number of Governors-General and other high officials.

Alimony Insurance.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Under a novel court order entered by Judge Brentano in the Superior Court yesterday, Frank J. McElroy, head of an automobile supply company, is required to take out a $9,000 life insurance policy in favor of the woman to whom the court in the same order granted a decree of divorce. In addition to becoming the beneficiary of an insurance policy, Mrs. Nellie McElroy is to receive a total of $10,000 alimony, payable in annual instalments of $1,000.

Home Dynamited.

Tyrone, Ky., Jan. 3.—The home of Police Judge Lancaster was blown up with dynamite here yesterday and practically wrecked. No one was injured. It is believed that revenge was the cause for the blowing up of the house. An investigation is being made.

Camps For Cadets.

Ottawa, Jan. 3.—A provision will be made in the estimates for the coming fiscal year for the uniforming of some forty thousand school cadets and for one week's training for them during the holiday season in July at regimental or district headquarters.

Each school or municipality will be asked to send a detachment of boys to the local district training camp for one week. Instruction this year will be in the elements of military and physical drill, the instructors being either the school teachers or qualified officers or men now in militia service.

Asuncion Blockaded.

Paris, Jan. 3.—The French Minister at Asuncion, Paraguay, has succeeded in getting through, by a circuitous route, a despatch to the Foreign Office, dated Dec. 23. He says that the revolution continues, but without serious fighting. The capital is blockaded and all communication is badly interrupted. The Paraguayan authorities hope to have control of the situation, adds the Minister, early this month. This is the only telegraphic communication that has reached the Foreign Office from Paraguay since the revolution broke out.

A Boon to Grain Growers.

Regina, Sask., Jan. 3.—What will prove a great boon to the holders of preemptions is the order issued by Hon. Robert Rogers to the various Dominion land officers throughout the west not to cancel preemptions for non-payment of interest. The reason for the suspension of the provision allowing cancellation of the preemptions, if interest is not paid is that the settlers have had great difficulty in marketing their grain and are not in a position to pay the interest.

DULL, SICK HEADACHE, BILIOUS BREATH, BAD STOMACH, CONSTIPATION—TAKE CASCARETS

Sick headaches! Always trace them to lazy liver, delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or a sick stomach. Poisonous matter, instead of being thrown out, is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, awful throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets remove the cause by stimulating the liver, making the poison move on ... purifying the blood. The effect is almost instantaneous. Ladies whose sensitive organisms are especially prone to sick headaches, need not suffer, for they can be quickly cured by Cascarets. One taken to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box means a clear head and perfect health for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle, cleansing, too. Children gladly take Cascarets, because they taste good and never gripe or sicken.

Patients Are Saved From Death at London, Ont.

DAMAGE ABOUT $20,000

London, Ont., Jan. 3.—Fire, which broke out last night in the kitchen of the main building of the London Asylum, destroyed the theatre with damage of about $20,000.

The fire was discovered at 10.30 o'clock and the London brigade responded.

Six hundred and fifty patients are housed in this building and all were brought to the lower floor, but they were in no serious danger at any time.

There were 1,100 patients in the asylum, the remainder being housed in the infirmary and the north wing, neither of which were touched by the flames.

The flames were quickly brought under control by the firemen.

Considerable excitement was caused here when the first news of the fire came, as telephone communication with the asylum had been cut off, and it was feared that many lives had been lost.

Big Fire at Montreal.

Montreal, Jan. 3.—Fire broke out in the kitchen of the Stratheona Cafe yesterday and spread rapidly to the surrounding buildings.

The grocery store of Gravel Freres on the corner of McGill College avenue and St. Catharine street was the first to fall a prey to the flames, and from there the fire worked its way into the fur establishment of Wills and Wills.

It took about three-quarters of an hour to get the flames under control and it is estimated that the damage done will amount to between $40,000 and $50,000.

A Busy Man is Rogers.

Winnipeg, Jan. 3—Hon. Robert Rogers left for Ottawa Monday night. He gave up almost the entire week to the transaction of public business. In the offices of the school lands department he kept long office hours, receiving from day to day hundreds, who had business with his Department.

New Year's Day was no exception to the rule. From nine o'clock in the morning till late in the evening, the Minister of the Interior remained in his office, the holiday making no appreciable difference in the number who sought interviews with him. Notwithstanding the wide range of business matters, which Mr. Rogers dealt with, following his arrival in Winnipeg, he found time to attend a public banquet in North Winnipeg, where he delivered an address and to spend a short time at the reception by the Maple Leaf Conservative Club.

Bars Beer From Her Court.

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 3.—Although as Justice of the Peace Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch has a court room in her house here she refuses to allow beer to be exhibited therein. Mrs. McCulloch was asked to hear a case which involved an exhibit of beer. She refused to allow the beverage to be brought into her house. The prosecution intimated that the case could not go on without the beer exhibit. A police patrol was called, the beer loaded into it and Mrs. McCulloch then climbed into the vehicle and rode to the police station, where the case was begun. The case involved the arrest of a man who had been accused of selling beer in the streets.

Shuster Gives Up Books.

London, Jan. 3.—A special despatch to The Daily Mail from Teheran says that W. Morgan Shuster, the former treasurer-general, has handed the accounts of his office to the commission of which M. Mernard, the Belgian ex-director of Persian customs, has been appointed president, for the purpose of settling up affairs. F. T. Cairns, who was Mr. Shuster's chief American assistant, the correspondent says, has been named as Mr. Shuster's successor.

Another despatch from Teheran says that two Russian regiments have left Kasbin for Resht.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Smallpox is reported from several lumber and construction camps in Quebec.

Mrs. C. A. Wilson of London, Ont., committed suicide by swallowing carbolic acid.

The German Government has decided to compete with British cable service to the dominions.

The Russians held courts-martial at Tabris and condemned Persian prisoners to be summarily hanged.

Two little sons of Mr. Delmar Barclay of Oustic were caught in a burning house. One is dead and the other in a critical condition.

The Berlin customs returns for December show an increase of $9,131, the figures being $27,668 as against $18,537 in 1910.

Mr. Patrick Sullivan and Miss Sadie Mitchell were struck by a train driving home from a dance near Bainsville and both were killed.

A meeting of representatives of the employers and operatives concerned in the cotton lockout has been called at Manchester, Eng., to discuss terms of settlement.

Six large fast steamers will be in readiness to inaugurate a new passenger line between Valparaiso, Chile, and New York, when the Panama Canal is completed.

William Conroy, aged 12, was drowned while skating on the River Sydenham, near Chatham. He managed to push his younger brother towards the shore and he was rescued.

Fifty girls were compelled to dash from their work at Montreal yesterday when the first sprinkling system in the Dominion Feather and Flower Co., began operation and flooded the factory.

Six persons were injured, two of them seriously, last night during the rush hour, on the United Traction Co.'s line, when a Delaware & Hudson passenger train crashed into a crowded trolley car at Troy, N.Y.

The idea of placing the new C.P.R. steamers, the Empress of Russia and the Empress of Asia, now building on the Clyde, on the Royal Naval Reserve list is at present being considered, and negotiations are now going on with that end in view.

The eight years old son of J. Lobb, of Tweed, was brought to the Hotel Dieu, Kingston, yesterday afternoon in a serious condition from a bullet wound. The lad was standing on a bridge at Tweed, when he was struck with a stray bullet, but it is not known who fired the shot.

Joint High Commission Meets.

Montreal, Jan. 3.—An informal meeting of the newly-appointed Canadian section of the International Joint High Commission was held in the city yesterday, preparatory to the convening of the body in Washington on Jan. 10.

The new commission, the Canadian members of which are T. Chase Casgrain, K.C., of this city, C. A. Magrath of Medicine Hat, and E. A. Powell of St. John, N.B., will direct its energies for some time towards the settlement of all outstanding differences between Canada and the United States respecting the boundary waters and their potentialities.

Of these, the great problem which the international commissioners will face in so far as Montrealers are concerned, will be that of the project of damming the Long Sault Rapids. The Long Sault Development Co., of which the Pittsburg Aluminum Co. is the principal factor, now have a bill before the United States Senate asking for the necessary authorization to carry out the proposed work. There has, however, been strong opposition to the scheme at Washington, and a determined effort will be made by the opponents of the measure to have the matter referred to the new international commission.

Canadian Missionaries Safe.

Toronto, Jan. 3.—Rev. R. P. MacKay, secretary of the Presbyterian Missions, yesterday received word from China respecting conditions at the Canadian Presbyterian Mission fields.

While the missionaries had not been molested they had, on the advice of the British consul, sent some of the women and children to ports where they could have the protection of British warships. The other women and children would follow and remain there until fear of danger was over.

The missionaries had been advised by the British consul that it was impossible to guarantee their safety at inland points.

A CHANGE OF POLICY

Ontario Temperance Workers Prophesy a New Policy

LOCAL OPTION AT AN END

Toronto, Jan. 3.—Some of the representative Toronto temperance men, arising up the Ontario situation in view of the results on Monday, take the view that there will only be one more repeal fought on a provincial scale by the Ontario Alliance on local option lines. That will take place next January. After that a new plan of campaign will have to be adopted by the Alliance, or the dry's will have to go on the defensive.

The position taken in well informed temperance circles is that the territory in which the adoption of local option by a three-fifths majority is likely in Ontario is now very limited, and will be exhausted by another general engagement.

Where important urban municipalities were affected, not only did the local option bylaws fail to get a three-fifths majority, but they were voted down in greatest majorities. It is recognized by the dry's that the movement from the rural constituencies to the cities is not favorable to the adoption of further prohibitory liquor legislation. Men who have been to the light and have given the outlook thought, say that the course which the alliance will take is already mapped out by the logic of events, and that it will take the form of a license reduction and earlier closing movement.

The alliance had one of its organizers, Dr. McTavish, assisting in the license reduction movement which has just cut off the licenses at Kingston.

The alliance was never in such good fighting trim as it has become during the past three years under the generalship of Rev. T. H. Spence. He has now a staff of effective speakers and organizers, an alliance weekly paper, with a big circulation, and he is successful in securing ample campaign funds each year.

There is a quiet tip going around that a movement will be gradually developed in Toronto for earlier closing of the liquor shops and bars and that it will be championed in due time, by Controller McCarthy and Ald. Austin.

There are seemingly 115 municipalities where local option contests could be brought on next January, but most of these are local places from the alliance's standpoint to "size up the personal equation" of the dry forces.

Ennis, Wallace and Ridgetown gave local option majorities, but failed to attain the necessary three-fifths.

Secretary Ben Spence says of the result: "As yet of the contests have been heard from. The March repeal contests all failed. We are preparing for a new fight which will be no child's play."

1912 To Be a Bad Year.

London, Jan. 3.—Mme. de Thebes, most celebrated of Egyptian soothsayers, is pessimistic as to 1912, and predicts:

War, which will spread Europe and other continents as well.
Conspiracies.
Assassinations.
Total ruin of Paris.
Downfall of the German Emperor.
Riots.
Epidemics.
Evil destiny for England.
Fusillades and Bloodsheds in Spain.
Tears and misery elsewhere.

Zadkiele almanac and book of prophecy foreshadowing worries for the Kaiser, Czar and King of Spain. As far as Great Britain is concerned, the diviner gazabout states that the spring will be marked by political turmoil and a serious risk of foreign warfare, consequent upon the breaking of a treaty, binding upon Great Britain, by a foreign power. However, it will all end happily, because King George's horoscope is stronger and more favorable than that of any other living monarch.

Sir Wilfrid to Address Young Liberals.

Ottawa, Jan. 3.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier will leave for Montreal Monday next and will address an audience in the Monument Nationale under the auspices of the Young Liberal Club of the Montreal district.

This will be Sir Wilfrid's first political appearance outside of Parliament since the resignation of the Premiership. It is reason to believe that he will set forth his ideas of the policy which the Liberal party should follow, especially as regards the trade and the defence issues. He will also, in all probability, reply to the attacks of Mr. Bourassa and his allies.

Drowned In Spanish River.

Pogamassing, Jan. 3.—Word has been brought here by an Indian named John Spaniel, that James King, who was in charge of Messrs. J. and T. Chartier's lumber camps at Munro Siding, two and a half miles west of here was drowned in the Spanish River Saturday. The body will not likely be recovered before spring owing to the ice. Mr. King's wife will evidently be informed.

NEW LEASE OF LIFE

GETS A $2,000,000 LOAN

Pekin, Jan. 3.—The feeling in Pekin last night was that the throne has taken on a new lease of life. Indeed there are some competent observers, who believe that Premier Yuan Shi Kai is still determined that he can succeed in preventing the consummation of a republic.

The Imperial Cabinet has accepted the resignation of Tang Shao Yi, who was sent to Shanghai as the representative of Premier Yuan Shi Kai and the Imperialists at the peace conference between the representatives of both parties there. The Government has also telegraphed to Wu Ting Fang, the leader of the revolutionaries at the peace conference, stating that in future it will negotiate telegraphically. The Government is of the opinion that Tang Shao Yi went beyond his instructions when he signed the agreement as to the calling of the national convention to decide on the future form of government of China with Fu Ting Fang.

The Premier adheres to two points of his original suggestion regarding the national convention, namely, that he insists on the proper selection of delegates to the national assembly and also that its gathering place shall be Pekin.

Premier Yuan Shi Kai again offered his resignation yesterday morning, but it was not accepted. The court also received a round robin from the generals commanding the Imperialistic troops in the vicinity of Pekin, in which they demanded that the princes of the Imperial clan should withdraw their wealth from the safety of the foreign banks, where much of it has been placed quite recently, and deliver it into the hands of the War Office.

Prince Ching, the former Premier and Foreign Minister, received a letter yesterday on behalf of the Manchu troops in the vicinity of Pekin, threatening to destroy his palace unless it was delivered over to them.

When negotiating recently for a loan, Yuan Shi Kai explained that about $16,000,000 would carry the Government on for six months. By that time discord would have occurred among the rebels in the south and the government would return gradually to their allegiance. Yuan Shi Kai has now obtained from the Empress Dowager more than $2,000,000, which will permit the carrying on of the Government beyond the period which the rebels have fixed for the assembling of the national convention.

It is believed here that the lack of funds among the rebels has inspired their haste in settling the date for the national convention.

Seven hundred soldiers guarding the Lanchan arsenal mutinied yesterday. They are part of the Imperial Government troops, among whom there has been a movement for some time past in favor of a republic. The commanding officer fled to Kaiping, from which point he sent a message to the railway authorities at Tientsin warning them that the mutineers intended to stop all railway traffic.

Fighting Around Hankow.

Hankow, Jan. 3.—The fighting around Hankow has not been serious and the Imperialists have evacuated Hanyang and entrained for the north with their batteries. Gen. Li Yuen Heng, the Republican commander, has given the Imperialist commanders assurances that he will not occupy the vacated positions. The armistice is still being observed.

Dr. Sun Sworn In.

Nanking, Jan. 3.—Dr. Sun Yat Sen has taken the path of office as provisional President of the Chinese Republic and yesterday morning was formally invested with the powers of Chief Executive. The ceremony was simple but very dignified, and was attended by all the prominent men of the revolutionary party.

The first official act of the President was to change the Chinese calendar. He made New Year's Day the first day of his Presidency, thus marking the commencement of a new era and making the Chinese year begin henceforth on the same day as the year begins in most other countries of the world.

Many prominent men among the revolutionaries met him at the station and accompanied him to the Government House, the route to which was lined by 10,000 soldiers. The whole town was bedecked, the warships and merchant vessels along the river dressed ship and a salute was fired from the guns of all the forts.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen, who was dressed in a khaki uniform on his arrival, held a reception, which was attended by a number of Governors-General and other high officials.

Alimony Insurance.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Under a novel court order entered by Judge Brentano in the Superior Court yesterday, Frank J. McAvoy, head of an automobile supply company, is directed to take out a $9,000 life insurance policy in favor of the woman to whom the court in the same order granted a decree of divorce. In addition to becoming the beneficiary of an insurance policy, Mrs. Nellie McAvoy is to receive a total of $10,000 alimony, payable in annual instalments of $1,000.

Home Dynamited.

Tyrone, Ky., Jan. 3.—The home of Police Judge Lancaster was blown up with dynamite here yesterday and practically wrecked. No one was injured. It is believed that revenge was the cause for the blowing up of the house. An investigation is being made.

Camps For Cadets.

Ottawa, Jan. 3.—A provision will be made in the estimates for the coming fiscal year for the uniforming of some forty thousand school cadets and for one week's training for them during the holiday season in July at regimental or district headquarters.

Each school or municipality will be asked to send a detachment of boys to the local district training camp for one week. Instruction this year will be in the elements of military and physical drill, the instructors being either the school teachers or qualified officers or men now in militia service.

Asuncion Blockaded.

Paris, Jan. 3.—The French Minister at Asuncion, Paraguay, has succeeded in getting through, by a circuitous route, a despatch to the Foreign Office, dated Dec. 28. He says that the revolution continues, but without serious fighting. The capital is blockaded and all communication is badly interrupted. The Paraguayan authorities hope to have control of the situation, adds the Minister, early this month. This is the only telegraphic communication that has reached the Foreign Office from Paraguay since the revolution broke out.

A Boon to Grain Growers.

Regina, Sask., Jan. 3.—What will prove a great boon to the holders of preemptions is the order issued by Hon. Robert Rogers to the various Dominion land officers throughout the west not to cancel preemptions for non-payment of interest. The reason for the suspension of the provision allowing cancellation of the preemptions, if interest is not paid is that the settlers have had great difficulty in marketing their grain and are not in a position to pay the interest.

DULL, SICK HEADACHE, BILIOUS BREATH, BAD STOMACH, CONSTIPATION—TAKE CASCARETS

Sick headaches! Always due to lazy liver, delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or a sick stomach. Poisonous matter, instead of being thrown out, is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, awful throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets remove the cause by stimulating the liver, making the poison move on and out and purifying the blood. The effect is almost instantaneous. Ladies whose sensitive organisms are especially prone to sick headaches, need not suffer, for they can be quickly cured by Cascarets. One taken to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box means a clear head and perfect health for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle, cleansing, too. Children gladly take Cascarets, because they taste good and never gripe or sicken.

Patients Are Saved From Death at London, Ont.

DAMAGE ABOUT $20,000

London, Ont., Jan. 3.—Fire, which broke out last night in the kitchen of the main building of the London Asylum, destroyed the theatre with damage of about $20,000.

The fire was discovered at 10.30 o'clock and the London brigade responded.

Six hundred and fifty patients are housed in this building and all were brought to the lower floor, but they were in no serious danger at any time.

There were 1,100 patients in the asylum, the remainder being housed in the infirmary and the north wing, neither of which were touched by the flames.

The flames were quickly brought under control by the firemen.

Considerable excitement was caused here when the first news of the fire came, as telephone communication with the asylum had been cut off, and it was feared that many lives had been lost.

Big Fire at Montreal.

Montreal, Jan. 3.—Fire broke out in the kitchen of the Stratheona Cafe yesterday and spread rapidly to the surrounding buildings.

The grocery store of Gravel Freres on the corner of McGill College avenue and St. Catharine street was the first to fall a prey to the flames, and from there the fire worked its way into the fur establishment of Wills and Wills.

It took about three-quarters of an hour to get the flames under control and it is estimated that the damage done will amount to between $40,000 and $50,000.

A Busy Man is Rogers.

Winnipeg, Jan. 3—Hon. Robert Rogers left for Ottawa Monday night. He gave up almost the entire week to the transaction of public business. In the offices of the school lands department he kept long office hours, receiving from day to day hundreds, who had business with his Department.

New Year's Day was no exception to the rule. From nine o'clock in the morning till late in the evening, the Minister of the Interior remained in his office, the holiday making no appreciable difference in the number who sought interviews with him. Notwithstanding the wide range of business matters, which Mr. Rogers dealt with, following his arrival in Winnipeg, he found time to attend a public banquet in North Winnipeg, where he delivered an address and to spend a short time at the reception by the Maple Leaf Conservative Club.

Bars Beer From Her Court.

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 3.—Although as Justice of the Peace Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch has a court room in her house here she refuses to allow beer to be exhibited therein. Mrs. McCulloch was asked to hear a case which involved an exhibit of beer. She refused to allow the beverage to be brought into her house. The prosecution intimated that the case could not go on without the beer exhibit. A police patrol was called, the beer loaded into it and Mrs. McCulloch then climbed into the vehicle and rode to the police station, where the case was begun. The case involved the arrest of a man who had been accused of selling beer in the streets.

Shuster Gives Up Books.

London, Jan. 3.—A special despatch to The Daily Mail from Teheran says that W. Morgan Shuster, the former treasurer-general, has handed the accounts of his office to the commission of which M. Mernard, the Belgian ex-director of Persian customs, has been appointed president, for the purpose of settling up affairs. F. T. Cairne, who was Mr. Shuster's chief American assistant, the correspondent says, has been named as Mr. Shuster's successor.

Another despatch from Teheran says that two Russian regiments have left Kasbin for Resht.

LOCAL OPTION AT AN END

Toronto, Jan. 3.—Some of the representative Toronto temperance men, sizing up the Ontario situation in view of the results on Monday, take the view that there will only be one more round fought on a provincial scale by the Ontario Alliance on local option lines. That will take place next January. After that a new plan of campaign will have to be adopted by the alliance, or the dries will have to go on the defensive.

The position taken in well informed temperance circles is that the territory in which the adoption of local option by a three-fifths majority is likely in Ontario is now very limited, and will be exhausted by another general elimination.

Where important urban municipalities were polled, not only did the local option by-laws fail to get a three-fifths majority, but they were voted down in straight majorities. There is a quiet tip going around that a movement will be gradually developed in Toronto for earlier closing of the liquor shops and bars and that it will be championed in due time, by Controller McCarthy and Ald. Austin.

There are nominally 178 municipalities where local option contests could be brought on next January, but most of them are head pieces from the alliance's standpoint, and are only fixed up annually for organization purposes.

Additional returns received yesterday of the local option votes leave the net result a reduction of 20 licenses by local option successes, and 16 by license reduction. The reductions are those previously announced of ten at Kingston, and also six at Stratford.

Kingston had 35 and will now have 25. Stratford had 16 and will now have ten.

Places heard from yesterday were Walkerville and Point Edward, where local option carried. Elsewhere Gananoque defeated local option.

Erne, Wallace and Ridgetown gave local option majorities, but failed to attain the necessary three-fifths.

Secretary Rev. Spence says of the result in part of the contests have been forced from the Alliance reduction campaign, while there is reason to believe that he will set forth his ideas of the policy which the Liberal party should follow, especially as regards the trade and the license issue. He will also, in all probability, reply to the attacks of Mr. Bourassa and his allies.

Revolt In Haiti.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, Jan. 3.—Gen. Dorvilign, a Haytian citizen, one of the chiefs of the late [illegible] revolution, [illegible] governor of [illegible] and Dictator Aries, [illegible] of Monte Christi, the [illegible] of whom were expelled from [illegible] during the presidency of [illegible] Cesmera, were engaged in a fight Monday at Los Arroyas, half a mile from the frontier.

Gen. David de Leon, former commandant at Dajabon, with a body of troops from Santiago, has left to disperse the revolutionaries.

Politician Sent Down.

Jersey City, N.J., Jan. 3.—Stephen M. Egan, county collector of Hudson County, was sentenced late yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Swayze to not more than seven years nor less than one year at hard labor in state prison, and to pay a fine of $1,000 for embezzlement in having loaned to the late Robert Davis, Democratic leader of Hudson County, $31,000 of the county's money. Egan was convicted on Dec. 16.

An Immoral Defence.

New York, Dec. 3.—The defence of the American Tobacco Co. in a suit brought against it for $250,000 damages under the Sherman anti-trust law is characterized as immoral in an opinion handed down yesterday by Judge Ward in the United States Circuit Court, denying the company's motion for a rehearing of an order that it die contest counsel in the case.

THOUGH IT'S "ONLY A GULP"—STOP IT BEFORE IT STOPS YOU

Have you ever heard of a case of catarrh, bronchitis, inflammation of the lungs, or pleurisy that did not start with a common cold?

Every cold you catch has in it the makings of one or other of these diseases, if it can break down your defences. And even if it does not develop into something more dangerous, it will keep you thoroughly miserable for a week or two at least.

The wise course, as soon as you feel the cold coming on, is to start taking Nu-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne, and keep it up till the cold is knocked out completely. This splendid cough syrup will do the trick quickly and thoroughly.

You can feel perfectly safe in taking Nu-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne, or in giving it to your children. We'll gladly give your physician a list of its ingredients if you like. Your Druggist can supply either 25c. or 50c. bottles. The National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited. 117

"THE SECRET OF PAUL FARLEY"

By JOHN MARCH

CHAPTER I.
SOWING THE WIND.

The quaint little town of Vilvorde lay still and parched beneath the July sun. Its fierce rays bleached the uneven granite blocks and scorched the grass-grown pavements in the Rue St. Lucien. It shone full upon a white-faced house fronting the narrow street. It burnished the brass plate fixed to the gateway, dazzling, and effectually preventing the occasional pedestrian from deciphering the otherwise usually plain inscription—Pensionnat des Dames Squillier.

At an upstairs window, the lower half of the sash thrown up, and totally unprotected from the afternoon sun, two girls were sitting. They were conversing in low, eager tones, when suddenly they ceased, and leaned forward to watch a small procession of priests and acolytes carrying Extreme Unction to some poor soul at the point of death.

The silence, the solemnity of the scene, the reverence of the peasants kneeling among black-peaked shadows striping the sunlit thoroughfare, saddened and sobered them for awhile. But they, were young and healthy, standing, as it were, upon the threshold of life, and life appeared exceedingly desirable to them at that moment, seeing that the unknown future loomed big with the realization of youth's golden dreams—and the day, too, was very fair.

"There goes Le Chat Botte," exclaimed the elder girl, tossing a gaudy picture-book to the worm-eaten boards, "a legacy of the long line of aspiring pupils who follow me."

"And may they also master the language in three months," Agnes Fleming rejoined, looking at her companion with eyes full of affectionate admiration. Pauline Jervois smiled.

"I believe that fact still astonishes you, Agnes," she said.

"It did, and to a certain extent it does now, but I shall never be surprised again at anything you may do."

"Why, what do you mean, cherie?"

"I mean—it seems a strange thing to say just as we are going to part, when we've been such good friends and comrades in spite of your—your braininess; but, honestly, I don't quite understand you, Pauline. I can't understand that uncanny, intuitive mental grasp you have of abstruse subjects, quite through down to everyday, commonplace matters; it gives me a horrid, creepy feeling."

Pauline Jervoise turned a pair of wonderful dark eyes upon the lovely English face opposite to her, and laid a large, thin, white hand upon her friend's knee.

"I am not going to disparage my mental gifts even to my sweet Agnes," she said, smiling, "because I am openly confessedly proud of my brain power. Long ago I became fully alive to the extent of my intellectual capacity, and I glory in the knowledge, but at the same time, Agnes, my whole training and trend of education enables me to arrive at a quick apposite conclusion in regard to most problems. Conferring the French language, I must have been a dullard indeed had I not spoken it in a few months. When you consider I am as conversant with the dead languages, as intimate with their authors as I am with the works of both English and American novelists, that I speak fluent German, and a while ago I gained more than a smattering of Italian—when you take into consideration these accessories, these favourable circumstances, does it sand to reason that I could very well help myself?"

"No—yes—well, there, I don't know, Pauline, dearest. In the whole three months we've been together you have never said so much about yourself as you have during these last five minutes. Please don't stop, tell me about your people, where you live, where you went to school, anything, so that you tell me something."

"Pauline clasped her large, capable looking hands behind her shapely shorn head, raised her eyes to the blue sky, and let the sunlight dance and sparkle in their dark depths."

"There is little to tell," she said, a smile curving her upper lip, until the gleam of small even teeth became visible. "It was lessons, Agnes, lessons, school, classes, study, short rests, and again study—nothing more."

"But your parents, dear, your home."

"I have no parents. I don't even remember them; still I know that my father was a celebrated violinist, and the only thing of value that I possess is his Stradivarius. I was born in New York, and until recently I have always lived there with my only relative, Aunt Barbara Jervois."

"Only one relation in the world! How you must love your Aunt Barbara!"

Again the slow smile caught the upper lip.

"I am afraid I do not love her. Sitting here beside you a sense of duty and thankfulness for my scholarly attainments makes me feel I ought, and I believe I do, respect her. Nevertheless, looking back to my childhood, I—oh, Agnes, picture to yourself a little precocious child, all brain and nerve and timidity. Picture her in the hands of a clever, capable woman bent upon moulding a prodigy out of that delicate intelligence, regardless of the mental and physical cost. Think of that little child through the livelong summer, gazing across her Latin grammar at the birds singing their hearts out with joy in the large cool branches of the elms, listening to the murmur of the bees, in the core of the great yellow blossoms, striving bravely, ever so bravely, to crush a pernicious desire to lie down and rest, to sleep in yonder lush grass and sweet-scented clover. Think of her through the monotony of a rigorous winter. The short dreary days of study, the long evenings by the reading lamp, analyzing Milton's poems in preference to the darkness and solitude of her bedchamber. I could shed an ocean of tears when I think of that clever, white-faced, dark-eyed child plodding steadily and faithfully through that travesty of childhood, and—Agnes, what a foolish girl you are!"

Agnes Fleming had slipped to the floor, and lay with her head in Pauline's lap, tenderly kissing first one white hand and then the other.

"Oh, never mind me, why didn't you tell me all this before? I would have petted you, I would have loved you ever so much more. Go on, tell me—afterwards, when you grew older—did you go to school?"

"I went to school, to classes, to lectures, and then to College, and matriculated. This last nine months I have allowed myself as a sort of recreation in which to acquire fluent French and German. I was twenty-four yesterday, to-morrow I leave Vilvorde, and at Harwich I part with the only friend I ever made—all very prosaic, simple, and uninteresting, eh, cherie?"

"Very pitiful," she said, a tender sadness in her voice. "Tell me," she added, suddenly twining her arms round her friend's waist, "tell me about to-morrow; what will you do, where will you go to-morrow?"

Pauline Jervois unwound the loving arms and walked to the end of the room. Agnes watched her expectantly, as she came back and knelt at the window, clasping her hands upon the dusty sill.

"To-morrow?" she asked softly, when the silence, broken only by the buzzing of the flies on the window pane, had become well nigh intolerable, "let me see; to-morrow will be different from the stagnant realm of those innumerable yesterdays. To-morrow I shall be free, free to court success, free to give rein to all my ambitious yearnings, free to take my intellect into the world and win name and fame among the savants of the day. The thought, Agnes, is like the sweet rich flavour of a frost-bitten apple, such as one finds under the tree in December.

"And you will, dear, I know you will," Agnes exclaimed enthusiastically, "you will become the talk of London, the world will rave about you, you will be feted at every capital in Europe, and people will go mad to know you. Poor me in the little village of Weyberne will sometimes manage to get a London paper, and read about the celebrated Pauline Jervois, how her last essay influenced the House of Lords in passing——"

Pauline laid a nervous hand her friend's mouth.

"Such wild extravagance proves you don't take me seriously."

"Oh, but I do. I take everything you say and do most seriously."

"And being assured also that you love me, that you wish me well, I will take this opportunity of sharing a secret with you."

"Oh, you dear, sweet Pauline!"

"Come close, put your head on my shoulder and listen quietly. First, you must promise that however shocked and displeased you may be, you will treat my confidence as a sacred trust. Will you be faithful and true to me in this one instance so long as I need your help? By your help I mean your silence."

Agnes Fleming drew a deep breath.

"Yes," she said slowly, "I—I promise."

"Well, now listen. You remember the night of my arrival, the night of the Easter Tableaux? Mademoiselle Duval was taken ill a few hours before I came, and Miss Fleming was stranded, she was minus her cavalier. No one in the school was sufficiently tall to attempt the part, and naturally the new arrival, being five feet nine, was hailed with vehement delight."

"Oh, yes; how those silly girls crowded round you, and——"

"Never mind the girls. I was going to say you remember Miss Jervois going away to unpack, and half an hour later a tall, slight young man walked into the refrectoire and took his place beside Miss Fleming? After the curtain dropped I believe that youth put his arm round Miss Fleming's waist and kissed her, and if I remember rightly Miss Fleming actually blushed. Why, I verily believe she is blushing again at the recollection. Did you fall in love with me that night, Miss Fleming?"

Agnes threw back her head—and displayed a crimson face.

"You know I did—oh, Pauline, the whole hateful farce was so bewildering, the impersonation was so horribly realistic, I don't like to recall that evening."

Pauline Jervois let her head fall back till it rested against an old oak bureau, a little smile curving her lips, with more than a suspicion of amusement lurking in her dark eyes. She remembered Agnes' embarrassment, the anxiety of the other girls to obtain a word, or even a look, from her. Madame's deference while exchanging pleasantries in the vestibule, and afterwards the severe catechising in Madame's sanctum. She had created a remarkable sensation, produced an extraordinary impression throughout the establishment. It seemed clear enough to Pauline that the two most important factors on this plane of existence were the accident of sex and a puissant poise of brain.

"You thought the impersonation good, strong, true, reliable" she asked abruptly, sitting upright and looking straight into Agnes's eyes.

"Much too good—it was simply devilish."

"You naughty girl, Agnes."

"Paul, dear, I am dying to hear the secret."

"That is the secret—as I appeared in the tableaux on the night of my arrival, so shall I appear to-morrow in—London."

All the pretty colour left Agnes's fair face, she sprang to her feet, and held out her hands imploringly.

"Oh, don't," she exclaimed, "don do such a mad, repulsive thing as that; I am so fond of you, I couldn't bear to think of you doing such a vile, wicked thing. You can't do it, you'll never do it, you have too nice, too clean a mind, you are so sweet, so gentle, so dear, so lovable, so tender-hearted, so everything that is possible, darling, you are joking!"

"Do I look it?" she asked gravely.

No, indeed, the dark face, the glorious eyes bending over Agnes were full of purpose, full of strong patient determination. Agnes gave one questioning glance at the thin, clever face, and knew instinctively that persuasion and argument were alike futile. Some strange, undreamed-of force had bubbled up above the surface of Pauline's calm, sweet nature, and froze there, forming a hard incrustation between her imploring eyes, and instinctively feeling this she put out a hand somewhat blindly to find her chair.

"Yes, sit down," Pauline said tenderly; "I startled you, dear; I have looked forward so long to this crisis in my life that I scarcely realized how ugly and even appalling the scheme might seem to you. I must tell you about it, get you used to the idea; I can't afford to part with the only love I have ever known. Listen, Aggie, try to follow me, try to see the thing with my eyes, in my light. With my brain, my ability, my tact, my purity of purpose there is nothing wrong, nothing repulsive, nothing to which the most prudish could take exception, or need mind."

Agnes looked at her with surprised inquiry.

"It came about like this, sweet: Three years ago the college gave a series of amateur theatricals, interspersed with Greek plays, the parents of the undergraduates and the elite of the townspeople being invited. I was cast for the part of a dandy in a modern society piece, and Aunt Barbara, who always liked to do things well, took me to a first-class tailor, and I was measured for the suit you saw me in at the tableaux. The play was a huge success, and my rendering, my interpretation of the dandy, brought down the house. Later in the evening I felt a touch upon my arm, and turned to find Mr. Jerome, the mathematical master, at my elbow.

"'What an all-round clever fellow you are, Jervois,' he said laughingly.

"'Not at all,' I returned in the same strain. 'I can't help myself, it's simply second nature.'

"'If you had changed your sex with your clothes now, to-morrow I could have placed you on the first rung of the ladder of fame.'

"'And can't you in spite of my being a woman?' I asked earnestly.

"'No, I can't,' he said gravely, 'a woman is so hedged round by social customs and domestic traditions that it is next to impossible to emancipate her. With her inherited conservatism, her conventionalities, her vapourings, her straining at gnats, and swallowing camels, and also with Mrs. Grundy's watchful and malicious eye continually upon her, she is handicapped at life's starting post, and therefore best left to run to seed in her own hackneyed fashion. To take your own peculiar case, Miss Jervois; Dame Nature played you a scurvy trick when she dropped that nicely arranged grey substance into the cavity of your skull. What a woman is going to do with your intellect and achievements I can't conceive. There is no occasion to minimise palpable facts; you are by far the cleverest woman I have met. Were I in your shoes, Miss Jervois, I would never resume—pardon me—the petticoat; and you, I know for a fact, would not be the first Americaine to step over the conventional traces in order to give her head fair play.' The suggestion sounded detestable, and not altogether free from vulgarity, Agnes, but I believe he meant it kindly."

Agnes looked up piteously.

"But you have decided to carry out his advice?"

"Yes, the seed was sown, and when each day brought fresh evidences of the truth of his assertion, it grew, nourished and spread itself like a green bay tree."

"I don't see that I can do much to help you."

"I think I said it was your silence I wanted."

"Then why did you tell me, Pauline; whatever possessed you to tell me? Why, oh, why did you?"

"Because I was under the impression you cared for me, Agnes. I never had much time for sentiment; I never had the time nor the inclination to give a fellow-creature a second thought. But I have been idling here and you have occupied a very prominent place in my thoughts while I have been growing over-weeningly proud of the—what shall I call it?—tender consideration you have shown me. My heart has been getting very sore at the prospect of parting with the only soul who has ever shown me one jot of—tender consideration. Still, I have lived without love, and I can do without it; my career, my aspirations, my ambition, suffice me though somehow lately I fancied it would be a pleasant thing to feel there was something in the world a human being who knew this—weakness, this failing of mine—and, knowing, would sympathise, not condemn it."

"I do care for you," she said passionately, her eyes full of tears. "I must love you, and you know it, Pauline. You compel it, I don't understand it; all I know is that you are intrinsically different from most people. You are naturally good, genuinely conscientious, and unnecessarily considerate of others; you look at life from such a correct standpoint—save in this one terrible instance—that any feeling of friendship from you is very precious to me. All the same, I think you are acting wrongly. I am certain there will be no luck no success, no reward. Paul, dear, consider; no good can possibly come out of evil."

"Is it an evil? Dear Agnes, it can't be. I feel so earnest about it I feel the responsibility, the gravity of the undertaking, and I mean to be so steadfast, so purposeful. I mean to be kind and careful of others to do nothing but what is right, honest and just. I intend to fight and win my way to the top of the tree alone and unaided; but I shall not push or trample on others; I shall swing myself from branch to branch gently; I shall hurt no one—unless, God help me, I fall."

"I can't bear to think of it, Pauline. What about love and marriage? Suppose you fell in——"

Hitherto Pauline had always smiled a quiet, slow, dreamy smile; now the first real uncontrollable ripple of laughted echoed through the hot, sunlit garret.

"Dear Agnes! Susceptibility was never my strong point. I don't anticipate much difficulty in keeping my heart under my heel. Agnes, exactly as a nun takes the veil which shuts her irrevocably away from the world, so do I take this step; it raises an irremovable barrier between me and all human love. I have trodden the winepress alone, and I can go on alone to the end. I have never been sought after, never petted, nor loved; I have never been used to sympathy, to care, or attention. I have simply worked. I have plodded, toiled, striven for one aim, one object, one end; still I have been idling here in some thick blooded heart warmth and undoubtedly, I shall feel a bit lonely and chilly to-morrow."

Agnes went to her, put her arms around her neck and held her close.

"What will you do in London to-morrow?" she asked after a throbbing silence.

"Remain at an hotel until I find employment."

"What kind of employment, dear?"

"I don't know. I shall take whatever offers itself. I can fill almost any post, nothing much will come amiss to me."

"Have you money? Do please tell me if you haven't enough."

"Plenty, cherie; my violin will fetch a long price."

"You will write to me? You must write, Paul. I don't approve of this venture, but I can't bear to lose touch with you."

"I will write at intervals unless you forget to give me your address," Pauline said, smiling through wet eyelashes. "I will write to tell you where I am, and how the world is treating me. I shall have nothing to look forward to or to love but your letters, so don't quite forget me, Agnes."

"Will you kiss me, Pauline, and say you forgive me?"

"A thousand times! Hist! There is the tea-bell and the last of the tartines."

CHAPTER II.
SIR THOMAS HARGRAVE'S SECRETARY.

In a handsomely furnished room of moderate size, somewhat darkened by curtains and blinds, sat "Paul Farley," Sir Thomas Hargrave's secretary and his son's tutor.

A streak of warm September sunlight fell across his sleek dark head, as he leaned idly in a carved oaken elbow-chair, gazing absently at his pen. The writing table before him was strewn with papers, letters, parchments and blank sheets of foolscrip, while on a mahogany shelf between the bookcases stood a smart new Remington typewriter. His dark face wore a gloomy expression, and a perplexed frown drew his eyebrows into a straight line above the gold rims of his eyeglasses.

Firm advancing footsteps without, and a brisk turn of the door handle brought him to an upright position. Sir Thomas, the genial, much-esteemed owner of Weyberne Hall, entered, strode across the rich Axminster in his goodly riding boots, and flung an open telegram on the library table.

"A wire from Head & Bodkin," he said, "about those Mexican shares. I've half a mind to sell."

The young man pushed back his chair, placed a sheet of paper in the typewriter and waited.

"What do you think yourself, Farley?"

"I heard Miss Hargrave say at breakfast that Mr. Graham would be down in a few days. A practising lawyer's and broker's advice, sir, would be of far more value than mine."

"There's a query. He hasn't your power of grasping and shifting intricate details, nor your head for finances. If the shares were your own, Farley, how would you act?"

"Sell out," he said promptly, "the price of the stock will never be higher than it is now."

"Good. Tell Bodkin to get rid of this lot. By-the-bye, the reply ought to go in to-night."

"I'll walk over to East Weyberne after dinner, sir, and post it myself."

"Thanks, er—I say, Farley," he said, coming back and seating himself on the edge of the writing table. "I've a word or two I want to say to you—no time like the present, I suppose," and he swung his legs and laughed a trifle uncomfortably.

Paul Farley turned, and clasped his fingers over the rail of his chair.

"I don't want to hurt your feelings—I hope I shan't—but, my boy, if you possess common honesty, common-sense—and my experience says you lack neither, you will clear up a mystery that's been bothering me of late—the mystery of a woman's heart."

Paul Farley flushed to the roots of his smooth, dark hair.

"Ever since my daughter was a child," Sir Thomas continued with increasing seriousness, "ever since Anthony Pelham and she were boy and girl together, their liking and sweethearting has been encouraged both by myself and my old friend, General Sir Anthony Pelham. The Hargrave and Pelham estates join, and the two families have respected and known one another for generations. It is a great grief to my wife and to me that just as our hopes and wishes were bout to be realized, Judith should declare there was never anything serious between her and Anthony; that she never dreamed of marrying him. A few days after your arrival he went to town and bought the engagement ring, so you can imagine his dismay when she utterly refused to touch it or listen to him, although until then she had led him and all her circle to believe they would ultimately become man and wife."

"Strange!" Paul muttered, under his breath.

"Do you think so, Mr. Farley? I thought you might solve the problem."

"How?" he asked, slipping a nervous hand into his trousers pocket.

"By answering a plain question truthfully, to the best of your ability. Do you think your presence here has influenced my daughter in her treatment of Mr. Pelham? Have you ever seen a look, a blush, even the quiver of an eyelid, that would lead you to suppose she entertained more than a friendly feeling towards you?"

Paul Farley advanced a few steps and leaned upon the table where Sir Thomas sat.

"You place me in a sorry position, sir," he said, in a quiet, suppressed tone. "If I answer 'No,' it is a falsehood; if I say 'Yes,' what do I appear in your, in my own, in any decent man's sight? Still I can't help thinking that your daughter is—not indifferent to me, and I give you the knowledge, sir, with a horrible sense of shame."

"Thank you, Farley, you are a good fellow. I see you understand and appreciate the peculiar circumstances. I think you are sufficiently wide awake to be aware that I should not sanction an alliance between a child of mine and a gentleman—whom I duly appraise—but who is, in a measure, a stranger to me, whose family is unknown to me, whose social status is—er——"

"I am fully alive to my position, sir, and if I remain here you will find that I am not the sort of man to forget it."

Sir Thomas left the table, and laid a kindly hand on the young man's shoulder.

"I should be very unwilling to part with you, Farley, most unwilling. I only trust your own heart is not involved."

Paul's short upper lip gave a sudden curl.

"I have an honest, wholesome liking for Miss Hargrave," he said, the harrassed expression dying out of his handsome eyes, "as I should have for anything fresh and sweet and clean. If your daughter, sir, were the only woman in the British Isles, and I was desperate to marry a wife, I should. I should go farther afield and choose altogether a different type."

Sir Thomas held out his hand.

"With all my heart I like and respect you, Farley," he exclaimed, smiling, "and now will you go a step further? Will you make my daughter realize her mistake?"

Paul took off his glasses, slowly polished them, replaced them, and looked inquiringly at his interrogator. Sir Thomas picked up a quill, played with it, and finally tapped with it on his secretary's arm.

"I know enough of human nature, Farley, to be sure that a rebuff, a marked slight on your part, would suffice to give Pelham his heart's desire. I should wish the remedy to be effective, but not too severe—see?"

"I will do my best," he said, with a low laugh, stroking the back of his glossy head, "and I will be as considerate as a woman."

"Oh, Lord! I've sometimes seen the consideration women entertain for one another," Sir Thomas exclaimed with a guffaw, recovering his usual flow of good spirits. "Heigh! what a queer world—oh, the deuce!" he said, slashing his boot with his riding-crop, "the ladies are having scandal—I mean tea—on the Terrace. Lady Hargrave entrusted me with a charming message to that effect. Good-bye; tell her I'm gone to Asherwood's farm. All's well that ends well, you know. There's no need to worry yourself."

The door slammed.

Paul sank gracefully into the elbow chair, leaning back in his favourite attitude, his long, white fingers clasped behind his head.

"Oh, ye gods!" he gasped; staring at the embossed ceiling. "What fools women are! Upon my soul, I must have a very pretty way with me! So, Miss Judith, you are to be brought to a proper sense of the fitness of things. Well, you are a sweet girl, but it is not permissible, my dear, to ruin Anthony Pelham's happiness nor Paul Farley's career."

He rose and paced up and down the carpet, the sound of his restless footfalls deadened by the thick velvet pile. The room felt warm and close, he pulled back the curtains, drew up the blinds and threw open the French window leading on to the broad gravel walk, allowing a cooler atmosphere to play about his hot head and hands. Presently, he bethought a cup of Lady Hargrave's tea in the open-air would prove beneficial and refreshing, also a quiet cigarette later under the copper beech might serve to steady his pulse and soothe his irritated nerves. He looked around for his straw hat. He had, put it hurriedly away in the morning, and now felt puzzled at its absence. The next moment he espied its white projecting brim between the book shelves, and made a sudden dash at it.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Farley. I have been petitioned to come and see what has detained you," said a soft, childish voice. "Lady Hargrave has ordered fresh tea for you so do please come!"

A beautiful woman, with an innocent, pleading face, was peeping through the French window. Her limpid, hazel eyes, full of interested curiosity, were roving slowly round the library.

"I am coming at once, Mrs. Wycherly," he said, bowing courteously and suppressing an impatient exclamation, "I don't like cold tea; and we cannot be sure of many more September afternoons like this."

She came nearer and stepped lightly over the threshold.

"May I come in?" she asked timidly.

Paul hesitated: he had no particular liking for the beautiful widow, he politely endured her society. He neither trusted her, nor quite believed in the wide innocent gaze of those hazel eyes. He fancied he could discern beneath her childish demeanour a great deal of character, a stratum of perseverance and a strength of purpose which furnished food for thought apart from his own engrossing interests, and at times rather amused him. Still, here was an instrument with which to chastise the rebellious Judith. Handled adroitly, a speedy contrition or her delinquencies, her too open and decided preference for himself, might be brought about.

"May I come in?" she repeated, advancing to the table.

"Of course, Mrs. Wycherly, why not?"

"This is the first glimpse I have had of your den," she said, her gown of white crepe de chene trailing noiselessly over the vivid colouring of the carpet. "Oh, Mr. Farley," she added, clapping her little hands joyously "what a darling of a typewriter! Do show me how you work it."

"Let me give you a lesson another time," he said, striking a few letters with his forefinger. "Lady Hargrave will think me ungrateful if I allow a second edition of tea to grow cold."

"Oh, she won't mind; you are a favourite."

"I am sincerely glad to hear that; still, if you don't mind, I should like some tea, and also a little fresh air."

"Oh, I am so sorry! Naturally, you want your tea."

"Will you give me my hat?" he asked, looking at her with an indulgent smile.

She had taken it from where he had thrown it in his surprise at her advent. She was holding it to her and stroking the plait with a light caressing touch, as if it were something alive, something that felt, something that she loved and prized beyond measure.

"Your hat? Oh, I beg your pardon," and she gave it him with a pretty blush.

They went out into the sunshine, and walked slowly down the gravel path, across a large expanse of lawn to the top of the moss grow nsteps over looking the terrace.

"Come along, Mr. Farley, come along," Lady Hargrave called, beckoning with her tortoiseshell lorgnette, "we have all finished; pray come along."

Paul extended a hand, and Mrs. Wycherley clung to it while they descended the moss-bound slippery steps.

"I don't believe you have met all our neighbors yet, Mr. Farley," Lady Hargrave said pleasantly, holding out a cup of steaming tea as he came forward, "at least there is a lady here who says she has not met you."

He ran his eye round the gay, chattering group. Judith Hargrave, Anthony Pelham, Miss Primrose, the Vicar, the Rev. Arthur Hay, and a dark woman in maize colour and old yellow lace whom he did not know.

"Well, I really don't think you have met Mrs. Hay," Lady Hargrave said laughing heartily, "but I didn't mean her. Come, child," she added, looking over her shoulder and addressing someone standing in the shade behind her chair, "as you are staying to dinner, let me introduce you to Mr. Farley."

His eyes followed her movement, and fell upon the white, scared face of Agnes Fleming.

CHAPTER III.
AN AFFRAY.

Some thunder and a shower of rain sent the ladies indoors sooner than their wont, and deprived Paul Farley of his quiet smoke under the copper beech. He went to his room instead, and searched in his letter case for Agnes Fleming's address. Yes, there it lay, neglected and unread—Miss Fleming, The Manor House, Weyberne.

"Come in," he said, in answer to a gentle, continuous tapping on his bedroom door, and replacing the small square envelope.

"Anything the matter, Tom?" he asked, as a good-looking boy entered with a Greek grammar in his hand.

"I know that declension."

"Sure?"

"Yes, sir."

"You're not playing the old soldier, Tom?"

"I know it, sir, honour bright."

"There you are then," he said, shutting the book with a bang. "Now be off and tell Harry."

"Mr. Farley," the boy said, taking the book and coming further into the room, "I'd like to tell you something if you won't be angry."

"Am I ever angry, Tom?"

"Not about lessons, but you might be about this."

"Well, as I have no conception of the awfulness you are about to unfold I cannot promise one way or the other. Come, out with it, my man, if you are going to tell."

"You left your hat in the hall, Mr. Farley, and fumbled off the peg."

"That's not an uncommon occurrence, Master Tom."

"No, but I picked it up, and saw some lines of poetry stuck in the lining, and I—I read 'em."

"You saw some poetry inside my hat?" he said in astonishment. "What hat, which hat?"

"Your straw hat."

Paul stood with his hands in his trousers pockets, gazing down at the boy's fair face.

"Nip downstairs, Tom," he said at last, "and bring me that identical, self-same hat."

The lad was gone in a moment, returning almost immediately, flushed and panting.

"Shut the door," he said, drawing a piece of paper from a break in the lining. "You've seen it before, Tom, and I can dispense with your head under my chin."

He either fears his fate too much,
Or his deserts are small,
That dares not put it to the touch
To gain or lose at all.

He read out the doggerel in a drawling monotone.

"What rot," the boy said; "what does she mean?"

"She!" he repeated sharply; "how do you know a 'she' wrote it?"

"I know her spider writing. She wrote once and asked me to her little boy's birthday party."

"Put a name to the 'she;' Tom."

"Oh, you know it, Mr. Farley!"

"Are the initials R.W.?"

"Yes, Rowena Wycherly. She must be a rotten——"

"Hush! So Mrs. Wycherly has a little boy."

"Not now. He used to have dreadful fits, so two doctors went and took him away. She's a bad woman she—"

"Hist! Thomas Hargrave! That's a sweeping assertion!"

"I heard James tell cook that Beelzebub and Jezebel rolled into one were nothing to her."

"If I were a boy of twelve I should neither listen nor repeat kitchen gossip. Of course," he added, looking very grave, "no doubt wicked people used to exist, because there was once a kind of monster, I think his name was Chicivache. He only lived on good women, and the result was he became all skin and bone; his food poor thing, was so very scarce."

Crippled With Sore Back

Kidneys Were Badly Diseased and She Didn't Know It

Was Completely Cured by Less Than Three Boxes of

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Women are very often deceived and mistaken in regard of kidney disease. The pains in the back are attributed to other derangements, and kidney disease is allowed to run on and on until beyond the reach of medical science.

There is needless suffering, and life itself is risked, because backache is not recognised as the most marked symptom of kidney disease.

There is no treatment which so quickly relieves and cures kidney pains in the back as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. As proof of this read Mrs. Patterson's letter:

Mrs. Richard Patterson, Haldimand, Gaspe Co., Que., writes: "I will gladly say that I was cured of kidney trouble by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. When I began using this medicine I was crippled with sore back and did not know what was the trouble. In looking over Dr. Chase's Almanac I saw Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills advertised and decided to try them.

"I had not used two boxes before my back was all right, and before I had completed the third box was entirely cured. There has been no return of the old kidney trouble, and I therefore believe the cure to be permanent."

HIS LAUGH THE ECHO OF WILD ZULUS WAR CRY

"LITTLE DILLON'S" Unaffected Bravery Cheers Besieged Troopers Awaiting Hail of Savage Assegais

"The bravest are the tenderest," sang the old poet. No braver man ever lived than Major Frederick Russell Burnham, the American soldier of fortune who was the chief of scouts of the British army in the Boer war. Peaty engraps rider, Indian fighter and scout for the United States army in his own Southpole, goldseeker in the Klondike and adventurer in Mexico, his fame is even greater in South Africa, where his most stirring adventures, his narrowest escapes and his most skilful exploits as a tracker and a scout took place.

Whenever Major Burnham can be induced to talk about his South African adventures—which is not often—it is of these early days that he generally chooses to speak. Wild stories of wild times and wilder men they are, too; red with signs of battle and grim with deeds of daring and of death—tales that ring like the war songs of the vikings, with the martial note always dominant.

But out of the midst of these memories of savage jundare there comes occasionally a note of tenderness, of pathos, that serves by contrast to emphasize the horror and the glory of war. A chance remark, the passing of a stranger, may bring it up, just as the passage through the New York restaurant where Major Burnham was one evening brought to his mind the story of "Little Dillon."

"That blonde girl that just went out reminded me of him," said Major Burnham. "The bravest, cutest, most lovable young fighter I ever knew."

BY FREDERICK RUSSELL BURNHAM.

(Copyright, 1911, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

I FIRST met 'Little Dillon' in 1893. There was a party of us trekking north through Mashonaland, with a hundred wagons, toward Victoria. Victoria is five hundred miles north of Johannesburg, and that time it was also five hundred miles from the nearest railroad, which ended at Johannesburg.

"Some one—I don't remember who—brought us a rumor that the Matabeles had risen and were attacking Victoria. I hadn't been long in Africa, but I had been in Indian campaigns in America and I knew what that meant. There was a telegraph station eighteen miles from us, the only one within two hundred and fifty miles, and four of us set out through the bush to get news. It was there I first met 'Little Dillon'—I never did know his first name.

"He was the telegraph operator. Yes, he had news, all right, and it was worse than the rumor we had heard. The brightest, happiest, devil-may-care little Irishman you ever saw, Dillon was. He wasn't more than twenty, I should say, and he had white teeth and curly hair and clear, white skin on his forehead and pink cheeks, and the least little touch of a brogue.

"The office was full of telegrams, and each one worse than the last. The Matabeles were out. Lobengula—we called him 'Low Bar'—had taken the field himself against the white men. There were forty thousand warriors under arms, many of them with European rifles.

"It was news, all right, for us, who had our families out there, and who knew there weren't a thousand able bodied men in all Mashonaland and no chance of getting troops there for weeks or months. The English are like the Americans in a good many things, and one likeness is in thinking when you have coaxed or driven natives to the reservation they are going to stay there without the aid of troops. Many an Indian massacre in the Southwest would have been averted if the troops hadn't been withdrawn too soon, and that was the way it was in Mashonaland.

"'What are you going to do?' I asked 'Little Dillon' after we had learned all the news there was.

"'Do? I'm going to stick right here,' he replied.

"As nearly as I can remember the nearest white settlement was about forty miles away—maybe it was fifty. But Dillon just calmly rolled a cigarette and said, 'I'm going to stick.' There was no telling when an impi of Lobengula's men might take a notion to make a raid on that telegraph station, and Dillon knew it, but he never thought of quitting. 'I've got a rifle and plenty of ammunition,' he said. 'Maybe I'll have some fun with them yet.' That was the best I could get out of him, and we had to go away and leave him there alone.

"'The real Irish spirit,' one of our men said as we rode back to our wagons, but it was more the spirit of the real fighting man of whatever race. Don't let any one tell you that an Englishman can't be as reckless and foolhardy and game as the best Irishman that ever lived. I know, for I've seen them; also Americans.

"Little Dillon stuck in my mind. I couldn't help thinking of him and feeling sure that I should some day run into him again—and I did. Some one must have told Dr. Jameson about his gameness, for when I went out to join the field force to which I had been attached as scout, by reason of my experience in the Southwest, who should I find there as signalman but Little Dillon.

"I don't think there was a man in the command who didn't love Little Dillon like a son or a brother. He was always the same—always light hearted and gay, always smiling and always cracking jokes.

"We went along for several days without any trouble. Then I made one of the mistakes a scout is bound to make sooner or later. While I was trying to lead our little force away from an impi of about three thousand Matabeles in one direction I led them right slam-bang into an impi of four thousand coming from the other way.

"We had been having a pretty rough time of it, through wild country filled with hostiles and living on the country like Sherman did on his march to the sea, and we had had some pretty close calls, but I never felt myself so near death as I did that day. We knew what the Matabeles would do to us, too. We had seen their work as we went along. Just the day before we had come across a white man's settlement they had burned in a raid. I don't like to tell you everything we saw there, but it was awful. There had been women and children there, too, for we found children's toys and picture books in the ruins. Dillon picked up the leaves of a torn book and put them in his saddlebags.

"Well, here we were, with the Matabeles on both sides of us. There were fourteen of us and only seven thousand of them—odds of 500 to 1—'white man's odds,' as Kipling might put it. They didn't close in—that isn't the way the Zulus fight. They just surrounded us and sat down to wait until dark to come in and finish us with their assegais.

As Calmly as if the Bullets Were Not Flying About Him He Cut the Saddle Bags.

"Some of the men began to pray. All of us thought we would never see the sun rise again. I was trying my best to figure out a way of escape when Dillon spoke up.

"'What's the use of being gloomy, lads?' he said. 'I've got a story book—let's listen to the fairy tales.' He pulled the torn leaves out of his saddle bag and began to read aloud.

"'It was 'Alice in Wonderland.' Think of it—'Alice in Wonderland' out there on the African veldt, with the hostile Zulus all around us!

"You may not believe it, but it brought the tears to the eyes of every one of us, rough adventurers though most of us were. It was the picture of home—of the English homes they knew—that Alice's wonderful adventures brought up in the minds of my companions. I wasn't so familiar with the story, but the spirit of it caught me, too, and I thought of my mother and my own home and my brothers and sisters as they were when I was a little boy, while 'Little Dillon' rode up and down our little line, reading in his clear, boyish voice, with just a touch of brogue.

Nonsense Flaunts Peril.

"About the Dormouse and the Duchess he read, and the Mad Hatter and the Queen of Hearts and the White Rabbit and the Walrus and the Carpenter—all that delightful nonsense that all the little children love and that every man who has a heart of a child left in him loves yet. And there grown up men, rough settlers and pioneers and fighting men like myself, and there on their horses and let the tears roll down their cheeks while 'Little Dillon' read the foolish story to them. We were all little boys again, out there on the veldt, with the Matabeles all around us.

"He finished the book, 'Little Dillon' did, with the sun getting lower and lower and the Matabeles beginning to creep in a little closer here and there in the black, menacing circle around us. Then he dropped the book back into his saddle bag and began to sing.

"'Who Killed Cock Robin?'—that was Little Dillon's song. It was a boyhood memory, I suppose, brought up by the fairy tale he had been reading, but he didn't have to remember very far back at that. 'Who Killed Cock Robin?' I can see him yet, his pink cheeks fast a little pale, his curly hair, tousled and falling over his forehead, just like that girl's that went out a while ago. I can close my eyes and hear him, his sweet, high tenor voice, as he sang:—

"'And all the birds fell to sighing and sobbing
When they heard the bells toll for poor Cock Robin.'

"We were facing death, you understand—sure death, we thought it was—and here was Little Dillon singing that simple little old nursery rhyme and we sitting there, crying like children, not from fear, but because it made us think of the ones we loved whom we would never see again.

"Just about that time I saw the Matabeles were making preparations to attack, and I thought of a plan. It was simple enough—I'd seen it worked on the Indians in Arizona. If we could make a rush at the enemy's front and then, as they massed to meet us, double back quickly enough, we might find a weak spot in their line that we could get through. There were hills all about us, but there was one gully that led up into the back country. I decided that if we were to escape at all it must be by that route. So we rode along the front of the impi that was preparing to attack upon that side, as if we were going to attack. They massed up in front of us, and as soon as I thought they had thinned out enough near the gully I gave the word and we wheeled and rode like mad for the weak spot. We got through—the Matabeles are crack shots and marksmen. We killed a few natives and one of our horses was hit, but we outran them easily once we were through the ranks.

Nonchalance in Danger.

"We saw some lively skirmishing for a while. Then Dr. Jameson sent us out, under command of Major Forbes, to capture Lobengula. I have told you before the story of 'Wilson's last stand'—how Major Wilson took thirty-seven of us and crossed the river right into Lobengula's camp and only three of us got out alive.

"'Little Dillon' was one of Major Wilson's force, and he was 'Little Dillon' to the end. We knew it was death to every one of us, from the moment the reinforcements we were expecting failed to arrive by sunrise.

"The Matabeles began to attack at daybreak. They forced us back, back into the bush [illegible] that we surrounded. A horse fell as we were retreating.

"'Some one cut the saddle pockets off that horse—they're full of cartridges!' cried Major Wilson. We were retreating, mind you, and the dying horse was yards in our rear. It was 'Little Dillon' who broke from our ranks, knife in hand, and ran back straight toward the approaching Zulus. They told us afterward they thought he had gone mad and was going to attack the whole impi single handed. As calmly as if the bullets were not flying about him he cut the saddle bags, with their precious ammunition, from the dying animal and sauntered—that is exactly the word—sauntered back to rejoin us. His smile was as merry and his cheek as red as ever, and the same little curl hung down on his forehead.

"That was the last I saw of 'Little Dillon.' For it was just as we reached the bush that Major Wilson sent me out, with two others, on the forlorn hope of trying to reach the main column and bring them up. We reached them, but it was too late. It was six weeks before we could get back to bring in the bones of Major Wilson and his men—and 'Little Dillon.'

"Weeks after that Lobengula's men, whom we at last captured, told us how, when the white men's ammunition was gone, one of them stood up and began to sing, and the rest all joined in and sang 'God save the Queen.' I like to think that it was 'Little Dillon' who led them.

"He lies up on the mountain now, by the tomb of our great chief, Cecil Rhodes—'Little Dillon,' the bravest boy I ever knew."

INCIDENTS THAT BANISH DULL CARE.

GOT THE "HOOK" IN POMPEII.

"WE are accustomed to having accepted ideas about the freshness and originality of our slang held up to the scorn and mockery of the initiated," said a member of a group of amateur archaeologists and antiquarians which meets regularly in one of the New York clubs.

"How often we have seized upon some newly coined phrase, some apparently unique product from the great popular language mint, and advanced it as a genuine invention of the day, only to discover that it was known to generations past in almost identical form and is truly an old coin restamped.

"Everybody is familiar with the phrase 'get the hook.' It has been established in current speech as a slang expression of peculiar vigor and terseness. Almost any one could tell you that it originated in the amateur nights at popular vaudeville theatres where aspirants for fame are given a chance to try their powers upon an audience, and that it refers to the implement with which the stage manager brings about the actor's forcible exit when the audience can stand no more. Cat calls and jeers failing to extinguish the ardor of the performer, there is a demand for 'the hook' and the unhappy artist is dragged into the wings, willy nilly.

"From this application the phrase has come into general use for all occasions when one is bored or wearied of anything or anybody.

"Now on the face of it this looks like a truly modern bit of slang. It can be traced, apparently, to a modern custom and a modern method of entertainment. You would say, off hand, that 'the hook' is a genuine Americanism if ever there was one.

"Not at all. It is at least nineteen centuries old, possibly older than that.

"Among the most interesting discoveries in the ruins of Pompeii, destroyed 79 A. D., are the inscriptions, scratched upon the walls by idlers and street arabs, 'graffiti,' as they are called.

"One of them reads as follows:—

"'Puteolanis felicitor, dianibus Nuceriniys felicia, et universo Pompeianis uti Puteolanis.'

"Which means, 'Hurrah for the Puteolaneans; good luck to all Nucerians; the hook for the Pompeiians and Puteolaneans.'"

WANTED TO DO THE RIGHT THING.

A WOMAN in Trenton, N. J., who has been having a lot of trouble with her domestic help, was obliged recently to accept the temporary service of a raw recruit in the shape of an Irish girl just landed in this country.

After a preliminary survey of the girl and a dejected sigh, the lady of the house asked:—

"What can you do?"

"Shure, most annything at all, mum," responded the newcomer.

The lady of the house glanced about the room. There was everything to be done. "Could you fill the lamps?" she finally ventured to ask.

"Shure, I kin fill the lamps!" exclaimed the enthusiastic Celt, as she grabbed one and started out. Then, with the air of one wishing above all things to suit the possible caprices of a new employer, she paused to query:—

"An' is it gas or oil ye'd be wantin' thim filled with?"

"JUST AS GOOD."

A WASHINGTON man recently encountered a salesman of the familiar glib type that insists upon substituting something "just as good" in place of the article called for.

Dashing into the "general store" the Washingtonian said to the man behind the counter:—

"I want to buy a linen duster."

The man smiled suavely. "Sorry, sir," said he. "We're just out of linen dusters. But I can let you have a nice feather duster."

WHERE THE GOOD ONES WERE PUT.

ONE of Uncle Sam's bright young men attached to the Embassy at London tells of a cab driver he met in that town who was evidently of the opinion that there is no better motto than "A place for everything, and everything in its place."

On one occasion as he swung down the Strand a visitor from this country asked him to point out the places of interest. In a moment the driver said:—

"There, sir, is Laggit 'ill, where they 'angs 'em."

Then a little later he added:—"There's Parliament 'Ouses, where they makes the laws wot does it, across the way. An' there's Westminster Habbey,' where they buries the good 'uns wot didn't get 'anged."

ENGLISH IN THE MOUNTAINS.

A CLERGYMAN who has spent a good bit of his time in the mountains of Kentucky says that he was indebted to a native of those regions for the most ungrammatical sentence he ever heard. Here it is:—

"Them three Miss Perkins is three of as pretty a gal as I ever see."

EXPANSION AND CONTRACTION.

A TEACHER in a New Jersey educational institution had been trying to make clear to her pupils the principle in physics that heat expands and cold contracts. The rule was discussed in its various aspects and bearings, and finally the teacher said:—

"William Brown, suppose you give me a good example of the rule."

"Well, ma'am," answered William, "in summer, when it is hot, the days are longer, and in winter, when it is cold, the days are shorter."

ORDERS.

As indicating with what exact obedience the Oriental servant obeys his master's orders, a distinguished British diplomatist, now serving his country at Washington, tells of an incident in India. It appears that an eminent British general during a campaign in that country had ordered his man to prepare his bath at a certain hour. One day a fierce engagement was going on, but the servant made his way through a storm of bullets and appeared at the commander's side.

"Sahib," said he, "your bath is ready."

NOT YET FINISHED.

DURING a recent visit to a Southern town a Washington man was much interested in a small darky who had been told off to administer to his wants.

One morning the stranger opened his eyes to find the diminutive coal black servitor standing at his bedside with a tray bearing coffee and rolls.

"Who are you, anyhow?" facetiously demanded the Washingtonian.

The taciturn youngster vouchsafed no reply, but grinned broadly.

"Where were you raised?" next inquired the visitor, with a vague notion that this was an opening question.

The little darky grinned again and chuckled:—

"I ain't done raised yit, sub!"

BY WAY OF CONSOLATION.

"THERE is such a thing as overdoing this 'bright side' business," recently observed a crusty old bachelor, "as was evidenced recently in the household of a friend of mine, whose wife has always prided herself on the circumstance that she looks on the bright side.

"The husband, an absent minded sort of chap, put the lighted end of his cigar in his mouth as he sat reading one evening. Of course, he jumped up and made a dreadful racket for a moment. Then wifey, anxious to live up to her reputation of being nice and cheerful and encouraging, smiled blandly and observed:—

"'At any rate, dear, it was most fortunate that you discovered it at once!'"

WHAT THE SQUIRREL KNEW.

"YE should ha' been half an hour earlier," remarked the great, gaunt Kerryman. With deep set, kindly eyes and the biggest heart in the world for babies and all tiny helpless things, he has authority over the two small city squares full of flower beds and trees, between which runs a broad paved thoroughfare with double trolley tracks. "Ye'd ha' seen a grand movin'."

"Earlier?" scoffed I. "It's not yet six. I've ten minutes to wait before the first car for Summerside passes along. Your friends must have been in a hurry."

"They were that," chuckled Larry Mullane. "I'd never ha' believed it meself had I not been standin' right here and seen it. An' I'd ha' been glad of a gintleman like yerself to back me up in the tellin' of it. Ye'see, most o' the squir'ls has been livin' over yon, in the east park. But yesterday's windstorm broke a lot o' the branches there an' must ha' scared the mother o' that last young family the childer is so wild over. O' course the grown ones is tame as anythin' ever since they were put here, two years ago, an' they're back an' forrard reckless as ye likes. But I was rakin' some o' the twigs an' stuff an' happened to see the mother come leppin' across the street as they do.

"But 'twas slower; an' when I looked to see why, there was a young one clingin' right to her body, along her breast—with his paws holdin' tight to her an' his head cuddled close under her neck. Over the tracks she came, careful like, an' 'cross the sidewalk an' the grass, an' up that elm forby there, where 'twas afther puttin' new boxes they were last week. An' there she left him, an' back, quicker'n I could be afther tellin' the story, an' a minute later over the tracks from the east park there she was comin', with a second squir'l baby hangin' on to her for dear life. An' if ye'll believe me, sor, 'twas never a moment she was wastin' till she'd the whole four of 'em safe home in the west park. But what bates me," he added, scratching his grizzled head, "is how she'd the manes to know 'twas too soon for the cars to be runnin' an' that 'twould be safe crossin' with 'em just then an' 'twas not later."

DEVELOP YOUR OWN PERSONALITY

That is the Most Necessary Thing in Life, Says the Aunt of King Alphonso

Infanta Eulalia, aunt of King Alphonso, is the heroine of Paris and everyone is admiring the pluck she showed, when, instead of obeying the command of her royal nephew she brought out her book on divorce several weeks earlier than originally intended and created a sensation in Europe. Letters and telegrams of congratulation are pouring in from every part of Europe and there is not a single copy of the book to be had anywhere for love or money. What is more, King Alphonso, himself, who was one of the first buyers of the book, is said to admire it greatly and to deplore that he is not in a position to give it his personal praise.

When he ordered his aunt to stop publication of her book he had been told by the Catholic clergy, who constitute the power behind the throne in Spain, that the book was of an exceedingly dangerous character, not only because it was immoral but also because it was said to contain scandalous stories concerning members of the royal Spanish family and high personages at Court, which would undermine all respect for the royal house among the people of Spain and probably result in a revolution. The Queen Mother was particularly anxious to stop its publication and it was she who finally persuaded the king to send the now famous telegram, which called forth the Infanta's spirited reply.

In an interview the Infanta said: "First of all let me tell you that I bear no grudge against my royal nephew King Alfonso, who is charmingly human though brought up in court surroundings which I despise. He and I have always been the best of friends. Knowing him as I do, I can assure you that he would have been the last person to act as he did of his own free will. We poor people of royal birth are allowed so few human pleasures, and are tied down by so many restrictions, that our chances of happiness are very slim. Spending the greater part of my life away from court, I have at least had the opportunity of being permitted to think and I have thought very much of what constitutes happiness and about a year ago the idea came to me to put my thoughts on paper and distribute my book among my personal friends. I was not vain enough to think that it would interest the public, having forgotten that my birth would give it value in their eyes, even though it might not contain a single original thought."

The princess picked up a copy of her book and read with much feeling: "If you pursue happiness in itself, as your only object in life, you will never attain it." She explained that thinking of, and pursuing happiness alone, becomes selfish, and thinks of nothing else, and instead of happiness reaps only disappointment. "Unfortunately, in most cases man does not see clearly the real road that leads to happiness," she went on, "because he tries to find it exclusively only in the immediate and complete satisfaction of his desires, in material or intellectual enjoyment, the value of which he grossly exaggerates. He seeks happiness in things that are superfluous, in luxuries, in the greed for possession. He takes for happiness that which is really only momentary enjoyment, embittered as it inevitably is with fears, dangers and regrets. We can only find our happiness by simplifying our lives."

Her Royal Highness went on to read two unpublished chapters from her manuscript and this part treats of friendship, of domestic life, of other phases and modes of happiness.

"And now I want to say a few words to girls," the princess continued in a very earnest voice. "Tell them not to waste their time trying to learn how to curtsy correctly. I love my own simple life. Nothing gives me greater pleasure than my little home here in the Boulevarde Lannes, facing the Beautiful Bois de Boulonge. I live here quite by myself as seven in the morning. I take a ride on my bicycle in the Bois. I frequently take a ride round the lakes all by myself, and come back with a healthy feeling of pleasure after exercise. I like simple meals and no great fuss about my table. I like to converse with persons of intellect or artistic taste. I love my children and my grandchildren. What is there in that? See, here is the latest photograph of myself and my grandchild. I am there kissing him, the poor little fellow. He had just been crying, and I went over to comfort him, and I was photographed that way."

Eczema 25 Years Cured by "Cuticura"

Mrs. A. B. Renaud Montreal

Leg Like Raw Flesh from Knee Down

"I have been treated by doctors for twenty-five years for a bad case of eczema on my leg. They did their best, but failed to cure it. My own doctor had advised me to have my leg cut off, but I said I would try the Cuticura Remedies first. He said, 'try them if you like but I do not think they will do any good.' At this time my leg was peeled from the knee down, my foot was like a piece of raw flesh and I had to walk on crutches.

"I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment and a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent. After the first two treatments the swelling went down and in two months' use of the Cuticura Remedies my leg was cured and the new skin grown on. The doctor could not believe his own eyes when he saw that Cuticura had cured me and said that he would use Cuticura for his own patients. But for the Cuticura Remedies I might have lost my life. I am truly grateful for the wonderful cure that Cuticura wrought and I always recommend it most highly as a safe and economical cure for skin troubles." (Signed) Mrs. J. B. Renaud, 277 Mentana St., Montreal.

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Ointment have afforded the speediest and most economical treatment for skin and scalp humours. Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. For a liberal sample of each, with 32-p. book, send to Potter D. & C. Corp., 45 Columbus Ave., Boston, U. S. A.

SNATCHES HIS WALLET

A Parisian Bank Messenger Lost $8,000 of His Cash.

A seventy-year-old bank messenger carrying $14,000 was attacked in broad daylight outside the bank of France at St. Denis, by two men, who snatched his wallet and ran off. The messenger, however, had placed $8,000 of the money in an inside pocket of his coat, so that only $6,000 was stolen. A coachman who had witnessed the attack whipped up his horses and gave chase, shouting, "Stop thief!" A large crowd, including a number of policemen, joined in the hue-and-cry and the thieves seeing that the men were gaining on them turned and fired several revolver shots at their pursuers. They managed to throw the wallet and its contents down a drain before they were captured.

TAXATION IN QUEBEC

Religious Institutions Must Pay, Unless Educational or Charitable

The city of Quebec will in the future assess and tax all religious institutions which are neither educational nor charitable institutions. In spite of the fact that the law, since half a century, did not exempt from taxation this kind of religious institutions, have always been exempted. Mayor Drouin promised that the law would be applied to all. The city assessors had stated before the aldermen that, two years ago, they were instructed to assess the religious institutions which were carrying on laundry and printing business in that part of the bluilding where they were carrying on business, and when he suggested to some of them that they should pay taxes on those departments, they were informed by them that the law exempted them from taxes. And things remained as they were. In the future laundry and printing or printing shops run by religious orders shall pay taxes in order to be on equal footing with the other similar industries with which they compete. This innovation, which will surely be fought before the courts, would mean an increase of over $10,000 on the city's annual revenue from taxation.

PLAYED THE ROLE OF LIVING CORPSE

Details of a Career Spent in a Series of Amazing Frauds on Insurance Companies

A man named Poplavsky, the son of a lieutenant, was arrested at St. Petersburg, for perpetrating a series of the most amazing frauds on insurance companies. His exploits consisted in assuming successive personalities, and for years Poplavsky made the role of a "living corpse" his own. The details of his career are almost unprecedented in criminal records.

In 1898 Poplavsky first appeared at St. Petersburg and changed his identity. In the house where he was staying there died a two-year-old boy named Fediuin, the child of a military officer. Poplavsky got possession of the child's baptismal certificate, altered the age two to thirty-two, and sending the certificate to the place of issue obtained a new passport in the name of Fediuin, thirty-two years of age.

As Poplavsky he insured his life for $7,500 in the Urban Assurance Company and as Fediuin for $17,500 in the New York Life assurance Company. A year later he went to Priloff (171 miles away)- with an old schoolfellow who was ill, and whom he inscribed in the local registers as Poplavsky. He himself masqueraded as Fediuin. In a few days "Poplavsky" died and "Fediuin," armed with the death certificate and other necessary documents, obtained from the Urban Company $7,500. But he had still to obtain the $17,500 form the New York Life Assurance Company. This he succeeded in doing by getting hold of the death certificate of the boy Fediuin and making a few "alterations" in it.

He was now dead in two characters and had to find a fresh identity. So he went to Marva (106 miles from St. Petersburg) and posed as M. B. Kunitzky, a timber merchant doing business on a vast scale. Under this name he insured his life for $17,500. He picked up at St. Petersburg the acquaintance of a man who was dangerously ill, and whom, under pretext of charity, he took with him to Starya, Russia. He registered the patient as Kunitzky and used the sick man's passport for himself. When Kunitzky died Poplavsky in due course received $175000

When Poplavsky's funds were exhausted he married a peasant woman and insured her life for $7,500, and going to a hospital took out a female patient whom he described as his wife. The woman died very soon and he received the insurance money. Emboldened by his success, he planned another venture of the kind. He visited Helsingfors, Finland, and insured his life for $7,500, subsequently returning to St. Petersburg and making inquiries for an invalid. By this time, however, the motives of his affected philanthropy had excited the suspicion of the police, his career was investigated, and he was arrested.

The prisoner made no attempt to deny his guilt, and answered the questions addressed to him in the jauntiest manner. When the chief of the detective department asked him what led him to the paths of crime, he replied that no other career was open nowadays to any decent man.

CHAPPED HANDS & COLD SORES

One thorough application of Zam-Buk at night will bring ease by morning. Zam-Buk stops the smarting, heals the cracks, and makes the hands smooth.

PROOF.—Miss Hattie Bertrand, Galesburg, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with chapped hands and arms and nothing ever seemed to heal them thoroughly until we found Zam-Buk. It has cured them. My father has also used it for several skin troubles and injuries, and thinks there is nothing like Zam-Buk."

Mothers should see that their children use Zam-Buk daily, as there is nothing like prevention. A little Zam-Buk lightly smeared over the hands and wrists, after washing, will prevent chaps and cold sores.

Zam-Buk is also a sure cure for skin diseases, eczema, itch, ringworm, blood-poisoning, piles, and for cuts, burns and bruises. 50c box on all stores and druggists, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful substitutes and imitations.

TERRIBLE HEADACHES

Trouble Wondered Advice To Despair By The Pain.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" CURED HIM

TRENTON, Ont., Jan. 29th, 1909.

"I was a dreadful sufferer for many years from Stomach and Liver Trouble—but my greatest suffering was from violent headaches. They were so distressing that I almost had to give up my business. I went to Toronto, consulted specialists and wore glasses, but nothing did me any good and the headaches became intolerable.

I was then induced to try "Fruit-a-tives" and from the beginning, I was better, and in a short time I was quite well again—no more headaches—and I threw my glasses away.

"Fruit-a-tives" not only cured my headaches, but completely cured me of all indigestion, and restored me to perfect health again." W. J. McCOMB.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest cure for headache in the world and is the only medicine made of fruit juices.

"Fruit-a-tives" will always cure Headaches, Indigestion and all Stomach and Bowel Troubles. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

WAR AGAINST HOME RULE.

One of the Most Prominent Liberals in Wales Shows Resentment.

London, Jan. 3.—Sir Edward Carson is leading the Unionist party's vigorous campaign against Irish home rule. Generally, his argument is: "Ireland is prospering; leave her alone." The possibility of religious intolerance is also emphasized.

Sir Clifford Cory, one of the great coal and shipping barons of Wales, a stalwart Liberal, has resigned the presidency of the Cardiff Liberal Association because the committee invited Mr. John Redmond to the city to address a meeting on home rule, and has reminded the Government that he is as strongly opposed to home rule as ever.

Other Nonconformists are in doubt as to whether to throw over their convictions against placing their co-religionists in Ulster under the rule of Catholic Ireland, or the Government, which has promised them a new education bill and disestablishment of the church in Wales.

The alleged weakening in the demand by the people of Ireland for home rule, as a result of increasing prosperity, is another string that the Unionists have to play in England. So little do the people want it, say the Unionists, that they will not contribute to the funds of the Nationalists, who are now dependent on "American dollars" for support.

Found His Freedom.

Paris, Jan. 3.—Gen. Messimy, Minister of War, has forbidden Capt. Lux, who recently escaped from the fortress of Graetz, in Prussia, where he was serving a term of six years' imprisonment for spying out German military secrets, to accept a projected newspaper subscription designed to make him a presentation as a gift from the people of France. The French Minister of War wishes the matter to be forgotten, as continued reference to it might unnecessarily inflame German opinion.

Public opinion in France is elated over Capt. Lux's audacity and ingenuity. It is now established that his flight from the fortress prison was carefully planned by his brother officers in France. They forwarded to Capt. Lux various works on the "Life of Napoleon." These were heavily bound in leather and the covers concealed several thin but powerful files, with which he eventually sawed his way through the prison bars to freedom. Capt. Lux was informed of the scheme for his release by marked letters in the books and phrases written in invisible ink.

Dickens' Son Dead.

New York, Jan. 3.—Alfred Tennyson Dickens, eldest surviving son of Charles Dickens, the novelist, died suddenly of acute indigestion at the Hotel Astor here late yesterday. Mr. Dickens was in this country on a lecture tour.

Mr. Dickens was a godson of the late Alfred Tennyson, poet laureate of England. He was in his 67th year.

Mr. Dickens, who has spent the greater part of his life in Australia, going there at the age of 20, arrived in this country on Sept. 29, landing at Boston. He rested there for ten days because of a slight indisposition before beginning his lecture tour, which he opened at Lowell, Mass., on October 9.

The lecturer reached New York last week, spent Sunday with cousins in Pelham, N.Y., and was on his way to attend the theatre Monday night when taken ill.

Opposes U. S. Preference.

London, Jan. 3.—The Morning Post has started a strong agitation against the reported proposal of the United States Government to grant preference to American shipping in the Panama Canal. It devotes three columns and a long editorial this morning to that subject. It declares that such discrimination would be a violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty and says:

"By no sophistry can the American Government pretend that it is not bound by the terms of the treaty. An evasion of the obligation into which it entered would prove to the world that its pledges are meaningless."

Annuities Branch Transferred.

Ottawa, Jan. 3.—The annuities branch of the Trade and Commerce Department is to-day doing business under the control of the Postoffice Department, and hereafter will be administered by that Department. The plans for the new campaign have not yet been matured, but it is probable that an official announcement will be shortly issued by Hon. Mr. Pelletier for general distribution.

Three weeks now till the mosquito,
Thanks to autumn's sharp commando,
Sits around upon the screenier
Softly blowing on his hands.
—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The customs official who was making the count of persons boarding the excursion boat raised his hand.

"Only one more," he called.

"Leave us two kids through!" yelled two small boys lustily.

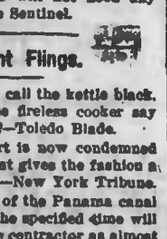
Strong Healthy Women



If a woman is strong and healthy in a womanly way, motherhood means to her but little suffering. The trouble lies in the fact that the many women suffer from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism and are unfitted for motherhood. This can be remedied.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Cures the weaknesses and disorders of women. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in motherhood, making them healthy, strong, vigorous, virile and elastic.

"Favorite Prescription" banishes the indispositions of the period of expectancy and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It quickens and vitalizes the feminine organs, and insures a healthy and robust baby. Thousands of women have testified to its marvelous merits.

It Makes Weak Women Strong. It Makes Sick Women Well.

Honest druggists do not offer substitutes; and urge them you to "just as good." Accept no secret nostrum in place of this well-known remedy. It contains not a drop of alcohol and not a grain of habit-forming or injurious drugs. Is a pure glyceric extract of healing, native American roots.

MARKET REPORTS.

Russell Motor Cars

The following letter is one of many constantly being received from satisfied owners of the Russell car:

Respectfully submitted:

RUSSELL MOTOR CAR CO.,
Hamilton, Ont.

DEAR SIRS:

I had delivery of your Model R, five passenger car, a short time ago and I have given it a fairly good trial and I wish to say that I am delighted with it in every way.

You know I had a 1909 model of the same car in use until now and it gave me very good satisfaction. Your 1911 model is improved in many ways, running smoother, more noiseless and easier in operation.

You know I have had considerable experience with several makes of cars and I believe your 1911 model is the best car to-day for the money.

You are quite at liberty to make whatever use you desire of this letter.

Your very truly,

(Signed) S. D. SIGGAR.

Writer in Paris Figaro Says the Christians Are the Greatest Assassins of All—A Startling Arraignment

ARE LIKE HYENAS

Special to The Examiner.

PARIS, JAN. 3.—The Christians are the greatest assassins of all, going round with words of fraternity and equality on their lips, but destroying with shot and fire the nations of Africa and Asia, and treating the men of yellow and brown races like cattle". This is the crushing arraignment of European and ultra civilized nations, which appears in the Figaro this morning, from the pen of the famous writer Pierre Loti. The article especially attacks Italy's seizure of Tripoli, and says it is the manifestation of so-called civilization, which looks on tranquilly at massacre, war, and the spilling of innocent blood. It declares European powers are like hyenas, waiting to fill their stomachs with maimed and dying nations. It is time for the Christian world to cease from human butchery.

FEW CASES OF POVERTY IN CITY

Despite the fact that the mercury has been hovering around the zero mark for several days past, there have been no cases of severe suffering reported to the City Relief Officer. Mr. Miller stated to the Examiner this morning, that apart from the increased demand for fuel among the cases already reported, there had been no cases of destitution or suffering from the cold snap.

There are a number of families at present under the care of the Relief Officer, the trouble in most cases being traced to sickness, desertion or incapability of the bread-winner of the family to meet the wants of a large family of small children.

Mr. Miller states that he does not anticipate a hard winter on the charity department of the city. The mildness of the winter so far is largely responsible for these desirable conditions.

A NEW MEMBER OF LAW FIRM

Mr. V. J. McElderry, barrister, of Guelph, son of J. E. McElderry, Esq., Manager of the Guelph and Ontario Investment and Savings Society, has been admitted to membership in the old established Legal Firm of Dennistoun, Peck and Kerr.

Mr. McElderry comes to Peterborough with high recommendations, and will be generally welcomed by our citizens.

The firm will now be composed of Mr. E. A. Peck, M.P.P., for West Peterborough; Mr. F. D. Kerr and Mr. McElderry, and will be known as Peck, Kerr and McElderry, and their offices will be as at present, at No. 415 Water street.

KNOX CHURCH NOTICES.

To-night at 8 p.m., services will be held in the following homes: Mrs. Reid's, 310 Maitland Ave.; Mr. Grant's, 585 Bolivar street; Mr. I. Huffman's, Sherbrooke street; Mr. S. Stinson's, Chamberlain street; Mr. I. Feir's, 84 Aylmer street, Mr. J. Tully, 275 Westcott street; Mr. J. P. Ego, 93 Gladstone St.; Mr. J. F. Morrison's, 270 Reid street.

TREAT FOR THE KIDDIES

St. George's Society is Arranging a Big Time for English Youngsters in Morbet Hall To-morrow

A CORDIAL WELCOME

During the year just ended the St. George's Society has made very rapid strides in Peterborough. Starting in April of 1911, in a very humble way, it has now assumed large proportions, and the amount of good already done by the Society has been very great, many families having been relieved from the funds when misfortune has overtaken them.

Under the auspices of the Society, a very successful social evening was spent on Christmas day, when all the old Christmas customs of the Old Country were reproduced to the satisfaction of the audience present.

Following this a children's treat is now in progress. This is to take place in the market hall on Thursday afternoon, January 4th, at 5.30, when every English child under 14 years of age in the city, will be made welcome. Details have been left in the capable hands of a committee of the ladies, who have each done their best to help make it a success.

The market hall has been secured for the event, and the little folks are looking forward with pleasure to the grand time they will have. Tea will be served and there will be a present for every child from the tree.

The Society wants every English child in Peterborough to have a good time.

Assessment By-laws Defeated in Lindsay

LINDSAY, JAN. 3.—The report that a by-law fixing the assessment on the Horn Bros.' woollen mills of Lindsay, Ont., had carried is not correct, as the by-law was defeated. In the year 1910 this firm entered into an agreement with the Council to fix their assessment for ten years at $13,000, the valuation of the plant at that time. Forthwith they increased the capacity of their plant over threefold, and the number of employees from forty to one hundred and twenty. It subsequently transpired that the fixed assessment was illegal without the consent of the ratepayers, which it was expected would have been readily given, as very liberal inducements are being offered to manufacturing firms to locate here. The Flavelles, Limited, fixed assessment by-law was also turned down by the ratepayers.

BADLY BURNED ABOUT FACE

Mr. Newberry was severely burned about the face at the Seymour Power Company's plant yesterday. Bellegham's private ambulance was notified and was soon on the scene. The injured man, who is an employee of the Seymour Power Company, was conveyed to the Nicholls Hospital, and his injuries attended to by Dr. Eastwood.

Enquiries at the hospital this afternoon elicited the fact that the victim was doing as well as could be expected.

Silver Wedding Was Celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Cameron of Otonabee, celebrated their silver wedding on Friday, Dec. 28, the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage being observed by the gathering of some thirty relatives. The event was a most enjoyable one, the time being most pleasantly spent in music and other amusements. Mr. and Mrs. Cameron, in addition to being overwhelmed with congratulations, received a number of handsome and appropriate presents as souvenirs of the occasion. A delightful dinner was served and ample justice was done to the good things by the gathering. Mr. Cameron had not been in the best of health for the past two years and his friends were delighted to see the improvement in his condition and the interest he displayed in the festivities.

When you want a reliable medicine for a cough or cold take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It can always be depended upon and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all dealers.

TOTAL ABSTINENCE SOCIETY GRANTED AN EXEMPTION

Will Not Have to Pay Taxes on St. Alphonsus Lyceum on Simcoe St.—Judge Huycke Has Rendered Decision in a Most Interesting Case.

His Honour Judge Huycke has rendered the following most important decision::

Re St. Alphonsus Lyceum vs. City of Peterborough assessment appeals.

These two appeals are both between the same parties, and argued by consent at same time and by same counsel. They both are in regard to the same property, but one is as to the assessment for 1911, made in 1910; the other as to the assessment for 1912, made in 1911. They come before me in different form, however.

In the first case the assessment was made and confirmed by the Court of Revision. No appeal was taken, therefore, in the specified time. The tax roll was made out and the appellants paid the taxes under protest. They then made an appeal to the Court of Revision, under Section 112 of the Assessment Act, 4 Ed. VII., Cap. 23. Their request was refused and they now appeal to me.

In the second case the appeal comes regularly and in time, and is a straight appeal to me from the Court of Revision of the City, confirming the assessment of appellant for 1912, the appeal being regularly launched. The property in question is a block on Simcoe street, Peterborough, known as St. Alphonsus Lyceum, the last word, to some extent, a misnomer, for it does not appear to be a Lyceum in the strict sense of the term. The property is owned by the R. C. Episcopal Corporation for the Diocese of Peterborough, and its operations directed and controlled by the Bishop and clergy resident in the city, or more particularly those connected with St. Peters' Cathedral. It is not on the same block or grounds as the Cathedral, or physically connected with it in any way; it records its name, Alphonsus, from the present Lord Bishop of Peterborough, being named after him.

The building is used for every purpose, more or less, closely connected with the operations of the church. Sunday school and Catechism classes, are held and taught there every Sunday, and sermons and lectures on sacred and religious subjects delivered there on Sunday afternoon. Lectures, ladies' debates, concerts, and various other entertainments are given and held there, as may be convenient, during week days, but all such under the oversight and direction of the church.

It is used, too, as the headquarters of the St. Peter's T. A. S., a temperance organization (Catholic) of over 1000 members; this, too, under the guidance of the church.

A young ladies' society also has its headquarters and meetings there, but it, too, is an association of the church, and operated and directed by it. There is also a library opened to all the members of the societies, with reading rooms, recreation rooms, etc., attached instruction is given here on some subjects, sacred and secular, but all either by, or under the direction of the church. The activities carried on here are much the same as are found in modern days, in what is known as an institutional church. It should also be mentioned that the C. M. B. A. and A. O. H. societies have the privilege of holding their meetings there, and for this privilege pay to the church $160 per annum. The building is, as stated, owned by the church, and supported by the membership fees, and voluntary offerings for the use of the rooms, or building, in any way, and partially by the church itself, i.e., St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterborough; but is totally and wholly managed and directed by the church or its authorities. The church has assumed all liabilities and obligations of the building, and to various activities, spiritual and financial. Such being the facts, what is the legal aspect of the case or cases before me?

First, as to the first appeal for the year, 1911, under Section 112, 4 Col. VII. Cap. 23, it was admitted on argument that only under that section, if at all, could relief be given to that case, and I think that this appeal must fail. Is it not a case of vacancy of buildings, or poverty of the occupant, nor is it a case under Section 51, where land assessed by the assessor, as placed on the roll by the clerk. If applicable at all, it must be as "a person who by reason of any gross or manifest error in the roll, has been overcharged."

I fail to see how this can apply: It is not a case of overcharge at all. The assessment should stand or fall as a whole, and if i not contended the assessment is too high provided there should be an assessment at all: this section has been amended, in 1910, but not as to effect this question. The appellants lost their right to relief if they had such, by failure to appeal regularly and properly from the assessment, and decision of the Court of Revision in time.

Second, as to the appeal for the year 1912, this case is regular and before me properly, and in time, so I deal with it squarely on the facts, as directed by the statutes. The sole question for determination is whether or not the question is exempt from taxation, either as (a) "place of worship, under 4 Ed. VII. Cap. 23, section 5, 238 (b) "Public Library, under 4 Ed. VII. Cap. 23, Section 13, or (c) "Seminary of Learning," under 10 Ed. VII. Cap. 88, Section 1 S.S. 3, which provides for the exemption of taxation of the buildings and grounds of and attached to or otherwise benefited, used in connection with and for the purpose of every seminary of learning, maintained by philanthropic, religious, or educational purposes. The whole profits from which are denoted or applied to such purposes only, but such grounds and buildings shall be exempt only while actually used and occupied by such seminary." "If a place of wrship" is exempt I do not think the location matters, whether or not physically connected with the church. St. Peters

The services and classes held there in the building in question on Sundays are, in my judgment, "worship" and sacred services. While many of the week-day and week-night services also partake strongly of that nature, quite as much, I think as these frequently held in schools and lecture rooms of other churches attached or not to the church building, and by common consent, exempted. But this I do not think could be strictly applied to the whole of the building, but to parts of it only, if possible, to divide it up for assessment purposes. What then about the other parts? I do not think it is a "public library" in such a sense as under the decisions makes it exempt. That ground must fail. I think, however, that the balance, or even indeed the whole of the building, comes under the heading of seminary of learning, as defined in above section. "Seminary" is a word of elastic meaning. Literally it is a seeding place or a place where seeds of knowledge and growth, mental, moral and physical, are planted. It need not be a school of teaching simply and only. Many of us think there are other things equally good, indeed better, than a question of knowledge alone. I think we may reasonably call this "place of worship" and "seminary" combined. Most certainly its purposes are philanthropic, religious and educational, or, perhaps, more strictly speaking, all combined. I think, too, I can combine them for the purpose of construing the statute. I am not materially assisted by any decided or reported cases. None I have seen apply directly or exactly. Each such case must depend on the individual facts. I think, on the whole, this property exempt from taxation and the appeal succeeds as to 1912 roll. The order will be accordingly. Success being divided, there will be no costs of either appeal.

E. S. HUYCKE, Judge.

OVERHAUL THE HARNESS

It would be well to thoroughly overhaul the harness two or three times a year, and have any breakages attended to at once.

Brown harness is more durable than black. The former leather is in its natural state, except for tanning, while the black had been subjected to certain chemicals in dyeing it, which remove much of the natural grease and leave the leather hard and dry. Oil could be applied, but will not fully restore the flexibility and wear-resisting qualities. To clean black harness it should be taken to pieces and washed with warm water and soft soap, using a brush and plenty of "elbow grease."

Hang the harness up to let the water drain off (not in the sun), and when dry apply on the inside of the various straps and parts a thin coating of neatsfoot oil. On the outside use some prepared harness-dressing. Apply lightly with a sponge and a brilliant and glossy appearance will result.

For dray or waggon harness refined neatsfoot oil is a most useful preservative. In all cases the harness must be well washed and dried before the oil or dressing is applied.

On no account allow the oil to remain on the surface of the leather or it will pick up the dust and make a thick greasy coating on the outside of the harness. Just put on sufficient to penetrate.

AND HE FELT SEEDY, TOO

A young professor in an Eastern college is said to have had his bachelor apartments done over in a shade of pink most becoming to his brunette complexion, his shining black hair and mustache, and his brilliant black eyes. Not long afterward he was taken ill, and called one of his college classmates, a rising young doctor, to attend him.

As the medical friend opened the door, he spied the sleek black head of his patient tucked away under a canopy of pink silk, a pink eiderdown coverlid, bound in white satin ribbon of the same shade, drawn up to his chin.

"Huh, Chub," snorted the doctor, with a masculine intolerance of anything approaching effeminacy, "you look for all the world like a watermelon seed!"—Youth's Companion.

PLANT NOT TO BE MOVED

Peterborough Light and Power Co. Are Making Repairs to the Present Gas Works on Simcoe Street East

CHANGE WAS RUMOURED

The Peterborough Light and Power Co. have begun the work of rebuilding their gas plant on Simcoe street. The old wooden structure is being torn down and the injuries to the brick part are being repaired. The boiler room is almost completed and the inside part of the main building adjoining the boiler room, is nearing completion. An Examiner reporter paid a visit to the plant this morning, and was informed by the foreman that the work would be rushed. "There was some talk of the whole establishment being moved to the outside of the city, was there not?" queried the reporter. "Yes; there was considerable talk of that," answered the foreman, "but it was the citizens that were doing all the talking, and not the Company. At present, they have not the slightest idea of moving it, as far as I am informed. It would mean the expenditure of a very large sum of money to move and reconstruct the plant." He was of the opinion that it was all needless anxiety that troubled the people.

THE CONTEST IN ENNISMORE

The result of the election for Reeve for the Township of Ennismore, is as follows:

Samuel Killen	112
John Young	85
Majority for Mr. Killen	27

It was the most determined election ever contested in Ennismore.

TOBOGGAN SLIDE OPENS TO-NIGHT

The toboggan slides at Jackson Park will be in operation for the first time this evening. The new improvements which have been added, and their popularity in the past, should place them in the front rank of winter sports, for the sport-loving people of Peterborough.

ALFRED DICKENS WAS TO HAVE LECTURED HERE

The sudden death, in New York, of Alfred Tennyson Dickens, aside from the tragic character of the happening, represents a great loss to the people of Peterborough. Mr. Dickens came to this continent to deliver a series of lectures upon his immortal father, Charles Dickens.

He had been engaged by Mr. Gliddon to deliver a lecture in the hall of the Conservatory of Music on February 16th.

This year is the centenary of the birth of Charles Dickens, and his eldest son's visit to America, was in connection with this centenary, which will be celebrated wherever the English tongue is spoken. Dickens dies suddenly; his son dies suddenly; but his works will never die while humanity is humanity, and thrills with the spirit of the words of the most human writer the world has ever known.

G.T.R. FLAGMAN INJURED

(Lindsay Warder)

On Monday night Mr. Dan Curtin flag man on the G. T. R. crossing at Lindsay street, received painful injuries to his body and was severely cut about the head and face in attempting to stop a team which was about to pass over the tracks.

The men in the rig were, to all appearance, under the influence of liquor, and heeded not the flagman's warning, but rushed onward, knocking Mr. Curtin down and driving over him.

The party drove off at a rapid pace, not waiting to ascertain the extent of his injuries. He was driven to his home by Mr. John Meehan, and a physician summoned, who pronounced his case a critical one.

Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 3, 1912

POWER IS NOT ALL.

A great many persons seem to think that the passage of the Hydro-Electric power by-law is an end; whereas, it is only a means to an end. There are many things to be done before Peterborough will realise dividends upon the big vote polled in favour of the by-law on Monday. We have to go through the process of application of the power the by-law confers, and when we shall have power brought to our doors at cost, the real problem appears. If we get four or five thousand horse power at cost, what shall we do with it? If we cannot make profitable use of it, it becomes the fifth wheel to a wagon. This calls for the adoption of a more energetic campaign to attract new industries to Peterborough. We cannot expect to sell power to our present largest power using industries, for they are independent; they have power of their own, beyond their present needs, and sufficient for much greater use as expansion comes. It therefore becomes necessary for our City Council, our Board of Trade, and our citizens prominently interested in industrial development, to project and apply an energetic scheme to place new industries in the city. Much will depend upon being early in the field, in our ability to offer the inducements represented by cheap power. We should be able to put a very strong bid for new industries. To our exceptional railway facilities of transportation, is to be added at no very distant date the very important advantage of water transportation through completion of the Trent Canal. It therefore becomes the duty of the City Council, Board of Trade and other interests, to take on an activity that has not heretofore been shown in the direction of making electric power, when we shall get it, of real advantage, in the development of the city and, and not an undemanded commodity.

THE TEMPERANCE MOVEMENT.

The results of the voting on Jan. 1st in many municipalities tends to show that temperance sentiment in the province of Ontario is not a cyclical, temporary sentiment, but an enduring and permanent influence in our social and political life. According to the latest reports, there were on Monday in local prohibition contests, majorities in sixteen municipalities, and adverse majorities in thirteen; but in nine of the sixteen, the measure was defeated by the unjust three-fifths clause, so that local option failed in seven of the municipalities that had declared by a substantial majority vote in its favour. All the repeal contests were defeated without the help of the three-fifth clause. This is additional evidence of the unjust nature of the three-fifths restriction. In spite of this, however, there is evidence that the day of the open bar is rapidly passing. The antipathy to strong drink, and the evils that accompany its intemperate use, is no longer confined to mere moral sentiment; it has taken on an economic aspect. Sobriety has become a necessary element in the assets of a man employed in any position of trust. Railway corporations, especially, have done much to extinguish intemperate practices, by making sobriety a condition of continued employment. One of the chief obstructive causes of the slower progress of the cause of temperance, is its entanglement with politics and the practical hostility of the governing powers. The three-fifths clause in local prohibition contests is evidence that the present Ontario government is not any too friendly to temperance reform, and its lax administration of the license laws, and its dealing with the liquor traffic in New Ontario are further evidence of its desire to stand well with the traffic interests.

The late Ross government made the prohibition of the liquor traffic in Northern Ontario a part of its policy. Under the present government, the traffic in its most offensive and evil form, the illicit form, seems to be firmly entrenched in the northern part of the province and without any apparent efforts in the way of preventive measures. The most that is done, is by periodical raids on unlawful places and fines, to make the traffic contributory to the success of the government's evident policy of making New Ontario a producer of revenue, instead of an object of legitimate developmental enterprise.

There is now hope of making opposition to the temperance movement permanently successful. It is bound to make advance. All the forces it takes contribute to the eventual "banishment of the bar." The presence in a city like Peterborough, of total abstinence societies, with a membership of fifteen hundred, enrolled by a country entirely under local option, is evidence that the drink habit has lost caste, lost social tolerance, as it has lost all claims to moral or economic tolerance. The most effective aid to its progress will be found in the harmonious adjustment of the temperance cause to political influences. When the temperance people learn to subject their political activities to their temperance sentiments, to "vote as they pray" then, and not till then, will governments pay heed to the demands of the strong temperance sentiment, that undeniably exists, though its exercise and expression are subject to limitations arising from political complication.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Hon. Col. Hughes says if he is given an army of a million men who can hit the bulls' eye at 500 yards no foreign foe will ever set foot in Canada. Doubtless. But who, asks the Farmer's Sun, is to hoe the corn and milk the cows while this army is in the field? And where is the enemy that is to supply the targets?

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is announced to speak at the inaugural demonstration of the Young Liberal Club of Montreal, on Jan. 8th. It is expected that Sir Wilfrid's address will be an important one and will set forth his ideas as to the policy of the Liberal party in the matters of trade and defence.

The figures of the relation of typhoid prevalence and impure water for human consumption, are not creditable to Canada, one of the best watered countries in the world. In Scotland, the death rate from typhoid is 6.2 per hundred thousand; Germany's 7.6; England and Wales, 11.2. In Canada the death rate from typhoid is 35.5 per hundred thousand, and in the United States it is 46.

Ottawa, has voted for secession from Confederation. On Monday a by-law in favour of erecting Ottawa into an independent federal district was carried by a very large majority. When this becomes effective, Ottawa will be a place apart—a law unto itself—secure from the interference of Ontario legislators, with no dread of unexpected strict enforcement of the license law depriving it of its beer.

The dismissals from the public service have taken place, says the Winnipeg Tribune, (independent with a strong Conservative list), not because of incompetency or active electioneering, but because the government is going to find places for its friends by hook or by crook, and the most of the finding has been done by crook. Mr. Borden has sold the whole government patronage to his political friends and mostly to his Nationalist allies. They dictated to him in his Cabinet and also his Cabinet's policy. He is wholly in the hands of a group of political sharks and unscrupulous office-seekers. His clean government advocacy went overboard wrapped up in the British flag when the Nationalist mutineers seized command of the Canadian ship of state.

THE LATEST GOOD ROADS SCHEME.

(Weekly Sun.)

The proposal to have the Dominion Government participate in rural road improvement in the several Provinces is one that should not be finally decided on without full consideration of all the difficulties to be met with in carrying the proposal into effect.

One of these difficulties will be found in the division of authority. Federal, Provincial, and Municipal authorities will all demand a voice in spending the money. Is there not certain to be waste where there is such a multiplication of authorities in control and with one party in power at Ottawa, another in power in some of the Provinces, and with more or less of partisanship in municipal councils?

Then, when the roads are built, the question of who owns them will be certain to arise. The scheme in view appears to contemplate the building of trunk lines hundreds of miles in length. No farmer wants to drive a hundred miles. His longest haul, save in the pioneer sections, is seldom over ten miles. This trunk scheme of highways looks like a device to tax the whole people for the making of speedways for motors, and in the end, if the roads are built, it will be found that no horse, unless so blind it cannot see, and so badly blemished it cannot run, will be safe upon them.

SEED COMMISSIONER'S REPORT.

An interesting Government publication has been issued in the report of the Seed Commissioner for the period from January, 1906, to March, 1911. The report contains an historical record of the work of the seed branch since its organization under a Seed Commissioner in 1906, and a brief review of the work in seed improvement done previous to that time by the Seed Division under the direction of the Commissioner of Agriculture and Dairying.

Since the Seed Branch was organized on its present basis its work has been prosecuted along two main lines—commercial and educational. The commercial work entails the enforcement of the Seed Control Act, the inspection of seeds and seed crops, seed testing, seed trade investigation and the distribution of reference collections of economic seeds. Among the subjects investigated and reported upon are the vitality of field and garden seeds, weed seeds in feeding stuffs the influence of age on the vitality of seeds, and the production of Canadian grown root and vegetable seeds. The educational work includes the various means adopted for stimulating interest in the production and use of better seeds. A vigorous propaganda has been maintained for that purpose through organising and assisting in conducting local seed fairs, provincial seed exhibitions, field crop competitions, seed judging classes, giving assistance to the Canadian Seed Growers' Association. The report outlines what has been done along these various lines.

From the standpoint of the farmer, the most valuable and interesting part of the report is the large section devoted to the evolution of the legislation respecting the inspection and sale of seeds in Canada up to the Seed Control Act of 1911 and the work connected with its enforcement. The regulations at present in force are clearly outlined and the standards of quality in respect to weed seed content for the four grades of timothy, red clover, alsike and alfalfa seed are graphically illustrated. The weeds classed as noxious under the Act, numbering about 25, are illustrated, and described, as well as about 75 other weeds of minor importance. The illustrations of the plants and seeds and the descriptive matter are largely taken from "Farm Weeds," the book with full page coloured illustrations published by the Department in 1909 and now sold at $1 per copy. This report may be had on application to the Seed Commissioner, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

ANNUAL MEETING OF LADIES' AID

The annual meeting of the Ladies Aid Society of the George Street Methodist church was held yesterday afternoon, with a good attendance. After the election of officers and the transaction of the regular business refreshments were served and a pleasant social time spent. The reports presented indicated a very successful year. The following officers were elected:

President—Mrs. A. W. Cressman.
First Vice-President — Mrs. John Rothwell.
Second Vice-President—Mrs. Geo. Elliott.
Secretary—Mrs. B. Shortly.
Treasurer—Mrs. S. A. Oke.

LOST VITALITY

Caused by Kidney, Stomach and Bowel Disorders

St. John, N.B., September 18th, 1911. —My brother was a great sufferer from kidney, stomach and bowel troubles and was given up by two doctors. He was advised to try your Fig Pills, which he did, and after taking five boxes was completely restored to health and is better to-day than he has been for years. You can't recommend Fig Pills too highly.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS AT OMEMEE

Only Four Votes Separated the Four Members of the Council —Reeve Mulligan Returned by Acclamation.

OTHER OMEMEE NEWS

OMEMEE, JAN. 2.—The municipal elections in the Village and in the Township were quite exciting. The contest in Omemee, especially, was a very lively one. The results are as follows:

Omemee—Reeve, R. J. Mulligan, re-elected by acclamation. Councillors elected, R. Carey, 84; Edmond Jamieson, 83; John A. Courtney, 83; John Sanderson, 81. The defeated candidates were: Dr. Sutton, 74; A. Scott 74, and Jas. Bushnell, 74.

The by-law for a free library was defeated by 51 for and 89 against.

Mr. David Rea, who had been ill for the past two years, passed quietly and peacefully away on Sunday noon. Mr. Rea was a highly respected citizen of Omemee, having moved into the village, from the farm, about a year ago. He leaves a widow and three little children. His remains will be interred in Emily cemetery on Wednesday, Jan. 3.

The New Year's concert given by the Presbyterian Church in Coronation Hall, Monday evening, was a decided success. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Currie, occupied the chair; Miss Lottie Post presided at the piano, with marked ability. The Misses Wilson and Ingram and Messrs. Brown and Weir received a hearty encore. Miss Alice Strong of Markham, gave a number of recitations, which were well received, and responded to encores. Mr. Gordon Wright of Peterborough, and Mr. Weir sang solos very acceptably, and received encores. Rev. R. Burns gave a short address. The principal artist was Mr. Emory of Toronto, who gave a number of comic songs and recitations. He was repeatedly called back and delighted the audiences with his responses.

John C. Eaton and wife, with their children, Timothy, Craig and John David, and Arthur McCrea and wife, enjoyed New Years at the old home, "Tully Lark".

Miss Keel of Toronto, spent New Years in town.

Dr. Sutton and family spent New Years in Toronto.

Miss Amy Adams of Lindsay, was in town last week.

Miss Olive Burns spent New Years in Toronto, the guest of Miss Isobel Harrison.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Currie were in Toronto last week.

On Friday evening Miss Carrie Balfour entertained the members of the L. B. A. C. at her home, when a very enjoyable evening was spent.

Mr. Vernon Turner of Stayner returned home last week, after spending the holidays with his aunt, Mrs. Currie.

Master Archie English of Peterborough, is visiting his aunt, Mrs. H. Murray.

Master Gordon Lamb of Peterborough, spent the vacation with his aunt, Mrs. Morrison.

SEEN AND HEARD

Steve Rowan, the police officer on the shop-house beat, endeared himself to many by his diplomatic discharge of duty. No rough usage for Steve except in a calamitous emergency. The illuminated citizen either was shooed off his territory or sent home in a cab. Small rows were adjusted without recourse to the patrol box.

Thus that part of town held down by Jowan's feet was the most orderly of all, as shown by a comparison of the number of arrests made by downtown patrolmen.

True, Steve was taunted into making an arrest the last night of an old year when a colored boy blew a tin horn in his ear. But this was done partly that his record might show a deference to the lavish conception of duty.

For many years Steve was upheld in his manner of maintaining order, and only during a brief hurly-burly of a police upheaval was he ever transferred. This happened twenty years ago, when he was sent to the Red Bridge on Archey road. There a delegation found him looking at the murky river pensively, and influence was organized in some alarm to get him back to the neighbourhood of Billy Doyle's. This depot of good stanks and radiator of warmth Steve used to enter sideways because of a narrow door-fare he made nightly visits of varying lengths. Should someone come in dripping wet he would go to the door and extend his helmet for the evidence of having been on the job.

At length, being transferred to Mayor Harrison's outer office, Steve showed the same tact that had distinguished him on Clark street. It was a part of his obligation to keep a corridor clear, which a uniformed man might have done brusquely without criticism. Officer Rowan, however, would go to a man who had been leaning against a pillar for an hour and say:

"I've just come from the chief's office, and he tells me that this column will stand without any help."—Chicago Post.

An enormous sign on the outside of the ship declared that never before in the history of man had there been such a reduction in the price of man's clothing. In the window, rows of garments were marked with prices that made the observer wonder how such bargains were possible. A young woman examined them thoughtfully through the plate glass, hesitated a moment and then entered the shop.

"I should like to see some lounging jackets," she explained to the salesman.

"We have some magnificent bargains in lounging jackets, madam," admitted the salesman. He waved her proudly to a pile on the counter.

"The styles don't change much, do they?" asked the young woman.

"Not a bit. The shape early will be worn next season."

"You see," said the young woman, "I'm just looking round for a present for my husband."

"You could hardly give him a better present," said the salesman, sympathetically.

"But I don't know his size," sighed the young woman. "And I think it's just awful to have to exchange a present."

"Very unpleasant," agreed the salesman. "But with a little domestic strategy—now if I were in your place, madam, I'd tell him he is getting fat!" The customer was quite indignant. "He may be a little heavier than he was a year ago—but not fat."

"Of course not," the salesman said hastily. "But if you ask him if he isn't getting fat he'll deny it. See?"

"Of course he'll deny it."

"Well, you persist, and he still denies. Finally you ask him how large he actually is around the chest."

The young woman nodded.

"And he'll tell me his bust measure!" she exclaimed delightedly.

"Exactly! And then, just to make sure, you'll insist on measuring him yourself. Shall I put this coat aside for you, in three sizes, until to-morrow?"

"If you will be so good," said the young woman. "I think the colour of that coat just matches one of his neckties—but when I come in to-morrow I'll bring the necktie with me."—Youth's Companion

The afternoon of the big game between the Giants and the Athletics. Tom, entering the office, found a note from his employer, Mr. Scandeo:

"I am going out—shall return at six-fourteen."

Tom left a note:

"I am going out, too; but you'll never know it, Old-Glue-foot, for I shall return at six-fourteen."

But Tom got caught in a street car block and Mr. Scandeo didn't."—Success.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Looks Like A Grand Game On Friday Night Lindsay Will Be Strong

It sounds like old times to hear that Lindsay will run an excursion to Peterborough for the opening intermediate game of the season here on Friday night. The Scugog fans are sweet on their team this year, and expect their aggregation to come down here and everlastingly wallop the Petes. They will send down a big delegation by special train to see them try to accomplish the feat. Local followers of the game say that's all it will be—a try—but any way you look at it, Friday's game will be a corker. The weather indications are that there will be fast ice, and as both teams are at their best when the going is hard and fast, there should be no complaints on this score. The Peterborough team will have the final workout before the battle to-night and will mix up to-morrow. While not in mid-season form their condition is far more advanced than one would expect, considering the tardy arrival of the ice, and they will be able to go the distance all right, thanks to Physical Director Thompson's efforts at the Y. M. C. A. It looks like one grand opening game and an old-time crowd in attendance.

Line-ups And Captains Are Selected For The Peterboro' Hockey Teams

The executive of the Peterborough Hockey Club met this afternoon and selected the line-ups of the junior team for the game against Cobourg to-morrow night, and the intermediate team for Friday night's game with Lindsay. It should be understood, especially in the case of the juniors, that the executive has had to make a selection without much opportunity of getting a line on the material. Preference has been given, as was stated early in the season, to the men who have turned out for the workouts in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium.

The selection of captains also took place this afternoon. Art Hall, centre of the juniors and the only survivor of last year's Grillers, will captain the juniors, while Maurice Park, centre of the Intermediates, will be at the helm of that team for the season. The line-ups are as follows:

Juniors against Cobourg:
Goal—Dwyer.
Point—Milloy.
Cover—Kenneally.
Rover—Weir.
Centre—Hall, capt.
Right wing—Cook.
Spares—O'Dette, A. Coughlin, Halpin.

All these men are asked to be on hand at 7.15 sharp to-morrow night.

Intermediates vs. Lindsay:
Goal—Derocher.
Point—Bearss.
Cover—Ray or Bond.
Rover—Giroux.
Centre—Park, capt.
Right wing—Coughlin.

Cobourg Juniors Here For Game To-morrow

The Peterborough Junior O. H. A. team had its final practise last night in preparation for to-morrow's O. H. A. game at Brock Street Rink, with the Cobourg Juniors. The Corktown lads, as the speedy bunch of youngsters from the shore of Lake Ontario are known, will be a pretty awkward proposition for the Peterborough aggregation, but the latter are in good shape, and are counting upon starting the season with a win. The game should be well worth seeing, and will undoubtedly attract a big crowd of fans. Followers of the game are always interested in the juniors and they will see a lively exhibition of hockey to-morrow night. Cobourg will be about as strong as last year, and are coming up to-morrow night determined to get revenge for the two defeats Peterborough handed them last season. As will be seen from the lineup of the Petes the local aggregation is a pretty formidable one, although the majority of them are new to the O. H. A. They are in good shape, the training at the Y. M. C. A. having proved beneficial and they should be able to go the route at top speed. If you want to see a well-played game of hockey, between two well-balanced junior teams, do not fail to attend to-morrow night's battle.

SCHEDULE FOR MERCANTILE LEAGUE IS DRAWN UP

At a meeting of the Mercantile Hockey League, held in the Y. M. C. A. last night, the schedule for the season was drawn up. It is understood that all the games scheduled to be played on a night that an O. H. A. or Intermediate game was to be played, will be played on the following night. The games on Monday night, will be played from 10 to 11 and on Saturday night, from 7 to 8. The following is the schedule drawn up:

Jan. 6—Tool Room vs. Lock Works.
Jan. 8—Clerks vs. Machine Shop.
Jan. 13—Lock Works vs. Bell Telephone Co.
Jan. 20—Bell Telephone vs. Machine Shop.
Jan. 22.—Clerks vs. Lock Works.
Jan. 27—Machine Shop vs. Tool Room.
Jan. 29—Bell Telephone vs. Clerks.
Feb. 3—Machine Shop vs. Lock Works.
Feb. 5—Clerks vs. Tool Room.
Feb. 10—Tool Room vs. Bell Telephone.
Feb. 12—Clerks vs. Machine Shop.
Feb. 17—Bell Telephone vs. Lock Co.
eb. 19.—Clerks vs. Tool room.
Feb. 24—Machine vs. Bell Telephone.
Feb. 26—Clerks vs. Lock Works.
March 2—Machine Shop vs. Tool Room.
March 4—Clerks vs. Bell Telephone
March 9—Lock Works vs. Machine Shop.
March 11—Tool Room vs. Bell Telephone.
March 16—Lock Works vs. Tools Room.

DISTRIBUTIONS FROM THE EXPERIMENTAL FARMS

By instructions of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture, a distribution will be made during the coming winter and spring of superior sorts of grain and potatoes to Canadian farmers. The samples for general distribution will consist of spring wheat (5 lbs.), white oats (4 lbs.), barley (3 lbs.), and field peas (3 lbs.) These will be sent out from Ottawa. A distribution of potatoes (in 3 lb. samples) will be carried on from several of the experimental farms, the Central Farm at Ottawa supplying only the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. All samples will be sent free, by mail.

Applicants should give particulars in regard to the soil on their farms; and should also state what varieties they have already tested and in what way these have been found unsatisfactory, so that a promising sort for their conditions may be sent.

Each application must be separate and must be signed by the applicant. Only one sample can be sent to each farm. Applications on any kind of printed or written form cannot be accepted.

As the supply is limited, farmers are advised to apply early to avoid possible disappointment. No applications can be accepted after Feb. 15th.

All applications for grain (and applications from the provinces of Ontario and Quebec for potatoes) should be addressed to the Dominion Cerealist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Such applications require no postage.

Applications for potatoes, from farmers in any other province should be addressed (postage prepaid) to the Superintendent of the nearest Branch Experimental Farm in that province.

J. H. GRISDALE.
Director, Dominion Experimental Farms.

ANGLICAN CHURCH CHANGES OF INTEREST TO PETERBOROUGH

After the meeting of the Anglican Synod in Toronto Tuesday, the following appointments were announced:

Rev. R. B. Grobb, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, Toronto, to be rector of All Saints' church, Peterborough.

Rev. W. L. Armitage of Picton, to be rector of St. Mark's church, corner Connolly and Ferd streets, to succeed Rev. R. Seabora, who resigned recently.

There is a particular interest to Peterborough in these announcements. Rev. Mr. Grobb, who becomes rector of All Saints' and will assume his duties early in the year, succeeds (though not directly) Rev. Mr. Armitage, a former rector removed to Picton, and now promoted to a Toronto rectorate.

HOCKEY

The T. A. S. hockey team of the Trent Valley League will practise at Brock Street Rink to-night, between 10 and 11 o'clock.

The Peterborough Intermediate O. H. A. team will practise to-night at 7 o'clock in final preparation for the game with Lindsay here on Friday night. As this is the last workout every player is requested to be out sharp on time.

Is This True?

Several Canadian citizens were recently discussing the dearth of "literary" men among our politicians.

"In the Old Country," said one, who had spent six months across the sea, "it is different. It was not to Disraeli's discredit that he wrote novels, nor to Gladstone's lasting disgrace that he translated the Odes of Horace and took a deep interest in Homer. Many a member of the House of Commons in Great Britain can paint a water-color picture or make a collection of old china without being considered any the worse as a politician. But it is quite different in Canada—we're becoming painfully materialistic like the republic to the south of us."

"Canadians have a deep distrust of a man who is interested in music, art or literature," said another, "that is, when it comes to putting him in a municipal or political office. They consider these subjects matters for a woman or a long-haired foreigner to be interested in. There were two clever Hamilton boys, who have made good far from their home city. One of them is now a successful and prosperous lawyer in British Columbia, but he never would have become so well-known in Hamilton. Why? Because he painted pictures and was known as a novelist and poet. Another was Sandy Evans. He has done famously in Winnipeg, and makes a first-class mayor. He would never have been elected mayor in Hamilton, where he was known as a literary chap and a lecturer on highbrow subjects. It's just the stupidity of the dear public, that all."—Canadian Courier.

Swiss Colony For Rockies.

This year will witness the migration of a colony of Swiss to the Canadian Rocky Mountains. The nucleus of the colony will be a corps of Swiss guides who are taken annually to that region to assist mountain climbers.

At the end of the present season, instead of returning to their native land, they will be joined in Canada by their families, and will make their homes permanently in a highly picturesque, "ready-made village," which is now being prepared by the railway company to be named Edelweiss.

The village is situated on the terraced slopes of the mountainside, the houses having the high-pitched roofs and other features of Swiss architecture. Ultimately it is hoped that a string of these Swiss village will be established throughout the Rockies. As the work is permanent and the pay high, it is thought that the best Swiss guides will also emigrate with their families.

Canadians Wealthy.

According to Bradstreets at the end of August the savings in the various chartered banks of Canada totalled $575,749,886, an increase since a year ago of $20,000,000. While the great bulk of the ready available savings of the people is to be found in the chartered banks, there were on August 30 deposited in the financial institutions a total of $881,827,968. Of this amount $14,847,572 was in the Government savings bank, at the end of 1910, while $441,881,357 was in the postoffice savings bank and $27,773,937 was in the loan and building societies. This brings the total up to $861,776,128, or an average of $93 per head of population, assuming the population to be 8,000,000.

Old Mortality.

Stone to Sixth Generation Has Been Erected at Carpel Glen.

Through the writings of Sir Walter Scott the name of "Old Mortality" is known far beyond the bounds of Scotland, and everyone who has heard of the persecuted Covenanters is familiar with his sad career. There in the churchyards of Galloway, especially in the County of Wigtown, where his handiwork may not still be seen.

A native of Dumfries, James Peterson was by trade a stonemason, but for the greater part of his life he exercised his craft without fee or payment.

His absorbing passion for the Covenanters led him to give up home and friends and to wander for 40 years over the wild moors, in the lonely glens, and from churchyard to churchyard, to erect a stone whenever a martyr of the Covenant lay.

A sincere devotion led this venerable renovator of tombs to dedicate so many years of his existence to platform this tribute to the memory of those suffering people. Wherever a grave existed "Old Mortality" was sure to be seen busily at work bent on his pious task with his chisel and mallet, and his old white pony grazing by his side.

His last peregrination was in the neighborhood of Dunkeod, eight miles from Dumfries, when he was suddenly taken ill and was found on the roadside in a dying state. Kind hands removed the old pilgrim to a friendly house, where he passed to his rest in a few days.

He was born in 1713 and died in 1801. The memorial of "Old Mortality" is in keeping with the simple tastes of him it was designed to commemorate. It stands near Carpel Glen, one mile away from the village known as St. John's Town of Dalry. This spot was chosen, as it was one of the chief hiding places of the persecuted "Mill Folly" of Galloway. The statue represents him in his favorite attitude when at rest, but his chisel is useless in his hand and his mallet is broken. His old pony, the sole companion of his wanderings, stands besides him, "a mute witness of the patient toil of the aged Scottish pilgrim."

Cuttlefish Farms.

At several points on the British coasts there are located cuttlefish farms, where the little creatures are kept in tanks or ponds to be "milked" of their ink. The pond or tank is connected with the sea by a pipe, and a thousand or more cuttles are kept in a single one. They present a curious sight as they move about, trailing their long arms and staring out of their bulging eyes.

They are guarded by screens with a view of preventing fright, for, states a writer in The Scientific American, if they are suddenly scared, they will emit their "milk" in the water, a dead loss to the cuttlefish farmer. The fluid, or milk, is very valuable, and each cuttle will yield about $3.50 worth a year. It is secreted in a bag which can be opened and closed at will; the cuttle ejecting the fluid to darken the water so that it may escape unseen when attacked.

The best cuttlefish are obtained in China, where, for some reason or other, they produce the best quality of "milk." When the farmer considers it an opportune time to milk the cuttles he proceeds by opening the sluices of the ponds and gently agitating the water. The cuttles then swim around the pond, and as soon as one passes through the sluice is closed.

The cuttle passes down a small channel into a basin or metal receptacle, and as soon as it is securely there the water is drained off. It is then frightened, and at once squirts the fluid from the bag. When it is exhausted it is lifted out, the milk is collected, and, the basin is prepared for another.

The Threepenny Doctor

Seven thousand people recently assembled to give Dr Jelly, the threepenny doctor of Homerton, a rousing "send off" on the occasion of his marriage. For Dr Jelly is one of the most popular men in that part of London. For seventeen years he has worked among them. To quote his own words, "They have given me of their best, and I have charged them for advice and medicine at the lowest possible rate. I did not fix on threepenny and fourpenny and sixpenny fees because I saw good business in it. I did so because I felt that these sums represented what one guinea and five guinea fees would mean to others; and I have been surprisingly rewarded, for my income runs into about $6,000 a year. I see as many as 100 and 150 patients a day. On one or two occasions, when children's troubles have been rather prevalent in the district, I have treated as many as 300 in one day, and my hardest working days have been the happiest."

Politican's Pride.

The St. Leger (pronounced Sellenger) at Doncaster, is the great race of the year to sporting Yorkshiremen. Sir Tatton Sykes, the first, father of the present baronet, is said to have seen seventy-six St. Legers, the last being in 1851, just fifty years ago. A stranger once in Doncaster during the races asked a landlord what there was worth seeing. "Hast seen Sir Tatton?" queried Boniface. "Oh, yes," was the reply. "And hast seen Voltaire?" (Voltaire, a popular Yorkshire horse, winner in 1850). "I have," replied the guest. "Then," said the landlord, with a sigh, "there's naught else worth troubling about."

The Difference.

The seriousness of Mr. Gladstone prevented him from introducing into social converse any of those humorous touches for which the flamboyant Disraeli was famous. The difference between the two was, perhaps, never more finely indicated than by the lady who said:

"After I had talked with Mr. Gladstone for a while, I thought he was the greatest man I had ever met; but after Lord Beaconsfield had been talking to me for ten minutes, I was sure I was the most wonderful woman he had ever known."

"My wife can't decide on a car."

A Sunday Morning Visit to Murray St. Baptist Church

(By Roy Gilray.)

"Large streams from little fountains flow, Tall oaks from little acorns grow."
—David Everett.

It must be with feelings of great satisfaction, yes, of pride, that the Baptists of Murray Street view the magnificent structure now nearing completion, opposite Central Park. This is to be their new church home, and forms quite a contrast to the tiny building that marked their beginning.

In fact, the growth of this denomination in the Dominion, has been remarkable.

The first Baptist Church in Upper Canada was organized in 1817, at Bresdelbane, in the Ottawa Valley, with thirteen members, all Scotch. (The Scotch, you see, are not superstitious). John Edwards, the chief founder, was converted under the preaching of the Haldanes in Edinburgh.

The first Baptist Church in Montreal was planted by Rev. John Gilmour in 1830. He was a man of great power, of deep piety, and possessed of a burning zeal.

He and others of these Scottish leaders left their impress deep upon the churches among which they laboured. Even on our own Communication Road we have a church erected in memory of the revered name "Gilmour". It was this same John Gilmour who donated the first site for a Baptist Church in Peterborough, and with his own hands painted the building which was erected thereon, in 1846. This structure is still standing behind the Young Women's Christian Association, the home of the "First Church of Christ Scientists".

About the year 1855 a division arose in the ranks, some declaring for close communion, and others, for open. The latter, under their leader, Rev. John Gilmour, decided to found a church for themselves, and in 1862, started to worship in their own building on Aylmer street, south of Dublin, on a piece of property donated by John McDonald, father of the late Duncan McDonald. At the end of three years the two organizations decided to waive their differences and reunited.

This building, south of Dublin, was afterwards used as a public school, (the teacher thereof is now the wife of one of Peterborough's most prominent manufacturers and politicians). Later on, it was used as a bakeshop and grocery store, and was finally converted into a dwelling, known as No. 566 Aylmer street.

In 1869, Rev. Mr. Gilmour passed to his reward, full of years and of service for his Master, having been relieved of active duty two years before by Rev. Thos. Stock.

Up to 1885, when the present building was purchased from the Bible Christians, the following pastors served their people:: Reverends Mulhern, Stobo and Munro. Since that date the following: Reverends Parker, Dyheman, Bastow, Scott, and J. R. Webb, who is now serving his fifth year.

In 1846 the little acorn was planted by Rev. Gilmour, and to-day Rev. Webb is trimming the lofty oak.

The new church is a splendid structure, and stands a mighty monument to the great zeal and sacrifice of its members and their successive pastors.

"The heights by great men reached and kept,
Were not attained by sudden flight,
But they, while their companions slept,
Were toiling upward in the night."
—Longfellow.

To the members of his congregation Mr. Webb is known as an indefatigable worker; to those on the outside he is measured by the church he has been instrumental in building. Throughout all his work he has been assisted by a very able committee on construction.

They hope to have the building completed in April, and are making every effort to have it one of the most up-to-date churches in Ontario. The cost will be in the neighbourhood of fifty thousand dollars, and I am informed, on good authority, that this amount will be almost entirely met. If it is not, the Baptists should leave no stone unturned in securing the full amount, for in these days, churches, as well as men, should shun debt, as they would the devil.

Baptists, following what they believe to be Apostolic precept and example, make baptism on a profession of faith a condition of church fellowship.

Their rejection of infant baptism and their insistence on believer's baptism, were so distinctive that they, like the Methodists, were given a name in ridicule, one being "Anabaptists," (afterwards shortened to "Baptists").

Baptists desire Christian union, and believe it will come in due time, but they insist that efforts for union to be permanently effective, must be along the line of a better understanding of the work of God, and more complete loyalty thereto, rather than along the line of compromise.

Aregular Baptist Church is a society of converted persons. Regeneration is not only a doctrinal belief, but an indispensable qualification for church fellowship. It is composed, not simply of those who are regenerated, but of those regenerate persons who have submitted themselves to Christian baptism (in water) upon a profession of faith.

These societies, or organizations, are purely local, in that they are self governing. It is true they meet together in conferences, but these assemblies are in no sense governmental, simply advisory.

The Regular Baptist Church believes that baptism precedes the Lord's Supper. The question at issue between the Regular Baptist Churches and open communionists is: "Shall we keep the ordinances as they were delivered?" While the Regular Baptist Churches cherish Christian love toward every Christian denomination they do not believe they are called upon to give expression to that love by breaking the laws of Christ, nor do they think him fit for communion who would seek it by such means.

While Murray Street Baptists are of the "Regular" type, I am informed by one of the prominent members that inasmuch as each organization is a law unto itself, they are somewhat liberal in their view on the communion.

At quarter to eleven last Sunday morning, I was the first one to enter the church, save one, a chorister, who was seeing out music. Seeing that I was fearful lest I should enter the wrong pew, he called out to me to make myself at home, and be comfortable. Owing to the severity of the weather the congregation was somewhat small. The choir wore the customary gowns, the ladies having mortar boards and jabots, as an extra adornment. At the close of the service the pastor took up his station at the front door, and wished everybody a Happy New Year.

The text was taken from Joshua 10:12, "Then spake Joshua to the Lord in the day when the Lord delivered up the Amorites before the children of Israel, and He said, in the sight of Israel, Sun, stand thou still upon Gibeon; and thou, Moon, in the Valley of Ajalon".

Gibeon was a great city and had made peace with Joshua, but the Kings of Jerusalem and other cities round about sought to destroy her. But the Lord gave Joshua this assurance:: "Fear them not, for I have delivered them into thine hand; there shall not a man of them stand before thee."

As Joshua saw the day declining and the promise of the Lord unfulfilled he may have been reminded by the hailstones and storm destroying his enemies ,that God was still with him, and with a grim determination that laughs at impossibilities, he cries unto the Lord before the people: "Sun stand thou still," and the people, strengthened in their faith, accomplished as much in one hour as they would have done in ten, under ordinary circumstances.

In reviewing the story, as suggested by the text, the speaker was not particularly concerned whether the sun actually stood still, or only seemed to stand still. It was sufficient for him to know that Joshua prayed that the sun should stand still. He appealed to his congregation, as thinking people. If the sun had stood still, literally, would the earth not have continued turning on its axis, and thus have produced darkness? If the sun had stood still, literally, it would have meant that God had refused to do for him throughout forty odd years of his life that which he had granted to Joshua. (Had he uttered these thoughts in a Methodist pulpit, the people would have held up their hands in horror, and exclaimed: "Alas! Higher Criticism.")

The preacher made a happy selection of a text for the last day of the old year. In its application we were reminded of the swiftness of the passing life, the coming of the sunset. We are a generation of Joshuas; our early youth goes along smoothly, swiftly, like the earth, as it moves on with never-failing precision; our days slip by and before long we discover it is nearly noon. O the mockery of the ticking clock in the long hours of the dark night, as it reminds us of the measured tread of the endless procession from cradle to grave! There is nothing in all the world so heartless as the pendulum. In desperation we cry, "O God, turn back Thy universe and give us yesterday!"

Mr. Webb is an adept in the art of illustration. The last point he impressed very forcibly by the use of a particularly pathetic picture, a little scene enacted in many homes at the beginning of each school term, that of the little child leaving for his first day at school. Many a mother's eyes were filled with tears as the preacher developed the simile.

With what pride the mother prepares her first-born for his school days? She tenderly parts his hair, beaming on his bright face a fond look born of hope. She buttons his little boots, and follows him to the doorstep, where she kisses him over and over again. She watches him as he toddles along to the corner, where the little chap looks back and waves his tiny hand in answer to his mother's farewell. The door is shut; the clouds appear; the rain descends, and in the anguish of her heart the mother cries out: "Stand still thou sun, let him remain a boy yet awhile, that he may not wander too swiftly into the world and its worries." Years pass by and that same mother once more bids her son a sad farewell as he sails for the mission fields of China.

Another picture the preacher presented ,that of a house which he visited last Saturday, where the mother lay a victim of the dread White Plague. The home was very comfortable, which suggested that every need of the dear one would be supplied. In the sick room the daughter showed only the bright look, spoke only the cheery word, but as she descended the stairs, Mr. Webb could discern the moist eyes and the quivering lips, as they breathed the unuttered cry: "O God, may the days tarry!"

The days go, the night comes, and still there is much to be done. Even Jesus realized this awful truth as, when he healed the blind man, he said: "I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day; the night cometh when no man can work."

There is too much time lost in attending to the negative side of Christianity; our thoughts are forever taken up with the thou-shalt-nots. What we need is a positive Christianity. We are here to work. With Paul, we should be able to say: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith."

The pastor desired his people to carry away with them this message:

"Your day is lengthened,
As your soul is strengthened."

Joshua laid hold on the promise of God, and with sword extended, he and his men cut their way on and on, till victory perched on their banners. God is the same yesterday, today and forever. Without Him we can do nothing, but with Him we can do all things.

"He who bears his cross to-day,
Will wear his crown to-morrow."

The Sisters wish to avail themselves of this opportunity to express their gratitude to Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford and family for their exceeding kindness and generosity.

WHAT DOES BALD MEAN

When you see a man with a bald head you know he has had a scalpdisease and that he neglected caring for his hair or he would not have been bald. So many people have a scalp disease and neglect it, because it don't pain them at the time. The disease is commonly called dandruff, it is a certain hair destroyer and means baldness sooner or later. No man or woman should have dandruff. Sageine is a sure dandruff germ killer and W. J. Kent sells it with his personal guarantee to give entire satisfaction or money back. Only 50c. a large bottle from W. J. Kent, or direct, all charges prepaid from B. V. Marion, Bridgeburg, Ont.

GOOD MARKSMANSHIP

A prominent American, travelling abroad, was the guest at a royal hunt, when hares, pheasants and other game were driven before the emperor and his followers, and the servants picked up the victims of the sport. Among all the members of the hunting party, the American alone had no trophy to display.

"How did this happen?" asked someone.

"Where game is so plenty," replied the American, gravely, "the merit of a marksman seems to be in hitting nothing. So I fired between the birds."—Housekeeper.

MEN ARE HELPLESS AS CHILDREN

When Taken Suddenly Ill—Here is a Common-sense Safeguard.

Big, strong man is as a helpless infant when he is suddenly ill.

The sturdiest chap in town usually loses his self-control, and is utterly unable to regard his condition with the common sense that characterizes his every-day actions.

For example: He comes home tired, eats a heavy dinner and sit down to read and smoke away a quiet evening.

Suddenly he notices a weight on his stomach; then sharp pains around his heart, and a feeling of suffocation. Thoughts of "heart disease" rush over him, and in his agony he fears the worst.

His trouble was acute indigestion, brought on by overloading his tired stomach.

A couple of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets might have given him relief—might have saved him hours of suffering.

Carry a package of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets in your vest pocket or keep them in your room. Take one after each heavy meal and ward off indigestion.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets relieve stomach troubles by aiding nature to supply those elements, the absence of which in the gastric juices, causes indigestion and dyspepsia. They tend to aid the stomach to digest all kinds of food and to quickly convert it into rich red blood.

We know what Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are and what they will do. We guarantee them to relieve indigestion and dyspepsia. If they fail, we will refund your money.

Three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents, and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store,—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

DR. GRENFELL'S DEEP SEA MISSION

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In sending the statement of funds received for Dr. Grenfell's Deep Sea Mission, I desire to express my sincere thanks for the assistance given by the daily papers in this good work. It was ,no doubt, owing to their interest and co-operation that the response to the appeal was so generous.

The total amount received and forwarded to Miss Greenshields was $190.10. Of this amount fifty dollars are for the maintenance of the Peterborough cot at St. Anthony's hospital. The remainder is used in the general work of the Mission.

If any contributors have not received acknowledgment by mail, it is because the addresses were not fully given.

Again thanking you for your share in the work, I remain,

Yours sincerely,

PUNY LITTLE BOY

"New Picture of Health," His Father Says.

The pale, wistful faces and thin spindling limbs of "delicate children" tell plainly enough the story of poorly nourished bodies.

We know just what ought to be done for such children. Here is a letter from Richard Rush, Columbus, Ind., saying, "I believe I am indebted to Vinol for the health of my little son. He had a severe attack of whooping cough and measles which affected his lungs and constitution.

"We tried several other remedies without any result, then commenced using Vinol and I take pleasure in saying that he is the picture of health now, due to the use of Vinol."

Sickly children need the strengthening cod liver elements and the tonic iron that Vinol contains—that is why Vinol builds them up quickly and gives them a fine healthy colour. It is pleasant to take and we guarantee that the results will satisfy you—money back if they don't. IN MEMORIAM.

In memory of Mrs. Matchett.
"She is not dead, but sleepeth."

Mother dear, thou hast departted
From this world of strife,
Gone to join the holy angels,
Gone to have eternal life.

Dearest mother, thou hast left us
And thy loss we deeply feel.
But we know thou'rt watching o'er us
From beyond death's deep, dark stream.

Can'st thou see us mother dear?
Dost thou know our cares and pains.
We are very lonely, mother,
But our loss has been thy gain.

Alas! our home is sad and lonely,
No mother's form now lingers near;
Alone through life we now must wander,
Thy loving voice no more to hear.

We know our Heavenly Father watches
O'er all orphans here below.
We will all trust in the Saviour,
Then meet thee in that Heavenly home.

ONE WHO LOVED HER.

Here is a remedy that will cure your cold. Why waste time and money experimenting when you can get a preparation that has won a world-wide reputation by its cures of this disease and can always be depended upon? It is known everywhere as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and is a medicine of real merit. For sale by all dealers.

SKIN SOFT AS A CHILD'S

"I was a great sufferer from eczema and salt rheum for years," writes Mr. John W. Haas, Lunenburg, N.S. "Five years ago three boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment cured me and the old trouble never returned. My skin is soft as a child's now, and I shall always say a good word for this Ointment."

SOCIAL AT THE PARK ST. CHURCH

The first social of the season will be held next Friday evening under the auspices of the Helping Hand Bible class at the Park street Baptist church. Grandmothers, grandfathers, brothers and other fellow sisters are all invited. This is none of your high-toned affairs. Come as you are, only be sociable. Games will be played. Music will be rendered; refreshments will be served; everything free. Come and bring her with you and don't forget the wee lambs. Everybody welcome. But say, old chap, if you come alone, we'll fine you five cents and costs, so please don't come alone. Don't, flock by yourself.

Please cut this out and don't forget to come.

Union services will be held during the "Week of Prayer," in the following churches, to which all are most cordially invited. Meetings will commence at 8 o'clock sharp:

Monday, Jan. 8th, at Park St. Baptist church. Subject, 'Youth and Age in the Church.'

Tuesday, Jan. 9th, at St. Andrew's Subject, 'Religion and Business.'

Wednesday, regular prayer meetings in all the churches.

Thursday, at Charlotte street. Subject, 'Christian Citizenship.'

Friday, at Knox. Subject, "Parental Responsibility."

FIRE INSPECTIONS OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Fire Chief Howard Suggests That a Permanent Fire Escape be Placed on King Edward School

REFERRED TO PROP'Y COM.

Fire Chief Howard submitted a report of his inspection of the Public schools of the city to the School Board last night. It reads as follows:

The basements of the schools were found to be free from rubbish and every school apparently is making a sincere effort to avoid the possibility of fire.

The school children behaved promptly and orderly during the fire drills, without any confusion. The following are the records of the time taken at each school:

South Ward, 450 scholars, 50 seconds.
West ward, 187 scholars, 47 seconds.
Central school, 350 scholars, 64 seconds.
East Ward, 200 scholars, 40 seconds.
King Edward, 400 scholars, 40 seconds.
Queen Alexander, 325 scholars, 38 seconds.

The Chief also recommended the placing of a permanent fire escape on the King Edward school.

Dr. Burnham moved that the recommendation of the Fire Chief re the fire escape, be referred to the Property committee.—Carried.

Horse Makes Wild Run In East City

A rather serious runaway occurred last evening at the junction of Burnham and Hunter streets, when a bakery delivery sleigh upset. The horse turned the corner on Hunter street, going east, and the sleigh overturned throwing the driver out, but not seriously injuring him. The horse bolted, and ran south on Roger street, where it broke loose from the sleigh, but was captured at the top of the hill by some men on their way home from work. The sleigh was badly damaged.

Persons troubled with partial paralysis are often very much benefitted by massaging the affected parts thoroughly when applying Chamberlain's Liniment. This liniment also relieves rheumatic pains. For sale by all dealers.

Appoint the Company executor, and let them hold your Will in their security vault, free of charge, until required.

A Drop in Meat.—The meat market must be overstocked. A fine, large roast of beef, weighing at least six or seven pounds, was found lying on George street, near Simcoe street, this morning, at 11 o'clock. A couple of sleighs had passed over it before any person had noticed it, and, as a result, it was rendered unfit for use. The roast had been well parcelled up in coarse brown paper, and had evidently dropped off a butcher's delivery sleigh.

Bowmanville is not generally considered as a leader in vogue, but judging from the report of a wedding given in the Bomanwville "Statesman" Paris will have to look to its laurels as the starting point of fashion's dictates. At least something new in the line of male garb for wedding festivities has been discovered in the Rubber Plant town. The "Statesman" says "the bride was given away by her father, who was attired in blue silk, trimmed with satin and over-lace."

Patronize Home Industry.—There is no need of sending to Toronto, or elsewhere, for showcases, or store-fixtures of any kind. Patronize the Peterborough Showcase Co., a well-equipped factory, for turning out large contracts, as well as small ones. The material and workmanship are of the best. Prices are right, and terms to suit all people. Any one intending to equip their stores with showcases, wallcases, etc., for the coming Christmas trade should send in their order as soon as possible, before the rush begins and not leave everything to the last two weeks.—W. THEOBALD, manager; Factory, 900 Water St. Telephone 1153.

WEDDING BELLS

GALLEY—IVY.

A quiet, but very pretty wedding was solemnized on New Year's evening at 8 o'clock, when Miss Stella Lumina Ivey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Ivey of Wolsely street, and Mr. Garnet L. Galley of this city, were united together in the bond of holy matrimony by the Rev. I. Couch.

The bride was charmingly attired in white net, over silk, with pearl trimmings, and wearing a veil, entered the room, leaning upon the arm of her father, carrying a bouquet of White Roses and Lily of the Valley. The bridal couple were unattended. After the ceremony and dainty wedding dejeuner was served and an enjoyable evening was spent.

The only out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hawbey of Port Hope.

HALES—RICE.

The marriage of Miss Ethel Rice and Mr. Wm. Hales was solemnized at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Martha Rice, on Wednesday, Dec. 20th, the Rev. H. R. MacKee officiating. The wedding was attended by a large number of intimate friends and relatives, and the home was beautifully decorated for the occasion.

Mr. Hales has been book-keeper for the Park Rapids Mill and Elevator Co. for two years past. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hales, reside in Peterborough. He is a genial young man and has won many friends in Park Rapids and vicinity. Miss Rice was born in Park Rapids, and this place has always been her home. The happy couple left Wednesday evening, amid a shower of rice and congratulations, for a short wedding trip.—From 'The Enterprise' Park Rapids.

REA—FEE.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place on Wednesday, Dec. 27th, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Fee, of Emily, where their daughter, Miss Lavina Copeland Fee was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. J. Rea of Reaboro. Rev. J. N. Clarry, B. A., of Cavanville, pastor of the bride, performed the ceremony. The bride, who was unattended, entered the drawing-room on the arm of her father, the marriage taking place under an arch way, built of evergreens, entwined with roses. She looked sweet and girlish in her dainty wedding gown of soft, white silk, wearing the usual tulle veil, with wreath of orange blossoms, and carrying a sheaf of bridal roses. Miss Rea, niece of the groom, played the wedding march. After luncheon, at which the usual toasts were proposed and responded to, the happy couple left amid a shower of rice, confetti, and good wishes, to catch the six o'clock train at Omemee, en route to Toronto and Montreal. The bride travelled in a becoming gown of brown silk, with hat to match. She wore the groom's gift—a solid gold watch and chain. The presents which were many and costly, showed the popularity of the young bride. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Rea will reside at The Maples, Reaboro.

CORONATION PICTURES IN NATURAL COLOURS

Fine Show to be Seen at the Grand Opera House

Commencing at the Grand Opera House on Thursday, Jan. 4th, and continuing twice daily thereafter, the famous Kinemacolor reproductions of the recent Coronation festivities in natural colours will be shown. In these wonderful pictures you see the great Coronation procession in all the array of colour as well, if not better, than those who journeyed three thousand miles to get a glimpse of King George and Queen Mary crowned. You see the mounted bands swing past, the Royal coach drawn by eight cream coloured horses, the cheering crowds and Their Majesties bowing and smiling. The scene at Temple Bar is said to be real as though one stood beside the Lord Mayor when he presented the Sword of the City of London to the King. And all the other multitudinous scenes, with their bright colour, flashing arms, panoplied ranks, glittering horsemen and ever-varied military men are in no way inferior. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Canadian Northwest Mounted Police are quite recognizable as they pass, and there are many other distinguished Canadians who will be recognized en masse. The views of normal London surpass anything ever shown. Probably there is no city in the world in regard to which it is more difficult to convey anything like a convincing sense of its multitudinous melting greys—a hundred varying values and shades. But in these street views, showing London under normal conditions, there is conveyed to the audience a subtle sense of atmosphere of the city. The haze enveloping the dome of old St. Paul's, the low lying lights over Thames Pool, the lurking shadows along the embankment, and the cool environment of the fountains in Trafalgar Square— these features are impressed upon one in no uncertain way.

Similarly the views of the battleships of all nations at Spithead, awaiting the coming of the Royal yacht, afford another illustration of the success of the new system of colour reproduction. Nearly all shades of greys are blended with the varying lights that lie on sea-water. One sees the ever-varying shadows on the swells, and the seascape is full of atmosphere.

During the display of the pictures on the screen, Mr. Sydney Hesbert, the noted English traveler and lecturer, will give his entertaining lecture on these pictorial subjects, and Miss Florence Virkler, the talented young pianist, will render a special musical programme arranged for these marvellous pictures.

Keeping Their Resolutions

The people of Peterborough must be keeping their New Year's resolutions pretty well so far, as Chief Thompson reported this morning that he has, as yet, made no arrests in the new year, nor has had any occasion to do so. The Chief stated that this is a record, as the most ardent indulgers generally open the New Year with a good big spree.

"Canada In Song And Verse"

A recital which is a novelty in every sense of the word on "Canada in Song and Verse," will be given in the Public Library on Thursday evening, Jan. 4th, by "Katherine Hale" and Alice Roger Collins.

Neither of these artists need any introduction to Peterborough audiences. Miss Warnock, or "Katherine Hale," whose pen-name is so well known, especially to readers of the "Mail and Empire," possesses the unusual art of being able to handle a subject from the two-fold aspect of literature and music, and she treats her theme as it has never before been attempted by any Canadian. She tells the story of Canada's record in literature and illustrates it by the singing of songs familiar to the French Canadians nearly two hundred years ago. Also Indian tribal melodies and songs. The Musical Courier of New York says of Miss Warnock's voice: "It is of rich and thrilling timbre, the upper notes of ethereal sweetness. A most promising singer."

Mrs. Collins whose talent and ability are so well and favourably known here, will add greatly to the pleasure of the evening by contributing selections on the piano.

COLD STORAGE

The opportunities which are offering in all lines of trade and resourcefulness on the Pacific Coast is demonstrated by the fact that the Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co., Ltd., have recently erected a cold storage and fish freezing plant at Ritchie Point in the City of Prince Rupert, B.C., the western terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, and has been built for the handling of the fish industry of the Northern Pacific Ocean.

The waters surrounding Prince Rupert teem with Halibut, Ling and Grey Cod, Salmon, Sole, Herring, etc., the market for which is unlimited, and with the completion of the railway the fish can be in transit to the eastern markets on the day caught, thus assuring, with speedy transportation, their arrival in first class condition at destination.

The building is constructed of reinforced concrete throughout. The foundation is built on solid rock, and is of sufficient strength to carry the building to the height of ten stories. The present structure is six stories high, and can be extended as soon as trade permits.

The daily fish freezing capacity will be sixty tons, and the storage capacity of frozen fish about 6500 tons.

The ice making plant is of 25 tons daily capacity, and space has been left for an additional 25 tons for future installation.

Over 20 miles of piping was required for the refrigeration installation. Twenty-three car-loads of cork were used in the building of flooring and for the partitions between each room.

RAILWAY NOTES

Three boys, coasting down Hunter street, yesterday morning, came perilously near being killed by a passing freight train. This is a source of danger to children, who persist in careering down the street, regardless of any train that may be passing. It is often the case that only the promptness of the railway employees prevents them from meeting with serious accidents. As these brakesmen have sufficient to occupy their minds without acting as nurse to the children, these children should be warned.

FISKE O'HARA, THE SWEET SINGER OF IRISH SONGS, APPEARS IN PRETTY LOVE STORY AT BAKER THEATRE

Two crowded houses at the Baker Theatre yesterday saw the pretty story of "Love's Young Dream" enacted by a good company supporting Fiske O'Hara, the sweet singer of Irish ballads, who gave to Theodore Burt Sayre's play an interpretation fraught with real Irish wit and yet strong and effective in the dramatic points. Mr. O'Hara sings with the real heart and soul of the Irish folk. His songs delighted the audience, which recalled him many times after the familiar melodies were heard. The actor brings out ever bit of comedy in his role without overdoing it at any point and is natural and without stage tricks in all that he accomplishes.

The cast supporting Mr. O'Hara is excellent. Marie Quinn makes an attractive Nora, the comedy is splendidly brought out by Dan Morris Sullivan and J. P. Sullivan in the roles of the two Irish suitors who are constantly bickering over the hand of Mrs. O'Flaherty, the housekeeper. The fickle widow finally marries her cousin and leaves the quarreling suitors in the lurch. The role of the widow is well played by Maggie Fielding. Elizabeth Valdrar is a pretty and attractive maid of the inn, and all remaining members of the cast are good.

The play is beautifully staged and the scene at the highway, with drifting clouds, the water reflecting the moonlight and rugged rocks in the foreground is very effective.—Rochester Evening Times.

SOME NEW YEAR'S THOUGHTS

New Year!

There is material enough for this year's recollection. I refer only to the Dominion and Provincial elections and in municipal affairs to the power question, on which we are deciding to-day.

I have no intention to criticise here the results of the election, or the measures of the new administration. But, many on either side are dissatisfied with the result of the election, and many of them have never taken real active part in public life. To them I wish to say with the poet:

Woe to every one who does not unite his fate with that of the community. The large crowd of the indifferents and tuneless must be eliminated. I know clever and good men, who can get highly excited about mystified acts of administration, or unprogressive reactionary rules and by-laws. But if you come to them and ask them to take part in the regular daily work of the politics of the people, then they fail to come up to the mark.

We know it is one thousand times easier to complain about single mistakes in the administration and politics than to go deeper into the matter and try to understand how these different mistakes mostly are bound to happen under the prevailing conditions.

This indignation is worth nothing as long as it is like an easily lighted fire, which ceases as quickly as its flames shoot high up to the sky.

Our society, as a whole, would be far more progressive if the people would consider the work in political life, more as a serious matter of conscience than an occasion for gathering honours, or wealth, or who consider politics as a kind of a necessary evil.

A government which has no progressive tendency has its supporters always in the big masses of these indifferent circles, which, like children, get a little angry once in a while, but who are easily conciliated.

Men with strong, and well-founded opinion are not liked there. They are considered more dangerous than the other ones, and that is what they are, indeed.

Truth and truthfulness do not enter into a cheap bargain. They are never satisfied by the mere pretence of success. They are only satisfied when things are going right, and the will makes its way free.

The large crowd of the uninterested and tuneless must be eliminated.

That is not a programme of a party, otherwise I would not say it to-day as a New Year's greeting, which is devoted to serious and quiet thinking people. This is the alarm cry to those who complain about burdens, but who are nothing but a burden themselves, who want everything better, but nothing right, who seem to stand above all parties, and in this way serve only those who know best how to use power and influence. This is a kind of a distinguished and feudal laziness, which belongs to the worst that a community has to bear. Therefore, let every one have his own ideals and principles, and express them. No matter if we like them, or not. It is one thousand times better, than to waste time in order to find out on which tune a certain person answers, and then to learn that he answers on all, or none.

Every one should take active part in public life, according to his carefully-based conviction. They may seem wrong, or right, to us—anyway 1,000 times better than those half people, whose hands are too short to pull the ear, but who complain about that the car did not run off the track by itself.

Every thing, which some thing worth, costs some thing. But all those indifferents and tuneless are a burden to the society, without contributing to it.

Therefore, this alarm-cry: Educate each other to do your duty against the country. The society can not exist of public sense but only of men and women, who mean some thing and are some thing to the public.

Let this be our New Year's resolution and let us live up to it.

The indifferent ones are always on the side of the enemies.

This May Concern YOU

JUST at this time as we are about to start upon a New Year we desire to again call your attention to the fact that it is our earnest and constant endeavour to please every patron of this store perfectly—to carry out our oft repeated guarantee of satisfaction or your money back. So we want to say right now that if anyone has purchased here any article that has not proven to be worth all we charged them for it, we want the opportunity to make it right. No dealers anywhere examine their goods with greater care, and none are more particular about the kind of goods they sell; but we are only human, hence we sometimes make mistakes of judgment, and if we have sold you anything during the past year that has proved unsatisfactory in any way we want to know about it. Drop in at your earliest convenience, tell us about it, and we will see to it that you are reimbursed for any shortcomings in the goods we have sold you.

We make satisfaction sure by guaranteeing it, and we carry that guarantee out to the letter. We want your business for 1912 and we want your friend's business and your friend's friend's business. We consider the advertising our customers give us the best advertising we can have for this store, therefore we make it a point to see to it that every customer of ours gets full value for every dollar he spends here.

THE CHINESE TROUBLES ARE NOT OVER YET

Imperial Government Has Notified Its Troops That Hostilities Are to Re-commence on Saturday—They May Desert in a Body to the Republicans However.

Special to The Examiner.

SHANGHAI, CHINA., JAN. 4. — The real stability of President Sen and his Chinese Republic are to be tested on the battle field immediately. The Imperial government in Pekin has today notified all Imperial troops that hostilities are to recommence on Saturday morning. This is Pekin's reply to President Sen's peremptory order to Premier Yuan Shi Kai to come to Shanghai to continue the peace negotiations. Much bloodshed is expected unless the Imperial troops turn Republican in a body. It wouldn't surprise the foreigners here if they did.

A RIOT OVER MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS IN HULL

Examiner Special:

HULL, QUE., JAN. 4.—During a mayoralty meeting last night the police were powerless to stop the rioting and disorder, even after two patrol waggon loads of leaders in the disturbances had been carried off to the police station. Finally Rev. Father Carriere, the priest of the parish, was called in, and by strong condemnation, managed to restore order. This morning the ring-leaders were fined from twenty to one hundred dollars in the Police Court.

WAS THERE AN ATTEMPT TO BLOW UP CHURCH?

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, ONT., JAN. 4.—According to a letter received at the Dominion Alliance offices here, some body attempted to blow up the Methodist church and other buildings in Bridgewater, Hastings County, on New Year's Eve, while a prayer meeting was being held in reference to the local option vote next day. All the windows in the place were shattered, walls cracked and the worship pers so badly frightened that some were unable to go to the polls next day. Similar explosions took place under the houses of prominent villagers. Local option was defeated there next day by three to one.

Pitch-in On G.T.R.

Special to The Examiner.

CORNWALL, ONT., JAN. 4.—A bad pitch-in occurred on the G. T. R. near Wales, this morning, between two freights, one of which was going very slowly, when the other came along at a great speed, and split the van, smashed and derailed cars, blocking both tracks. Conductor Boileau of the leading train, was in the van, but escaped with a cut in the head. The Brockville auxiliary was called out and had one track cleared about 11 a.m. The International Limited, westbound, was delayed for a short time at Millerosches.

French Canadian Postage Stamps

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, ONT., JAN. 4.—There are rumours here that the accession of Hon. P. Pelletier to the Postmaster-Generalship means that there will be an issue of French-Canadian postage stamps shortly. This move will be combatted, of course, by the anti-bilinguals.

Run Over And Was Killed

Special to The Examiner.

OWEN SOUND, JAN 4.—Fred Millan was instantly killed to-day. He was bringing a load of wood to town and fell off, and before he could save himself, the heavy sleigh passed over his head.

CONCERT AT OMEMEE

To celebrate the New Year a splendid concert was held last evening in the new hall at Omemee. There was a very large attendance, and, judging from the applause with which each item was received, a very enjoyable evening was spent. Mr. Emery of Toronto, a well-known society entertainer, was specially engaged for the event and proved his worth as an entertainer. His humorous songs and recitations were highly meritorious. Another feature of the programme was the vocal selections of Mr. Gordon Wright, of Peterborough, each of which was well received by the gathering. A quartette from Peterborough, namely Misses Ingram and Wilson, and Messrs. Brown and Weir contributed other selections and assisted in the enjoyment of the evening.

NOT TERR FIRMA

Two Germans of the duck region in southern Illinois were hunting along the Mississippi. They selected a good place and moored a raft on which they placed all their shooting and camping equipment. This settled, they retreated to a convenient spot to regale themselves. While they were gone the raft slipped its moorings and glided into distant obscurity. It was some time before the hunters noticed its absence, and then one yelled excitedly:

"Hfumel! Ve was lose! Ve haf gone a mile from her shtuff!"—Chicago Evening Post.

W.C.T.U. Pass A Resolution

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, QUE., JAN. 4.—The local W. C. T. U. passed a resolution strongly censuring the Champagne parties and other boisterous and noisy celebrations, last Sunday night (New Year's Eve) and has asked the City Council and police authorities to take drastic action regarding it.

PORT HOPE MAN SHOT IN LEG

PORT HOPE, JAN. 4.—Silas Jeffrey, a stonemason, about forty years of age, met with a serious accident this afternoon while out rabbit-shooting with some companions near Port Granby, a few miles west of Port Hope. While descending a steep embankment he fell, and the contents of both barrels of a shotgun entered his right leg just below the knee. The leg was almost severed from the body The injured man was driven to town, where first aid was administered, after which he was conveyed to the Cottage Hospital in Cobourg. His condition is considered serious.

Narrow Escape

TERRE HAUTE, IND., JAN. 4. — Miss Minnie Allen was hurled high in the air but landed on the cow-catcher of a train running forty miles an hour, and was not badly hurt, when a train struck and killed her horse and demolished her buggy on a level crossing here to-day.

HELP THE COUNCIL.

With the influences of the municipal elections still affecting us, we are apt to look to the city council to make the year 1912 a prosperous New Year for Peterborough. But we are looking to our city council for perhaps too much. They have their work, and should do it. Each individual citizen has his work in contributing to the beauty, cleanliness and general brightening of the city. If each citizen does his or her share in this regard, the result will be a vast improvement. If each keeps his home and home surroundings trim, neat and beautiful, by care, cleanliness and neatness, the whole city will be beautiful. We can, by each doing his or her share in the betterment, material and moral, of the city, be lending the city council a strong hand, be giving the encouragement to do their best by a citizenship that is doing its best in the interests of the improvement of the city. There is an unlimited field for cooperation, and unlimited good results from such cooperation between our governing body and the governed. Let us open the new year with a resolution to pull together—city council and people—for the general good of the whole city—for the advancement of all its interests. There is as much room for cliques and popular pulling-apart, in the life of our citizenship, as there is for dissension and mutiny in a defending army with the enemy at the gates.

$75,000 FOR EDUCATION.

The Board of Education demands $85,000 for schools the present year, and the demand for Separate schools will increase the amount we shall spend for education next year to about $75,000. This is a large sum, and in the main we get fair value for its expenditure. But its expenditure should do more than similar expenditure has done in the past, before it meets the approval of His Royal Highness, our Governor-General. He complains, as he has some ground for doing, of the slovenly English and slang of our newspapers.

For this condition our schools are largely responsible. We regard the English language as the greatest language in the world, a magnificent polyglot, compounded of the best of living and dead languages. It is rapidly becoming the language of diplomacy, and assuming a grand predominance in commerce, art and science, the world over. It represents the highest type of civilization, the broadest measure of human freedom and enfranchisement, and of civil and political conditions. It is, therefore, worth cultivating and conserving in its greatest possible purity, with its distinctive character, as little as possible impaired.

We naturally look to our schools as the source of the preservation of the English tongue. We have had a great deal said recently of the policy of English being taught to every child in the province. If we attach so much importance to this, does it not follow that it should be taught at its best, and that all our children should be equipped with a knowledge of the English tongue in its purity, and with the spirit of respect for the best literary forms of expression in speech or writing?

The big blot on the use of English in the present day, is the prevalence of "slang" and slovenly English, ungrammatical and grotesque. It seems to effect and infect everybody and all classes. It pours its pollution into the well of English undefiled from which all classes should draw. It is found in the press; it is found even in the pulpit. When one hears a clergyman, well educated and with a high comprehension of the dignity and demands of his calling, interlard casual conversation with the street slang of the illiterate, we can see how virulent the contagion is. We need the influence of our teachers and schools to counteract the tendency of modern influences to degrade spoken and written English to the level of a thieves' argot. This is needed when we find even teachers themselves employing corrupted forms of English to teach pure correct English to pupils. It is needed when one hears pupils taught in our Public schools and even High schools, pollute their conversation with the most odious and frothy forms of "slang." What is the good of spending $75,000 a year to teach good English, if one is not able to distinguish by his or her employment of that speech, an educated boy or girl, man or woman, from an illiterate, uncultured individual? We boast of our great educational system and its advantages. We don't show the results. The dialects that corrupt the language of Great Britain and other European countries, owe their origin to the lack of popular educational advantages, such as we possess. They were a natural result. We have no excuse for the condition that exists to a very large extent, that one cannot, judging by the employment of correct English, distinguish an educated man or woman from an unlettered ignoramus. If we spend $75,000 a year on education, let us see that it is not wasted.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

One of the most interesting results of the change of government at Ottawa is, says the Montreal Herald, that the Toronto Mail and Empire has become really quite sympathetic towards the Ne Temare decree.

If China should come into her own and become as advanced as Japan, the balance of power and influence would be disturbed, and the squabbling powers of Europe would have something else to think about besides springing at each other's throats.

Glory comes to Alderman-elect Geo. N. Gordon by big gulps. He headed the poll by a big majority, and now his admirers are cutting his picture out of his election cards, posted in different parts of the city to preserve as souvenirs. And the best of it is he is worthy of his popularity.

His Majesty King George will come to Canada, in 1914, to open the throttle of the first through new locomotive of the Transcontinental Railway. If Adam Beck and the City Council "get busy" he might, on the same visit, press the button that turns Hydro-Electric power upon Peterborough. Wouldn't it be a fine thing to have it this, inaugurated, by George!

Toronto is taking steps to have a police census. It is not satisfied with the figures of population, according to the Dominion census. Policemen will leave a card at every house to be filled in with the question: "How many persons slept in your house last night?" This may include visitors from Port Hope or Ormemee, but it will give Toronto so big a population that it can bite its thumbs at Montreal, Hamilton, and other small places.

The Toronto News is nominating Hon. W .S. Fielding to the editorship of the Globe, and Hon. Mr. Paterson to the editorship of the Toronto Star—"two journals which had the largest share in leading the Laurier government to disaster and defeat." By a like reasoning, Mr Bourassa, who contributed a large share to the success of the Conservative party, and who got the largest share of the spoils of power, might be made editor of the News or the Mail and Empire.

Mr. G. N. Gordon has milk inspection as one of his slogans. If he will add meat inspection, he will draw to a strong pair. It is well to have pure milk, pure water and pure air, but meat, free from disease and other objectionable qualities, is as important. We have Dominion government inspection to insure wholesome meats to be sent abroad for consumption, but we trust to luck in the matter of the meat consumed by ourselves and families.

We needn't envy our United States neighbours their size. We have, goodness knows, had a surfeit of elections in Canada the past three months—both victors and vanquished are heartily sick of them and glad that we have leisure at last to pick up the pieces or enjoy the fruits. Our recent experiences are a slight hint of what the United States has as an almost perpetual condition. It creates more fuss to nominate a presidential candidate in the United States than it does to overturn a government in Canada. Let us be thankful.

THE SCANDAL OF THE SPOILS SYSTEM.

(The Globe.)

Almost every day reports another outrage by the spoilsmen of the new Ottawa Government. Yesterday's was from Oshawa. Its victim was a worthy citizen, Mr. Lyman C. Smith. To-day's is from Stayner, and for unrelieved and brutal injustice it would seem to be the limit. The plain facts surely shame and disgust every fair-minded elector who had a share in the election of the Borden Government.

Here are the facts: When the Liberals came into power in 1896 the postmastership of Stayner was held by a Conservative. For fourteen years the widow of the postmaster was left undisturbed in office, and to her the local Liberal Association extended the utmost consideration and courtesy. In September, 1910, she wished to retire. The position was offered to Mr. D. G. Bell of the town on express condition that he purchase from her the building in which the office had been located during the entire time of service by herself and her husband. Mr. Bell purchased the property and entered on his duties October 1, 1910. On Friday last, December 29, he received instructions, authorised by Postmaster-General Pelletier, to hand over his office on January 1 to Mr. C. J. McRae. No charge was made. No investigation was held. Not even the breath of complaint, political or otherwise, was suggested. And, adding to the gross injustice, the office was removed to the new postmaster's store, and the building purchased for the purpose is left a loss on Mr. Bell's hands.

Is it any wonder that the town's sense of decency is scandalised. The fact that the change is from a Protestant to a Catholic adds to the offence in the eyes of local Orange Tories. But that aside, which is not of public interest and ought not to be an issue, the town's confidence in Mr. Bell is testified by the fact that on Monday he was elected Mayor by a majority of more than two to one over his opponent, a town lawyer of standing.

In the light of these rapidly increasing scandals, involving now one member of the Government and now another, the weakness and wanton heartlessness of the new Administration are being exposed to the public. No such case, nothing at all in the same shameless category, can be charged against the Liberals. One wonders how long the honourable and self-respecting element in the Conservative party will allow it to go on. They cannot escape the humiliation of it.

Makes a Bad Cough Vanish Quickly—or Money Back

The Quickest, Surest Cough Remedy You Ever Used. Family Supply for 50c. Saves You $2.

You have never used anything which takes hold of a bad cough and conquers it so quickly as Pinex Cough Syrup. Gives almost instant relief and usually stops the most obstinate, deep-seated cough in twenty-four hours. Guaranteed to give prompt and positive results, even in croup and whooping cough.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of Norway White Pine extract, rich in guaiacol and other healing pine elements. A 50-cent bottle means 16 ounces—a family supply—of the best cough remedy that money can buy, at a saving of $2. Simply mix with home-made sugar syrup or strained honey, in a 16-ounce bottle, and it is ready for use. Easily prepared in five minutes—directions in package.

Children like Pinex Cough Syrup—it tastes good and is a prompt, safe remedy for old or young. Stimulates the appetite and is slightly laxative—both good features. A handy household medicine for hoarseness, asthma, bronchitis, etc., and unusually effective for incipient lung troubles. Used in more homes in the U. S. and Canada than any other cough remedy.

Pinex has often been imitated, but never successfully, for nothing else will produce the same results. The genuine is guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. Certificate of guarantee is wrapped in each package. Your druggist has Pinex or will gladly get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

CANADA'S FINEST ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE

That delightful illustrated magazine, the 'Canadian Pictorial,' which is to Canada what the 'Illustrated News' or the 'Graphic' are to England, continues to improve with each year of its existence. It is by all odds the best printed magazine in Canada. While Canadian pictures generally predominate, plenty of illustrations are given of events and scenes the world over, so as to merit its claim to give 'News by Views' Short complete stories, music, and well edited departments add to the interest. It is not only a beautiful album of the highest work of the engravers, but it gives much information that the printed page unaccompanied by fine illustrations simply cannot convey.

The quality of the photogravures, the exquisite enamelled paper, and the fine printing, cannot be fully appreciated unless you actually see it, but, to quote Lord Strathcona, "it is undoubtedly a credit to Canadian journalism". The Canadian Pictorial' is issued monthly, by the Pictoral Publishing Company, 142 St. Peter St ('Witness' Building). Montreal, and the subscription rate is $1.00 a year. To NEW Subscribers for 1912, on trial, only sixty-five cents.

HORSES INJURED

Smith Farmer Meets With Accident on Aylmer St. This Morning

A Smith farmer had an accident this morning, when driving over the street car tracks, going to McBain's grain establishment, at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer street. The horses, which were attached to a heavy load of grain, slipped on the frozen ground, left bare by the sweeper, and fell, badly skinning their legs and knees.

Perils In High Enchilment.

Teheran, Jan. 4.—The execution of Shegat, Ul Islam, head of one of the religious sects, which took place at Tabriz on Monday after a court-martial by Russian officers, has deeply perturbed officials here.

Seven other Persians were hanged at the same time, and there is apprehension that Russia's drastic and wholesale executions, which occurred during the most solemn religious festival of the Persian year, will affront national feeling to a dangerous degree.

The successor to W. Morgan Shuster as treasurer-general of Persia has not yet been named. Rumors are again current that the Bakhtiaris design to create a new dynasty.

Hot Time In Hull.

Ottawa, Jan. 4.—Some of the most riotous scenes that have ever been witnessed during a Hull municipal campaign occurred last night at the meeting held by Mayor Archambeault. There were over 300 persons present, partisans of Mayor Archambeault and Ald. Dupuis, the two mayoralty candidates, and the utmost confusion reigned during the early part of the evening.

Free fighting was going on all over the hall, and yelling, catcalls and obscene language blocked any attempt on the part of the mayor to address the meeting, the services of the police having to be called in to quell the riot which was in progress, several arrests resulting.

Bryan Is Reluctant.

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 4.—"I cannot conceive any condition that would make it possible for me to consider the question of my becoming the candidate for the Presidential nomination of the Democratic party in 1912."

This was the declaration of Colonel William J. Bryan on his arrival here yesterday from Havana in company with Mrs. Bryan. They left last night for Washington. Mr. Bryan declined to comment on the action of the Progressive Democrats of Ohio in pushing his name to the front as a candidate.

New York Living Better.

New York, Jan. 4.—A death rate of 15.13 per thousand in New York City for 1911 was officially announced by Health Commissioner Lederle last night. This is the lowest on record, last year's rate, the record up to now, being 15.86 per thousand. There were 75,423 deaths, as against 76,742 in 1910, the number being 13,587 less than the decennial average. The saving of life extended to all age groups, but was most pronounced in that under five years of age, there being 7,332 less deaths in this group.

Will Big For Dynamite.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 4.—The new county grand jury organized this week determined yesterday to renew the dynamiting investigation and subpoenaed five persons formerly actively connected with the McNamara defence.

Samuel Gompers has again denied knowing anything about the dynamite cases in any way.

Women Deputy Sheriffs.

New York, Jan. 4.—True to his promise to appoint several women deputy sheriffs, Sheriff Harburger has selected Mrs. Caroline Truax, widow of the late Justice Truax of the State Supreme Court. The sheriff has other applications from prominent women.

Shoe Machinery Case.

Montreal, Jan. 4.—Testimony was given before the commission investigating complaints against the business methods of the United Shoe Machinery Co. of Canada yesterday afternoon by G. A. Slater, president of the G. A. Slater, Limited.

The witness stated that, in his opinion, its methods were calculated to hamper trade. He declared the Canadian company compelled those using its machines to use old types long after new ones had been put out and that improved machinery was not introduced into Canada until the United States market had been supplied.

He also objected to the tieing clause, under which users of the company's machinery were bound to lease machinery for a certain period, and only to use machinery of certain make in connection with it, considering this took away from the independence of the shoe manufacturer.

London Is Next.

London, Jan. 4.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Charles Sumner Ward, champion money-raiser of the world for philanthropic and especially Y. M. C. A. objects, commences next Monday a 12-days' campaign in England for raising $500,000 to free absolutely the new headquarters of the London Y.M.C.A. of debt. The Lord Mayor has generously promised to extend civic hospitality to Ward and will join him at Mansion House each day at luncheon and report amounts collected.

Upon the advisory committee, in addition to the mayor, are Earl Grey, the Bishop of London and Sir J. Kennaway.

Four Frozen to Death.

Great Bend, Kas., Jan. 4.—Four persons were frozen to death during the recent blizzard in Western Kansas, according to James Leighty, a telephone linesman, who arrived here yesterday. The deaths occurred near Hess City, he said.

Sheridan, Wyo., Jan. 4.—Twenty-nine degrees below zero, the coldest weather in five years, was the record here yesterday. Frozen water pipes caused a terrific explosion in a kitchen stove here, which partially wrecked the building. No one was injured.

Another Erroneous Return.

Stratford, Ont., Jan. 4.—The full returns and later computations show that the bylaw to loan the Paul Bennwitz Co. $10,000 to assist in establishing a manufactory of piano accessories, submitted to the ratepayers, on Monday last, was carried by a majority of 20 over the requisite three-fifths vote. This bylaw was originally reported as having been defeated.

Lives In One Room With 30 Dogs.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—Mrs. Amalia Ludwig was found living in a single room Tuesday night with thirty dogs which she said she had picked up in the streets. Mrs. Ludwig explained to a member of the Anti-Cruelty Society who called on her that she gave the dogs oatmeal and milk in the morning, and looked for scraps from restaurants for them at night.

Irregularities In Belleville.

Belleville, Jan. 4.—It is alleged that there were several irregularities at the civic elections, held here on Monday. It is stated that in the Foster Ward, a married lady obtained a ballot and voted upon her maiden name, which appeared on the voters' list. In a polling sub-division of Murney Ward, it is stated, the poll was not opened until some minutes after nine o'clock, and that a prominent citizen was personated in two polling subdivisions.

Ptomaine Candy Fatal.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 4.—Eating impure Christmas candy is believed by physicians to have caused the death of four-year-old Anna Franke yesterday. The child was taken ill a short time after eating ribbon candy The autopsy showed that death had resulted from ptomaine poison.

J. W. Arrowsmith of Morristown, N.J., and Toronto, will be here to-day to arrange moving his Toronto factory to Niagara Falls.

Cotton Strike Extends.

Manchester, Eng., Jan. 4—The lockout of the weavers and spinners in Lancashire, which began Dec. 30, has extended to several mills at Bolton and elsewhere.

The conference, which took place here yesterday between Sir George R. Askwith, the noted strike arbitrator, the employers and employes, lasted for six hours.

No settlement was reached and the conference adjourned until to-day.

Brantford Fears Rabies.

Brantford, Jan. 4.—A dog was shot on Crown street yesterday having symptoms of rabies, and last night Constable Reed gave a canine a chase down Queen street, firing several shots. The dog had bitten a young man, who rushed into the police station for assistance, and the animal escaped to the outskirts of the city. Only recently several dogs were exterminated as a result of the visit of a Government inspector.

Still Using Dynamite.

Bedford, Conn., Jan., 4.—No trace has been found of the dynamiters who partly destroyed the just-completed Clark Opera House here Sunday night The owner believes personal enemies were responsible.

Tyrone, Ky., Jan. 4.—The home of Police Judge John Lancaster was blown up with dynamite and practically wrecked. No one was injured

INFLAMMATION AND PAIN

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

—"I was troubled for a long time with inflammation, pains in my side, sick headaches and nervousness. I had taken so many medicines that I was discouraged and thought I would never get well. A friend told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it restored me to health. I have no more pain, my nerves are stronger and I can do my own work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me after everything else had failed, and I recommend it to other suffering women."—Mrs. Wm. Shaaf, 625 W. Bowen St., Creston, Iowa.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficacy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made exclusively from roots and herbs.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills should not lose sight of these facts nor doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., she will treat your letter as strictly confidential. For 30 years she has been helping sick women in this way, free of charge. Don't hesitate—write at once.

"THE SECRET OF PAUL FARLEY"

By JOHN MARCH

"Oh, Mr. Farley! You always put me off with something sil——"

"I'm going to dress for dinner. I bid you good evening, Tom."

Left to himself, the door securely locked, he divested himself of coat and waistcoat, sat astride a chair, his arms folded on he back, and gazed thoughtfully out of the window across the stretch of undulating green.

"Paul, my boy," he said, rising abruptly and apostrophizing his reflection in the glass, and rolling back his stiff wristbands, "luck, or chance, or ate, or whatever it calls itself seems to be veering round in a contrary direction. Are your wits sufficiently magnetic to attract the thing and keep it pointed at Paul Farley?"

Taking a fine camel's hair brush from a toilet table, he dipped it into an ebony box and drew it lightly over his upper lip. He paused and leaned forward to scrutinize the effect of his skilful handiwork. Then he brought the brush dexterously round his jaw from ear to chin leaving a bluish tinge, such as would result from a frequent use of the razor upon a dark skin.

"A salary of three pounds a week, combined with every comfort, every modern luxury, and within an easy distance of London, is a substantial start. One that must be coaxed and humoured, or fought for, and safeguarded just as it happens, for at least six months to come. Afterwards a recommendation from the Conservative member for East Weyberne, followed by a Ministerial secretaryship, and—well, so on. There, my friend!" he said, laying aside the brush and smilin gat his finesse, "you look spruce, well-groomed, and in good condition. Now all that remains for you to do is to pull yourself together and—be a man!"

He entered the dining-room somewhat late. The soup was being served, and Lady Hargrave signed to him to take the vacant seat beside Agnes Fleming. Anthony Pelham and Judith were opposite. The latter's pretty, piquant face was clouded with annoyance and expressed disapproval at the dinner arrangement. She made it very plain to her very She made it very plain to her patient companion that she was ill-pleased with the pairing and dissatisfied with herself, with him, and with those around the table.

Sir Thomas, more comfortable in his mind, and consequently happier than he had been for weeks, gave vent to his old hearty guffaws. He told stories which caused Miss Patricia Primrose to lean back in her chair, he tears in her eyes, and shake with suppressed laughter. Lady Hargrave looking between the palm leaves at her husband's jovial face, was correspondingly elated. She poked fun at Miss Patty, and alluded to a certain middle-aged barrister, whose arrival they anticipated in the near future, in her sweet, matronly way, generating mirth without embarrassment. Once during the meal, when the conversation an dlaughter became general, Paul found an opportunity to whisper to Agnes.

"Tell me of a quiet, lonely spot, where I can talk to you undisturbed," he said, bending his dark head down to hers, and touching her wineglass significantly.

She shook her head in answer to his action. "There is an old unused thatched summer house in our shrubbery," she said, after a moment's deliberation.

"Can't I see you there to-morrow night?"

"What time?" she murmured, meeting Judith Hargrave's jealous eyes.

"It must be after dark; say eight."

She smiled and stooped to pick up her serviette

"I shall not come into the drawing-room this evening," he said, as the ladies rose from the table; "I am going to post a letter at East Weyberne."

"There won't be a moon to-night."

"Never mind, it's only a little over three miles, and I know every inch of the way."

He left Sir Thomas and Anthony Pelham over a bottle of old Madeira, and found James airing himself at the hall door.

"Going out, sir?" he asked, stepping into an ante-room and bringing forth a light overcoat and a checked tweed cap.

"To East Weyberne. It will be pretty dark when I get back."

"The evenings are drawing in, sir, but it's market day yonder, so as likely as not you'll have company home. Look here, sir," he added, with a detaining touch on his arm, "don't you go all round by the main avenue, cut straight across to that hahha fence; you'll see a little iron gate leading into a private road, which'll take you on to the turnpike."

He followed the man's directions, and in an incredible short space of time was on the main road. It was chilly after the rain, and he walked quickly with an easy swinging gait, and examining his watch later by the dim light of the station lamp, he knew that he had made the journey in less than fifty minutes.

The little country town seemed full of farmers and farm labourers. The streets were badly lighted, and coarse, drunken drovers loafed about the narrow pavements in front of the public-houses using obscene language, or roaring out snatches of ribald songs. A half-tipsy ruffian rolling out from a tavern, singing at the top of his voice, knocked against him as he passed.

"Hallo!" he exclaimed, in idiotic amazement; "why, you're the bloke from Lunnon as sold me that there broken-winded mare! I allus said I'd break your head whinever I see yer."

Several of the man's comrades gathered round and strenuously advised him to set about redressing his wrongs without delay.

"Take that, yer bloomin' swell!" the man said, doubling his fist and hitting straight out from the elbow.

A sharp cry of pain and a hoarse cheer rang out simultaneously on the night air and echoed away behind the houses, but before the unusual chorus had quite finished re-echoing a tall, powerfully-built man in rough frieze knickerbockers and wearing a Homburg hat, pushed his way through the jeering throng.

"What are you fellows doing there?" he demanded in a loud, imperious tone. "Is that you, Denham, you drunken rascal?"

"It's all right, Squire," the man answered, partially sobered by hearing his master's voice, "this here's the chap as swindled me over the old mare. I allus said as how I'd do for 'im."

"Yed can always say exactly what you please Denham, but I say that unless you clear out of this at once I shan't expect to see oyu back at work next Monday."

The man swore under his breath, scratched his head and looked into the crown of his hat.

"All right, master," he said, moving away. "But Johua Denham won't forget as hom Squire Fleming stood by and 'elped to best him o' two pun ten!"

CHAPTER IV.

Paul Farley Makes a Friend

Squire Fleming placed Paul's arm within his own.

"You are a bit dazed my man," he said, leading him across the street to a freshly painted, comfortable looking inn. "I always put up at the 'Popinjay.' My dog cart is waiting in the yard now; it's the only respectable house in the place. Just come into the front parlour and let's us see what mischief the brute has done."

"I say, Mrs. Radler," he said to the buxom landlady they encountered in the sanded passage, "just bring a brandy and soda, and a bowl of warm water; this gentleman has met with an accident."

"Why, it's Mr. Farley," she cried in surprise. "Oh, my. Well, I won't be a minute, sir."

Paul sat down on the horsehair couch feeling sick and giddy. Squire Fleming turned up the light and set the lamp on the edge of the table near the sofa.

"By Jove! That's an ugly cut," he said, removing the hand pressed over the wounded eye. "That scoundrel's knuckle must be made of flint to lay a cheek open in that manner. No, don't touch it, bathe it gently with the warm water."

"Thank you," he continued, relieving the landlady of a basin and towel. "Now, Mrs. Radler, if you could oblige me with an old soft handkerchief, instead of this handmade towel, a small piece of lint, and some plaster, I shouldn't need to give you further trouble."

"No trouble at all, sir," she said, briskly. "I have some lint left of the piece you gave my husband when he cut his wrist a week or two since, and plaster, too."

"Capital! We are in luck's way."

"You are Sir Thomas Hargrave's secretary, I take it," the Squire resumed, uncorking the soda water. "My sister is dining at the Hall this evening."

"I had the pleasure of sitting next to her at dinner," Paul answered, rousing himself with an effort.

"Oh, Mrs. Radler," the Squire exclaimed apologetically, as the good creature again appeared. "I am afraid I shall run you off your legs, but I really must have a pair of sharp scissors."

"I've brought a pair, sir," she said with a breathless laugh. "I knew yon'd want them for the plaster."

"You're a treasure, Mrs. Radler! I suppose a leash of partridges won't come amiss?"

Teacher Cured of Barber's Itch

Tells of Cures Among His Pupils That Were Remarkable

Raw, Inflamed, Itching Skin is Soothed and Healed by

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Barber's Itch is a form of Ringworm, which, when once started, is most annoying and unsightly, and most difficult to cure. Barbers often refuse to shave anyone having this disease, for fear of passing it on to other customers.

But you can cure Barber's Itch and keep the skin wonderfully soft, and healthy by applying Dr. Chase's Ointment. Just read what this teacher has to say about the healing power of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. Chas. C. Poirier, Upper Caraquet, N. B., writes: "Two years ago while teaching at Shippegan I caught Barber's Itch. A friend told me Dr. Chase's Ointment would cure me, as it had him. When I went for a box I thought it dear, but when I found how good it was I thought it cheap.

"Not only was I cured by that single box, but it also cured two of my pupils, and this too quickly to be believed. One of them, a girl, had a running sore on the chin, which the doctor had tried in vain to cure. The other had a sore on the ear; water running out of it all the time. I can certify to the cure of these cases."

Wherever there is itching skin or a sore that refuses to heal you can apply Dr. Chase's Ointment with positive assurance that the results will be entirely satisfactory. The soothing, healing power of this great ointment is truly wonderful. One a box, at all dealers, or Edmandson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

WHAT KIND OF MEN DO WE NEED IN THE COUNCIL?

Subject Discussed by Rev. W. C. Riddiford in the Series of Splendid Addresses at Park Street Baptist Church.

AN INTERESTING SERMON

On Sunday night at the Park street Baptist church, the Rev. W. C. Riddiford preached the fourth sermon in the series to a large and attentive audience. There was nothing abusive or personal in the address. It was a sane, safe, but a much needed message, pointing out in no uncertain way, that the highest and safest type of a man is the Christian man.

The subject under discussion was, "What kind of men do we need in the council." The text was found in Proverbs, 17: 24, "Wisdom is before him that hath understanding, but the eyes of a fool are in the ends of the earth." I suppose Solomon is here referring to a section of his numerous wives, who attended to everybody's business but their own. There are some women and a few men like that in Peterborough. Their eyes are upon everybody else but themselves. They couldn't see into their own souls if they wished to, because the dust of gossip is so thick upon the windows. Now, I do not wish to insinuate that any of our city councillors are like that. They are a fine body of men. They have done us good service in the past year; and so far as I can see, are prepared to do us better service in the future. Now, what kind of men do we need in the council? That is the question. I have been asked to try and answer to-night. I trust I shall, in part at least, succeed. I think a minister should be interested in civic affairs. The minister is called to be a force in civic affairs, just as well as any other man. I know there are two classes of people who object to the minister being directly any force whatever in civic matters.

The first class are the uncommonly good. The second class, the frankly good. Curiously enough, both sum up their objections in one high-sounding, pietic ,pet phrase, which is "Let the minister stick to preaching the pure gospel." Now, the remarkable fact that two classes of people, morally antipodal, should use the same phrase is itself suggestive of something radically wrong. The two classes of people would keep the minister in a band-box—keep him out of activity in civic life for opposite reasons.

One fears the contamination of the truth, or pure gospel, for which the dear blessed man is supposed to stand, by undignifying it. It is a very undignified thing to call a bar-room the devil's slop kitchen. Well, that's what it is anyway. The other class fears the endangering of their selfish business, and raise the cry, "Let the minister preach the pure gospel, but let him shut his eyes to the awful inroads of drink upon the homes of Peterborough. Let him shut his eyes to the awful fact that here, in this city, the white slave traders are at work trying to tempt our daughters into the haunts of vice. Let him close his eyes to the law-breaking of our civic life and preach the pure gospel." But when God and Belial seem thus unequally yoked together, it is time to beware.

I have no fault to find with our police force and protection. I do not think there is a better Christian Chief of Police in Canada than our own Dan Thompson. Peterborough should be proud of the police and firemen. Let us use them white, and assist them, not by knocking, but by sympathy and friendliness. The one thing in our civic apparatus I am ashamed of is, our beautiful, antiquated city hall. But the new council will attend to that, as well as provide a branch of the Public Library for the south end. We should have a branch. But there, I must not dictate to the council or some one will accuse me of meddling in civic affairs and not preaching the pure, the Simon-pure gospel.

Now what would our local option contests amount to without the preachers? This city rolled up to its credit, over five hundred majority for local option, and the preachers helped some in that. The pure gospel, according to the saintly objector, is too pure to drop down into the saloon or gambling den. But I have noticed, that the best cure for the boose habit and the gambling habit, is the pure gospel of Jesus Christ. This gospel of Jesus Christ is able to save to the uttermost, all who will accept it. The pure gospel the man of the world talks about, is the gospel which will allow men to distill and sell the devil's slop, break up homes and impose burdens upon the state by their bar-rooms, and in a sense we cannot blame them, so long as the state is content to build up its powers by the aid of this blood tax. For that is all the bar-room is. It is the devil's Hydro-Electric road to hell, to all who patronize it. The bar-room is a civic burden and hindrance. Listen, ye keepers and supporters of bar-rooms! No drunkard shall inhert the kingdom of God. That is pure gospel. Can you blame the preacher for lifting his voice against such a gigantic civic giant of evil. I hope the next time we come up against the bar-rooms of this city, that the Christian manhood of our city will so assert itself that they will be sent to their own place. I respect the men in the bar-room business as men, but I hate the business.

But there is a third class. There are some not openly bad, who occupy high places in church and community and civic councils. This class make me good and mad. They are the very worst sort of hypocrites; worst in effect even though partially unconscious of their callous hypocrisy. They are earnest cowards, chiefly fearing petty business losses or trivial insurance of taxes; or loss of votes. Of course we Baptists have no use for this exemption of taxes business. All churches should pay taxes. All vacant land should be taxed. The working man should not be taxed for making improvements on his little home. The miserable, rich land owner, who makes the tax payers pay for him, should be made to pay taxes upon all his vacant land and lots. I guess that is single tax. Well, if it is; that's what I believe in, and municipal ownership. I'm a sort of Grit-Socialist-Co-operative, so I come to answer this question, "What kind of men do we need in the council," by saying, most emphatically, Christian men, who believe in the ideals of Jesus Christ, men who are in sympathy with the life teachings of Jesus Christ.

As a Christian city, surely we should put a high value upon the character of the men who represent us in our council. If we get that type of a man we will also get intelligence. The highest type of workable intelligence in this world is Christian intelligence. We have a fine type of manhood represented in the candidates who are seeking election at our hands. We cannot vote for them all, but let us go to the polls to-morrow as Christian men, determined that this city shall be exalted by virtue of the righteousness of the council we elect. Let us have the highest moral manhood available in our councils.

It seems to be thought that the essential quality which constitutes a Christian is a kind of phantom excellence, which keeps in the background of life, or glides timidly among life's realities, and that if a man is going to grapple with this tough, old, dirty world, and hammer his way through it, and get anything out of it, he must do it by dint of the earth-spirit that is in him. This is all a mistake; on the contrary, the fibres of all real manliness are in Christian discipline and a good deal which passes for power in the world, is essential weakness. Christian citizenship is the highest citizenship. Christian citizenship is manhood always rising to the top. It is the application of the truth of Christ to daily living. It is the practice of Christ-life every day.

Yes, we want Christian councillors, who follow Christ. Like his Master, the Christian councillor goes about doing good, in all the ways he can, to as many as he can. He is not only good on Sunday, but his goodness is spread over the week and touches life in all its various ramifications. He is interested in the poor and needy. He will legislate for the mass and not for the class. He will give equal rights to all, and special privileges to none. The Christian alderman knows he is the servant of the people and not a ward boss. The ideal alderman will not take graft, stir up religious dissension, or stoop to the level of the street to catch votes. The Christian alderman knows that he belongs to society. It is for the good of his fellow-man that he lives and works. Society is his master and he is the servant.

The Christian councillor is an optimist. He believes in his city, works for his city, lives for the city, Peterboroughs' fame, Peterborough's name. Peterborough's future progress depends upon the character and aims of the men we elect to our council. The Christian councillor is not like Solomon's fool, whose eyes are on the ends of the earth. No, his eyes are on the day-life of his city, this city. He is alive to the city's needs. Let us have men who will look after the milk inspection, meat inspection, put a new wing on our hospital, built a decent city hall, and a respectable cage for jail-birds, poor fellows and all the rest. Let us elect men to a council who see our needs, and who will make an honest effort to serve them, whether it be Hydro-Electric or anything else.

In Christianity, there is a progression towards fuller knowledge, larger views and more comprehensive understanding of things spiritual and eternal. We are coming to realise that an unworthy citizen cannot be a good Christian. When a Nero is on the throne, Christian co-operation with the powers that be, is indeed difficult. New York, by its Christian power, boosted Tammany Hall, and by its Christian Governor Hughes, put down gambling. That's civic reform. To have good civic government, we must have good men in our council. Good men make mistakes, but they are honest mistakes, not graft mistakes.

Don't elect men who claim they are infallible ;they will turn out dupots. Infallibility is incompatible with human governments. It belong to God alone. He makes no mistakes. It is human to err, it is divine to forgive; men cannot be perfect. Living as we do, in a professedly Christian city, whose chief magistrates have almost, without exception, confessed the Christian faith, we must make for civic duty a large place in civic administration. Long enough has the inactivity of the best meant the opportunity of the worst men. It is a Christian man's duty to allow himself to be elected to our civic councils and governments.

If we want good government, we must elect good men. Peterborough is blessed in that regard. So, in conclusion I would say, the kind of men we need in the council are: First, Christian men. Second, men who are alive to our city's needs. Third, men who have convictions about certain things and dare to stand by them.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

WINTER MEETINGS OF THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE

Instructive Addresses Given by Messrs. C. W. Gurney and E. S. Hopkins at Stewart's Hall—Meeting is Being Held at Fourth Line of Smith To-day.

The first of the winter meetings of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute opened very encouragingly on Wednesday afternoon at Stewart's hall in Otonabee. The initial meeting was fairly well attended and great enthusiasm was displayed by those who did attend. Mr. C. W. Gurney, of Paris, and Mr. E. S. Hopkins, of Norwood, the latter the Peterborough District representative of the Agricultural department, were the main speakers present, the former giving a very intelligent and interesting lecture on the "Selection and Training of Horses".

Mr. Gurney's address was the first on the afternoon's programme, and by the aid of charts picturing horses, his talk was made exceptionally interesting. The shapes of the heads of the horses illustrated, were pointed out by Mr. Gurney, as indicative of various characteristics pertaining to different horses, and he clearly showed how the temperament of a horse can be plainly recognized by certain out-standing features.

Pedigree Important.

"Pedigree is very important" said Mr. Gurney "in choosing your horse. Any person going into the horse-breeding business should invariably fix a type in his mind of the class of animal he wishes. It takes a great deal of care and good environment to bring a horse up to a high standard.

"Select your best mare and then be sure to take her to a good stallion and one of recognised good quality. Under-sized stallions are about the worst kind we have got, and many farmers are under a misapprehension regarding the quality of a stallion.

There is nothing better for keeping a boy on the farm, like giving him a good horse. A little money put on a good horse is a great thing to invest in, and tends to create a pardonable pride in your animals.

"A horse that stands up well is one that is always envied and to cultivate this habit is greatly to be desired. In the stallion one thing is absolutely necessary and that is a masculine appearance. It is necessary in every class of cattle. There should be nothing effeminate in the body or head of any good stallion. There should be good width between the ears, a good strong forehead and firm sloping shoulders. The latter is necessary in every case. With a sloping shoulder almost always goes a good prominent breast.

"A little droop at the hind quarters is not objectionable, but on the contrary, it is often advantageous. The tendency is a good one. A horse, however, with too much muscle and meat on the thigh is not to be sought.

"In regard to the feet, a great deal has been said about unsoundness. We like a broad hock and tapering well in front. A horse is never born with unsoundness, but it generally comes through wrong habits of breeding.

"A big, roomy, loose mare will lose more foals than do the stronger, more compact mares. The more compact the better they get along, and the tendency to longevity is bound up in quality.

"Regarding the breeding of mares, farmers by necessity are forced to breed mares".

Methods of Breeding.

"In breeding your mare give her a little bit of a chance. Don't work her too hard. Give a stallion a good smart trot every day. It gives him a vigour every time. It is the same with a mare. Don't work her in harness to excess, but allow her a brisk trot regularly. Great care and precaution should be taken to keep the mare and stallion in a clean, healthy condition.

Mr. Gurney also favoured the artificial breeding of foals.

"The early foals are most liable to live. Don't let a mare on very much grass as it is deleterious to them during foal". Along foaling time a mare needs to be watched. In foaling there are several very important and vital matters to be guarded, all of which the speaker described minutely.

At the conclusion of Mr. Gurney's address, an open discussion was allowed and many of those present had their horse-training problems solved by the speaker. The address was heartily applauded.

Mr. E. S. Hopkins.

Chairman J. H. Garbutt, the president of the Institute, called upon Mr. E. S. Hopkins for the next address. Mr. Hopkins' topic was relative to "Drainage" and he treated the subject in a most up-to-date and comprehensive manner.

The speaker referred to a few of the benefits of drainage, which he considered were of main importance.

Look at drainage from the standpoint of fertility and how it can be adapted to the farm. A 12 in. drain is as large as is necessary for a tile drain. "Where should we distinguish a tile or an open drain?" The open drains are practically a necessity in nearly every case. The speaker did not favour a too technical address on drainage, but a more practical treatment of the subject. Mr. Hopkins referred to a plan he carried of the best system of drainage to his knowledge, which he presented to his hearers for their inspection.

The question of grading is a source of difficulty to many farmers. The best plan is the overhead line which is generally adopted and which has been found to be successful every time. The plan was described simply by the speaker in such a manner as to be easily understood.

The question comes, where and to what depths the drains should be placed?

For average soil, about 30 feet apart is the correct distance, although drains 30 ft. apart have been put in. One professor says that 3 feet is the correct depth, although the condition of the soil must be considered. With regard to protecting the outlet, unless you have a good system you practically have no outlet at all. There should be a drop of about six feet at the outlet of the tile. Then there is the question of the sand traps, which, in certain cases, can be well employed, where deposition of sediment in grades can be looked after. With regard to a traction ditcher, many farmers wonder why there is none in this community. The cost is very high and a certain amount of work must be guaranteed the traction ditcher ere the department will send one.

Mr. Hopkins went thoroughly into the bearing of the law upon drainage there being three of these laws, each of which was thoroughly discussed.

A period for discussion also followed the conclusion of Mr. Hopkins' address.

EVENING SESSION.

The institute session was resumed in the evening at 8 o'clock. The attendance filled the hall, and the ladies especially turned out in large numbers.

Mr. Gurney was agin called upon to address the gathering first, his subject being the "Training of Horses" and was also illustrated by charts.

The preliminary part of the address was confined to describing the correct and only method of breaking in a colt, and of how to gain the first mastery of a spirited and unruly animal. The speaker also illustrated with a rope, some clever knots that have proven of standard efficiency in nearly every case.

After having won the first victory over the animal, the next step is the placing of the harness upon him. In bridling the horse be sure the bridle is not too tight. In one of the diagrams the speaker showed a certain hobble attached to the front fetlocks, which can be used to decided advantage in breaking in a colt, and getting it accustomed to being driven. Take plenty of time in getting the colt hitched up. Possibly the colt will want to get away too quickly. Don't allow him to have his way, but force him to walk, and make the colt see that you are the master.

Mr. Gurney's address was extremely well delivered and he was heartily applauded at the finish of his address.

District Representative.

E. S. Hopkins was the next speaker, taking as his subject "The Work of District Representatives". "It is the purpose of our live stock short judging courses to educate the farmers along all lines," said the speaker in commencement.

"It is a known fact that we have evolution in agriculture as in other lines. There was a time when farming was not as congenial as now. We hope by Institute meetings to mitigate these uncongenial circumstances and improve conditions on the farm. One professor says that there has been a big increase in farm production, mainly due to better methods of agriculture. In the last 12 years there have been increases in the percentage of the yield per acre of grains, etc. If we could get even bigger increases we undoubtedly have even more uncongenial influences on the farm. The district representatives are employed to disseminate the accumulative data which has been collected at the agricultural colleges, with a view to creating more interest in farming.

Many farmers, for instance, do not properly cultivate their orchards. The district representatives are now in the habit of making experiments, and demonstrating new methods of orchard cultivation, and the system has been found to be of immense value. The Ontario field crop competition also induces good grain raising. Take the subject of agricultural education which is something new. The subject should be part of the curriculum of all the rural schools, and it is the intention of the Department to introduce the subject into the schools.

Mr. H. B. Cowan.

Mr. H. B. Cowan, editor of Farm and Dairy, began by asking what had happened to the egg circle in Otonabee. He endorsed Mr. Hopkins' remarks upon the good work the agricultural societies are doing for the province.

"One farmer," said Mr. Cowan, had told him that nineteen out of twenty farmers had mortgages on their farms. Also a large percentage of farmers' children were unable to even read or write. Statistics reveal that there is a tremendous exodus from the farm to the city.

Mr. Cowan gave a very good address and his words received an attentive hearing. A vote of thanks was tendered him on motion of Messrs. Robert Hanbridge and Deyell.

During the evening meeting two good musical numbers were introduced. The Johnston family of ten children, in singing and dancing, performed very cleverly and the crowds liberally applauded the number.

Mr. Bert Deyell was heard in two excellent vocal selections.

Miss Annie Deyell was accompanist.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS SECURE NEW QUARTERS

The Peterborough branch of the Knights of Columbus have purchased the residence of the late Jas. Stevenson, Hilmore street, to which place they propose to remove the headquarters in Peterborough of the Order. It is understood that the price paid for the property is $6,000. This property will make a very suitable Club House for the Peterborough branch, and as the price paid, seems to be a bargain. It is the intention of the Peterborough Branch to remodel the house and make it more suitable for the purposes of the club, and build an addition.

SHE GAINED 28 LBS.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Harlowe, Ont., writes: "I was troubled for many years with weak, watery blood and dropsy. I had nervous headaches, dizziness, and shaking spells, and was, in fact, a confirmed invalid. Doctors said my heart and kidneys were diseased, and that I was past cure. I began taking Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and have been cured of many of my old complaints and gained 28 pounds in weight."

SEVERAL RUNAWAYS

Excitement This Morning in Different Parts of the City

There were several runaways this morning when the Street Railway sweeper was making its rounds. A horse broke loose on George street north, where it had been left tied, and was caught near Auburn. Little damage was done.

At the corner of Charlotte and George street about 11 o'clock this morning, a couple of ladies driving a spirited horse out Charlotte street, had an exciting experience, when the sweeper reached that point. Several men ran out in front of the Fuel and Cartage Co's office and managed to stop the horse before it had made a good start. As it was, it ran across the street car track, nearly upsetting the cutter and frightening the occupants very much.

At the corner of Park and Charlotte street, a horse attached to a delivery sleigh took fright and ran down Charlotte street to the G. T. R. station, where it was caught, little damage resulting.

FISKE O'HARA

Those who love the rollicking stories of Irish life, such as Charles Lever might write, will find a special charm in the play, "Love's Young Dream," which Fiske O'Hara is presenting this season and which will be presented here at the Grand on Tuesday next, Jan. 9th. This new work is a story of the same period as Charles O'Malley and Larry Lorrequer, and has that same dare-devil atmosphere in which the pulse of the reader or auditor beats faster and with good wholesome blood. It is the period in which gallantry held away; when for love's sake a young blade was willing to face his hunter at the dangerous stone fence, or try his luck in the duello. Of such a character is the hero of "Love's Young Dream." Mr. O'Hara is exceptionally happy in a role of this kind and he is said to have made the greatest success of his career as Barry Carroll, the dashing young physician who is the central figure of the story. With a lot of new songs and some old time favourites, there can be hardly any doubt of the popularity of Mr. O'Hara's latest play. The seat sale opens Saturday morning.

Prizes For Photographs

An interesting announcement was made yesterday in this paper by the Cranston Novelty Advertising Company of 123 Bay street, Toronto, which will doubtless attract a lot of attention among photographers, either amateur or professional, in Peterborough. The company are giving $10 in prizes for the best series of four or more photographs of picturesque scenery, prominent people, children, cattle, horses or other subjects that would be suitable for calendar pictures. The company is preparing a patriotic series of Canadian views for calendar and other purposes for the 1912-13 season.

THE ANNUAL BANQUET OF G. WALTER GREEN COMPANY

The Employees Were Entertained Round the Festive Board Last Night by the Company—Event a Great Success.

SOME OF THE SPEECHES

Most successful and enjoyable in every way was the annual banquet tendered by the G. Walter Green Company to their employees, which took place at Hooper's Palm Parlours last night. About sixty persons sat down to a sumptuous repast, the tables being laden with the delicacies of the season. Mr. G. Walter Green, president of the Company, made a most acceptable chairman, while Mr. T. O. Donaldson the secretary, ably performed the duties of vice-chairman.

The toast to the King was proposed by Mr. Green and was honoured in the usual manner by the singing of the national anthem.

Mr. Hill rendered a few splendid piano selections with skill and feeling.

Mr. W. R. Morris, the auditor of the company proposed the toast of the ladies in a happy speech, which was responded to in bright speeches by Mr. Maude and Mr. F. D. Kerr.

Mr. T. O. Donaldson, the secretary of the company, proposed the toast, "The Employees," eulogizing the loyalty of the employees to the company. The toast was responded to by Messrs. Maude, Wood, Kelly, Londerville, Hardill, Bruce Sloane, David Kelly, Pogue, Jas. Johnston, Riley, Wallace, Thorne and Neil.

Mr. Brown sang a solo with good effect, receiving an enthusiastic encore.

Mr. W. W. Mallory and son gave a violin duet and responded to an encore and then accompanied Mr. Andrews in a splendidly executed clog dance.

Mr. Bearce sang 'Scots' Wha Hae' in splendid voice and for an encore 'Annie Laurie."

Mr. Hardill proposed the toast, "The G. Walter Green Company" and it was responded to by the President, G. Walter Green. He disclaimed any powers as a speaker, but felt strongly his pleasure in seeing so many of his loyal employees—all friends—present. Some twenty-five years ago he had started in business alone, with himself as a sole employee and it was now a source of gratification to find himself the head of a progressive company with fifty men on the rolls. Business had expanded, and now the Green Company machinery was found on the shores of the Atlantic on the east and the Pacific on the west.

Mr. Andrews then played a selection on the mouth organ, followed by a splendid descriptive selection imitating a train.

In response to the toast of "Our Banking Industries," Mr. Eastwood of the Royal Bank made a happy response and concluded by proposing the toast to "The Press," which was responded to by a most interesting speech from Mr. Dobbin of the Review. Mr. Brown gave a couple of select ions before the gathering dispersed.

BELLEVILLE GIRL FIGURES IN BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT

DETROIT, MICH., JAN. 4. — Claiming damages to her affections in the sum of $50,000, Miss Violet Schram began suit against Dr. Frederick B. Ashton, a well-known Woodward avenue physician, for breach of promise of marriage. The suit was called in the Circuit Court yesterday afternoon. Miss Schram, who is about 30 years old and of good appearance, says that Dr. Ashton "kept company" with her to the exclusion of other desirable men, and that at the end of that time the physician met and fell in love with Miss Margaret Galley, a pretty young woman of Belleville, Ont. Miss Schram alleges that when she reproached her lover with his preference for the Canadian girl, the doctor remarked: "Well, you know it is not often a fellow gets a snap like this," and from this time on Ashton's affections according to Miss Schram were transferred wholly to Belleville, where he married Miss Galley, May 24, 1910.

URIC ACID SUFFERING

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Salvation Army Is Grateful

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—With your permission, I wish to thank all the citizens who have so kindly and generously assisted the Salvation Army Band, in connection with this season's Christmas serenading. The response, so far, has been most generous, from all classes, and we appreciate the kindness of all who have given, either when they were serenaded at their residences, or under cover, by mail. One cause of regret, however, was the absence from their homes, when we called, of so many of our old friends and regular subscribers, and I would like to assure any who have therefore been overlooked or missed, that we would be very pleased indeed, to have the opportunity of again numbering them among the host of friends who so cheerfully give the Peterborough S. A. Temple Band their annual lift, financially. All donations received by mail in response to this reminder will be acknowledged in like manner.

Again thanking all our friends for their assistance, on behalf of the Band—J. H. Merritt, Ensign; W. Peryer, Bandmaster.

HASTINGS ITEMS OF INTEREST

Examiner Special:

HASTINGS, JAN. 3.—The concert in the town hall, under the auspices of the Methodist Sunday School was a grand success. The hall was filled to its utmost capacity. The first part of the programme was given mainly by the Juniors, the concert closing with a humorous sketch, "Jumbo Jum". While most of the numbers reflected credit on those who had the children in charge, special mention might be made of the "tennis drill" by six girls and six boys, and the march and song "Red, White and Blue" by eighteen girls, who showed that no small amount of effort brought the numbers to such perfection. The committee are to be congratulated on the success of the entertainment.

Collectors have been making a tour of the district in the interests of the Upper Canada Bible Society.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

Woman Buried Forty Feet by Train and Is Unhurt

Two women narrowly escaped serious injury by being thrown out of a cutter on Water street this morning. Their horse, which was a spirited one, was frightened by the approach of the Street Railway sweeper. Rearing madly it turned the corner suddenly, throwing the occupants out into the roadway. With the exception of a few bruises they were uninjured. The horse was captured and a miscellaneous collection of rugs, cushions, etc., gathered up, and the women, who hailed from the township of Smith, went on their way rejoicing.

COLOURED PICTURES OF LONDON PAGEANTS

To-night's Show at Grand Opera House a Great Spectacle

Nothing short of wonderful is what those who have seen the exhibition of the Kinemacolor pictures of the Coronation in Toronto and Montreal say. The UrbenSmith views were taken by Royal command that the empire at large might have an opportunity of seeing the Coronation pageant. Every tint of colour, every glint of sun on bared bayonet, helmet, or golden coach is shown; every detail of that most marvellous event since the day of the "Field of the Cloth of Gold." The Kinemacolor exhibition will be at the Grand Opera House for the balance of the week, while of course the Coronation is the great event which the Kinemacolor illustrates, there are others. The programme in part, is as follows: The Royal Horse Show at Richmond, London Street Scenes Under Normal Conditions, The North-west Mounted Police, Reviewed at Montreal on Their Way to London; the same body in camp at London, Inspected by Earl Roberts; London on June 21st, showing city and stands the day before the Coronation; the Regalia Procession at Westminster Abbey; Peers and Peeresses Leaving Chelsea for Westminster; the Coronation Procession, the Royal Progress Through London, the Vessels Lined up at Spithead for the famous review; the Procession Along the Mall, the Procession from Hyde Park Corner, showing His Majesty receiving the City Sword from the Lord Mayor at Temple Bar. Then there are the remarkable pictures of a Trip on Lake Coms.

New interest will ibe given this engagement by the interesting explanatory lecture of Sydney Herbert, who for the past two years was a leading feature at the Scala Theatre, London, Eng., the permanent home of Kinemacolor life realities.

Special musical numbers has been arranged for all Kinemacolor subjects, and will be rendered by Miss Florence Virkler.

Delivery of Gold Makes Imperialists Feel Hopeful

RETREAT FOR THE EMPEROR

Pekin, Jan. 4.—Confidence continues to revive among the adherents of the Imperial court. The Chinese nation is very easily encouraged or discouraged owing to its trait of timidity. Nowhere else in the world could 80,000 ounces of gold bars such as were delivered from the Imperial purse into the hands of Premier Yuan Shi Kai Tuesday seriously affect a great empire at a critical moment.

A belief is current that fighting will shortly be resumed. Premier Yuan Shi Kai has not received any reply from Wu Ting Feng at Shanghai, who he informed that he would in future carry on negotiations by telegraph. It is understood that the republicans object to negotiate by telegraph.

The Imperial delegates, who have returned here from Shanghai, state that a reign of terror prevails in that city. Nobody dares to venture an opinion in favor of a constitutional monarchy.

In quarters closely connected with the Imperial Government, it is believed that the important provinces of Hupeh and Hunan are dissatisfied with the foreign educated element, which is dominating the affairs at Shanghai. The hope exists in these quarters that these two provinces will soon revert to the idea of a constitutional monarchy.

In case Yuan Shi Kai makes satisfactory progress in the course of this month in his attempts to suppress the rebellion, more treasure will be forthcoming from the coffers of the Manchu princes and the Imperial court.

Tang Quits Gracefully.

Shanghai, Jan. 4.—"I have done my best for my country and do not desire to embarrass my old chief." That is all that Tang Shao Yi would say for publication after the announcement of his resignation as a representative of Premier Yuan Shi Kai to the peace conference.

Tang Shao Yi appears to be much affected over the situation. Up to Tuesday night he believed that peace was assured and that there would be no further bloodshed.

Emperor Going to Mongolia.

Harbin, Jan. 4.—The commander of the Imperial troops at Zekhe, Mongolia, has received 100,000 taels and instructions to prepare a residence for the Emperor and other members of the royal family, and to organize a Mongol bodyguard.

No Negotiations by Wire.

London, Jan. 4.—Wu Ting Fang has written to Premier Yuan Shi Kai, says The Daily Telegraph's Shanghai correspondent, informing the Premier that he declines to carry on negotiations by telegraph. He insists upon Yuan Shi Kai coming to Shanghai for that purpose. Dr. Wu believes that the Premier is willing to join the republicans, but is afraid to leave Pekin.

A despatch from St. Petersburg to The Telegraph says that there is danger of Mongolia splitting into three separate kingdoms. Eastern Mongolia has already proclaimed independence at Urga. Western and Southern Mongolia are preparing to follow suit, with capitals at Kobdo and Ullassutai.

Montreal Fighting Railway.

Montreal, Jan. 4.—The Quebec Legislature is, according to information gleaned at the City Hall yesterday, to witness a repetition of the fight which took place at Quebec last February between the civic authorities of Montreal and the representatives of the Montreal Street Railway Co., aldermen having yesterday morning expressed in caucus a determination to send a delegation down to Quebec to make one more stand against the ratification of the tramways amalgamation as it now stands through the street railway company's action.

The aldermen have been informed that it is the company's expressed intention to present a private bill before the Legislature in its coming session, which will ask for legislative sanction to the amalgamation of the Montreal Street Railway with the Terminal and Park and Island and the Public Service Corporation.

EVANS IS DEAD.

"Fighting Bob" a Victim of Sudden Attack of Indigestion.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Rear-Admiral Robley D. Evans, retired, died suddenly last night of acute indigestion. He had been apparently in the best of health up to the minute he was stricken.

Admiral Evans, one of the most popular men in the United States navy, arose yesterday morning apparently in better health than he has enjoyed for some time. He lunched at two o'clock and almost immediately afterward was stricken. Dr. S. S. Adams was called hurriedly, but the naval officer lapsed into unconsciousness, dying at 4.45 o'clock.

Admiral Evans started the battleship fleet in its cruise around the world, resigning command at San Francisco because of his approaching retirement from the service. From President Taft down, officials of the Government last night expressed the deepest regret over his sudden demise.

Robley Dunglison Evans was born Aug. 16, 1846, in Floyd County, Virginia, and educated in the public schools of Washington. He graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1863, and was made an ensign in October of that year. He participated in both attacks on Fort Fisher in January, 1865, and in the land attack received four severe rifle shot wounds. He achieved his lieutenancy in 1866, became a lieutenant commander in 1868, and a commander in 1878. When in command of the Yorktown in 1891, at Valparaiso, Chile, his conduct when American sailors were attacked, earned for him the name of "Fighting Bob" Evans.

He was promoted to a captaincy in 1893, and in 1898 commanded the battleship Iowa in Sampson's fleet, taking an active part in the destruction of Cervera's fleet off Santiago, Cuba. He was appointed president of the board of inspection and survey, and was made a rear-admiral on Feb. 11, 1901.

He was commander-in-chief of the Asiatic station, 1902-4, and commanded the Atlantic fleet from 1905 to 1907. He retired on Aug. 18, 1908.

Since his retirement he has devoted himself to writing his memoirs and to the directorate of oil fields in California.

Fire In Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Jan. 4.—For over two hours last evening the fire department fought a stubborn fire in the central district in an atmosphere of 30 below zero. The origin of the fire, which was in the Excelsior Motor Works, on Garry street, about a block from the postoffice, and in the same block on the same side of the street with Premier Roblin's residence.

The loss in the garage includes 16 motor cars, averaging $1,800 each, while a terrace of houses, the fronts of which had been extended for stores, was destroyed, at a loss of about $13,000; the total loss being placed at $75,000. During the fire two firemen had their feet badly cut by jumping on to broken glass.

The firemen were handicapped by the failure of high pressure on two occasions, the fire gaining at once and spreading south.

Too Much Fresh Meat.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—W. D. Miles, general manager of the Armour Packing Co. at Kansas City from 1894 to 1905, testified yesterday in the trial of the ten Chicago packers, charged with criminal violation of the Sherman anti-trust laws, that the old packers pools were organized to prevent the glutting of the market with fresh meat and that there always was active competition between the members in all parts of the country.

Despite the fact that Miles had on two occasions given testimony against the packers before federal grand juries, he proved an unwilling witness yesterday, and little of value to the Government's case was gleaned from his direct examination, which was not concluded when court adjourned.

Stepped In Front of Train.

Paris, Ont., Jan. 4.—Geo. Spahleghr, aged 54, a piano tuner, of Goderich, was killed here by a train Tuesday night. He had been waiting for a train to take him home and walked on to the track directly in front of the express, which does not stop.

BILLS ARE NOW READY

Government is Making Work for Session of Commons

TRADE WITH WEST INDIES

Ottawa, Jan. 4.—When Parliament reassembles on Wednesday next the Government will be ready to provide it with work. The period before Christmas served the purposes of getting rid of the inevitable post-mortem upon the election, and of getting the estimates for the current year finally voted.

On reassembling the Ministry will promptly lay before the Commons the estimates for 1912-13, and, in addition, on the opening day will have three bills ready to introduce—that respecting the Department of External Affairs, that respecting the archives, and that respecting the status of private secretaries of Ministers.

A vigorous pushing forward of business may be expected from the start.

The Government has already taken steps to implement the promise contained in the speech from the throne for closer trade relations between Canada and the British West Indies.

Negotiations have been opened through the Imperial authorities with the West Indies, and the expectation is that the progress now being made will clear the way for more direct and detailed conferences between representatives of the West Indies and the Government of Canada.

The Canadian end of the negotiations now in progress is in charge of the Minister of Trade and Commerce, Hon. George E. Foster. The object toward which the negotiations are now working is the establishment of a mutual trade preference. As long ago as 1898 Canada gave the West Indies a preference of 25 per cent. and got nothing in return.

The royal commission, headed by Lord Balfour of Burleigh, which was appointed by the British Government to investigate West Indian trade conditions, reported in 1910 that the islands might be willing to extend a 20 per cent. preference to Canadian products and accept a lower Canadian preference in return, provided the present Canadian system of letting in each year a little foreign sugar at lower rates were discounted.

The Island of Barbados, some time ago, passed an act giving preferential treatment to certain Canadian products, but the list was not large enough for Canada, especially as the Dominion was required to grant a still more extended preference in return.

It is understood that the principal difficulty to be encountered in the negotiations is the somewhat complicated condition of the sugar trade, and the unwillingness of the Island of Jamaica, the most important fruit-exporting island of the group, to jeopardize its commercial relations with the United States.

Chanler Gets Divorce.

Paris, Jan. 4.—"If Cavalieri comes in by the door, I will jump out by the window," was the statement made by Robert Winthrop Chanler of New York, according to the decision court here yesterday in granting a divorce of Mme. Lina Cavalieri, the grand opera singer, from Chanler, on the ground that Chanler repeatedly refused to receive his wife at his conjugal domicile Chanler adhered to his purpose not to contest the divorce suit and the proceedings were of a purely formal character. Chanler was condemned to pay all costs.

Quebec Legislature Tuesday.

Quebec, Jan. 4.—Daily meetings of the Provincial Cabinet are being held at the Parliament Buildings, the Ministers being busily engaged in preparing the business for the coming session, which opens on Tuesday next. It has been decided that Mr. Lactare Roy, the new Minister for Levis, will move the address and the seconder will be W. H. Walker, member from Huntingdon. In the Legislative Council the address will be prepared by Hon. George H. Amyot and the seconder will probably be Hon. Mr. Bryson.

Aylmer Sets Timber Limits.

Ottawa, Jan. 4.—After six months' discussion the Aylmer Council Tuesday night decided to prohibit the piling of lumber inside the town limits.

For the last five years the residents of Aylmer have lived in constant terror of the large lumber yards inside the town catching fire, which would mean, if the wind was high, the total destruction of the town.

Last summer the lumber yards were burned and it was only by the good work of the Ottawa firemen that the town was saved.

Hayti's Little War.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, Jan. 4.—The losses sustained by the Dominican Government in the first attack along the Haytien frontier by the revolutionary forces under Gen. Nelson Toribio, are reported to be 13 killed. The revolutionaries lost three men killed.

A Dominican coast guard arrived here Tuesday evening and left yesterday morning, having on board the chief of the port of Monte Christi, who will communicate with the Dominican authorities on conditions in that district.

Recalls a Sea Mystery.

London, Jan. 4.—A life buoy, inscribed "S. S. Waratah," has been picked up on the west coast of New Zealand. The discovery recalls a mystery of the sea, but throws no light on the loss of the Waratah. It is remarkable that the buoy should have drifted 7,000 nautical miles in two years and five months.

Captain Baker's Danger.

Montreal, Jan. 4.—Captain Baker of the West St. Catharine street police station, who was injured in a clash with McGill students about three months ago, is dangerous ill at his home.

It was while endeavoring to handle a mob of students who were interfering with the street cars that Captain Baker was injured.

SWEEPING VICTORY

Conservatives Capture All But Two Seats in Prince Edward Island

RESULT IS A SURPRISE

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Jan. 4.—The provincial elections yesterday passed off quietly and the Conservative Government achieved a victory, quite beyond precedent in its sweep.

For some weeks past the general opinion had been that the Conservatives would win, but it was still thought by many that eight or ten Liberals at least would be returned, and even the most sanguine were surprised at the vote.

Such a sweep was not anticipated, and in Charlottetown especially the Liberals were completely routed. Every division in the island is Conservative, except Second Prince, which is not yet verified.

On nomination day a week ago one Independent Conservative, Prof. Alex. MacPhail, in the fourth district of Queen's, and five straight Conservatives—Premier Mathieson, his colleague, T. W. Macdonald, in the first district of King's, Hon. John McLean and John Richards in the first district of Queen's, Hon. John A. Macdonald in the third district of Queen's—were elected by acclamation.

In yesterday's elections only two Liberals have said majorities, Hon. John Richards, their leader, and his colleague, A. MacWilliams, in the second district of Prince, who are returned by 125 and 49 respectively.

In the second district of King's M. N. Cox, Liberal, is one vote behind E. Simpson, Conservative. The result will not be known till declaration day, when the special votes put in for these men in other districts all over the Island are counted. They will likely increase Mr. Simpson's majority, judging from previous elections. All the other Liberals have gone down to defeat.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Mme. Curie, the noted scientist, is seriously ill from an acute attack of appendicitis.

Prof. Felix S. Dahn, the German historical writer, novelist and poet, is dead, aged 77.

The Hanbee, a small Spanish steamer trading along the Chinese coast, was attacked and looted by river pirates.

Although 250 miles is about the average distance for wireless messages at sea, the "Empress of Ireland" has been heard from 614 miles east of Cape Race.

Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany arrived in Berlin yesterday from Danzig, where he has been suffering from an affection of the throat which caused anxiety.

James Cowan, caught in the act of passing a razor to a prisoner in the county jail at Brockville was yesterday sentenced to two months' imprisonment by Judge McDonald.

Mrs. May Perlett, a young Chicago widow, was compelled to disrobe yesterday, submit to indignities, and finally was robbed by a man who entered her house as a gas inspector.

Joseph Dupont was drowned when his sleigh broke through the ice on the lake at Allumelle Island, near Pembroke, Ont., after he had returned from driving his sick wife to the hospital.

The Legislative Assembly of Saskatchewan has been summoned to meet at Regina on Thursday, Jan. 25 next, for the opening of the fourth session of the second Legislature of the province.

J. W. Pearce, ex-M.P.P. for North Hastings, has assumed his position as bursar of the provincial deaf and dumb institution at Belleville, the preceding bursar, Wm. Cochrane, having been transferred to the asylum at Cobourg.

Thugs In Vancouver.

Vancouver, B.C., Jan. 4.—Four men working together holding up innocent citizens is the latest in Vancouver thugdom.

A young Englishman, James Malcolm, who was walking home on Melville street just after midnight, was the victim. He met two men who stopped him.

One, pointing a gun, said: "Give us your valuables quick." Just at that moment the young man noticed two other men on the opposite side of the street walking. Ducking away from a possible shot from the hold-up men, Malcolm ran across the street, shouting for aid from the new arrivals and they received him with open arms with another revolver. They pressed the gun in his ribs and held him so he could not get away. The first two men walked away, apparently assured that their two comrades would do the job well. The young man was relieved of $18 in cash and a heavy overcoat before being told to walk homeward.

Berlin's Furniture Show.

Berlin, Dec. 4.—Plans are about complete for the holding here on Jan. 9, 10, 11, and 12, one of the greatest furniture exhibitions ever held in Canada. Twenty-five furniture manufacturers in Berlin and Waterloo will exhibit in their show rooms the latest creation on furniture and their display will be second to none. It will be the first annual exposition and the latest and most up-to-date exhibits will be placed on view and the idea is to make of it such an exhibit that it will become an annual event.

A great deal depends on the success of this exhibit as permanent show rooms are contemplated along the line of the one now building in Winnipeg should this prove successful.

WYETH'S SAGE AND SULPHUR HAIR REMEDY

Grow a Full Growth of Hair on a Bald Head

Here's the Proof

For two or three years my hair had be a falling out and getting quite thin, until the top of my head was distinctly bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do me no good, and I kept using it regularly, until now I have used four bottles. The white tops of my head is practically covered with hair and I firmly believe in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

GREAT INTEREST IN TO-MORROW'S GAME WITH LINDSAY INTERMEDIATES

The Peterborough intermediate O. H.A. team had its final workout for the opening game with Lindsay on Friday night, at Brock street rink last night with all the regulars except Coughlin out in uniform. The practice was a lively one and the team looks fit to give Lindsay an awful argument here to-morrow night. The game promises to be a fitting opener for the intermediate series and the fans are displaying more than the usual interest in the first contest of the season. There were several hundred rail-birds at the rink last night and they watched the proceedings in a manner that indicates a big crowd to-morrow night. Among those out on the ice was Reddy McGrath, the old Lindsay goal-keeper. To-morrow night's game is called for 8.30 sharp. The Lindsay team is running an excursion to Peterborough, leaving Lindsay at 7.15 o'clock and they will likely bring a big crowd of fans down with them to see the game. The ice will be fast and everything points to a hard-fought, interesting struggle between two good teams.

The Petes will line up as follows:
Goal—Derocher.
Point—Bearss.
Cover—Ray or Bond.
Rover—Giroux.

Machine Shop Team's Officers

At the annual meeting of the C. G. E. Machine Shop Hockey Club, held in the Y.M.C.A. parlours, Wednesday night, the following officers were elected::

Hon. Pres.—Mr. R. A. Anson.
Pres.—Mr. W. S. Rose.
Vice-Pres.—Mr. J. H. Davidson.
Sec.-Treas. and Manager—Bill Milburn.

Executive Commmttee—Messrs. J. Pilling, J. Mahoney, J. H. Davidson, H. A. Webb.

The tea will practise on Saturday to prepare for their first League game on Monday night.

HOCKEY

A suggestion has been made to the O. H. A. clubs that they prohibit smoking in the rinks. At times the atmosphere in the rinks is polluted with smoke, making it unpleasant for the spectators and injurious to the players.

The Oshawa club has been refused a certificate for Leo. Cote. He does not qualify under the residence rule.

The Trenton junior O. H. A. game scheduled for Belleville on Friday night, has been postponed because of lack of ice in the new rink.

BERLIN, ONT., JAN. 3.— "Buck" Irving was in Berlin yesterday and succeeded in making arrangements with the local rink management to assume charge of a professional hockey team in a three-club league, composed of Berlin, Galt and Guelph. Irving has his plans practically completed, and it is proposed to commence the schedule on Friday.

Geo. McNamara has been appointed manager of the Berlin team. Art Service will look after Galt's aggregation, and "Buck" will again try to make a success of pro. hockey in the Royal City. Irving stated yesterday afternoon that players for the respective teams will arrive in a day or two, and the three teams will be strong and evenly matched. He refused to divulge the names, but it is assumed that they will be players who were unsuccessful in securing berths in Eastern and Western leagues. Local hockey patrons are not overly enthusiastic over the eleventh-hour attempt to compete with the O.H.A teams and it is doubtful whether the pro. teams will receive the same support as they have received during th last few seasons. O.H.A. teams here are strong and patrons of the game will give them support.

The junior and intermediate O. H. A. teams had a good workout on the Lindsay Street rink last evening from seven till eight. There was a splendid turnout of players.—Lindsay Post.

There was no meeting of the Town Hockey League last night as those connected with the organization failed to turn up. If more interest is not taken in the proposed league it will have to be disbanded.—Lindsay Post.

The hockey special Friday evening to Peterborough will leave the G. T. R. station at 7.15. The fare is 90 cents, and the admission to the game is 25 cents. Go with the boys and help along our Intermediate O. H. A. team.—Lindsay Post.

The following Lindsay players registered with the O. H. A. Saturday: Junior—W. A. Callaghan, W. J. McMahon, Arthur Chamberland. Herb. L. Begg, F. G. Dennison, Fred Scott, Harry C. Brown, Verse Hickingbotham, P. J. McIntyre, Harold Mercer, R. E. Henley, R. Murray. Intermediate—Peter Spratt, H. J. Metherell, Jos. Cain, John O'Connor. Kenneth Lane, W. H. Roberts, H. E. Paton, Al. Gamble, W. E. Stoddard, Frank Cote, Geo. Heatlie.

BASEBALL

Mullen For California.

"Jimmy" Mullen, the former Toronto second baseman, evidently does not "hanker" for a managerial job. Last week it was practically settled that he would step into Dave Cross' shoes as the manager of the Scranton club, but a hitch of some kind has arisen. It is believed that Mullen would prefer to accompany Bud Sharpe to California and act as the latter's right hand man with the Oakland club the coming season.

Sharpe wants him to go in the worst way and has offered him a handsome sum to play second base for him next season.

That Big League Infield.

President McCaffery intends making a flying visit to Cleveland next week to sign up "Bill" Bradley. He does not figure that he will have much trouble getting the third baseman to accept his terms. Up to date he has not done any business with Amby McConnell, and just how much the second baseman will want he is not prepared to state. Holly is another player to be considered, and the prospects are that when the Toronto club's infield steps out on the diamond next year the Leafs will present the highest salaried quartette in minor league ball.

INAUGURAL MEETING

The inaugural meeting of the Separate School Board was held last evening, all the members being in attendance, viz.:

South Ward—Rev. Dr. O'Brien, Jos. Goselin.
Centre Ward—H. Carveth, James Murty.
West Ward — J. J. Lynch, J. J. Hickey.
North Ward—Thomas J. Lane, J. W. Fitzgerald.
East Ward—D. J. Holland, James Drain.

Mr. J. J. Lynch was chosen chairman, and Mr. John Corkery was re-elected secretary-treasurer, while Rev. Father McColl was appointed Superintendent of the Separate Schools. Mr. L. M. Hayes, K.C., was re-elected High School Trustee, Mr. J. Corkery was re-appointed to the Library Board and Messrs. D. J. Holland and James Drain were appointed auditors.

The committees are:

Finance — Messrs. Drain, Holland and Hickey.

Property — Messrs. Murty, Goselin and Carveth.

School Management—Rev. Dr. O'Brien and Messrs. Fitzgerald and Lane.

THE NEW RECTOR OF ALL SAINTS'

In the Rev. R. B. Grobb, M.A., who is about to assume the rectorship of All Saints church, the people of that parish will have among them a man of high intellectual ability. Rev. Mr. Grobb had a meteoric career at college, having graduated from the University of Toronto with honours in 1904 and from Wycliffe College in 1906. For two successive years at Wycliffe College, Rev. Mr. Grobb captured the Inter-Collegiate Debating championship of Toronto. During his final year at the same institution Rev. Mr. Grobb filled the President's chair of the Wycliffe College Literary and Debating Society. After leaving college he became curate of St. John's church Port Hope, a position which he occupied for two and a half years, later becoming curate of the Church of the Epiphany, Toronto.

Following the announcement of Rev. Mr. Grobb's acceptance of the incumbancy of All Saints, the official Board of the church have received a letter from a prominent English church rector, congratulating them on their choice. The concluding remarks of the letter referred to the reverend gentleman's ability as a speaker.

Rev. Mr. Grobb will arrive in the city at the end of the week and will occupy the pulpit of All Saints church for the first time on Sunday next.

WEDDING BELLS

CAMPBELL—CLENDENNING.

At the home of the bride, Clark street, Stouffville, Miss Nellie M. B. Clendenning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Darius Clendenning was united in marriage yesterday afternoon with Dr. T. F. Campbell of Galt. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. T. Booker, Baptist minister at Stouffville, assisted by Rev. H. F. Veals, of Toronto. The groomsman was Dr. J. N. McCrae of Galt, while the bride's sister, Miss Zora Clendenning performed the duties of bridesmaid. The bride's cousin, Mr. F. B. Harney of Toronto, played Mendelssohn's wedding march. The bride, who was given away by her father under an arch of evergreens and holly, was gowned in Brussels net over cream silk, trimmed with crystal and pearls and wore a veil and train decked with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid wore a champagne-coloured dress, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl pendant set with peridot, and his token to the bridesmaid a gold bracelet.

Miss Clendenning was wellknown in this city and was a graduate of Nicholls Hospital.

HABITUAL POISONERS

Some famous Criminals who made use of Arsenic

Arsenic as a means of procuring the death of one's enemies has a long history. In the fourteenth century it was a favourite instrument of the professional poisoner. Charles the Wicked recommended it to one of his agents.

"Go thou to Paris," he directed; "do what I tell thee and I will reward thee well. There is a thing which is called sublimed arsenic. If a man eat a bit the size of a pea he will never survive.

"Take it and powder it; and then thou shalt be the house of thy kind, of the Count de Valois, his brother, the dukes of Berry, Burgundy and Bourbon, draw near, and betake thyself to the kitchen, to the larder, to the cellar, or any other place where thy point can be best gained, and put the powder in the soups, meats or wines, provided thou canst do it secretly; otherwise do it not."

Two great poisoning schools arose from the moral chaos of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries in Venice and in other parts of Italy, when even the state itself sometimes approved of secret assassination by poison.

They became famous for their knowledge of poisons as well as by the notoriety which came to them from their associations with the fiendish Tofana. She was the inventor of one of the most destructive and most subtle poisons of the period, aqua Tofana.

This famous murderess, a Sicilian by birth, in her early years had resided at Palermo, where she was known to have delved into the secrets of poisons. Later she went to live at Naples and by the exercise of her profession she made such a name for herself that history will never forget it.

This woman's poison, the aqua Tofana, was distributed by her especially to young married women desirous of ridding themselves of their spouses. The better to conceal the nature of her poison she put it up in small vials marked "Manna of St. Nicholas of Bari," which she ornamented with an image of the saint.

Quickly the fame of this drug spread to Rome. The ladies of the imperial city availed themselves of its use to get rid of obnoxious husbands or to make way for others more acceptable. In 1659 so many young husbands died in Rome that an investigation was started by the authorities of the city, which resulted in the discovery of a society of young matrons banded together for the purpose of poisoning their husbands. These women were under the direction of one Hieronyma Spera, a pupil of Tofana. Spara and many of her society were put to death after confessing, under torture, to numerous crimes.

In a letter to Hoffman, Garelli, the physician to Charles VI. of Austria, writes that his sovereign informed him that while Governor of Naples, during the trial of Tofana, he had an opportunity of examining the documents of the case and that he found from them aqua Tofana to be crystallised arsenic in water. The symptoms of the poisoning by this solution as recorded by Hoffman correspond in detail to symptoms of arsenic poisoning.

From Italy this poison found its way into France, where in 1670 there was another era of secret poisoning by arsenic. This time its perpetrator was not one of the lower class, but an intimate of the court of Louis XIV., Maria Margaret, Marquise de Brinvilliers. An educated daughter of the captain of the court guard, married to an over-indulgent husband who would not suspect her fidelity, she fell a ready victim to the wiles of a villainous soldier, Jean Baptiste de Gauden, Seigneur de St. Croix.

While incarcerated in the Bastile, he was taught the preparation of poison by a state prisoner named Eli. After his release from confinement he took to professional poisoning as a means of filling his coffers with gold. He was killed instantly by the fumes of a poison he was preparing. His domination over the Marquise seems to have been absolute, and she became a zealous accomplice and an adept pupil of his wickedness.

Among St. Croix's goods confiscated by the state was found poison enough to kill the entire community, together with many documents incriminating the Marquise, who fled to Britain to escape arrest. After she had been enticed back to France, she was put on trial, was convicted, and on July 16, 1676, was beheaded for her crimes. Among her papers was found one giving a complete confession of her criminal actions.

Not content with killing her entire family to gain funds with which to meet the extravagant tastes of St. Croix, she even went so far as to assume the habit and duties of a nun, so that she might under the protection which that dress afforded her, administer her poisons to the poor and to the afflicted at the Hotel Dieu simply to tell the strength of her concoctions. The drug used by her and by St. Croix was arsenic.—American Medicine.

A TRAGIC POSSIBILITY

Uncle Leven, a grizzled old woodsawyer, was told by a lady for whom he had been working to wait in the kitchen for his supper. Aunt Caroline, the cook, filled his plate with choice bits from the great house table, and Uncle Leven fell upon them with relish. Soon, however, a cloud crossed his face.

"What ail you, Unc' Leven?" asked Aunt Caroline, solicitously. "Is you got er pain?"

"Tain't dat, Sis' Collina," said Uncle Leven, "but I's feared I'll git filled up befo' I eats all I wants."—Youth's Companion.

Numbered Guests.

Guests at some of the health resorts in Europe are "numbered" when they arrive and register at a hotel or "pension." This is done so that at the end of the season the authorities may know—for advertising purposes—just how many guests have been entertained.

Chinese Clothing.

The Chinese never wear wool, even in the depth of winter, and, generally speaking, the entire population clothes themselves in cotton all the year round.

Suits of Armor.

Record of the first armor worn by warriors was in 1063 B. C.

Hancock's Gaudy Dress.

The heroes of the Revolution had a high regard for dress. The patriot John Hancock was sent at one day wearing a scarlet velvet cap, a blue damask gown lined with velvet, with satin embroidered waistcoat, black satin small clothes, white silk stockings and red morocco slippers.

Chinese River Dwellers.

About 200,000 people live in boats on the river at Canton and 50,000 at Hongkong. It is this custom which makes it possible for such losses of life to occur as typhoons.

MARKET REPORTS.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Higher, Chicago Lower—Live Stock —Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Assertions that crop gains in France, Italy and Spain have been sufficient to make the Argentine shortage relatively unimportant seemed to take all the strength to-day out of wheat. The market closed easy at a net decline of 1-8c to 1-2c. Latest trading left corn 1-8c to 3-8c down, oats unchanged to 1-4c off and provisions varying from a shade to 5c advance.

The Liverpool wheat market closed to-day 1/2d to 1d higher than yesterday, and corn 1/2d to 3/4d higher. Buenos Ayres wheat was 1/4c higher. Antwerp wheat closed 1/8c higher. Berlin 1/8c higher, and Budapest 1/4c lower.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Jan. 3.—There continues to be a good demand from foreign buyers for all grades of Manitoba spring wheat, and considerable business is being worked up for May-June shipment. Cables were firm and the prices bid were unchanged to 1½d higher.

The local market for coarse grain was quiet, but the feeling is firm. The demand from European sources for spring wheat flour was good at an advance in prices, and some sales were made. Glasgow bid 24s 6d for 90 per cent. white wheat flour, which is 6d below sellers' views. The local market is firm, with a fair volume of business passing. Millfeed is scarce and wanted.

Cheese is strong under a fair demand and small stocks. Demand for butter is good. Eggs fairly active. A fair trade is passing in provisions. Supplies of dressed hogs small.

Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 45c; do., No. 3, 43½c; extra No. 1 feed, 43½c; No. 1 local white, 43c; No. 2 local white, 43c; No. 3 local white, 42c; No. 4 local white, 41c.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Jan. 3.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market the receipts for the week ending Dec. 28 were 1,225 cattle, 350 sheep and lambs, 1,250 hogs, and 225 calves, while the offerings on the market to-day for sale were 650 cattle, 150 sheep and lambs, 325 hogs and 125 calves.

There was no actual change in the condition of the market for cattle, on account of the fact that supplies were small, but, as there were no really choice steers offered, the top price realized was $5 for the best steers on the market, but if choice steers had been obtainable buyers would have willingly paid $5.25 to $5.40 for the same. The demand was fairly good for the season of the year, and a moderately active trade was done.

A feature of the small-meat trade was the stronger feeling in the market for lambs, owing to the limited supplies, and prices scored a further advance of 25c to 50c per 100 pounds, with a good demand at $7. The tone of the market for sheep was firm, with no change in prices to note. The demand for calves was fairly good, of which the offerings were small and prices ruled higher for the best stock.

There were no new developments in the hog situation, prices being fairly maintained under a good demand from packers for supplies, which were small the large, owing to the fact that very few country dressed hogs are coming forward at this season, and sales of selected lots were made at $7 to $7.10 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Dec. 28 were 925 cattle, 1,000 sheep and lambs, 900 hogs and 200 calves. The supply on the market this morning consisted of 600 cattle, 350 sheep and lambs, 200 hogs and 75 calves. A fair trade was done in all lines.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $5.25 to $5.50; do., medium, $4.75 to $5; do., common, $4.50 to $4.75; canners, $3.50 to $3.75; bulls, choice cattle, choice cows, $4.50 to $4.75; do., medium, $4.75 to $5.25; do., bulls, $3.50 to $3.75; milkers, choice, each, $75; do., common and medium, each, $35 to $60; springers, $60 to $70.

Sheep, ewes, $4; bucks and culls, $3.50 to $3.75; lambs, $7.

Hogs, f.o.b., $7 to $7.10.

Calves, $5 to $10.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Jan. 3.—Cattle—Receipts, 100 head; market active, steady; prime steers, $7.25 to $8; butcher grades, $5.50 to $6.75.

Calves—Receipts, 100 head; market active, 25c higher; common to prime, $4 to $9.50.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 400 head; market active, 25c to 50c higher; choice lambs, $7.30 to $7.40; cull to fair, $5 to $7.25; yearlings, $5 to $5.75; sheep, $4 to $4.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 2800; market active, 10c to 15c higher; Yorkers, $8.40 to $8.45; pigs, $8.35; mixed, $8.45 to $8.50; heavy, $8.35 to $8.50; roughs, $6.50 to $6.75; stags, $5 to $5.50.

A Correction.—The following is self explanatory: "Editor Evening Examiner—Dear Sir:: I notice an error in your report of the music supplied for the "Bal Poudre" on New Year's night. The music was supplied by the Grand Opera House Orchestra. A correction would be esteemed a favour by, yours truly, G. Howarth, (leader).

"Love's Young Dream". — The third act of "Love's Young Dream" which Fiske O'Hara is playing this season, is laid near the famous cliffs of Kilkee, in the County Clare. The coast at this point is one of the most picturesque places in Ireland, and William Hawley has made a fine reproduction of one particularly rugged place from photographs obtained in Ireland.

Good Things to Eat for New Year's Day.—James R. Bell, Grocer, Hunter street, has an extra fine stock for this week to dispose of—Seedless Oranges and Snow Apples, Cream Candies and Chocolates, Walnuts, Almonds, Filberts, Oyster Biscuits, Fry's Chocolates in boxes, Heins Sweet Girkins, Lea's Chow and Chili Sauce, and many other things. Call and see him. Happy New Year to all.

Patronize Home Industry.—There is no need of sending to Toronto, or elsewhere, for showcases, or store-fixtures of any kind. Patronize the Peterborough Showcase Co., a well-equipped factory, for turning out large contracts, as well as small ones The material and workmanship are of the best. Prices are right, and terms to suit all people. Any one intending to equip their stores with showcases wallcases, etc., for the coming Christmas trade should send in their order as soon as possible, before the rush begins and not leave everything to the last two weeks.—W. THEOBALD, manager; Factory, 709 Water St. Telephone 1156.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Huston returned to Toronto after spending the holiday in Otonabee.

Mr. W. K. Huston returned to Napanee after visiting friends in the city and at his home in Otonabee.

Miss Frances Routley left to-day for Winnipeg, where she will be the guest of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Meyers.

Mrs. Arthur O. Meyers left for her home in Winnipeg to-day, after visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Routley, Stewart street.

Miss Davidson, Dalhousie street, is in Toronto, the guest of Mrs. Ryerson, nee Miss Lennox, who held a reception on Wdenesday.

The Misses Baldwin of Toronto, have returned to the city, after having spent a pleasant holiday with their aunt, Miss Lundy.

Miss Robinson of New York, returned on Wednesday after having spent the Christmas holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Robinson, Peterborough.

Rev. George Henderson and Mrs. Henderson are in Toronto attending the wedding of Mrs. Henderson's youngest sister, which took place in Toronto on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Thornton of Mortlach, Sask., (formerly of Millbrook, Ont.), announce the marriage of their daughter, Florence Edith, to Mr. James Morrie Hepburn, Mortlach, Sask.—Toronto News.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Irwin and Miss Irwin left for Clifton Springs on Wednesday morning, where they expect to spend the greater part of the winter. Miss Irwin has not been very well, and will undergo an operation next week.

Mr. Thos. McReynough, who returned from Gravenhurst, a few days ago, was made the recipient of a purse of $600.00 in gold, by the travellers and his friends in general. This is evidence of the very high esteem in which Tommy was held, while engaged as Clerk at the Oriental Hotel, a position which he occupied for many years.

CHILDREN INJURED

Ordinary Cathartics and Pills and Harsh Physic Cause Distressing Complaints.

You cannot be over-careful in the selection of medicine for children. Only the very gentlest bowel medicine should ever be given, except in emergency cases. Ordinary pills, cathartics and purgatives are apt to do more harm than good. They may cause griping, nausea and other distressing after-effects that are frequently health-destroying.

We personally recommend and guarantee Rexall Orderlies as the safest and most dependable remedy, which we know, for constipation and associate bowel disorders. We have such absolute faith in the virtues of this remedy that we sell it on our guarantee of money back in every instance where it fails to give entire satisfaction, and we urge all in need of such medicine to try it at our risk.

Rexall Orderlies commonly complete candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night; do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other undesirable effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus overcoming weakness and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity.

Rexall Orderlies comonly completely relieve constipation, except of course when of a surgical character. They also tend to overcome the necessity of constantly taking laxatives to keep the bowels in normal condition. Three sizes of packages, 10 cents, 25 cents, and 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Peterborough only at our store—The Rexall Store—McDermid and Jury.

OBITUARY

DEATH OF INFANT.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Turnbull, 495 Patterson St., Peterborough, who passed away in Toronto, a few days ago, was interred in Little Lake cemetery this morning. Diphtheria was the immediate cause of death. The remains arrived in the city this morning after a long and arduous vehicle journey from Toronto, as owing to death having resulted from a contagious disease, the body could not be sent by train.

MRS. JANE McMILLAN.

At the advanced age of eighty years Mrs. Jane McMillan passed away this morning at St. Joseph's Hospital.

The deceased was born in Douro and has now been a resident of the city proper for a period of twenty-five years. She is survived by two sons and two daughters, namely, Daniel of Peterborough, Tom of Asphodel, Mrs. Cadigan of East City and Mrs. Cadigan of Chicago. Her husband predeceased her some years ago.

The funeral will take place in Norwood on Saturday. At 9 o'clock requiem high mass will be sung in St. Peter's Cathedral and at noon the body will be conveyed by the C. P. R. to Norwood for interment.

CHANGE OF VENUE

Lafer v. Lafer.—Motion by defendant for an order changing venue from Toronto to Parry Sound. Judgment: The home of the action is certainly Parry Sound. The defendant swears to eight or ten witnesses, while the plaintiff only commits himself to three at Toronto, one at Peterborough and one at Bonneau. On all grounds I think the order should be made. Costs in the cause.

The above case was heard at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, yesterday.

A LITTLE DANDERINE WILL MAKE YOUR HAIR LUSTROUS, SOFT, FLUFFY, ABUNDANT

Get a 25 Cent Bottle Now and Forever Stop Falling Hair, Itching Scalp and Dandruff

If you Wish to Double the Beauty of your Hair in Ten Minutes surely Try a Danderine Hair Cleanse

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

A delightful surprise awaits particularly those who have been careless, whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

Try as you will, after one application of Danderine you cannot find any dandruff or a loose or falling hair, and your scalp will never itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair sprouting all over the scalp. Danderine makes the hair grow long, heavy and luxuriant and we can prove it. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any druggist or toilet counter, and just try it.

INCREASE IN GRANT

Hon. Mr. Burrell Promises More Money for Agriculture

FISHER TOO ECONOMICAL

Campbellford, Jan. 5.—At the last big public meeting of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Convention, held here last night, Hon. Martin Burrell, the new Minister of Agriculture at Ottawa, delivered a short address in which he made promises that the new Government would give more aid to agriculture than the preceding one. He said, in the course of his address: "There is only one criticism I have to make in connection with the last Government, and Hon. Sydney Fisher's administration, and that is that my predecessor was too niggardly. But you have in Mr. Borden one who has deep sympathy with the agricultural interests, and we are doing our utmost to devise a scheme whereby we can give more assistance to the agricultural industries, so that they can help themselves."

Mr. J. R. Dargavel, M. P. P., was chairman, and on the platform were: Senator Derbyshire, Mayor-elect C. J. Owen, Mr. John Webster, M.P. of Brockville, and President Henry Glendinning. Other speakers were: President George C. Creelman of the Agricultural College at Guelph, and Mr. A. D. McIntosh of Sterling.

Mr. A. D. McIntosh of Sterling, district representative of the Department of Agriculture, Toronto, spoke on "How to Apply the Need of Dairy Education." Canada, he said, had an unparalleled system of education and one recognized the world over as a model. There were some defects though. These defects were responsible for the exodus of young people from the farm. The action of the Provincial Government in appointing district representatives to visit the farmers and find out what problems they were facing was a move towards remedying these defects. He advocated organizing agricultural classes in the public and high schools. Next Monday, he said, such a class would be opened in the Sterling High School, and a large number of pupils had been enrolled. The course will be of six weeks' duration.

Preferred Wife to Millions.

Denver, Col., Jan. 5.—Lawrence Brown, the only son of J. J. Brown, millionaire mine owner of Denver, is compelled to pound a drill in a mine at Victor, Col., in order that his young wife and five weeks old son may have the necessities of life.

More than a year ago Brown met Miss Aileen Horton, a Kansas City debutante. The two were married and young Brown brought his bride to his father's home. The father did not take kindly to the marriage because of the youth of the two, and told his son he would have to shift for himself.

Young Brown said he and his family were happy and that he would not ask his father for support so long as he was able to work.

Heir to Millions.

New York, Jan. 5.—Mrs. Julia Curtiss Lawrence complained to the Supreme Court yesterday that although she was heir to more than $20,000,000 from the estate of her aunt, the late Mary G. Pinckney, she was in actual poverty at the present time. Mrs. Lawrence asked the court to have the estate partitioned so that she may be able to support herself. Her desire to have this done was particularly prompted by the fact that there is more than $2,000,000 due her immediately, she said, as the result of a recent sale of a portion of the Pinckney estate, the value of which is estimated at between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000.

Politics a la Mode.

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 5.—The first political movement of the newly-enfranchised women voters of Sacramento will be tinged with a special flavor. The first "registration tea" of the first year of woman suffrage will be held Jan. 24.

Assistant registrars will be asked to be on hand to swear in the women between refreshments.

YUAN SHI DISCREDITED

Revolutionaries Say He is Just Bleeding Manchus

SECURES FURTHER FUNDS

Pekin, Jan. 5.—The court's preparation for residence in Mongolia is believed to be only against an emergency. There has been a report current that a residence for the Emperor and the members of the royal family is being put in order at Fekhe, Mongolia. Additional treasure to that contributed to the Government by the Empress Dowager, has been forthcoming from the palace, and the Empress Dowager has issued an edict addressed to the princes, commanding a loan from each of them for the Imperial cause. This has resulted in further contributions of a few hundred thousand taels.

The foreign banks are experiencing difficulties in converting the bars of gold into silver. Foreign bank notes are no longer current, silver alone being acceptable.

Premier Yuan Shi Kai is being accused of double dealing. It is alleged that he is attempting the destruction of the Manchus financially before conniving in their dethronement, but it is thought that the revolutionaries, whose agents employ every trick, are circulating reports that Yuan is secretly republican, in order to discredit him.

Dynamite discovered along the railway line has been brought to Pekin by a woman. This is the first evidence that the long-standing revolutionary threats are serious. The revolutionaries months ago declared that they would employ dynamite to accomplish their purpose of driving the Manchus out of the Government.

Reports regarding disaffection among the Hankow troops are conflicting. It is believed that the disaffected soldiers number not more than 800. Yuan Shi Kai is making preparations in anticipation of the arrival of the republican army by sea, and for this purpose is despatching troops to the north.

Sent Note to Consuls.

Shanghai, Jan. 5.—Referring to representations contained in the identical note from the foreign powers, comprising Great Britain, United States, Japan, Germany, France and Russia, which was presented by the consuls on Dec. 20, Wu Ting Fang yesterday addressed a note to the consuls, in which he explains the present situation. He says:

"The republic, confiding in Tang Shao Yi's credentials, continued friendly negotiations until they were broken off by the action of the Manchu Government. Tang Shao Yi in refraining from making counter-proposals said that he acquiesced in the reasons, which justified the establishment of a republic in the interests of a peaceful settlement."

Wu Ting Fang expresses surprise and regret at Yuan Shi Kai's long delay in referring the form of government to a national convention. Reviewing recent events, he accuses Yuan Shi Kai of trying to render abortive the agreements already signed by Tank Shao Yi, thus jeopardizing all chances of arriving at the substantial peace desired by the powers.

"Therefore," continues Secretary Wu, "it is with extreme regret that the republican government is compelled to say that the prospects for peace have been wilfully nullified by the Manchu Government, upon whose shoulders will rest full responsibility for a longer period of disturbing indecision, possibly the resumption of hostilities."

Secretary Wu asks that his representations be submitted to the respective Governments.

The identical note from the foreign powers was read to both Tang Shao Yi, the representative of Premier Yuan Shi Kai and to Wu Ting Fang, representing the republicans. The note did not go much further than to express the good-will of the Governments represented and the hope that the peace conference would result in bringing the revolution to a close.

Premiership Abolished.

Nanking, Jan. 5.—President Sun Yat Sen has received a letter from Yuan Shi Kai, insisting that the entire people be permitted to decide upon the form of Government for China and thanking Sun Yat Sen for his offer of the presidency. The first Cabinet meeting will be held today. The position of Premier has been abolished. President Sun admits that the situation is delicate, but is hopeful that Yuan Shi Kai will avoid the terrible bloodshed which must follow the resumption of hostilities.

Rebels Capture Lanchow?

London, Jan. 5.—A Tientsin despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co., says that the rebels have captured Lanchow. They looted and burned the residences of the wealthy citizens, seized the railway at Shanhaikwan, where they are holding up all the trains.

Appointed Jail Matron.

St. Catharines, Jan. 5.—Mrs. Milton Overholt was yesterday afternoon appointed to succeed Mrs. G. W. Cleuch as matron of Lincoln County Jail in this city. The appointee is a young widow with residence next door to the jail building.

Fell From Window.

Kingston, Jan. 5.—Michael Tremblay, aged 83, accidentally fell 30 feet from one of the windows at the House of Industry, where he is an inmate, and will die from his injuries. His former home was in Ernstown.

BOUNTIES NEEDED

So the Steel and Iron Men Tell Federal Cabinet

NO ASSURANCE IS GIVEN

Ottawa, Jan. 5.—A deputation representing the iron and steel industry of Canada, waited on the Government yesterday afternoon and held a protracted conference. There were present J. H. Plummer, head of the Dominion Iron & Steel Co.; Mr. Hobson, for the Hamilton industry, and Thomas J. and George E. Hammond for the Algoma Company.

The steel men appeared with counsel in an effort to obtain from the new Government a restoration of the iron and steel bounties and further encouragement for the industry. They presented a mass of material in the form of statistics, showing the actual degree of prosperity enjoyed by the industry under present conditions. The bounties paid on iron and steel in the last fiscal year amounted to $1,138,748. The iron and steel bounties were paid for twenty-eight years before finally cut off by the late Government, the bounties on pig iron, steel and puddled bars expiring a year ago, and the last bounty, that on wire rods, being paid on the last day of June, 1911.

The deputation left the east block at 6 o'clock without having received any assurance from the Government. There is a rather strong probability that the whole question will be turned over to the Tariff Commission, soon to be established. In any event it is understood the Government does not intend to make any tariff changes this session.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The cotton dispute in Lancashire is no nearer a settlement.

Capt. John Henderson of the Liner Pomeranian died on the voyage, and was buried at sea.

The Hill railways are said to have purchased 900 acres of land at Port Arthur for lake terminals.

Col. Sam Hughes visited Chatham and was banqueted by the Canadian Club and by the officers of the 24th.

Late yesterday afternoon the body of Adam John, one of the Indians murdered on Walpole Island, was found in the St. Clair River near the scene of the murder.

The Grand Trunk's demand for a share of the western Canadian immigration business has been conceded by the Trunk Lines Association after the company showed fight.

There is reason to believe that the revision of the Bank Act will once more be postponed and a short act put through extending the bank charters for an additional year.

Four boys were drowned yesterday by a double runner coasting sled breaking through the ice on the Concoocook river at East Jaffrey, ten miles north of Winchendon, Mass.

Leonard Bliss, aged 45, was found dead in bed in Bloomington, Ills. He weighed 550 pounds and as "Baby" Bliss was exhibited in America and Europe in bicycle races and museums.

The famous Trappist Monastery at St. Norbert, Man., was destroyed by fire yesterday. Sixty monks, who never speak and who live entirely on vegetables, are homeless as a result.

One of the packages of money stolen from the Canadian Northern Express Co. at Regina has again disappeared. The police thought they had their hands on it, but they have been "foiled" again.

Dr. W. L. Shurtleff, K.C., of Coaticooke, Que., has been appointed by the Government to investigate all charges of political partisanship laid against civil service employes in the eastern townships.

Dr. E. Laurie was arrested in Montreal yesterday on a charge of illegal operation on Emily Thomasson, a servant girl. She made an ante-mortem statement. The man in the case is of her own station in life.

Hangings Go On.

Tabriz, Jan. 5.—The hanging of Fidais by the Russians continues. Three of the Fidais were hanged Wednesday night and their bodies displayed on the gallows yesterday. Many arrests are being made, and several houses of Fidais and nationalists have been blown up. The prisoners who were brought in by Shua-ed-Dowleh, brother of the ex-shah, when he arrived here on January 2 to assume the governorship, were handed over to the Russians, who marched them to camp with chains around their necks. All the houses in the neighborhood of the Russian camp have been wrecked.

The general feeling among Persians is that the situation will become normal when the governorship has been placed in the hands of Shua-ed-Dowleh.

At the present time Tabriz is controlled by a Russian general, who is quartered in the governor's palace.

$100,000 School Opened.

Berlin, Jan. 5.—The formal opening yesterday morning of Berlin's new $100,000 public school was a forward movement in educational work here. The new school is a nine-roomed one and provides accommodation for third and fourth classes. There were 450 in attendance yesterday.

The new school fills a long felt want in public school life, and provides for the "95 per cent.," something not heretofore enjoyed, that is, a graduate of this school will be armed with a diploma with which he can enter the third form at high school.

The dedication of the school will take place on Jan. 12, at which the Hon. Dr. Pyne will be present.

DR. HANISH ON STAND.

Leader of Mazdaznan Cult a Witness In Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—Against his desire, Ottoman Zar Adusht Hanish, head of the Mazdaznan cult, was yesterday called to the witness stand before Judge Pinkney in the juvenile court, where Charles R. Lindsay is seeking to gain possession of his nephew, William Lindsay, heir to an estate in Philadelphia, who was taken from the "Temple," of the Mazdaznans in December and placed in the custody of the court.

The boy was not in court, neither was his mother Mrs. Elizabeth V. Lindsay, and the attorney declared that he did not know the whereabouts of the lad, and added that he had been made the victim of a conspiracy to prevent the boy being brought into court.

The Mazdaznan cult is said to be a revival of the ancient Persian fire worshippers, and many forms of ceremonies, together with posturing and breathing exercises, are said to be in its ritual.

Lindsay complained to the court that the Mazdaznan Temple was not a proper place for a small boy, even though his mother was there.

On the witness stand the head of the cult was asked questions regarding the practices at the temple over which he presides.

A number of women members of the cult objected to the presence of photographers in the court-room, and they were ordered to put away their cameras.

Hanish said he had received the title of "doctor" from a medical college and the title "reverend" from the Association of Mazdaznan. He denied that at any time he had control or custody of the boy.

The Mazdaznan leader was asked concerning trips to Montreal, Los Angeles and Salt Lake City, which he had made, accompanied by the Lindsay boy. Hanish said the boy's mother paid the expenses of the lad and that she was a member of his church.

Hanish said the boy called him doctor and sometimes "master" and that Mrs. Lindsay also used the latter title in addressing him.

He emphatically declared he had not seen William Lindsay since he was taken from the Mazdaznan Temple in December at the order of the court.

Shoe Machinery Case.

Montreal, Jan. 5.—A vast amount of technical evidence as to different machines and the relative cost of buying outright and leasing machines from the United Shoe Machinery Co. was given yesterday afternoon at the session of the commission investigating the charges against the latter company.

George A. Fortin of the Scout Shoe Co., Ltd., was on the stand all afternoon. Among other things he said that his company was operating throughout with machines secured from independent companies and that they considered they got better results in this way, because by buying the machines outright they were paid for within about four years, and their lifetime was approximately twenty years, while by doing business with the United Shoe Machinery Co. they had to pay leases and royalties and never owned the machines. The leasing system was slightly higher to manufacturers, he thought.

Indians Killed After Hard Fight.

Wallaceburg, Jan. 5.—Late yesterday the body of Hiram John, one of the Indians murdered on Walpole Island, was found in the St. Clair River near the scene of the crime.

Blood spattered over the walls and floors and little tufts of human hair former the gruesome sight which greeted the neighbors when in response to the sound of shots they hurried to the house of Charles Nahdee, an Indian, living on Chicken Island, part of the Walpole reserve.

The appearance of the place pointed to a desperate battle. The belief is entertained by the Indians that Nahdee was killed for his money.

Guarding McManigal.

Indianapolis, Jan. 5.—Ortie E. McManigal, confessedly a member of the dynamiting staff of John J. McNamara, was not brought into this city last night, as was expected, but will reach here in time to testify before the federal grand jury on Monday. Agents of the Department of Justice yesterday guarded with greatest secrecy the whereabouts of McManigal, and prepared to prevent the time of his arrival from becoming known.

It is believed that he may have been taken from a train by the detectives in charge and lodged in an intermediate city. Federal authorities said they feared some sort of vengeance against him unless his movements were carefully hidden.

Collision Near Wales.

Cornwall, Jan. 5.—There was a bad pitch-in accident on the G.T.R. near Wales yesterday morning, between two freights, one of which was going very slow, when the other came along at great speed, split the van, smashed and derailed cars, and blocked both tracks.

Conductor Boileau of the leading train, was in the van, but escaped with a cut in the head.

The Brockville auxiliary was called out and had one track cleared about 11 a.m.

The International Limited, westbound, was delayed for a short time at Milleroches, and No. 12 local, eastbound express, was delayed west of the wreck.

Freight Train Snowbound.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 5.—An Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe freight train that has been snowbound near Laird, Kansas, since Dec. 29, was released yesterday. The train crew reported that the snow in Western Kansas is covered with a mass of ice that will bear up horses and cattle. One farmer near Dighton reported that he lost 300 head of cattle in the storm.

Dighton, Jetmore, Ness City and other towns on the Santa Fe have been without train service for several days. Unless wagon communication can be established soon, much suffering will result as supplies are running low.

Editor Wants to Be Mayor.

Vancouver, Jan. 5.—This was nomination day for civic offices. Mayor L. D. Taylor, editor of The World, is being opposed by James Findlay, former president of the Conservative Association of Vancouver.

What Value Do You Put On Your Eyesight?

We have people come to us, after they have tried 7-8 kinds of cheap Glasses, bought from some house to house fakir, or picked out of an assortment of "cheap glasses" in a haphazard way. In buying glasses to suit your Sight, you cannot afford to take any chance. The small difference of price should not be considered when the question of Eyesight is involved. Remember we guarantee all our work, and our prices are very reasonable, considering the quality of goods we handle.

"THE SECRET OF PAUL FARLEY"

By JOHN MARCH

Mrs. Radler vanished smiling and curtseying.

"Dry that gently, Mr. Farley," he said, placing the brandy and soda at the young man's elbow, and catching his wrist in a firm clasp as he spoke

Paul looked up at the sunburnt face bending over him. He noted the square jaw, and the bronze moustache and the keen, steady eyes now smiling kindly into his. He saw, too, that the broad forehead was blue-veined and almost white, where the hat had protected and sheltered it from the summer's sun. The man's whole personality expressed powerful energy of mind, a wedding together of severity and tenderness, and an open honest fearlessness, bred and fostered, perchance by the simplicity of his pastoral life.

"Why, you are as tremulous as the leaves of a tree," he said, with some concern, "drink that stuff and let me plaster the wound, and you'll begin to feel yourself again."

"I ought to be extremely grateful to you, Mr. Fleming," the patient said, with quivering lips, taking another glance at the face, which began to have a strange fascination for him.

"Why, for not leaving you to Denham to pound to a jelly?"

"Yes, and for the trouble you are taking now."

"Virtue brings its own reward, Mr. Farley, and one handsome brown eye has amply rewarded me, I assure you. I am congratulating myself upon not being a 'weak woman,' otherwise that wanton orb might entangle itself in the mechanism of my heart and cause a deal of mischief. Keep still. Don't move for an instant, and I shall have fixed you up very presentably. There! Now lie down while I go and see what has become of my trap."

As the door closed upon the Squire's stalwart form Paul lifted the lamp and walked unsteadily to the old-fashioned mirror. The left cheek immediately below the eye was neatly strapped with fine strips of pale yellow plaster. The eyelid was swollen and discolored, and an unbecoming puffiness thickened one side of the nose. He set the lamp back on the table, and finished his brandy, and felt in his waistcoat pocket for his eye-glasses. Coming along, the humid atmosphere had blurred the glass, and he remembered taking them off and slipping them in along with his watch, a fortunate circumstance when seen in the light of after events. He was endeavouring to replace them, trying to find a spot where they would sit with the least discomfort, and to fix the rims accordingly, when the Squire returned.

"How do you feel now, Mr. Farley?" he asked, drawing on his doe-skin gloves.

"I feel quite equal to the walk back," he said, stroking his inflamed nose.

"Nonsense, I am going to drive you."

"Don't wear those glasses for a day or so," he said, as they went out together and climbed into the dogcart, "they might worry and set up an irritation. Better let the swelling subside with first intentions. Now, my girl," he added, shaking the reins, "take us to Weyberne Hall like a lady."

A north-west wind had swept the sky clear. A great golden moon hung above the plantation trees, and little gusts of wind sighed and murmured among the firs as the dogcart bowled through the town and out along the moist brown road.

"How long have you been at Weyberne Hall?" the Squire asked, as the mare sobered down into an easy regular motion.

"Five weeks. I wonder I have not met you or Miss Fleming before."

"We've been away for a couple of months. It was like this. My sister has been at school near Brussels. She came home this July, and I met her at Harwich, with the idea of giving her a taste of gaiety before she settled down to prosy housekeeping duties. However, we found London rather dull. All the fashionable folk seemed to have flown, so I said to my sister one night at table d'hote, 'Agnes, to-morrow we'll dine in Paris.' Well, from Paris we went to the Riviera, Monte Carlo, and several other places, and have only just arrived home."

"Miss Fleming is going to keep house for you?"

"Yes. It's been pretty lonesome for me waiting for Agnes to grow up. Now, however, I hope to have some life and merriment about the old Manor."

"I presume Miss Fleming is several years your junior?"

"Fifteen. Agnes is my half-sister. Have you been there, Mr. Farley?" he asked, pointing with his whip to an oblong grey stone house nestling among a clump of trees.

"It's the Larches?"

"Yes, the ornate home of the Widow Wycherly."

"She has a beautiful face, has she not, sir?"

"Very; it's a beautiful mask to a hideous soul."

"You don't like her."

"I don't know of anything in her to like. I admire her gowns, though."

"What it wrong with her boy? Tom Hargrave told me he had fits, and was sent away for medical treatment."

"Poor little Guy! Some of the more imaginative folk about the village say he is under lock and key at The Larches. That the little fellow is an inmate of a private lunatic asylum is the more feasible and generally accredited version of his disappearance."

"What caused the brain trouble?"

"Fright, whether excited intentionally or not I must leave."

"How? By whom?"

"His mother."

"Oh, Mr. Fleming! Do you think a lovely, childish, shrinking little woman like Mrs. Wycherly could be capable of such superhuman vileness?"

"What I know and have seen of the woman I dislike immensely; therefore, perhaps, I judge her harshly. However, I'll give you my experience, and you can form your own opinion.

"My old housekeeper's niece, Rose Pilgrim, was the child's nursemaid. She used to bring the boy to my place two or three times a week to have tea with her aunt. I gradually slid the habit of ringing the bell for the child to be brought to me in the parlour. He was a quaint, charming little chap, with his mother's great hazel eyes and apple-blossom complexion. After a while I discovered that Rose came alone and my little friend's visits had entirely ceased. One evening I went into the kitchen and questioned her. She said the child was constantly being punished for the most trivial offences, and was always, more or less, crying and miserable. I promised the first evening I had I would call at The Larches and endeavour to persuade Mrs. Wycherly to let him spend a day with me now and again. Harvest was in full swing, and I forgot Guy's troubles, but one night I had occasion to ride into East Weyberne, and as I was passing The Larches I thought of the child. I turned in at the white gate, rode up to the house, gave my horse to a stable lad who was hanging about, and rang the bell. Rose Pilgrim answered it, and when she saw me she came out and pulled the door to behind her.

"'Mr. Fleming,' she said, laying an impressive hand on my arm, 'that woman either intends to murder or erase the child. He is locked in a closet under the stairs and is shrieking himself mad.'

"'Have you the key, or do you know where it is?' I asked.

"She shook her head.

"'What kind of a door is it? Easy to open?'

"She nodded.

"'Come along and show me the way, then,' I said.

"'But the mistress! She'll hear you.'

"'No matter at all; she can't prevent me, and the rest does not signify.'

"'Sir,' she whispered, looking cautiously around; 'it's better the poor child should lose his reason than any harm come to you—and Miss Agnes coming home!'

"'What could happen! What is it, Rose,' I demanded, as I saw the girl's face whiten.

"'She carries firearms,' she whispered, 'and if thwarted she would not scruple to use them.'

"'Come, Rose, lead the way,' I said, twisting the leather thong round my whip handle.

"We went softly up the stairs together. Rose stopped at a door under the second flight of stairs and bent to listen at the keyhole.

"'He's very quiet now,' she said, a great fear dawning in her eyes.

"I threw my whip on the floor and made a terrific lunge at the door. The slight framework gave way with a crash. The interior was dark, and before I could fully realise that the place was empty I received an awful blow on the side of my head and face, accompanied by a scream of terror from Rose. For a few minutes I leaned against the wall par tially stunned, and then turned to find Mrs. Wycherly facing me, my whip in her hand.

"'Mr. Fleming,' she exclaimed, dropping the whip and holding out her little jewelled hands, 'pray forgive me; I had no idea I was assailing a friend and neighbour. I heard stealthy steps and low voices, and although half dead with fright I followed, determined to make an effort, however, futile, to protect my household goods.'

"'But the boy?' I said, bewildered, my head darting and shooting with pain. 'I thought he was in this closet and crying to be let out.'

"'My boy! Why Guy is asleep in his brass crib. I hope you have not been drinking, Mr. Fleming?' and the look of rage and malevolence she turned on Rose decided me to take the girl back to her aunt that night.

"'I humbly apologise,' I said, recovering my hat and whip, 'I came to do you a service. Mrs. Wycherly, but I am afraid I have only annoyed and frightened you.'

"'Never mind,' she said, smiling a sweet, naive smile, 'I belaboured you, so we are quits, and can afford to bury the hatchet between us.'"

"How did Rose come to make such an egregious mistake?" Paul asked.

"There was no mistake, Mr. Farley; the child was there up to the time she heard and recognised my mare. She also heard the bell and watched Rose come out to me and close the door. She drew conclusions and acted swiftly. She had wit enough also to perceive that I was not taken in by the ruse, and loves me accordingly."

"Do you think there was ever a period during her widowhood when she contemplated becoming Mrs. Fleming?"

A spontaneous hearty laugh rang through the dusky stillness, awakening the game in the adjoining wood.

"No, Mr. Farley, no. Besides being clever, Rowena Wycherly has a vein of poetic romance and love of mystery in her nature. A common-place, simple-minded country Squire would not arouse her admiration. I can imagine her bitten with a penchant for a more youthful and striking aspect altogether. A young man of native ability and scholar-like attainments, with a lofty impending brow, large brown melancholy eyes, and a nervous, sensitive mouth which, unless when he forcibly compresses it, was apt to be tremulous, and—by Jove! I'm painting your portrait, Mr. Farley. Do you recognise yourself?"

"Scarcely," he laughed, looking apprehensively at the Squire's strongly handsome profile. "Please don't insinuate that I am likely to ensnare the affections of the beautiful widow. I have no ambition whatsoever in that direction."

"That's just the rash kind of statement a man makes in the heyday of youth. A very young man thrown into daily intercourse with a lovely, charming, clever woman, yields very readily to a well-regulated system of fascination. Wait till you are under the spell of Mrs. Wycherly's beautiful face, arrayed in bewitching smiles and——"

"Are you speaking from experience, Mr. Fleming?"

"No. I am only saying what anyone may see in Nature's mirror."

"You are kind enough to warn me against Mrs. Wycherly?"

"Well, perhaps that's putting it a little too strong. Say, rather, against a young man's unripe experience."

"Thank you for your kind interest," Paul said, watching the skilful handling of the reins. "I wonder how it came about that you never made a practical personal acquaintance with those matters, Mr. Fleming?"

"Force of circumstances had something to do with it, Mr. Farley. A few years ago I would have given a decade out of my life to have met my affinity."

"And now?"

"Well—you see, Agnes is home, and the world does not seem quite such a dreary place."

"Have you never seen a woman you could like?"

"Certainly. I like most of the women with whom I come in contact, but the one dear woman who should play such sweet havoc with my bachelor heart has never crossed my path."

"What is your ideal woman like, Mr. Fleming?"

"I have none. Ideals are always such disappointing things," he laughed, cracking his whip in the air, "but whenever she comes I shall know her, whoever and whatever she is I shall take her and the happiness she brings to my heart, and not question the wisdom that sent her."

"The poet says a man's best things are nearest him, lie close about his feet," Paul said smiling; "she may lie within your reach, though you are unconscious of her proximity."

The Squire shook his head.

"I don't think so," he said with grave deliberation. "I've seldom been away from Weyberne, and the neighbourhood is as familiar ground as the floor of my sitting-room. If she had been a needle in a haystack, I should have found her before this. Sit tight, Mr. Farley, there's a sharp curve to this corner."

The mare stepped slowly along the gravelled avenue in the shade of the great trees. The light grew fainter where the mass of boughs met and wove a thick network overhead. Here and there a moonbeam peeped through the sweep of dark, clustering foliage, and left a silvery dance upon the upper branches.

"Good heavens! What's the matter, man?" the Squire exclaimed, as Paul Farley gave an unexpected start.

"A figure slipped between the trees lower down, that's all; my nerves are unstrung."

"A well-directed sledge-hammer blow to one's face is not calculated to strengthen them. Was it a man or a woman?" he asked, flicking the mare with his whip.

"A woman."

"One of the servants, I'll wager; moonlight and sentiment, you understand? We shall come upon a hulking, bashful pumpkin next. I expect the sound of wheels disturbed them."

The remainder of the journey, however, was performed without further disquieting manifestations and disappearances into the surrounding shade. Not even a rat or a shrewmouse came to rustle the tangled undergrowth in the coppice.

CHAPTER V.
JUDITH'S PROPOSAL

Weyberne Hall was well lighted, and had a comfortable, pleasant air of activity about it, emanating from the stir and hurry of a large family and good cheer within. A deep-toned clock on a gable at the rear of the building struck ten as the dogcart came to a stand before the portico of the main entrance.

James threw open the heavy iron-clamped door, and revealed Sir Thomas standing in the centre of the hall, the light gleaming on the spacious, breadth of his white waistcoat.

"Come up to my place to-morrow evening and have a pipe with me, Mr. Farley," the Squire said, detaining Paul's hand in a warm, friendly clasp. "I am sure my sister will make you very welcome."

"Thanks, I have an engagement to-morrow. Will the evening after suit you?" he asked, endeavouring to withdraw his hand.

"Just as well," the Squire affirmed, unwilling to loosen his hold on the long white fingers; "if you don't turn up, young man, I shall drive round in the morning with the idea that your wound is bothering you."

"No! Please don't let me be a source of further trouble to you, Mr. Fleming," he said earnestly. "As it is I am quite at a loss how to return so much sympathetic kindness."

The Squire laughed.

"I'll take it out in pleasure."

"In pleasure."

"Yes. Give me the pleasure of your society a night or two in each week, and I shall feel more than repaid for playing the good Samaritan. The bald fact is, I'm a lone sort of fellow, and I've taken a fancy to you."

"I'll come whenever I've a spare evening," he said, turning away from the wistful smile. "I sincerely trust, though, I shan't develop into an arrant nuisance at the Manor."

The Squire gave his hand a painful grip.

"You'll be safer having a quiet time up there with me in the old Dutch parlour. I know the amorous set of women who come down here. I——"

"Is that your voice, Fleming?" Sir Thomas asked, coming from under the porch as Paul alighted.

"Yes," he said, jumping down, the reins gathered into one hand. "I picked Mr. Farley up at East Weyberne. He's slightly damaged, as you will see when he gets into the light."

Sir Thomas took his secretary by the elbow and turned him so that the light from the porch lamp fell full upon his face.

"God bless my soul! How on earth did you manage that?" he asked in amazement.

"You know that drunken lout Denham, sir?" the Squire interposed, "he does my hedging and ditching and odd jobs. Well, he encountered Mr. Farley in the high street, and in his sodden state mistook him for a flash horse-dealer who had fleeced him a few months back. I was in the 'Popinjay,' and heard the fracas, and I am glad to say arrived on the scene before Mr. Farley's features were pounelled past redemption."

"Mercy on us! That idiot Denham spends two-thirds of his wages at The Goose and Gridiron. Here, take the cellar keys, Farley, and tell James to bring you up half a bottle of champagne. You look as pale as a ghost at cockcrow."

As Paul disappeared, Sir Thomas went forward and patted the mare's neck.

"I suppose you did not see anything of Judith as you came along?" he asked, in an undertone.

"Judith?"

"Yes. Mrs. Pilgrim came a couple of hours ago for Agnes, and Judith said she would walk with them as far as the private road runs. I don't think she is back yet."

The Squire's thoughts instantly flew to the figure seen to slip between the trees in the darkest and densest part of the avenue, and maintained a discreet silence.

"The truth is," Sir Thomas continued after a short pause, "we've had rather a scene with Judith this evening. She was evidently out of sorts at dinner and I, acting on the strength of a piece of information I received to-day, persuaded Anthony to resume his role of fiance. I believe poor Pelham proposed again; at any rate, Judith was very much upset at the sudden turn affairs had taken, and laughed and cried in the most approved hysterical fashion."

"What has come over her of late?" the Squire asked. "There used not to be a nicer or sweeter girl than Judith."

"She's an exceedingly foolish girl, Fleming."

"Yes; if she's dissatisfied with Pelham. What sort of husband does she want? Do you think she knows, sir, what she does want?"

"I know what she thinks she wants."

"And what's that?"

"Why, Paul Farley."

"The deuce!"

The Squire stepped back over to the mare, and the next five minutes were employed in quieting her.

"Does he want her?" he asked at length, gently rubbing the animal's nose.

"Not a bit of it. I had it out with him this afternoon. He told me straight to my face that he wouldn't have her at any price—at least, what he said amounted to that much. I felt awfully relieved. I don't wish to part with Farley, for the simple reason I couldn't replace him. A doctor of science and civil law and an honors man in classics and mathematics is not to be had every day in the week; besides, the fellow is a genius."

Would Fall In a Faint

When She Attempted to Work, so Exhausted Was the Nervous System

The Feeble, Wasted Nerves Were Res' red and Revitalized by

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Nervous prostration is a terrible disease to all who understand its symptoms. At times the sufferer feels comparatively well, but with slight exertion the dreadful helplessness returns and all strength and vitality seems to leave the system.

This letter from Mrs. Martin very well describes the terrible conditions in which many a sufferer finds herself. She also tells how she regained health and strength by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food after all other treatments had failed.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition from nervous exhaustion and prostration. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall to the floor. The weakness was so great that I could not so much as sweep the floor without fainting, but the nerve food helped me after the doctors failed. It has done wonders in building up my nervous system. I can do my own housework now and washing, and feel that this great medicine has been a God-send to me. I think it is the best of medicines."

Throwing Bottles In The Sea

The notion of [illegible] while at sea, steps to the rail [illegible] well corked bottle overboard, [illegible] there is a slip of paper, [illegible] be to a romantic venture. [illegible] stead of a [illegible] quest for a [illegible] of ackowled meat from the seam[illegible] maiden will might find it, perhaps a year [illegible] later, the slip of paper contains the name of the vessel and its master, the date and the latitude and longitude [illegible] which the bottle began its voyage. Below this there are blank spaces for the name of the finder, the date, locality and the postoffice address.

At the bottom of the slip, printed in eight different languages, are these instructions: "The finder of this will please send it to any United States consul or forward it direct to the hydrographic office, Washington, D.C."

The whole operation represents a little step in a great task, upon which work has uninterruptedly gone forward for the past thirty years. It is one means of determining the direction and movement of the great as well as the smaller currents of the ocean, and it will perhaps be due to the continual varying of the latter currents that this task may never be ended.

There has been a knowledge of the existence of ocean currents since ships began to traverse the oceans, but until the early seventies it was limited. Mariners knew that on the west coast of Europe there was a force which tended to carry them southward and that on the east coast of North America a similar force which carried them northward, but they knew neither the true set or direction nor the drift or rate of flow.

It was the object to determine the direction and rate of flow in originating this system of bottle voyages, and while each bottle is but a little step toward a great end, those little steps have so far succeeded in establishing beyond question the true direction and speed of the great currents of the five oceans. The advantage of such knowledge is not limited to the mere use of the direction and velocity of the ocean currents. The maritime world does, in fact, depend mostly on this knowledge in laying the courses of its vessels from and to the great ports of the world.

It has been found also that these great ocean streams have a powerful effect on the course of storms after they leave the mainland of North America. The knowledge of the direction of these currents gives an insight into the general track of these storms.

TWO KINDS OF CURRENTS

In 1873-76 the voyage of the United States ship Challenger showed that there are two kinds of ocean currents, permanent and semi-permanent. By the use of specially constructed apparatus it was discovered that the permanent currents possessed a drift or movement far below the surface, while the temporary currents affected the surface waters only. This is shown decidedly in the movement of the bottles. The bottles following a regular stream of the permanent current with move nearly twice as fast as those following a semi-permanent current.

There are twenty-seven permanent currents in the oceans of the world, and there are nearly as many more of the semi-permanent variety existing at one time. Several causes seem to originate and maintain these drifts. Uniformly directed winds have the greatest influence, and differences of temperatures, storms, polar ice and eddies each have some effect, creating usually the currents of semi-permanent variety.

When a bottle is thrown overboard in mid-ocean it is not always possible therefore to forecast its landing place unless it be launched in the midst of the great currents, such as the gulf stream. A semi-permanent current formed on the edge of the main current by either of the above causes may grip it and whirl it off to some distant part of the ocean, where it may drift into another and entirely different part of the ocean. About 200 bottle papers annually reach the hydrographic office in Washington. On a literal estimate this means that about 70 per cent. of those thrown overboard are recovered. They come from all parts of the world, written in many different languages.

When these bottle papers, as they are called, are received at the issuing office they are listed, giving the name of the vessel, date at which thrown overboard, latitude and longitude, date and place of recovery, the interval of time of the voyage, the total drift and the average drift per day. Usually from twenty-five to thirty will show the same average drift as listed each month. To give a further idea of the probable course of these bottles, based on the water circulation already obtained, their place of launching is marked on a chart by a star, and their course is followed by a curved line, ending at a small circle marking the point at which they were picked up. Each issue of such charts shows a remarkable similarity in the course followed by these bottles.

SOME BOTTLES NEVER FOUND

There are occasions when bottles will drift to the eastern edge of the gulf stream as it curves eastward in the higher latitudes. Once in this position it is rare that one of them is recovered. They will slowly enter that great slow-moving whirl in mid-ocean to drift southward again and finally into that region known as the Sargasso sea. The records show that only eight bottles which have been in all probability caught in this whirl have been recovered since the year 1898.

This course is verified by the reports received frequently from vessels which have sighted well known derelicts. On the chart issued in August, 1896, the three derelict schooners Unexpected, E. H. Cornell and Alma Cummings, all of which floated with decks awash for many months, are shown on a course agreeing perfectly with this whirl. During the time of the free floating of these water-logged vessels they were reported thirty-six times, and their courses duly mapped out. Each finally met its end in that quiet but gripping sea of grass.

The greatest drift of any bottle yet reported to the hydrographic office was that of one thrown overboard from the S.S. Fuerst Bismarck on May 1, 1898. According to the letter of transmittal from the United States consul at Hamburg, it was recovered at Gluckstadt on the Elbe, Aug. 1st, 1898. Having been thrown overboard opposite Cape Race, on the Newfoundland coast, the distance covered was 2,400 miles, giving 26.1 miles as the lowest possible estimate of the average drift per day, or a little over one knot per hour.

One of the greatest though not the swiftest drifts ever reported was that of a bottle thrown overboard off the coast of Chile. Five and one-half years later the same bottle was picked up on the coast of France. The course pursued by this bottle was around Cape Horn, northward along the east coast of South America, through the Florida straits and northeastward following the Gulf Stream, the curving southward again on the west coast of Europe until finally landed in France.

The only explanation of this remark able drift is that it was helped from one current to the other by the temporary appearance of favourable winds. The total drift was approximately 10,000 miles. The condition of the encrusted paper was also notable considering the length of time, the paper being but slightly discoloured.—Washington Star.

CASCARETS INSURE INSIDE CLEANLINESS

The Millions of Cascaret Users Never Have Headache, Constipation, Biliousness or Sick Stomach

It is more necessary that you keep your Bowels, Liver and Stomach clean, pure and fresh than it is to keep the sewers and drainage of a large city free from obstruction.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system the decomposed waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels.

No odds how badly and upset you feel, a Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

HONEY BIRDS

From Cape L'Agulhaas, the most southerly point of South Africa, to the Zambezi river and from east to west of that portion of southern Africa is to be found a small gray-coloured bird known to the Dutch hunters as honig vogel, or honey bird.

A hunter or traveller at times will be astonished by the antics of this intelligent little bird, which alights on the twig of a tree, making a big noise in chirpings, incessant and shrill. As one moves toward the noisy little creature it makes a slow flight to a nearby tree and continues its chirping; follow it again and the same performance is gone through.

On one occasion at the Umzinguani river, Mashonaland, South Africa, I noticed a honey bird calling us, and when I told about the little fellow to some Australians, who were among our convoy of waggons and carts, I was heartily laughed at. Being quite sure of my bird I told my doubters to bring their rifles in case of game and had one of the natives bring an axe and a bucket.

We followed the little fellow. It went through its circle movements, this time indicating the lower portion of a huge old tree, then settled on a branch about thirty yards away and silently waited. We at once saw the entrance to this nest, although at first the bees kept quiet, and taking stock of the tree, decided we could handle the proposition, so at once started a fire and tore out pieces of our coat linings to make smudges and smoke the bees out.

When we thought sufficient smoking had been done one of the boys took the ax and began to enlarge the entrance. Our little guide watched these operations in expectant silence from its nearby perch.

After we had filled our bucket with good, rich honey we took two or three pieces of comb which contained young white bees, and placed them on a large limb of a tree some 50 yards away. Looking round us, we started for the waggons we saw the honey bird with another, evidently its better half, already feasting on the young bees, their share of the spoils, which one at any rate had worked for.

Many superstitions are afloat among the natives regarding the honey bird and the little fellow is often unjustly accused, as illustrated by the following story. An old native hunter told me that a honey bird was in the habit of coming to the kraal every few days and would lead no one but himself out to bees' nests.

One day, through the guidance of the bird, the old man robbed a very fat nest, but there were no combs containing young bees, consequently the bird had to go without its share of the plunder. For some time he saw nothing of the bird, until one morning it returned, calling as usual for the man to follow. The old hunter had a friend staying with him from a neighbouring kraal or village and asked the caller to accompany him.

They followed the bird for about two miles and came upon an enormous python, which they killed and skinned, returning to the kraal with the flesh and hide of the snake and paying no more attention to the bird. The next day it came again and seemed very excited, flying quickly and in long flights.

The two men followed for some three miles, when from under some fan palms a large male lion jumped up, growled, and made off before the hunters had time for a sure shot. The old man firmly believed that the little bird had led him to the snake and the lion, hoping to be revenged on him for not feeding it on their last bee-nesting trip.

I asked the old hunter if he did not think his encounters with the snake and lion were merely due to coincidence, for in a country where many wild beasts live it is not such a marvellous thing to come upon some kind of beast during a walk. This idea the old fellow indignantly scouted, claiming the bird was revengeful and wicked. I, too, have often had to disappoint my little guide because there were no young bees in the nest, but have never come across anything dangerous while following the honey bird.

While prospecting in Mazoe district, Rhodesia, South Africa, I have frequently bought earthen jars from the natives for a teaspoonful of salt apiece, and by following honey birds now and then and storing the honey in the kettles I have had as much as 80 pounds of pure honey in camp at one time, which in a few months becomes firm and crystallised and is a wholesome food.—Forest and Stream.

THE ORANGE

There are names and varieties of oranges galore. But names do not signify so much as certain distinctive marks by which the choicest oranges may be known. The richest orange is the thin-skinned russet. Thick-skinned oranges may be large, but are light in weight. Good, juicy oranges are heavy and solid—full of deliciously flavoured juice, with tender fibre.

The roughness of the rind of the orange is due to the imbedded cells which contain the oil obtained, either by distillation or expression, for flavouring. Grating the rind ever so lightly will liberate this oil. Therefore, when desired for flavouring your cake or dessert, merely grate off the thin yellow coating of the rind, but none of the bitter, tough, white peel, which is indigestible and intended only as a safe storehouse for the juices within.

There are as many ways of serving and eating oranges as there are varieties. For winter they are an ideal breakfast fruit, especially for members of the family who find that subacids are not only the most palatable, but best suited to them individually.

Do not throw away the yellow rinds of the orange when using the juice. Cut the rinds in strips and soak in cold water until softened a little. Then cook in sugar syrup until clear. This will keep for a long time if needed, and gives additional delight to the taste when added to apple desserts, pies and winter puddings, fruit and coffee cakes.

Compote of Orange.—When oranges are too tart for serving uncooked they make a delicious garnish for plain pudding, especially those made of rice and requiring a sauce. Put two cupfuls of sugar and half a cupful of water on to boil, skim clear when boiling and add the juice of one lemon. Have ready a dozen juicy oranges, peeled and cut across in halves, if small, or in thick slices, if large. Drop into the syrup a few at a time. Let them merely scald in the syrup; then lift them out carefully on to a flat dish. When all are done boil the syrup down for about five minutes. Pour over the orange and set away to get cold.

Orange Tapioca.—Use the pearl tapioca. Wash and steep a cupful over night. Then cover with a pint of boiling water and simmer until all the tapioca is clear. Peel a dozen nicely flavoured, rather tart, oranges, take out the seeds, and put them into the tapioca. Sweeten to taste; cook about five minutes; then cool.

Orange Shortcake.—This is delicious and may be made with oranges and bananas mixed or in separate layers. Cream together half a cupful of butter and a cupful of sugar and then stir in one egg, well beaten; mix two teaspoonfuls of baking powder with two cupfuls of sifted flour and add to the other materials alternating with half a cupful of milk. Mix to a smooth batter and bake in layers or a long sheet. Have the oranges and bananas peeled, seeds removed from the oranges and both sprinkled with sugar. If the fruit is placed in separate layers, sprinkle the bananas with a little lemon juice as well as sugar. Serve with orange sauce.

Orange Sauce.—Grate the yellow from the rind of two oranges and use the juice of one orange. Beat up with half a cupful of sugar mixed with a level tablespoonful of cornstarch, and a tablespoonful of butter. Pour on a pint of boiling water and stir and cook until it thickens. Serve hot with the cake.

Orange Snow—Take six large Louisiana oranges; slice and remove seeds and sprinkle sugar over them. Beat whites of four eggs to a stiff white foam, adding by degrees, half a cupful of powdered sugar. Add a pint of whipped cream, which must be very cold and stiff. Put the two mixtures together and add the orange or partly fill your sherbet glasses with the sugared oranges and heap the cream on top. A few chopped nuts may be scattered over the top of the cream.

Orange Pie—Beat a cupful of sugar and a large tablespoonful of butter together until creamy. Moisten two level tablespoonfuls of cornstarch with a little milk, and add to a cupful of milk scalded in the double boiler. Cook and stir a minute, then pour quickly into the butter and sugar. Add the grated yellow rind and juice of one orange mixed with a well beaten egg. Peel another large juicy orange; slice very thin and cut slices into quarters. Line a deep pie tin or Washington pie plate with good light paste and bake in a moderately quick oven until done. When the mixture is cool quickly stir in the cut and sugared oranges and turn the mixture into the baked crust and place in the oven a few minutes to brown. Meanwhile beat up the whites of two eggs to a white froth; add two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and beat up stiff and white. Heap on the pie dust thickly with sugar and again place in the oven to brown slightly.—Brooklyn Eagle.

THE HEROISM OF SERGEANT DE LACY

How His Daring Capture of a Confederate Flag in a Hail of Bullets, and a Rescue of a Comrade, Won for Him the Medal of Honor—Dramatic Meeting of Stuart and Hancock

(Copyright, 1911, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

PATRICK DE LACY lives in Scranton, Pa. For many years he was Chief of Police in that city and he has served in the Pennsylvania Legislature. He is past master of the Army and Navy Medal of Honor Legion and past master of the Grand Army of the Republic, Department of Pennsylvania. A boy when he enlisted in the One Hundred and Forty-Third Pennsylvania Volunteers, he was mustered out a captain. The following story of how De Lacy, then a sergeant, won the Congressional medal of honor is furnished by General J. Madison Drake, historian of the Army and Navy Medal of Honor Legion and himself a veteran of the civil war. Sergeant M. M. Nogle is living at Mondovi, Buffalo county, Wisconsin. At a recent reunion of the veterans of Pennsylvania a letter from Sergeant Nogle was read describing how De Lacy rescued him at the Battle of the Wilderness.

IN an all but impenetrable tangle of scrub oak and brush, through which it was herculean labor to scramble, long straggling lines of blue clad men had fought and died through a day and a night, while the armies of the Confederacy, for the most part intrenched in chosen ground, poured a storm of leaden death upon them, mowing down alike trees and life.

After the first day of the Battle of the Wilderness night afforded only a brief and awful respite. The men, dropping where they found themselves, slept with arms at their sides, regaining but a breath of strength for the gamble with death on the morrow.

Then came a morning of unleashed, raging, greedy death, and back and forth over the bodies of friends and foes and horses the grimy, fighting men of Longstreet and Hancock drove one another. Blue routed gray and gray in turn forced the blue doggedly, stubbornly back over the meagre turf they had bought with their lives. Fire raged in the forests, cremating dead and wounded alike, but, deaf to the battle noises, the two great lustful beasts of war tore each other and mangled.

It was during one of the stubborn retreats of Hancock's men that Sergeant Patrick De Lacy, of Company A, 143d Pennsylvania Volunteers, made his first bid for the little gold disk which is the envy and the ambition of soldier and sailor, the Congressional medal of honor.

Decimated, disorganised, broken, the brigade of which De Lacy's regiment was a part was being forced backward—forced at the point of the bayonet and before a rushing wall of leaden bullets, but stubbornly fighting with the red anger of war men.

There was no time to tend the wounded. Men who could not drag themselves over the stormy, cruel ground were left to swell the piles of dead, to be led away prisoners by the men in gray or to be incinerated.

Pushing, trampling, always fighting, the brigade withdrew, inch by inch, dwindling and dwindling in numbers.

In the maelstrom of it all De Lacy saw a comrade lying pinned beneath two stark, red stained forms, a great jagged gash showing horridly where his shirt was torn away.

Almost in the very face of the enemy De Lacy paused. His very hesitancy might have meant death. To stay, to try to help was taking chances that brave men would have shunned. But the sergeant, with cold whistling eerie melodies and death beside him and before him and behind him, plunged over an intervening log and knelt beside the man who coughed.

"Nogle, Nogle, old chap!" he panted, "how bad are you?. Can you walk?"

Sergeant Nogle could not reply. Racking, torturing, killing coughs wrenched his frame. When De Lacy in rough haste lifted him to a sitting position he dropped back, writhing, coughing.

De Lacy measured his chances. Through dense thicket impenetrable to the eye the victory hungry enemy were advancing. Red flashes, gray-black puffs of sulphurous fumes told that, and bullets, purging in very sheets close to the ground, swept back the Union forces.

Then from the edge of a thicketed wood a fringe of men-demons in tattered gray emerged. Dropping on their faces, their muskets flashing terror, they hounded with lead the retreating men, while comrades bursting from the heavy brush swelled the line. Men kneeling in the rear fired over their heads, and while De Lacy lingered with his friend the Confederates formed for a fresh attack.

Panting, exhausted with the work of battle, De Lacy could not carry the other man. In the air, far overhead, shells were bursting and showering life taking bits of iron and scrap over the army which was to stand the onrush of thousands.

Rescue of Nogle.

De Lacy knew that when the roaring, deafening cannonade should cease the hatless, tattered gray men forming at the forest edge would sweep over the field. With steady, excited fingers he unknotted the fastenings which held Nogle's blanket in place. One tug had it free, but with the tug the awful roar of iron monsters ceased and De Lacy knew that the charge would come.

Frantically he worked, rolling Nogle onto the outspread blanket, then looked up to see a smoke swathed line of struggling, straining men bear down.

Deadly he looked about for an instant that brought the gray men nearer. Straggling back, limping, a man who was following the brigade in its retreat passed De Lacy.

Shouting orders to the man, who was a private, De Lacy clutched him by the shoulder and with mingled entreaties and commands impressed him into service.

Gripping the corners of the blanket, the men staggered along under the dragging weight.

Dash after dash brought the advancing Confederates nearer, but throughout the bullet hail De Lacy and his helper stumbled safely with their burden.

Loose stones turned their ankles, bullets breathing hot puffs against their faces made them duck and swerve. In their ears the yells of the war mad men behind them crashed higher than the roar of the musketry, and through it all they heard the man in the blanket coughing.

How long the two men with their burden staggered over the difficult ground they had no conception. Time was not. It was a bitter, measureless struggle, and at the end death was cheated by inches.

Reinforced, the Union lines held, and De Lacy, while the checked Confederates poured shot and shell into the blue army, took Nogle to the [illegible] lung had been punctured.

for men who have a chance. This poor fellow will not fight to-morrow."

That made no difference to De Lacy. He impressed into service three men, all wounded themselves, and, providing them with a stretcher, saw Nogle toted away for the rear.

Then he was back into the fight, where the pungent smart of sulphur smoke distended his nostrils and the fighting beast in him could rage. It was a passion of joy to De Lacy, fighting.

Back over the same ground he stumbled, this time elbow to elbow with the blue men in chaotic order, fighting on the same ground over which he had dragged Nogle. Back, back, over the inches bought [illegible] with blood, the gray men were driven, fighting stubbornly, dying in their tracks.

PERILOUS ADVENTURES TOLD BY AND OF LIVING PERSONS

Down a knoll, up which an hour before he had dragged in pain and anguished haste, De Lacy lurched and scrambled and ran. Fatigue was forgotten. It was war again, real war, man to man and an equal chance. The hot breath of the war god fanned his cheeks and gave him life and he breathed the spirit of the battle and desired to kill.

Backing slowly, the Confederates were fixing bayonets. The sun, shining red through the low hanging curtain of powder smoke, glinted the cold, bright steel that flashed dully.

Down, down the Pennsylvania brigade swept, faster than the dying Southerners would retreat, and then came the moment that every soldier in his cooler moments dreads.

grappled and there was fighting with bayonets and revolver butts and knives and lacerated ironlike knuckles. Men rolled and fought with all the weapons man and nature had provided.

Over the battered, beaten gray the blue line surged and broke upon the second defence. In the encounter there was everything which a man should not know or see. Sweeping onward the Union attack trampled down the second line of defence and rushed forward. A third line, bayonets gleaming, faced them. The men had been tried almost to the limit, but, drawing back their guns so that all the power of their shoulders and backs would be behind the awful knives, they rushed desperately at the third steadfast bulwark of the Confederate army.

Where man could look man in the eyes, facing each other over mere feet of ground, they seemed to pause. The hosts of fighting men seemed to hold their ground as if catching one long, deep breath before the plunge. There was a sense of poise as of a ball thrown upward just before it hurtles on its downward course. Then when the clash should have come the Southern division surrendered. The prisoners were quickly passed to the rear. Among them were General Edward L. Johnston and General George H. Stuart.

General Hancock, recognising in General Stuart a former United States cavalry officer, offered his hand and said:—

"How are you, Stuart?"

The Southern general was proud. His eyes flashed and red mounted to his cheeks. Drawing himself up haughtily he said:—

"Under the circumstances I decline to take your hand."

It was an affront to General Hancock, and it stung

Under his direction the men replenished their ammunition boxes, taking cartridges from the dead of both armies lying all about them.

Some, when they had taken the cartridges they were so sorely in need of, lay panting on the ground, tongues extended, breathing hard and gathering new strength for the conflict they knew was to come. Surging back and forward over the same ground time and again during the day, neither army had gained any distinct advantage in territory. To the men who could not see the whole of the fight in perspective it seemed that there would be no end. How many of the enemy faced them they did not know. Hidden in the woods, the Confederates poured in their awful fire and the blue army replied in kind, shelling, storming, charging.

Uniforms were torn into shreds and wounds bandaged with the ragged strips. Men bound tight cloths about ugly gashes in arms and legs of comrades.

Staggering about like men intoxicated, many dropped from sheer exhaustion and hunger, while others, wounded but unconscious of it in the heat of battle, suddenly crumpled when the strain was withdrawn.

De Lacy lay flat on his back, arms extended, fairly drinking in strength and rest. The air, hot and smoke laden as it was, felt good when he could get it in long, deep gulps. When he had gained new strength he walked about among the men of his company, sadly few, and cheered them. Many had seen his almost Quixotic act in saving Nogle and the feat had its effect. Soldiers would follow him through the gates of purgatory and De Lacy, knowing it, gloried in the knowledge.

Above the sounds of suffering, above even the wild scream of the battle itself, the frantic gallop of a horse sounded for a moment and a capless, powder smirched aid tumbled from a horse and the regiment received orders from General Hancock to proceed to the crossing of the Orange plank road and the Brock road, where the Union line, literally shot to pieces, was hard pressed and in danger of being turned.

Back across the field over which the armies had struggled the day before the Pennsylvanians tramped at the double quick.

Men who had lain suffering through the night untended, rose on their elbows and cheered. Others begged for aid, and many, dragging themselves along the ground, were making their way toward the rear.

About two hundred yards from the plank road, along which the One Hundred and Forty-third had been advancing, was a clump of woods and a half natural breastworks of logs. For this position of advantage the regiment headed, but just as De Lacy, now at the head of Company A, left the road a detachment of Longstreet's men emerged from another wooded section and made for the same point. The Confederates were nearer the goal, but De Lacy and his men charged.

Confederate batteries and infantry poured a storm of shot on the little band while the Union troops attempted to beat back the charging men in gray. Man after man was left behind the scudding blue line, but those who were unhurt rushed on. De Lacy had to sprint to hold his position in the lead. A big corporal pressed him hard for the honor, but the sergeant distanced him.

Longstreet's men had decidedly the advantage. Both forces were converging and the one to reach the barricade and woods first might reasonably expect to annihilate the other.

Battling Against Retreat.

On, on they rushed, the hot blood pounding in their temples, the fate of an army perhaps resting on the success of their efforts. De Lacy found breath to turn and urge his men. Pleading with them, ordering them, driving them, he never kept his mind. Nearer and nearer the two detachments drew. They did not stop to fire. It was a race. Speed was the factor which would count and the lust to kill was forgotten.

While De Lacy's men were still in the open the first of the Confederates gained the woods. Dropping behind trees, logs, stones, they mowed down the Pennsylvanians in rows. Fewer and fewer grew the blue uniformed men, and as more of the Confederates gained the protection of the woods, the withering fire increased. De Lacy ordered his men to drop to the ground.

No sooner had the Union men protected themselves as best they could than a color sergeant mounted the Confederate breastworks, and, shouting to his comrades to follow his example, waved a ribboned flag of the Confederate States before De Lacy's men.

Volley after volley was fired point blank at him, but there he stood, hatless, his uniform shot into shreds, but clutching the flag tightly, waving it in the very faces of the men who had fought for days against it.

It seemed that the color sergeant bore a charmed life. At last it was more than De Lacy could bear. Going to what thousands thought was certain death he left his own men behind what little protection they had and dived into the maelstrom of lead, plunging madly on toward the improvised breastworks.

As De Lacy neared his goal, the Confederates began to shower more and more bullets upon him. His clothes were almost torn from his body. Once or twice he staggered from the impact of a bullet and well nigh fell, but he regained his footing and lurched on.

Mad cries of the companions he had left were unheeded by him. The yelling, shooting men in the trenches before him were forgotten. Of just one thing De Lacy was conscious. There was the Confederate flag and he was going to tear it down, wrest it from the man who flaunted it so insolently.

All the fire within range was poured down upon him, but he escaped.

Right up to the very wall of logs he sprinted, and the men in the trenches did not seem to realise what was his purpose. Skirting along the front of the breastworks he headed for the point where the color sergeant was waving the ragged banner. Then, as though at last the men in gray had realised what he would do, with an ever increasing roar they sent bullets in hot, singing waves upon him. It seemed that they would sweep him from the earth, blow him into nothingness, but still he did not perish.

Leaping up onto the logs he stood for a fraction of a second near his foe. The color sergeant had a sword. Still grasping the flag he raised it. To the watching hosts it seemed ages poised above his shoulder. De Lacy held the bent barrel of his rifle in one hand. The stock, splintered by bullets, was drawn back ready for the thrust. In the very moment that he stood there a ball struck the already bent barrel and nearly wrenched his only weapon from his hands.

The Union men dared not fire. Lunging viciously at De Lacy's head the color sergeant put all his strength into one stroke of his sword. It was anguish to those who could see. The Pennsylvanian thrust aside the sword in its downward crash, staggering under the very impact of the blow. Recovering in an instant, he lunged forward, bringing the point of the bayonet downward at the same time and pierced the Confederate through the breast.

Even in death the Southerner clutched his colors, but De Lacy wrenched them from his lifeless hand and, flaunting them for seconds on the very spot where the enemy had waved them, he started back.

Stupefied at the daring of the man the Confederates were slow to act, and while they were still holding their breath in suspense De Lacy stumbled down the embankment and began the terrible run for life.

The storm of bullets was multiplied. The firing roared and crackled, and volley after volley rolled over each other like great waves of noise.

Darting in a zigzag course De Lacy ran and stumbled and lurched toward the Union lines. Even after his miraculous feat none expected him to regain his men, but he passed through that tide of fire.

Inside the lines he sank exhausted on the ground, banner clasped close to his body. Friendly hands and carried him to the rear where he was

THE PRINCESS OF PLESS

Her husband isthe fifth richest man in the German Empire. Teutonic business instinct has made the Prince of Pless in a few short years one of the money powers of the German Empire. The tax lists show him to rank fifth in the German money aristocracy. This disclosure brings to mind the marriage of the beautiful Mary Cornwallis-West to the Prince, when it was heralded abroad that her title of Princess would be little more than an empty name, that the Princely pocketbook did not hold a pfennig, and that Miss West had made a bad bargain. To-day, however, she has the satisfaction of knowing that there are only four men in Germany ahead of her husband in the matter of wealth.

THE SECRET OF A GOOD COMPLEXION

This is the season for evening parties, social events, etc. Why not look your best? Why let your complexion suffer by contrast with other ladies? Why not ensure a good complexion? You can do this on sound, natural lines by using Zam-Buk, nature's herbal balm.

Zam-Buk is a skin food; and complexion is purely a matter of skin health. Zam-Buk smeared lightly over the face each night acts as a skin tonic. It stimulates the cells beneath the cuticle to healthy action, makes the capillaries and blood vessels work, and the vigorous circulation thus started carries away secreted impurities. Waxy, sallow, deposits are thus removed. Hard, low deposits are thus removed. Hard pimply growths are softened and disappear. That yellow tinge gives place to the pink of health, and the white, velvety "look" and "feel," which healthy skin alone has.

Isn't this wiser than relying upon talcum powder and cosmetics? These only put on a "complexion" from the outside. It doesn't last. Zam-Buk helps nature to build up a complexion from blood and tissue. It lasts.

Zam-Buk also cures skin diseases, pimples, ulcers, abscesses, blood-poison, eruptions, cuts, burns, scalds chapped places, scalp sores, piles etc. 50c. box, all druggists and stores, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, but beware of harmful substitutes and imitations.

A GREAT HUNTER

The Duke of Connaught Has Bagged Some Big Game.

It is not generally known that the Duke of Connaught displayed very considerable prowess as a hunter of big game in Uganda, after he had resigned the High Commissionership of the Mediterranean in 1909. He went to Mombassa in East Africa to confront the lions and elephants of Uganda. In a hunting tour, which lasted ten weeks, and in the course of which he traversed considerably over four hundred miles. His Royal Highness made the biggest individual bag of the party. His bag consisted of one elephant, seven lions, fifteen rhinoceroses, four buffaloes, one cheetah, and three hippopotami, besides thirty-three different species of antelope. He can, therefore, claim to have been the first of his Royal line to have met the king of beasts face to face and slain him. King Edward, it is true, when in India, shot jungle tigers from a howdah on the back of an elephant, and King George, when he was in India, shot, in the same manner, as a guest of one of the Indian rajahs, one of the rare lions which are preserved with such care in India by the rajahs for the sport of themselves and their especially honored guests. But very different is the advancing on foot towards the lion—in fact, literally "bearding him in his den"—which is exactly what the Duke did in Africa.

NEWS BRIEFLETS FROM OVER SEAS

A Breezy Collection of Paragraphs Telling of Interesting Happenings in the Old Land.

A hind chased by the Essex Staghounds took to the railway line near Takely, and the hounds followed just as a train came up. One hound failed to clear the metals, and was killed.

Brave Lock-Keeper.

It was decided by the Thames Conservancy to report to the Royal Humane Society the bravery of Lock-keeper Kemp, who jumped into the river at Bovenay and rescued a girl who attempted suicide.

Double Execution.

Walter Martyn, who strangled a girl in Crimble Wood, near Heywood, and Edward Tarkenter, who murdered his wife at Heyside, near Ildham, will both be executed in Strangeways Gaol Manchester.

Will the Vandals Care?

Brightlingsea Church has been so disfigured by the carving of initials by visitors that the churchwardens have erected a signboard on which is the notice, "If you must leave your name or initials, please put them on the board on the tree behind you."

Mary Queen of Scots' Cabinet.

A hornbeam cabinet, said to have belonged to Mary Queen of Scots, was sold for $44 at Sotheby's. According to a pedigree, the cabinet was given by the Countess of Elgin in 1700 to a Mrs. Stevenson, and by subsequent bequests it reached the present vendor.

Two Thousand Years Old.

A boat, which Professor Boyd Dawkins, the geologist, has declared to be 2,000 year old, was unearthed during excavations at Baddiley Mere, near Nantwich. It has been presented to Chester Archaeological Society by Mrs. MacDonald, on whose property it was found.

Old Age Pension Romance.

The marriage has taken place at Pinchbeck West, near Spalding, of Edmund James Cawthorn, aged seventy-five. The bridegroom is a great-grandfather, and the bride a grandmother, and both are old age pensioners.

The Decline of the Bicycle.

The chairman of Messrs. Rudge Whitworth, Ltd., commenting at the annual meeting at Coventry, on the practical disappearance of the instalment system of buying bicycles, said that, while the bicycle as a vehicle of utility would remain a permanent part of humanity's equipment, its popularity for pleasure purposes was declining.

Mr. Will Crooks and Tramps.

Addressing a temperance demonstration in the Macclesfield Drill Hall, Mr. Will Crooks, M.P., said he had tramped about the country, hard up and hungry. Many a time he had met men, and they had said to him, "Hello! Out of work? Come and have a drink, then." "No, thank you, I don't drink; but will take the money if you like." "And I have taken the money," said Mr. Crooks.

Many a time he had taken a couple of holes up in his belt for his breakfast.

Escaped in Nightshirt.

A remarkable story of a boy's escape from the Feltham Institute, where he had been sent under the Borstal system of detention was told at Feltham Police Court, when George Manners, aged eighteen, was committed for trial, charged with burglary at a farm. He knotted blankets and sheets together, lowered himself 10 ft. from a dormitory window, and escaped in his shirt. He scaled a high wall topped with barbed wire, and on reaching open country made for a farm, where he stole a hat, leggings, boots, and overcoat.

Convicts Handle Radium.

Tubes of radium were handed round among some 500 prisoners and convicts in Maidstone Prison at a lecture given in the chapel by Mr. Richard Kerr. The title of the discourse was "Some Marvels of Science," and it was illustrated by experiments and a series of remarkable lantern-slides. Mr. Kerr's story of scientific wonders was listened to with the deepest interest and attention, and hearty laughter rang through the building at his Irish stories and rapid flow of native wit.

Lamp in a Quarrel.

James Garratt, ironworker, was remanded at Tipton, on a charge of doing grievous bodily injury. It was allege that Garratt went home infuriated with drink, and threw a lighted petroleum lamp at his wife. The lamp exploded, and Mrs. Garratt was speedily enveloped in flames. She sustained shocking injuries before the flames could possibly be extinguished. She was afterwards removed to the hospital, and her condition was said to be ver serious.

What the Band Played.

Opposing an application for leave to hold Sunday concerts in a theatre, Councillor J. M. Hogge, at a meeting of the York City Council, said that the other Sunday when he went to the Presbyterian Church he heard on the way the Scots Greys playing a very lively air, which many people thought most beautiful.

A large crowd waited outside to hear the finish before going into church. They did not seem to know it as sacred music, and asked him if he knew it. "Oh, yes," he replied, "I know it well; it is one of Harry Lauder's songs, 'Every night I hang my trousers up behind the door.'" When there was music like that on the way to the Presbyterian kirk—(laughter)—it was time they hesitated.

LACROSSE IN THE COMMONS.

Speaking of lacrosse players, there are several famous players in the house besides Sam Hughes. Richard Blain, member for Peel, comes from Brampton, and Brampton has always been famous for its lacrosse teams. Dick, in his early days, was the backbone of the team. Then there is W. M. Martin, the member for Regina. He was also a lacrosse player of note in his day—and his day was not so long ago, for he is only thirty-five now—and at Toronto University he starred on the varsity team.

"From every bud, comes forth a bloom of delight."

One reason why Cowan's Maple Buds are so good for you and the children is because of the scrupulous care exercised in making them.

Only the best Cocoa Beans are used in preparing the chocolate—these beans are carefully selected for their richness and flavor—then ground between innumerable rollers to make a smooth velvety chocolate. This is the chocolate blended with rich, creamy milk and sugar, that makes

REARING POLAR BEARS

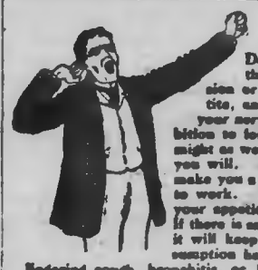
When Brought to Warm Climes They are Subject to Pneumonia.

A baby polar bear at the Zoological Gardens has had a very sad record. In the course of three days it was born, forcibly orphaned, adopted and died. Barbara produced two fine little cubs. It was decided, however, that she could not be trusted to rear them, for her record with her four previous families was very bad. Individual babies have been eaten, exposed neglected, and trodden upon by their parents, and not one lived beyond the first week or so. A motherly collie undertook to provide the new babies with warmth and food, and Barbara was lured out of her den with food, when the cubs were taken and handed over to the collie. They apparently fared excellently with her, but soon one died. Death was officially pronounced to be due to pneumonia. The other cub was taken in hand by Mrs. Pocock, wife of the Zoo's Curator of Mammals. With extraordinary patience and devotion, this lady fed it night and day with warm cow's milk from an infant's bottle. Somehow these Arctic animals are terribly prone to develop pneumonia, which by the way, carried off the Zoo's walruses.

Railway Wages Raised.

At a meeting in Shrewsbury, of the Conciliation Board of the Great Western and London and North-Western Joint Railways, concessions were agreed upon by which some 1,500 men will get either reduced hours or higher wages, or both. The staffs affected include those at Birkenhead, Chester, Shrewsbury, Hereford, Ludlow, Wellington, and many other stations. It is estimated that when the scheme comes into full operation it will cost the joint companies a further $20,000 a year. The men's representative regarded the concessions as a fair compromise.

Do You Feel This Way?



Do you feel all tired out? Do you sometimes think you just can't work away at your profession or trade any longer? Do you have a poor appetite, and lay awake at nights unable to sleep? Are your nerves all gone, and your stomach too? Has ambition to forge ahead in the world left you? If so, you might as well put a stop to your misery. You can do it if you will. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will make you a different individual. It will set your lazy liver to work. It will set things right in your stomach, and your appetite will come back. It will purify your blood. If there is any tendency in your family toward consumption, it will keep that dread destroyer away. Even after consumption has almost gained a foothold in the form of a lingering cough, bronchitis, or bleeding at the lungs, it will bring about a cure in 98 per cent. of all cases. It is a remedy prepared by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., whose advice is given free to all who wish to write him. His great success has come from his wide experience and varied practice.

Don't be wheedled by a penny-grabbing dealer into taking inferior substitutes for Dr. Pierce's medicines, recommended to be "just as good." Dr. Pierce's medicines are OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. Their every ingredient printed on their wrappers. Made from roots without alcohol. Contain no habit-forming drugs. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

By-Products Profitable.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—By-products yield 97 per cent. of the profits of the packing business, according to figures given by Wm. D. Miles, formerly general manager of the Armour Packing Co. of Kansas City, who concluded his testimony yesterday in the trial of the ten Chicago packers, charged with criminal violation of the Sherman law. He gave the company's net profits for 1909 as $225,575 in the dressed beef department, based on the slaughter of 204,620 animals.

An analysis of these figures showed that the company made, but three cents profits on dressed meat of each steer killed, while the fat of each animal yielded a profit of 42 cents. The profit on hides was 37 cents a head and 18 cents profit was obtained from the glue manufactured from the hoofs.

Equal Treatment Wanted.

London, Jan. 5.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Chairman Smithers of the G.T.R., discussing the American proposal of preferential treatment upon the opening of the Panama Canal, said he interpreted the Hay-Pauncefote treaty as guaranteeing equal treatment to vessels of all nations passing through the Panama Canal. He wouldn't like to commit himself to any forecast of the changes, which the opening of the canal was likely to bring, but so far as Canadian lines were concerned considerable traffic carried westward to the Pacific for shipment to Europe might be witnessed. He had no doubt that English ships would still carry the bulk of the overseas Canadian trade whether it be conveyed across the Pacific or the Atlantic.

Sold Liquor Illegally.

St. Catharines, Jan. 5.—Momer Bergon, convicted here yesterday of keeping liquor for sale on his premises, near Queenston quarries, was fined $25 and $11 costs. He endeavored to escape punishment by claiming that he had purchased the liquors for neighbors, but H. Cole, the Niagara Falls wholesaler, who made the sale, swore differently.

No Heat, No Fare.

Winnipeg, Jan. 5.—As a result of failure to heat the street cars by the Winnipeg Railway Co., the Board of Control yesterday discussed the advisability of passing a bylaw to prevent fares being collected in cold cars. With the mercury at 30 [illegible] yesterday many cars had no heat and many passengers refused to pay fares.

Sudden Death.

Stratford, Jan. 5.—Wm. Turner returned Wednesday night from the hockey match apparently in the best of health and at 11.30, a few minutes after he had returned, he was seized with heart failure and died within a few minutes.

African Liquor Traffic.

Brussels, Belgium, Jan. 5.—An international conference for the control of the liquor traffic in Africa opened here yesterday. The proposals before the conference are an extension of the total prohibition zone and the imposition of largely increased duties on alcohol in the zones where the importation of alcohol is permitted.

STOMACH TIED IN KNOTS

Awful Suffering of New Jersey Woman—Lasted Five Years.

When you don't want your breakfast your stomach is out of order.

Stomach trouble is either caused by weakened rundown system, or will certainly be followed by that condition.

Mrs. L. D. Cook, Vineland, N.J., says: "I was sick five years with indigestion. My stomach seemed to have a heavy load in it and at other times it seemed to be tied in knots. Nobody knows how I suffered.

"I tried a great many doctors and a great many kinds of medicine but nothing did any good until I took Vinol. It has helped me wonderfully. I am improving fast, feel better and am getting my flesh back again. Vinol has done me a world of good."

We know the great power of Vinol in curing chronic stomach trouble and building up all weakened rundown persons, and that is why we guarantee it as we do. McDermid and Jury, corner George and Charlotte streets; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe streets.

Late Navigation.

Kingston, Jan. 5.—Sloop Belle Malone of Clayton, N.Y., made a record yesterday afternoon when she arrived from Clayton and will load logs for her return trip. A great deal of ice was encountered near Wolfe Island, but the rest of the journey was easy.

The barge of the Montreal Tramp Co., sunk near Alexandria Bay, will be brought to the surface in a day or two.

Row In Separate School Board.

Kingston, Jan. 5.—Separate school elections did not suit some of the members of the board and it is reported that two or three will resign. This is the second row on the board within a year.

Banish the Bishops.

Lisbon, Jan. 5.—Following the punishment of the Patriarch of Lisbon, Mgr. Anthony Mendes Bello, who was ordered to be expelled on Dec. 28 by the Portuguese Government for two years, all the Portuguese bishops yesterday proclaimed their independence from the Government. The Minister of Justice, in reply to a communication from them notifying him of their decision, declared that if they persist in their refusal to recognize the civil authorities they will all be expelled from Portugal. At the same time he will hold them responsible for any disturbance.

P. E. I. Cabinet.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Jan. 5.—The Provincial Cabinet is as follows: Hon. J. A. Mathieson, Premier and Attorney-General; Hon. J. A. MacNeill, Commissioner of Public Works; Hon. Murdoch Mackinnon, Provincial Secretary-Treasurer and Commissioner of Agriculture.

Members of the executive without portfolios: Hon. Murdoch Kennedy, Hon. Chas. Dalton, Hon. W. S. Stewart, Hon. J. A. Macdonald, Hon. John McLean, Hon. A. E. Arsenault.

Gave Himself Up to Police.

Kingston, Jan. 5.—Jos. Devine, known in police circles, is under arrest for assault on Charles Selsby, a well known citizen. The alleged assault occurred on May 7. The accused has been out of the city, but gave himself up to the police yesterday.

St. Kitts' Canadian Club.

St. Catharines, Jan. 5.—E. F. B. Johnston of Toronto was the principal guest at yesterday's meeting of the Canadian Club. Following the banquet at the Welland House he delivered an able address on "Some modern factors."

Admitted to Bail.

Chatham, Jan. 5.—Thomas Griffith, charged with manslaughter, through the death of his brother-in-law, Orlando Arnold, some months ago, was admitted to bail in the county police court on Wednesday afternoon in the sum of $4,000. One thousand dollars cash was put up by the prisoner's father and sister, $2,000 by himself, and $500 each by his wife and brother. Griffiths immediately left for his home in Chatham Township.

Motor Busses for Montreal.

Montreal, Jan. 5.—Five or six companies are preparing to institute deals to provide motor omnibus service in the city in the near future, according to the statement of Ald. LaPointe yesterday.

Induction at Brantford.

Brantford, Jan. 5.—Rev. G. A. Woodside, formerly of Owen Sound, was inducted here last night into the pastorate of Zion Church. Rev. Mr. Scott, moderator of the Paris presbytery presided. Rev. Matheson of Drumbo delivered the address to the people and Rev. R. G. MacBeth of Paris to the minister. Rev. H. M. Paulin of Woodstock also assisted. The new minister in his reply made an excellent impression and his pastorate will doubtless prove a popular one.

A. T. Day was unanimously chosen by the new-elected school board here last night as chairman for 1912.

Horses in Spain.

It has been found in Andalusia that on hard trips the only saddle horses surviving extreme hardships and lack of food are the Spanish. The imported horses all succumb.

Largest Sassafras Tree.

Atlanta, Ga., claims the biggest sassafras tree in the world. The tree stands in the yard of the First Methodist church and is said to be more than 300 years old. It is seven and one-half feet in circumference, fifty feet tall and has a spread of more than forty feet.

Wood Pulp Paper.

The manufacture of wood pulp paper involves twenty-eight separate operations from cutting down of the trees to selling the product.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Jan. 4.—There was a brisk demand from foreign buyers for all grades of Manitoba spring wheat and especially so from the United Kingdom. The volume of business transacted was not large, there being only about 100,000 bushels, due to the congested freight situation, both here and in the west. There was also a keen demand for spring wheat flour for prompt and future shipment. Owing to the advance in wheat to-day millers have put them up another 1s per sack. The tone of the local market is strong with a fair business passing. Demand for cheese is good, and prices have an upward tendency. Butter and eggs are fairly active at firm prices. The trade in provisions is fair.

Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 47c; do., No. 3, 45½c; extra No. 1 feed, 45½c; No. 1 local white, 46c; No. 2 local white, 45c; No. 3 local white, 44c.

CHILD IS KILLED IN A RUNAWAY

People in Neighbourhood of Hastings are Shocked Over The Tragic Death of a Little Girl

THROWN FROM WAGGON

The sad news of the very untimely death of a bright little child reached the city last night. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Partridge, who reside near Hastings, are mourning the loss of their little daughter, as the result of a runaway. It appears that Mr. Partridge, with his little daughter, were driving on the road between Warkworth and Hastings, when the team took fright at a piece of paper flying in the wind, and ran away, throwing the little one out. Mr. Partridge held on, however, and, after the horses had run for about a mile, he succeeded in stopping them. While getting them quieted down, to go back to look for the child, they again bolted and got away from him. In the meantime, Mr. McGillen, another resident of that neighbourhood who happened to be driving along after Mr. Partridge, was horrified to find the little girl lying on the road, dead, she having been almost instantly killed by being thrown from the waggon. Mr. McGillen picked up the body, and drove on until he came up with Mr. Partridge, when he had the painful duty of informing him of the sad news. The incident is the most heart rending one to take place in that locality for some time, and the people of that neighbourhood are shocked over the terrible fatality.

LOCAL OPTION CONTEST HERE NEXT JANUARY

Special Wire to The Examiner.

TORONTO, JAN. 5.—The 'Pioneer,' the Ontario organ of the Dominion Alliance, is out to-day with a call to arms to the temperance people to immediately begin a campaign for local option in those districts where they can legally do so in 1913. They ask for campaigns in two hundred and seventy municipalities, including the following: Burleigh and Peterborough City.

SERIOUS CHARGE AGAINST A MONTREAL PHYSICIAN

Special to The Examiner.

MONTREAL, JAN. 5.—Death in the Western Hospital this morning of Emily Thomason, the pretty 17 year-old servant girl, may lead to a charge of manslaughter against several people. Three people are under arrest as a result of the girl's ante-mortem statement — Dr. E. Lauzon, who is held on a charge of malpractice; Wm. Ewing, a young carter, and Mrs. Erskine, both of whom are held by the police, on technical charges, awaiting the final decision of the Coroner's Jury. The doctor has pleaded not guilty.

The ante-mortem statement of the girl was read to the jury. It is alleged that the Doctor assaulted her before performing the operation. The jury decided that the girl died from an operation conducted by Lauzon at the suggestion of Mrs. Erskine and Wallace Ewing. In court on a formal arraignment all three pleaded not guilty.

OBITUARY

IVY ROSETTA LEMMON.

At the early age of eight years, Ivy Rosetta Lemmon, daughter of the late Mr. James Philip Lemmon of Frank street, North Monaghan, passed away last evening in the Nicholls hospital. The deceased is a native of Kent, England. She is survived by a sorrowing mother and two little brothers.

The funeral will take place at the Little Lake cemetery at two o'clock to-morrow (Saturday.)

PATIENTS SHIVER IN THE COLD

Wall at the London Asylum Building Fell Completely Wrecking Kitchen and Heating Apparatus

SOME NARROW ESCAPES

Special Wire to The Examiner.

LONDON, ONT., Jan. 5. — With the thermometer 6 below zero and a high wind blowing, the big wall at the asylum building recently burned toppled over, wrecking the kitchen completely and tearing out the wall of the boiler house. The full staff in the kitchen had a wonderful escape from death; they had just gone into breakfast into another building. Tons of brick broke all the steam pipes used in the heating, and 110 patients are shivering. No warm food is obtainable ,as a result of all the stoves and ovens being buried beneath tons of brick.

Mr. Gilchrist Is Leaving

Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. is Going to Toronto

Mr. H. M. Gilchrist for the past two years general secretary of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A., is severing his connection with the local branch and is leaving to take a similar position with the Broadview Y. M. C. A. Mr. Gilchrist will be greatly missed in Peterborough, and his many friends here will regret to learn of his departure. His work at the Y.M.C.A. has been of the greatest possible benefit to the Association and his influence in the community has always been for good. He has done much for the Y.M.C.A. since coming to Peterborough.

The Rev. Father Jones, C.S.S.R., of Toronto, who is favourably known in Peterborough, since the recent mission at St. Peter's Cathedral, is at present preaching a retreat at Mount St. Joseph, preparatory to the ceremony of reception and profession which will take place at the Mount Wednesday next.

MR. CRANE RE-ELECTED CHAIRMAN OF BOARD

Inaugural Meeting of the Board Was Held Last Night --Standing Committees for the Year Were Selected --Will Have Group Picture Taken.

The inaugural session of the Board of Education was held last night, and committees for 1912 were elected. There were present, Messrs. John Crane, Col. Miller, Dr. Burnham, B. F. Ackerman, Robt. Fair, Vincent Eastwood, W. H. Hill, L. M. Hayes, Harry Adams and Dr. Morrison.

Mr. John Crane was re-elected chairman of the Board, and in a few words thanked the members for the nomination, and expressed his appreciation of the past favours conferred by the members of the Board, and hoped that in the coming year, things would go on as pleasantly as in the past.

It was then moved by Dr. Burnham, seconded by Mr. Fair, that the following be a committee to draft the standing committees for the year: Col. Miller, Messrs. H. Adams, L. M. Hayes, and W. W. Hill. The committee retired, and later came in with the following named as committees:

Finance Committee — Chairman, Mr. H. Adams, and the following as members—Messrs. L. M. Hayes, V. Eastwood, and Dr. Morrison.

Property Committee — Chairman, Col. Miller and the following members, Messrs. B. F. Ackerman and R. Fair.

Committee of Supervision—Chairman, Dr. Morrison, and the following members: Messrs. B. F. Ackerman and Dr. Burnham.

Committee of Appointments—Chairman, Mr. W. H. Hill, and the whole Board as members.

Other Business.

Mr. L. M. Hayes moved a vote of thanks to the Central Canada Loan and Savings Co., for the use of the room in which the Board met for the last year, and the motion was unanimously carried.

Mr. W. H. Hill moved that a group picture of the Board of Education be taken and placed in a prominent place in the schools, or such other suitable place. Mr. Hill thought the Board should not be any more bashful than the City Council, in making such a move. His motion was seconded by Mr. L. M. Hayes and carried.

Mr. Powell and Mr. F. W. Doan were present and complained that by the action of the Board, in transferring their children from the Central School to the North Ward, they had too far to walk, they thought the Board should endeavour to have them transferred back to the Central.

Dr. Morrison stated that after the last promotion examinations, Public School Inspector Mowat, and Mr. Downie, Principal of the Central School, found it necessary to transfer nine pupils form the Central to the Queen Alexandra on account of the third-class room in the Central being over-crowded, there being 55 pupils when the law only allows 40. It was explained that in making the change, the children living closest to the North Ward school, were the ones transferred.

Mr. Powell suggested that the supply teacher, who was lately transferred to East City, should be placed at the Central, and occupy one of the rooms at present unoccupied. He said that if he thought that arrangements could be made to have the children sent back to the Central in a short time, that he would not mind keeping his children at home for as long as three months, but he was informed that the change could not be made in much less than a year and a half.

Mr. W. H. Hill moved that the matter be left in the hands of the Supervision Committee. This was arranged, and the Board adjourned.

ECZEMA AND SORE EYES

"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and eczema on her head," writes Mr. H. W. Lear, Port Plasford, Nfld. "The child was in a bad state and suffered greatly. The doctor failed to help her ,and on recommendation of a friend, I used Dr. Chase's Ointment, which made a complete cure. With a grateful heart I write you this letter."

NEWSIE BRANDISHES 32 CAL. REVOLVER

A little newsboy, in Lindsay, was arrested yesterday, charged with breaking into several of the town stores and stealing $8.48, and a gold watch. He pleaded guilty and was remanded for sentence. When searched at the police station the boy was armed with a 32 calibre revolver, and also had the stolen goods on him. Even the 'newsies' can "Thomas" Lindsay.

HERE'S A CHANCE

The residents of the city in the vicinity of the Market Hall are looking forward, with a great deal of anticipation to the Poultry Exhibtion. They hope, however, that previous to the opening of the show, that some person will get their inventive genius busy and manufacture mufflers for the male portion of the feathered family.

POULTRY SHOW WILL BE SUCCESS

Association Had a Successful Meeting Last Night at Which Some Valuable Points Were Brought Out

LARGE ATTENDANCE

The last regular meeting of the Peterborough Poultry Association for the year was held last night, and was largely attended. Many different species of birds were exhibited and their respective merits and demerits pointed out by Mr. Baptie, who is an expert on matters pertaining to the feathered tribe. To the many outsiders who were present, the show was an eye opener into interesting and educative elucidation of the various points of the fowl by the expert, proved to be a source of wonder and interest to many, few of whom were aware that a mere chicken could possess so many points of excellence.

This association is doing a commendable work, inasmuch as they are educating the poultry raisers of this district to the benefits to be derived from the raising of a better class of poultry. Quality means more eggs and higher prices. In Montreal broilers are selling at 35c per lb, and eggs at 57c. per doz. People are realizing more and more the advantages of the poultry industry and are putting forth greater efforts towards the advancement of this profitable industry.

Peterborough is rapidly forging ahead as a poultry centre. It was the first district in Ontario to start the egg circle in motion,and the farmers are now reaping the benefits from higher prices.

The annual poultry show opens on Tuesday and will continue for three days. Indications are that this will be one of the best ever. Preparations are being made to accommodate a record-breaking crowd of poultry fanciers and others. The entries this year are larger than any previous year, and the prizes, which are on exhibition in the window of Mr. T. C. Lang are well worth competing for.

THE WEATHER

The lowest temperature last night was two degrees above zero. The thermometer has remained close to that figure all day, and this combined with a strong wind has made it feel quite cold. Zero has not been reached this winter up to the present, but it is very likely that the mercury will go below to-nigh.—W.P.

Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

FRIDAY, JANUARY 5, 1912.

IT MAKES A DIFFERENCE.

An Ottawa despatch informs us that the question of having a bilingual postage stamp is under consideration there by the Postoffice Department. It has not been definitely determined, and it is understood that the King's consent will have to be obtained, as is the case in the design of all postage stamps of the Dominion. As French is an official language, it is not considered unfitting that it should appear on the stamps of the Dominion. There is no reasonable ground of objection, but what a howl of execration would have ripped open the welkin if such a thing had been proposed when Sir Wilfrid Laurier was premier.

THE ASYLUM FIRE.

The fire at the Hospital for the Insane had appalling possibilities. The well-organized hospital brigade did its best with the facilities at hand, but these were inadequate. There was an ample water supply and pressure, but a sufficient volume of water could not be poured on the flames. The hospital firemen could only retard the fire until aid came from the city. But for this timely reinforcement, the main building would have been wiped out. Had the fire broken out in quarters occupied by the patients the consequences might have been terrible.

It is to be hoped the lesson will not be lost on the Provincial Secretary's department. A new pumping plant is being installed ,but other facilities must be improved to the highest possible degree. The staff of the asylum is to be commended for the discipline which prevented anything like a panic among the patients.

INADEQUATE PROTECTION.

The recent fire at the Asylum for the Insane, London, reveals some of the conditions that contributed to the disastrous fire in the Hamilton buildings, where several lives were sacrificed. The conditions are serious enough to invite an investigation which will, we are advised, show that the provisions for fire protection, and the safety of the inmates in case of fire, are both antiquated and inadequate. This is not to the credit of the Provincial Secretary's department of the Ontario government. With a greatly increased, if not extravagant, expenditure, it would seem that our public institutions are not well managed. In no institution, as in an insane asylum, is there so urgent need for every appliance possible, and of the best, for the protection of the inmates, whose unfortunate condition renders them helpless and the special objects of solicitude for their safety. If persons in full possession of their senses are difficult of protection in case of fire, owing to panic, how much are those whose impaired or absent reasoning powers, makes them difficult to direct or assist in case of emergency. There seems to be called for, on the part of the government authorities, a thorough overhauling of our public institutions in regard, especially, to this provision of fire protection appliances. If in both of the institutions that have been subjected to practical test, the system is found defective, is there not reason to assume that the other institutions may be similarly defective?

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Montreal is conservative enough in one thing to satisfy the most exacting non-progressive. It still retains that co-relic of mediaeval ,window-tax, a bath-tub tax.

Roosevelt may win the Republican nomination as presidential candidate. His "style" appeals to the national administration of incarnate modesty and auto-effacement.

A deputation of East and West Durham Conservatives had a conference with Premier Whitney yesterday to devise, it is said, some way of beating Sam Clarke, M.P.P., in West Northumberland. A big tribute this to indomitable Sam.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier will address Montreal Liberals on Monday. He will have to apologise for nothing, and he will be able, says the London Advertizer, to call his political soul his own. He will be able to touch on the naval question, which is more than Mr. Borden dares do, especially in Quebec.

It is reported that two simultaneous attempts were made to incendiarate the Globe and Mail and Empire offices the other night. This is an euphemistic way of stating a probable result of the inflammatory political pour parlees that have been exchanged between the two offices during the recent tropical election season.

The splendid unselfishness and high standard of honour of men in British public life is very well illustrated, says the Globe, by Mr. Bonar Law's resignation of all company directorships on being chosen leader of the Opposition. Gladstone's requirement of all Ministers that they should resign directorships is now the established practice, but Mr. Bonar Law in applying it to the leader of the Opposition goes a step farther. It would be well were this rule introduced into Canadian public life.

The New York World Almanac for 1912 contains the statement that in the year 1911, the public benefactors of the millionaires of the United States has amounted to 150 millions of dollars. Most charitably considered ehese benefactions generally represent restitution. As a rule, men who make millions do so at the expense of somebody else—individually or collectively. The people whose money, by fiscal system, or financial over-reaching, has passed into the keeping of millionaires, would, no doubt, like to have had the pleasure and credit of giving the money themselves.

FINISHING LAURIER'S WORK.

(Ottawa Free Press)

The Borden Cabinet seems to be "finishing Laurier's work" in a most satisfactory manner—and, incidentally, taking the credit for it.

First, came the reduction in cable rates across the Atlantic. This was inaugurated under the Laurier Government by Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, yet the credit is all taken by Hon. L. P. Pelletier and the Borden Government. Indeed, to read some of the Conservative papers, one would never think that it was Mr. Lemieux who first broached the question of cable rate reduction.

Then came the return of the subscription made by the City of Quebec towards the construction of the Quebec bridge. This was arranged by Hon. G. P. Graham, as part of the re-casting of the plans for the new structure. Yet, the credit for the payment of the money back to the city is being claimed by Hon. L. P. Pelletier, as the Minister representing the Quebec district.

And now, to crown the completion of Laurier's work, comes the announcement that His Majesty the King has accepted the invitation extended to him by Sir Wilfrid Laurier to come to Canada and open the new transontinental railway in 1914. Here again, all the credit is being taken by the Borden Cabinet, though the idea was Sir Wilfrid's, and it was he who personally invited the Sovereign to re-visit Canada, when the was in England last summer.

MAKING MILK TO YIELD THE LAST OUNCE OF SOLIDS

Near Picton, at the present moment, a series of experiments, or rather of working tests, is in progress that may revolutionise the dairying industry of the Province, and, perhaps, of the world. That may seem like a large order, but there is a substantial basis for the statement. The inventor of the new dairy product is Mr. George W. McMullen, and he and his brother have erected an experimental plant, in which the process of saving in food form the total quantity of the solids contained in milk is now being tested.

The story as told by Mr. McMullen to a staff correspondent of The Weekly Globe is most interesting. He points out that in every hundred pounds of milk there are thirteen pounds of solids, the remainder being water. In butter there are but four and a half pounds of the milk solids for every one hundred pounds of milk required to produce it, and in cheese only eight or nine pounds, the remainder of the thirteen pounds of milk solids being lost in the making. Mr. McMullen tells of the food value of these lost solids, and says that by a patented process of evaporation he saves the entire thirteen pounds of solids in the form of a new dairy product, which is neither butter nor cheese, but more palatable than either and of greater food value. It is somewhat more compact than butter, but may readily be spread upon bread. It does not "go bad" quickly, and under proper conditions of air and temperature will keep for years.

This new, and as yet unnamed food stuff is expected to fill a long felt want. The cost of butter in winter, even in Canadian cities, rises almost to prohibitive prices. Many people are forced to use substitutes, such as oleomargarine, that do not contain anything like the food value of butter. But the McMullen process, if the working tests now in progress prove satisfactory, will give the farmer a better price for milk than the cheese or butter factories can afford to pay, and will give the consumer a far larger quantity of dairy product for less money than butter costs. Science applied to the extraction of the total quantity of the solids in milk will prove as beneficial to the consumer as to the producer because they will divide between them the saving following upon the application of scientific principles.

There may be nothing new under the sun, but the makers of the new dairy product believe they have something that is at least to the men of to-day a novelty, and that will add enormously to the world's comfort. Consider for a moment what it would mean to increase threefold the food value and volume of the butter supplied by all the dairies in the world. That is the task of two elderly gentlemen down Picton way. May they have success in full measure, heaped and running over.—The Globe.

PARKDALE PRESENTS PURSE TO RECTOR OF ALL SAINTS'

At a well-attended meeting, held in the Church of the Epiphany, Parkdale, Thursday evening, a purse of gold and an illuminted address were presented to Rev. R. B. Grobb, M.A., who for the past two years has been curate at that church, assisting Rev. Canon Bernard Bryan. Mr. Grobb made a short address, thanking the congregation for its gift.

The address thanking Mr. Grobb for his services during the past year mentioned especially the great hold which he had obtained of the congregation during his curacy, and also for his work in connection with the Young People's Association.

Rev. Mr. Grobb is the new rector of All Saints.

CHRISTMAS TREE OF ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY WAS SPLENDID SUCCESS

About 600 children partook of supper at the first annual Christmas tree of the St. George's Society of Peterborough, held in the Market Hall last night. The event was most successful, and the 600 people who attended enjoyed to the full a genuine English social evening. The hall was magnificently decorated with flags and bunting, by Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, and several painted mottoes were donated by Mr. Langley Donations of provisions were received from Mr. T. H. Hooper, Coleman Bros., and Mr. Stock, while sundry subscriptions were also received, some running as high as $25.00.

The first event of the evening was supper. Four long tables were spread and the children were lined up in two long lines, and marched to the tables. After supper the city's new Mayor, Mr. Broadburn, addressed the gathering, complimenting them upon the large attendance, and the enthusiasm, and also wishing all a happy and prosperous New Year.

After this the children enjoyed themselves at numerous kinds of amusement, while the ladies cleared away the tables. Everything being put in order again, the children were again called to attention and between six and seven hudred presets were distributed. Toys were distributed among the younger children while articles of clothing, such as mufflers, etc., were presented to the older ones. After the presents were given, the evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

The Society desires to thank all those who so generously donated provisions and subscriptions, and also the ladies, whose untiring efforts were responsible for the splendid success of the evning.

There were nearly twice as many present as had ben expected and the officers of the Society are so delighted with the success of the affair, that they have decided to make it an annual event.

Delicious Chocolate Pie Filling

Many of the best cooks have discovered that the use of cocoa instead of chocolate greatly improves the flavour, and is also more economical.

Use one cup of milk, two heaping tablespoons of Fry's Cocoa, three-quarters cup of sugar, yolks of three eggs and one level teaspoon of corn starch dissolved in a little water. Mix well and flavour with vanilla. Cook until thick, stirring constantly.

Pour over undercrust which has been already baked, and use the whites of eggs for the meringue. Put in the oven again to brown the meringue. Try this and see if the folks do not vote it "just delicious".

SITUATION IN CHINA

Special to The Examiner

PEKIN, CHINA, Jan. 5. — A prominent newspaper, which to date has supported the Imperial Government and Manchu dynasty, is now out with a request to the government here to hand the reins of control to President Sen and his cabinet at Canton, and thus avert the inevitable destruction of life and property which must follow the promised clash between the Imperial and Republican troops, all well armed and well equipped with modern implements of war. It is believed in some quarters that the Emperor's family has already quietly slipped out to exile in Jehol, Mongolia, leaving Premier Yuan Shi Kai to do the best he can at Canton. President Sen's cabinet is meeting daily, settling the details of the republic.

PETERBORO' JUNIORS OFF TO GOOD START DEFEAT COBOURG IN AN O.H.A. GAME 9-8

Local Youngsters Had Game Well in Hand Until Last Few Minutes When Some Long Distance Shooting Cut Down Their Lead

SURPRISED THE FANS

With five men playing O. H. A. hockey for the first time, and only one of last year's team in action, the Peterborough junior O. H. A. team opened the season most auspiciously at Brock Street Rink, last night, by defeating the fast Cobourg juniors by 9 goals to 8, in an exciting game. At the finish it was a tight fit, but the local youngsters had all the better of the battle with the exception of the last ten minutes, and deserved to win by a larger margin on the play. The Peterboroughs, tired at the finish, and this, coupled with some lucky long-distance shooting by the Cobourg forwards, notably by Freeman, allowed the visitors to cut down a lead of five goals, and with four minutes to play, Peterborough was only one to the good. They held their lead to the finish, however, and skated off with a well-earned victory.

The showing of the local team was a surprise to the fans. It was figured that Cobourg, with five of last year's good team in the game, would prove too big a task for Peterborough's inexperienced and little-practised squad of youngsters. However, the latter showed amazing speed, and had the better of the going all through until they faded somewhat on end. The closeness of the score may be attributed to the long-range shooting of the Cobourg team, five long shots in the second half getting away from Dwyer. The Petes' forward line checked back so fast and consistently and the local defence checked so successfully that the visitors had little chance to get close in, and had to shoot from outside, these tactics finally giving them enough counter to make the game close. The first half was all Peterborough. Speedy rushes by the local forwards, and good relieving work by the defence kept the play on the defensive end, and the way the Petes' forward line checked back gave them little change to assume the aggressive. There was a world of speed on the Peterborough line-despite the fact that they have had little chance to practise and the fans opened their eyes when they saw the youngsters let out a few links. There is material in the squad for a team that will take a lot of beating, and when they get working together, as they will, with consistent practice, the team that beats them will know they have been in a game. They meet Lindsay here next Tuesday night and there should be a bumper crowd on hand for what promises to be one of the best junior games of the season.

All the Peterborough forward line played brilliant hockey and the quartette worked their heads off, their checking back being an outstanding feature. They were always back with the visitors' line, overhauling the latter when they had apparently a good start. Weir, although he was on his skates only the second time this season, played a phenomenal game at rover. His dodging, rushes, and great speed made him a constant source of danger to the Cobourg defence, while the quickness with which he came back had the visitors attacking division in all kinds of trouble. Capt. Hall skated like a Trojan, in centre, and was always in the thick of the fray, although he had not his usual success in scoring. Harry Clancy showed a world of speed at left wing, and was equally effective on the attack, and in defensive work, his checking back being splendid. Cook, although handicapped by being on his wrong wing, and further, by the fact that he was up against the biggest man on the Cobourg line, never let up for a moment and was always going, taking his bumps without a murmur and coming back for more. The forward line showed a willingness to play combination, and a few practices together will give them a much better system. The defence, Kennedy and Milloy, worked the cross-rink method successfully, and kept the visitors out in grand style, while both rushed nicely, each having a goal to his credit. Dwyer, in goal, played a good game in the first half, but the long, accurate shots of the Cobourg team, had him beaten in the second period, several rolling in after he had apparently stopped them.

Cobourg had the size and weight, and when they came out in their new, classy uniforms of red and white, looked like winners. The Petes made their appearance in a nondescript outfit, owing to the fact that the new uniforms had not arrived, and the contrast was striking, to say the least. Freeman, the diminutive rover, was the best man on the Cobourg team. His good shooting was responsible for a number of goals. He seemed able to locate the nets from any position. Hinman and Cunningham, the two wing men, had lots of speed and shot nicely from the side. The defence did not show anything out of the ordinary.

Harvey Sproule of Toronto, refereed the game satisfactorily. He had nineteen penalties for tripping and slashing to impose during the fracas.

The teams were:—

Peterborough—Goal, Dwyer; point, Milloy; cover-point, Kennedy; rover, Weir; centre, Hall; right wing, Cook; left wing, Clancy.

When Referee Sproule gave the word the teams opened at a lightning clip. Peterborough pressing from the start. Weir and Hall got away nicely but Holnbeck blocked and rushed. His effort was futile, however, and the Peterborough forward line brought the rubber back. From a scrimmage in front of the Cobourg nets, Weir shot one past Peachy in 2.0 mins. Peterborough 1, Cobourg 0. Hinman was off at the time for tripping Kennedy.

From the face-off, the puck went to Clancy, who tore down the left wing, eluding the Cobourg defence and beating Peachy with a pretty side shot in thirty seconds. Peterborough 2, Cobourg 0.

Hall was penalized for tripping and a moment after Penwarden was sent away for dumping Cook. The procession to the penitent bench was augmented by Clancy, who was chased for tripping. The Cobourg forward line came down three abreast, but Kennedy broke up the attack and tore off a speedy rush, winding up a pretty play by fooling Peachy from close in. Peterborough 3, Cobourg 0.

Referee Sproule had a bad spill at this stage and hurt his shoulder, the game being held up until he had the kink taken out of his arm. Dwyer took care of a couple of hard shots from close in, but the back checking of the Petes and the good work of the defence kept the visitors out in grand style. Hall was benched for tripping. During the next few minutes Kennedy and Clancy also served sentences for the same offence, but even with a man or two short, the young Petes had the better of the going. Freeman was hurt and there was a delay. When play was resumed, Cook tore off a nice rush and passed to Clancy, who scored easily. Peterborough 4, Cobourg 0.

Holnbeck was the next absentee on account of a breach of the hockey etiquette. Gray scored Cobourg's first goal on a pretty dodging rush from centre. Peterborough 4, Cobourg 1.

Hinman was off for tripping. While he was off, Milloy went up on a lone rush and slipped the puck past Peachy. Peterborough 5, Cobourg 1.

Half Time—

Cobourg came back with a rush after the half and in one minute Gray scored on a nice shot from the side. Holnbeck was banished for tripping. Peterborough 5, Cobourg 2.

Peterborough was not to be denied and in two minutes Weir scored on a neat shot. Peterborough 6, Cobourg 2.

A minute later Clancy rushed nicely and passed to Hall, who found an opening behind Peachy. Peterborough 7, Cobourg 2.

In thirty seconds Gray rushed up the side and scored with a long shot. Peterborough 7, Cobourg 3.

Weir drew a penalty for tripping. Freeman was shortly after penalized for slashing. Weir signalized his return by a pretty dodging rush from centre. He skated round Penwarden and drawing Peachy out, scored easily. Peterborough 8, Cobourg 3.

Freeman came out of the penalty box and scored on a beautiful long shot. Peterborough 8, Cobourg 4.

Kennedy hoofed a Cobourg forward into the boards and was relegated to the penalty timer. Hinman followed for slashing, and Clancy for the same offence. Freeman beat Dwyer with another long shot from centre and Cobourg's stock went up. Peterborough 8, Cobourg 5.

The Peterborough fans breathed a little easier a minute later when a neat pass from behind the goal by Cook to Weir gave the latter a chance which he used to the best advantage. Peterborough 9, Cobourg 5.)

The Petes began to fade a little at this stage and Cobourg took the offensive. Hinman closed the gap slightly by a pretty shot from the wing. Peterborough 9, Cobourg 6.

Cunningham repeated the feat a minute later and ninety seconds afterwards another long shot by Freeman leaked through, leaving the score 9 to 8, in Peterborough's favour with five minutes to go. It was a tight proposition and the local's chances did not look any too good when Goalkeeper Dwyer was benched for slashing Penwarden, the latter accompanying him to the side. The goalie got one minute and his assailant a pair of them. The Petes kept the visitors outside of the scoring zone until Dwyer was back and after that held Cobourg safe until the end. Everybody but Cobourg was glad when it was over. The summary:

BIG CROWD ASSURED FOR TO-NIGHT'S GAME

Local Fans Will Turn Out En Masse While Lindsay Will Send Down a Contingent by Special G.T.R. Train---Ice is Lightning Fast and a Great Game is Expected.

Goal—Derocher.
Point—Bearss.
Cover—Bond.
Rover—Giroux.
Centre—Park.

This will be the line-up of the Peterborough intermediate O.H.A. team for to-night's opening game at Brock street rink with Lindsay which is called for 8.30 o'clock sharp. A lightning sheet of ice is ready and everything points to a brilliant, hard fought exhibition. The Lindsay team is somewhat of an unknown quantity, but the reports that have drifted down this way from Scugogville are of a nature that makes it look like a grand battle to-night. Peter Spratt, the sensational player of the St. Michael's team will, of course, be a source of strength to the Lindsay aggregation and with Gamble in goal, the defence will not be any too easy a proposition. However, the Petes figure they have speed enough on the forward line to solve the problem. Harvey Sproule, who refereed last night's junior O.H.A. game remained over to-day and will handle the bell in to-night's fixture. The Lindsay team is running an excursion which will reach here shortly before 8 o'clock.

LINDSAY, Jan. 4.—The Lindsay Juniors got away to a good start to-night when they defeated Port Hope juniors in the first O.H.A. game of the season by 12 to 4.

Donators Thanked

The Sisters of the House of Providence wish to thank those who so kindly contributed towards making the comforts of that institution enjoy the pleasures of the Christmas season. These kind people (whose names appear below) did much towards making the aged and poor, who are with us, forget for a while that they no longer know the delights of the home fireside, doubly delightful when the home is warmed and brightened by the yuletide and therefore, doubly missed by the homeless at this joyful season. It will be a reward to our good benefactors to know that the old people enjoyed the gifts and good things with a pleasure and a relish almost pathetic, for "The tragedy of age is not that we are old, but that we are young".

100,000 AMERICANS COME TO CANADA

United States is Fast Losing Immigrants to Canada—400,000 Last Year

FOLLOWING NORTHERN STAR

NEW YORK, JAN. 4.—The incoming tide of immigrants is lower now than it has been since 1908. The arrivals in 1911 were 300,000 less than in 1910, or in 1909.

Emigration, although nearly 100,000 larger than last year, is not very much above the average of the last five years. To explain partly the heavy decrease in immigration this year the officials say that Canada and the Argentine Republic are taking thousands of the families that would otherwise have come to the United States. Most of the aliens seeking employment in this country now come from Mediterranean ports but more have returned than have arrived during the year.

It is more difficult for a passenger to get steerage accommodation on outgoing ships at the present time than it has ever been. Last week nearly 1,000 were left behind, and even on the vessels leaving to-day there is little steerage accommodation left. Steamship men declare outbound vessels are carrying nearly 50 per cent more third-class passengers this year than last.

"The decrease may mean one of several things," said William Williams, Commissioner of Immigration. "It may mean that industrial conditions here are much disturbed, or that third-class passengers are more prosperous and are going to and fro more than usual, or that the long-looked-for natural ebb in the tide has come."

The following figures tell the story:

Year	Arrivals	Departures
1911	781,058	486,794
1910	1,102,939	359,574
1909	1,088,422	280,628
1908	540,758	654,338
1907	1,170,295	537,511
1906	1,329,585	333,500

The figures for 1911 are incomplete, having been computed only to December 1. All refer to third-class passengers only.

Special to The Examiner.

CHICAGO, ILL., Jan. 5. — It was 6 below zero here early this morning, and around Duluth and the interior of Minnesota, various temperatures of from 10 to 20 below are reported today. It was a driving northwest wind which caused the drop in the thermometer, and it was heading east towards Ontario.

WINNIPEG, MAN. JAN. 5.—Traffic of all descriptions was severely hampered by the sudden drop in the temperature. It is 34 degrees below zero with a wind velocity of 30 miles an hour, and colder than that west of here.

A WEAK CHESTED BOY

"My boy Frank seemed weak-chested, and took a very severe cold," writes Mrs. D. Stevens, Napa, Man. "The many medicines used did not seem to benefit him, until we tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and found it to be exactly what was wanted to cure him." No treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for croup and bronchitis.

Orange Bread Pudding.—Soak a scant pint of stale bread crumbs, or rolled crackers in a pint of cold water for two hours. Add to them the grated rind of two oranges and juice of five or six, according to the size. Cream a kitchen spoonful of butter with three of sugar, stir in them the beaten yolks of four eggs, the whites of two and mix with the crackers and bake for an hour in a buttered pudding dish. Then cover with a meringue of the whites of two or three eggs and as many tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar as whites. Heap over the top and brown for a few minutes in the oven. Serve cold.

Canada In Song And Verse

Miss Annie Warnock—of the salon, Katharine Hale of the pen — is a pioneer in a way that hardly promises to be the primrose path, so far as facility of progress is concerned, though this slow progress is due to no lack of ability or interest on her part. She is engaged in popularizing Canadian folk and song lore, and rescuing it from the primitive dimness to the light, and arousing a popular interest that conditions make it difficult to create. In one sense, she is running a counter to the axiom of physical science, that two bodies cannot occupy the same space at the same time. She is trying to crowd ideas into heads filled with matter. This is not said with an offensive meaning, but as a simple statement of fact. We in Canada are new and, necessarily crude—from force of circumstances. Our energies are, for the most part, entirely enlisted in the quest of bread and butter; to gaining a solid material standing. This does not leave us free as might be, to pursue the cult of art, in music, or painting, or poetry. We have not yet gained the wealth that permits the leisure, that permits concentration on aesthetic culture.

But we are gaining; and one of the gains, one promising beginning, was represented by the delightfully unique entertainment, full of interest and potential significance, given by Miss Warnock, in the hall of the public library last night. The hall was well filled, with a cultured audience, intelligently appreciative of the rare intellectual treat, flavoured with patriotic spirit, provided by Miss Warnock.

The programme, like Caesar's Gaul, in tres partes divisa est. The first part was a history of Canadian Indian tribal melodies. The history of these, and their origin, as associated with the individual life and religious ceremonials of the aborigines, was clearly sketched, and illustrated by, the excellent singing of these crude, weird melodies. The next feature was a history of French Canadian songs, the old French chansons, modulated into new keys of spirit, by the forest environment of the early French settlers. These were also beautifully demonstrated by the singing of "La Claire Fontaine" and "Ma Patrie." Another and most interesting feature, was the singing of the songs of modern Canadian composers—R. S. Pigott, Harold Key, Charles Wheeler, Gena Branscombe and, what was specially interesting, of Alice H. Roger and G. W. Garvin—"Hepaticas" and "Dead Leaves," respectively. These songs, as well as the singing of them, show that we are making progress in musical culture. They have a strong and fine musical texture and show large promise that Canadian composers, though few in number, are developing a true musical grasp and inflatus. The readings of selections from Canadian poets, was particularly interesting, and Miss Warnock's treatment of these, as well as of all the features of her entertainment, was of the greatest interest and merit. She is doing an important work in cooperation in the way of research among the obscure sources and resources of Canadian song lore and literature, and a specially important work, in giving popular knowledge and arousing popular interest in them, in these regards, is more of a national benefactor than perhaps either herself or the public realizes. She went to Ottawa last night where to-night she will repeat the entertainment of last night.

That is so far as she is concerned, for she will not have the help of Mrs. Roger-Collins, who was heard last night with the old time delight by a Peterborough audience. She gave, with true musical spirit and brilliancy and tenderness, Mrs. Roger numbers, "La Truite," Schubert Heller and Prelude in C Minor, Mendelssohn, and "Liebestraum" by Liszt, the latter played with especial delicacy and tenderness. Mr. Roger Collins also played the accompaniments to Miss Warnock's exceedingly well sung songs. It is fortunate that Mrs. Collins postponed her return home to Mount Forest from her home holiday visit, to assist in the entertainment; otherwise her Peterboro' admirers and all who were fortunate to hear her artistic music, would have been deprived of a very prominent feature of a most delightful entertainment.

The Women's Art Association have cause to be well pleased. In this charming entertainment they have added another to their many contributions to the advance of arteulture in Peterborough. They are grateful for the large attendance, and also wish to acknowledge the kindness of the J. M. Green Music Company in furnishing the New Scale Williams piano used during the evening.

"RESOURCES OF AUSTRALIA, ITS GROWTH AND CUSTOMS" BY H. B. AMES AT CANADIAN CLUB

Large Gathering Attend The Semi-monthly Banquet of The Canadian Club Last Evening---Address Was an Interesting One and Provoked Much Comment.

Instructive and interesting to a very great degree was the address given by Mr. H. B. Ames, of Montreal, at the Canadian Club banquet last evening. The event, which took place in the dining hall of the Oriental Hotel, was attended by a large representation of Club members, and a number of prominent citizens. This is the third of a semi-monthly series of meetings, which the Club proposes to hold throughout the winter months.

"Australia" was the subject of Mr. Ames' address. Dealing with the question, politically, socially, and commercially, the speaker unveiled a graphic word picture of the conditions of that vast sister Dominion, as it exists to-day. Mr. Ames was one of a party of twelve men, who, in 1910, journeyed to Autralia, with a view of obtaining some first-hand information on the possibilities of more extensive trade relations with Canada. Their sojourn in that country was a pleasant one, inasmuch as they were hospitably received by the towns and cities, which they visited and were extended unlimited privileges in order that they might successfully fulfil the mission which they had undertaken. Australia is a territory much larger in area than the United States, held, not occupied by a population of four and a half million people. The speaker was very much impressed with the homogeneousness of the people, 96 per cent. of whom were born under the British flag. There was practically no foreign population, and no native inhabitants, with the exception of a few "blacks," who inhabited the interior. They had, therefore, no real problems to deal with. Politically they represented two sides, the labour party and the fusionists, combining therein, two sets of people who emigrated to the country at two different periods.

The Gold Craze.

For a number of years gold mining was the principal industry of Australia, and since the time gold was first discovered there, over two billion five hundred million dollars' worth of the precious metal has been mined. Following the depreciation of this profitable source of employment, there occurred a large influx of labour to the cities, with the result that the problem of providing employment for these people became a serious one, they also form one of the two parties which predominate in Australia to-day, and are known as the fusionists. About this period, England was face to face with many serious problems, directly affecting the middle classes, such as the repeal of the corn law, socialism, and many others. Many of these people emigrated to Australia with the resolve to put their socialistic ideas in to vogue there. In this, they were partly successful. They were the promoters of many radical changes. These people later became the second stratum, or what is known to-day as the labour party.

Concentration of Trade.

Upon your first visit to Australia you are struck with the fact that the greater portion of the population live in the cities. This is largely due to the fact that the state encourages centralization of trade, by building colonization roads and railways, all of which are made to radiate from the cities. Each state builds a different gauge of railway, so jealous are they of their trade relations. This has resulted in a concentration of trade at a few points. The people are under the impression that they can forge ahead on lines entirely original to themselves. The labour party predominates in Australia to-day, and they are ardent protectionists. Their methods are provocative of unstable conditions, both politically and commercially. They have had five premiers in eight years, and, while they have a strong regard for Sir Wilfrid Laurier, they almost look upon his regime of fifteen years as Premier of Canada, as an inconceivable proposition. The fusion party sprang up in 1910. The Labour party went to the polls bent on obliterating them. They partially succeeded, with the result that they control both Houses of the Commonwealth to-day.

Progressive Legislation.

Their legislation is of a progressive and radical nature. We have to be very careful in our view points on this matter, for we are sometimes asked by labour friends to transplant some of their laws, holus bolus, to Canada, where conditions are wholly different.

Supposing a man desires to erect a factory, he would first have to show the size of building, floor space, air space, number of men to be employed, etc., before he would be granted a dicense, by the State, to build. He would also have to pay a standard wage, fixed by the State, a violation of which would subject him to a heavy fine. One prominent manufacturer there expressed himself as being perfectly satisfied with this kind of legislation as long as he could rest assured that his competitor was in a similar position.

The farmers are also compelled to cultivate the maximum quantity of land, which they possess, if not they must break it up and let it to somebody else, who will. If they violate this law, the State will step in and expropriate the uncultivated area. It is a distinct intimation on the part of the State, to the farmer, that the land is not his own, if he will not use it.

Women's Franchise.

The Labour party has instituted another movement that has helped them a great deal; that is, Women's Suffrage. Every woman in Australia has a right to vote. This means an increased vote for the labour man. Occasionally, when a moral question is put to a vote, they will make or break, and very often the personality of the candidate will control the women's vote.

The legislation introduced by the labour party is not radical as may at first appear. Their contention is, what is good for the labouring man, must necessarily be good for everybody. Although, generally speaking, their policy is not altogether conducive to the best interests in the country, inasmuch as it has served to bar immigration, and otherwise hinder the progress of the country.

The Yellow Peril.

A striking characteristic of the people, as a whole, is their animosity towards the foreigner. They cherish a grim resolve to keep Australia a white man's country. The day will come when the yellow peril will knock at the door and demand admittance. The people of Australia are to-day constructing many miles of railroad that will never serve any other purpose than a strategic one. Their very location, and the country which they serve are such that hopes of accruing a profit from them are remote.

Compulsory military training is an innovation introduced into the country, where every healthy, able-bodied schoolboy, between the age of 14 and 18, is compelled to serve in the cadet corps, and later in life give 16 days per year to military training.

The Navy Question.

Australia has also expended large sums of money towards the construction of a complete fleet unit, and I hope, continued the speaker, that the time will come when Canada will see her way clear to co-operate in doing her share towards the maintenance of British supremacy on the Pacific Ocean. (Cheers). We do not realize the danger. It is almost as imminent for us as it is for Australia, or New Zealand. It is not a measure of wisdom on our part. We should co-operate together, and show the world that he who touches one, touches all. (Cheers).

After the usual vote of thanks had been given to Mr. Ames, the meeting was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

FOR YOUR HAIR

Here Are Facts We Want You to Prove at Our Risk.

When the roots of the hair are entirely dead and the pores of the scalp are glazed over, we do not believe that anything can restore hair growth.

But, when the hair roots retain any life, we believe there is nothing that will so surely promote hair growth as will Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. To prove that statement, we promise to promptly return all the money you pay us for Rexall "93" Hair Tonic, should it not please you.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic destroys the germs which are usually responsible for baldness. It penetrates to the roots of the hair, stimulating and, by promoting circulation, nourishing them.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic helps to relieve scalp irritation, to remove dandruff, to prevent the hair from falling out, and to promote an increased growth of hair. It comes in two sizes, prices 50 cents and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain it only at our store,—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

CONCERT AT WESTWOOD

Seven members of the George St. Church Orchestra drove to Westwood last night, where they attended a concert in the Town Hall, held under the auspices of the Young Men's Bible Class of the Presbyterian Church of Westwood. Those of the orchestra who attended were Miss Hazel I. Pentland, Miss Lizzie Smith and Messrs. W. H. Cunningham, Zepp, Hackett, Walton and Miller.

The concert proved a most delightful success, and the numbers of the local contributors to the programme were well received. The programme was as follows:

Quartette—Messrs. W. H. Cunningham, Walton, Zepp and Miller.
Vocal solo—Mr. Miller.
Selection by the orchestra.
Vocal solo by Mr. Walton.

An Event Combining the "January Clearance Sale" with the "GREAT ANNUAL WHITEWEAR SALE"

JANUARY is the month of our Great Annual Whitewear Sale. It is also the month when all lines of Winter Merchandise must be cleared. To meet the demands of both we have merged the two into one great "Bargain Banquet" Sale. It is our firm determination to make this "Great Bargain Banquet" the most successful event in the history of the store. Plans have been laid many months in advance. Wonderfully attractive lines of beautiful Whitewear were secured months ago from the manufacturers, who sacrificed price to keep their mills running during the slack period. Stock taking has shown us many broken lines that will be cleared regardless of the former prices. All Winter Ready-to-Wear Garments must move out before the 1st of February to make room for the Spring stocks. All departments contribute generously to make this a really enticing "Bargain Banquet." The long & varied "menu" will afford all an opportunity to "order" just what they require; and when you come to "Pay the Bill" you will be agreeably surprised at the exceptional money-savings. Watch the Show Windows closely. Visit the "White Bazaar" on the Second Floor, where all lines of Whitewear are displayed on separate tables for easy selection.

Robert Fair & Co., Ltd.

IN GENERAL

Probabilities.— Strong easterly to north-westerly winds, light local snow falls or flurries, but generally fair and very cold to-day and on Saturday.

On the Market.—Several loads of hay sold for $14.00 per load on the market to-day. There were also a few loads of tamarac wood, which sold at $4.50 a cord.

Special Price. — New Red Brick House, splendid location, with modern improvements. Price $1950. Must be sold at once. Phone 822, M. Carton, C. J. Carroll, 372 Water street.

Latest in Woolens.—Latest in style, and at surprising prices. This is what you find at 313 George street. T. L. Anderson, ladies' and gent's tailor. Next week we will show our spring woolens. dtf.

The Peterborough junior O. H. A. team will practise at Brock street rink to-morrow night between 6 and 7 o'clock. There should be a full turnout of the regulars as the team plays Lindsay here on Tuesday night.

Will be Conveyed to Norwood.—The remains of the late Mrs. Jane McMillan wil be conveyed by the noon (C.P.R.) train to-morrow to Norwood, for interment. There will be no mass in St. Peter's Cathedral.

Piano and Vocal Lessons.—Mr. J. H. Renwick, organist George street Methodist church, teacher piano and voice. Pupils prepared for Toronto Conservatory and University examinations. Voices tested free. 571 Aylmer street. Phone 1008. eod.

No Police Court.—There was an empty docket at the Police Court this morning. The people of this city must surely have turned over a new leaf, as all previous records have been broken. No arrests have been made this year as yet.

For the Lumber Camps.—Two sleigh loads of men left the city yesterday for Cresswell's lumber camp, which is situated twelve miles north of Buckhorn. The majority of these men will fill positions as teamsters and other jobs that are associated with the getting out of the seasons' out.

New and Appetising. — We have just received some fine hot-house tomatoes, Boston head lettuce, sweet potatoes, spinach, Brussels sprouts, etc., in addition to our regular supply of celery, lettuce, green onions, Sealshipt Oysters and all staple lines of fruit and vegetables.—W. J. Oke, 376 George street.

Sewer is Completed.— At last the piece of work, which has come under public observation for so long a period, and which has been the cause of numerous stormy scenes in the City Council chamber, has been completed. The south end sewer is now finished, with the exception of filling in.

Woodmen's Notice.—The members of Sherwood Forest Camp, No. 50, are requested to attend the regular meeting on Monday evning, Jan. 8th, 1912 at S. O. E. Hall, Munter street. The annual installation of officers will take place, together with a large initiation. A number of the head executive will be present, including Col. the Hon. Sam. Hughes.

Christmas Tree.—St. Luke's Church Sunday School are holding their annual Christmas tree concert to-night, in the Sunday school, at eight o'clock. The children will bring a number of presents which will be afterwards sent to those less fortunate than themselves. Friends are invited to be present. There will be a small admission fee to those not belonging to the Sunday School Patronise Home Industry.—There is no need of sending to Toronto, or elsewhere, for showcases, or store-fixtures of any kind. Patronise the Peterborough Showcase Co., a well-equipped factory, for turning out large contracts, as well as small ones. The material and workmanship are of the best. Prices are right, and terms to suit all people. Any one intending to equip their stores with showcases, wallcases, etc., for the coming Christmas trade should send in their order as soon as possible, before the rush begins and not leave everything to the last two weeks.—W. THEOBALD, manager; Factory, 709 Water St. Telephone 1153.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mr. H. A. Ross, of Swift Current, is a guest at the Hotel National.

Mrs. Bradd and Mr. McCormick have gone to Chicago for two months.

Miss Florence Stevenson is spending a couple of days in Woodstock, and Toronto with friends.

Mr. Jack McFadden of Calgary, is home on a visit to his mother, and sister, 541 Gilmodr street.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Wilson of 639 Union street, left for Montreal, where they will spend the winter.

Mr. Melville Wilson of Winnipeg, returned this morning after spending the Christmas holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Wilson, 429 Stewart street.

Miss Laura Maguire, who has been spending the Christmas holidays in Sherbrooke, the guest of her brother, Mr. W. S. Maguire of the Y.M.C.A. staff, and with friends in Montreal, returned home yesterday morning.

The engagement is announced of Miss Ethel Maude Denison, daughter of Mr. D. B. Denison, of Peterborough, to Mr. Stanley P. Ecclestone, of the same place, and son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Ecclestone, of St. Catharines.—

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Hilford will be pleased to hear of their progress toward the land of their future labour as missionaries in Western Soudan, Sierra Leone. They sailed from England Saturday, Dec. 23rd, expecting to reach their station in the upper country before the end of this month.

Mr. Robt. J. Moher, of the firm of Moher Bros., Hunter street, left on Wednesday for a three months' visit to Racine, Wisconsin. While there he will take a course of instruction in the Mitchell automobile factory in that city, for which the Moher Bros. are the Peterborough agents.

Miss Lavina Halliban, who was in the city for the Christmas holidays, is, as her many friends and admirers will be pleased to learn, pursuing her musical studies in Toronto, very successfully, with Miss Shepherd, of the Conservatory of Music. Her specially superior ability as a vocalist even this early in her career, has brought her offers of lucrative engagements from the Schuberts of New York, and from the managers of Canadian Concert Companies, but as this would, for the time, interrupt her musical studies, she elects to continue them in order, so long as this is practicable, to secure the highest development of her exceptionally excellent soprano voice. Miss Halliban sings as the chief vocalist at an important musicale in Rochester to-night, and we can well fancy the triumph she will achieve.

TRAIN HELD UP

Special Wire to The Examiner.

RIDDING, CAL., JAN. 5.—Three masked men entered an Oregon express mail car on the Southern Pacific this morning, gagged three mail clerks and took everything of value out of the eastern mail sacks, dropping off the train with their loot and escaping near this town. Some Canadian mail bags were also opened.

MEN, READ THIS!

To those in need of a new suit or overcoat, the announcement made in this evening's Examiner by Mr. Andrew Laidlaw of the Fashion Craft store, Hunter street, will be read with interest. This annual "Extinguishment" sale is one of the bargain events of the early days of the New Year, which has made a good record for out-of-the-ordinary values in men's high grade garments. Read the advertisement in another column, and note the substantial snap.

WAS FROZEN TO DEATH

TORONTO, JAT. 5.—Frozen stiff in death when the ambulance came, was the fate of Jas. McGlurkin of Guelph in this city, this morning. The police man on the beat found him clad in his night clothes on the Queen St. sidewalk early to-day. He was dead when the ambulance came. He is presumed to be a somnambulist.

REBELS ARE VICTORIOUS

Fighting at Hankow All in Their Favour, Says Report

IMPERIALISTS LOST MANY

Pekin, Jan. 6.—Seven hundred Imperial troops are reported to have been killed or wounded Thursday in a battle near Hankow, Province of Hupeh, with the revolutionists. The Imperial forces were evacuating the city when two of their trains were destroyed. From these trains 1,000 troops, independent of their commanders, were making an effort to return to Hankow. The revolutionists, however, attacked them vigorously, inflicting heavy loss.

This information reached Pekin yesterday in a consular report from Hankow. The report added that there was a conference in Hankow yesterday between the Imperialists and revolutionists, but that no agreement was reached.

It is believed here that the fighting will be resumed to-day. Government reinforcements are being rushed toward Hankow over the Tientsin-Pukow Railway. The Imperial commander reports a battle near Hwangpei, a short distance north of Hankow.

The 3,000 Imperial Government troops, who were ordered from Paoting and Shih-Kaichwang to assist in the suppression of the mutiny of Chinese troops at Lanchow, arrived there Thursday evening. There was considerable fighting in the city during the night. The telegraphs were cut and the rail trains suspended until noon yesterday.

The commandant at Lanchow telegraphed to the legations in Pekin yesterday that only a portion of the 20th division of the Imperial army created the recent trouble. The mutineers have since been subdued and punished, and order has been completely restored. There is, he says, no cause for further alarm. The train service and the telegraphs are resuming immediately. The mutineers, the commandant declares, forged his name in sending telegrams to the foreign legations and the consuls.

The Imperial Government troops are now concentrating at Lanchow for the purpose of maintaining order and making preparations to meet a possible landing of revolutionists from Canton.

There is a marked revival of uneasiness in Northern China. The Imperial Government is circulating full reports of the negotiations with the rebels at Shanghai, showing that the revolutionists resent the Premier's determination not to accept Tang Shao Yi's arrangements in regard to the national convention to decide on the future form of government in China.

Yuan Shi Kai and Wu Ting Fang, realising that telegraphic negotiations are unsatisfactory, are now trying to persuade each other to visit the rival headquarters and conclude an agreement.

Consular telegrams received here from Chung King state that at Chengtu, the capital of the province of Sechuen, the greatest disorder prevails. According to these telegrams the viceroy of the province, Chao Erh Feng, who was reported Thursday to have recaptured Chengtu, took refuge in his official residence on Dec. 29, but the revolutionaries seized and executed him, as well as the general of the Imperial troops.

One hundred and forty foreigners left Chung King for Pekin Thursday.

Japan Continues Neutral.

Tokio, Jan. 6.—The development at Shanghai are deeply deplored here. It is generally believed that Yuan Shi Kai has been playing a double game from the first, and now finds his plans frustrated by the election of Sun Yat Sen as president of the provisional government. Japan continues a policy of strict neutrality in China.

A report from Pekin that Yuan had applied to Japan for help is discredited in Tokio. Even if it were true the belief prevails here that it would be premature for any power to forsake neutrality at this juncture, except it were preparing against emergencies which might arise through the Manchus turning against Yuan.

Sold His Sweetheart.

Toronto, Jan. 6.—"We have a case here," declared Mr. Adalia, police court interpreter, "in which a woman was sent over from Russia to marry a man who, on her arrival, sold her in this city for five dollars."

Mr. Adalia made the statement in connection with the case of Alex. Wolevits, who was summoned for assaulting Miss Frances Mascoll of 15 Centre avenue.

The court adjourned the case a week, and the matter will be referred to the crown attorney, as it is a serious affair.

Rescue Houses Established.

Winnipeg, Jan. 6.—The Presbyterian Church has purchased an eleven-room house to be used as a rescue home for young women desiring to escape from a life in the "segregated district." This is a part of the scheme to establish a chain of such homes all over Canada. One has been in operation in Toronto for several months and others are to be established at Montreal, Halifax and Vancouver.

Trains Delayed at Tunnel.

Sarnia, Jan. 6.—The breaking of one of the overhead feed wires in the Sarnia Tunnel here yesterday kept all trains from one to three hours late.

The Winnipeg train was five hours late, and also the trains from Port Huron and Chicago were from two to three hours behind time.

Transfer Invalid

Ottawa, Jan. 6.—Word was received in the capital yesterday from Winnipeg to the effect that the commission appointed by the Manitoba Government of the St. Peter's reserve, near Winnipeg, had declared the transfer of the property from the Indians to other parties to be invalid.

The first objection to the sale was taken by G. H. Bradbury, Conservative member for Selkirk constituency, in which the reserve is so called. He contended in the House that the Indians had been tricked of their lands, which had been allowed to fall into the hands of speculators.

The commissioners reporting against the validity of the transaction, find that the Indians, as wards of the Government, were not legally qualified to dispose of the land. They also find that the vote was not properly taken, a majority of the Indians not having declared in favor of disposing of the lands.

Cheaper Cable Rates.

Paris, Jan. 6.—It is expected that the French Government will shortly authorise the French Telegraph Cable Co. to extend half rates on deferred messages to despatches passing between France and America. The French company is already accepting such messages between the British Isles and America.

NOTHING BUT COLD

Canada Suffers From a Sharp Spell of Frost

CHANGE COMING SUNDAY

Toronto, Jan. 6.—At 11 o'clock last night the forecasters at the observatory could see nothing in sight for Ontario but coldness, until Sunday morning, when a change "for better or for worse" might be expected.

"It will be cold all over the province to-day," said the man at the observatory. "There is a strong cold wave all over the Dominion, and it is very cold in Western Canada. It was 34 below in the afternoon, and 20 below there last night. These conditions are general throughout Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Regina yesterday registered 35 degrees below, with 40 below at a late hour in the afternoon."

Toronto registered 8 below at midnight.

Down in old New York the people are also huddling about the fireside, or else flocking close in the restaurants where hearty food and red wine bedeck the tables. It was 10 above in Manhattan last night, and no prospects for heat are in sight.

But down in Jacksonville, Florida. There it is the people are, perhaps, beginning to look for the palm leaf fans, and the ice cold lemonade. It was 42 degrees above at Jacksonville last night.

Miner Frozen to Death.

Pottsville, Pa., Jan. 6.—The coldest weather of the winter was experienced in this section yesterday, the thermometer in the mountain districts registered four degrees below zero. Fred Rice, a miner, was overcome by the cold while on his way to work and frozen to death.

Affects Natural Gas Pressure.

Galt, Jan. 6.—Thursday night marked the severest weather of this season, with a stiff snowstorm and severe frost. Yesterday morning the thermometer registered 10 below. The cold has had a serious effect on the pressure of the natural gas, so that the supply has been inadequate and much loss and inconvenience occasioned.

Four Below at Detroit.

Detriot, Jan. 6.—With a minimum temperature of four degrees below zero between 6 and 8 o'clock yesterday morning, and a maximum of only 4 above during the day, this was the coldest day recorded by the Detroit weather bureau since 1907. Many places up state reported the mercury down to 16 below, with heavy snow and high winds seriously impeding steam and electric railroad traffic.

Lowest In Eight Years.

Toledo, Jan. 6.—Four degrees below zero is what the Government thermometer registered at 7 o'clock yesterday morning. This is the lowest point reached here in eight years.

Lineman Blown From Pole.

Cleveland, Jan. 6.—The bitter cold caused one death and a probably fatal attempt at suicide here yesterday. Edward Dosher, 40, a lineman, his hands numbed, was blown from a telephone pole and sustained injuries in a 35-foot fall from which he died later.

John Zeigler, 50, chilled and despondent, cut his throat and ankles with a pocketknife on the rear steps of an East 57th street house. He is expected to die.

The day is the coldest since 1907, the temperature ranging from two below to two above.

Tong War In New York.

New York, Jan. 6.—In what is believed to be a renewal of hostilities between the Hip Sing Tong and the Ong Leong Tong, Chinese secret societies, in Chinatown last night, Leong You, vice-president of the Hip Sing Tong, was shot and killed, and Chong Pon Sing, president of that organization, was seriously wounded. Two Chinamen, who the police say were identified as the men who did the shooting, were arrested. The shooting occurred in a store conducted by Mock Duck, one of the best known of Chinatown's characters, on Pell street.

Ran Ashore In Storm.

Kingston, Jan. 6—While trying to pick her way to Brophys Point, the steamer Wolfe Islander ran ashore in a fierce snow storm. The captain lost his bearings. Word was sent to Garden Island and the Calvin Company sent the tug Frontenac to the rescue. After several hours' hard work the vessel was released, undamaged. A span of ice is now stretched from Garden to Wolfe Island.

May End Lock-out.

Manchester, Eng., Jan. 6.—Sir Geo. R. Askwith, the Board of Trade's mediator in the settlement of industrial disputes, conferred yesterday with representatives of the cotton mills and their employes in an endeavor to bring about peace in the cotton-mill lockout. The conference was productive of a basis of agreement which, however, requires ratification by the masters and the unions.

A Martyr To Science.

Zurich, Switzerland, Jan 6.—Dr. Simon, the bacteriologist, died here yesterday as a result of having been bitten by an inoculated mouse, with which he was experimenting in an endeavor to find a serum for curing blood poisoning.

Dr. Simon was a son-in-law of Herr Bebel, the social leader in the German Reichstag.

TWO ARRESTED.

Indian and Wife Charged With Double Murder.

Chatham, Jan. 6.—Stephen Kiyoshk and his wife, Indians, were arrested on Thursday afternoon and lodged in Port Lambton lock-up charged with the murder of Charles Nahdee and Adam Johns, Indians, on Walpole Island. This action followed the finding of the bodies of both victims in the St. Clair River. Coroner Ferguson of Courtright is arranging for an inquest, which will be held on the island on Saturday, provided the necessary witnesses can be summoned, and also for a post-mortem on the bodies.

As a result of investigation the authorities now claim to believe that Kiyoshk, believing his wife had been intimate with the two men, went to their cabin on Squirrel Island, fired through the window, killing Johns, and then, entering the cabin, pursued Nahdee to the upper story of the cabin, blowing out his brains with a shotgun. The bodies, it is thought, were then dragged to a rowboat, conveyed to a point opposite Sloman's Landing on the Michigan shore, and there dumped into the river. The cabin where the double murder was committed is in an isolated spot, surrounded by thickwoods.

The crime was first discovered on Wednesday morning, when neighbors, knocking at the door and receiving no response, entered and found evidences of a terrible struggle. Outside bloodstains on the snow showed where the bodies had been dragged toward the river. Afterwards Kiyoshk's boat was found concealed nearly opposite the spot where the bodies were later discovered. It was remembered that Kiyoshk and his wife had not been seen since New Year's night. Kiyoshk was captured at dusk by the Island police while endeavoring to cross to the mainland. The woman was arrested at the home of her father on Walpole Island.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Severe gales yesterday swept the eastern portion of Malta, and many ships from Egypt and Greece were damaged.

Edward M. Creighton of Toronto will apply to Parliament for a divorce from his wife, Sarah E. Creighton, on the usual grounds.

Joseph Devine, found guilty of brutal assault on Charles Selby, the well-known Kingston foundry man, was fined $20 and costs or one month yesterday.

The Methodist Church will apply to Parliament for an act authorising trustees of any Methodist congregation to administer property for endowment.

The barn and contents on the farm of Thomas Johnson, Howard-Oxford town line, was entirely destroyed by fire Thursday. Loss, $4,500; insurance, $2,500.

The Turkish Minister at Cettinje, Montenegro, has strongly protested against the concentration of troops on the Albanian frontier, and has demanded that it be stopped.

A syndicate, composed of Newman Erb and associates, already in control of a number of railroads in the west and northwest, is said to be negotiating for control of the Pere Marquette Railroad.

Michael Tremblay, an aged inmate of the Kingston House of Industry, who fell out of a window there Thursday morning, died in the General Hospital yesterday afternoon, never regaining consciousness.

The Federal Cabinet held a lengthy council meeting yesterday afternoon and finished the work on the estimates, completing the interior list. The appropriations for the year have now been all decided upon.

Vancouver shingle manufacturers yesterday petitioned the Federal Government to impose an import duty on shingles from the United States. Shingles are now imported duty free, and forty million came in last year.

No official information as to the Government's intention in regard to the Toronto custom house is available but it is understood that an appropriation exceeding half a million dollars is likely to be included in this year's estimates.

"A Chinese cook, who was being sent from Chengtu with a letter to missionaries in the interior, was caught by bandits and beheaded," was one of the items in a letter received by Rev. Dr. F. C. Stephenson of Toronto from Mrs. Kilborn.

Jail Damaged by Fire.

Vancouver, Jan. 6.—The Victoria provincial jail was badly damaged by fire yesterday. The loss is probably $50,000. All the men have been removed. All the jails are now overcrowded.

DOCK MEN ON STRIKE

Boston Is in Grip of a Serious Traffic Blockade

SHIPS TO GO ELSEWHERE

Boston, Jan. 6.—With wharves piled high with merchandise, loaded steamers arriving with no hands to unload the freight, partially empty steamers sailing and agents contemplating turning their boats toward other parts, the longshoremen's strike for a ten-cent increase in wages assumed a serious aspect last night, so far as Boston's foreign commerce is concerned.

It is estimated that 2,800 men left work at midnight Thursday and, despite the efforts of the city and state officials, who held several conferences with the steamship agents and the union leaders, the strike at sunset yesterday showed no signs of breaking up. It was even intimated that it might extend to the freight handlers, who take care of the carfoes of coastwise steamers, but last evening these men were still at work.

With the stroke of midnight Thursday the men ceased work. The steamer Devonian had her grain on board, but 30 carloads of merchandise remained on the dock. She sailed with half her cargo at noon yesterday for Liverpool. The Cambrian is scheduled to sail for London on Sunday, but will have only a few tons on board. The Loterdijk arrived yesterday from Rotterdam and will probably be ordered to Philadelphia to unload, while the Galileo is expected to-day from Hull and will also be diverted. The Michigan, which is in port from Liverpool, may be unloaded by Italians.

Mayor Fitzgerald, Chairman Bancroft, of the newly-created dock commission, and President Smith of the Chamber of Commerce, were active during the day in an effort to bring about a compromise by conferences with foreign steamship agents and union officials.

It was stated by the longshoremen's union leaders that they were willing to submit the claims to arbitration, but did not care to have the State Arbitration Board act. On the other hand, the steamship companies asserted that the men had left work without notice and that overtures looking to a settlement should come from them.

To Enter Montreal.

Montreal, Jan. 6.—Back River is said to have a railway. The Joliette and Lake Manuan, which is to connect the Grand Trunk Pacific with Montreal, will enter the city by crossing that stream, a route entirely new among the city's railroad connections.

The road, although now known as the Joliette and Lake Manuan, will not be so designated when it is running into Montreal, but will have "Montreal," somewhere in its nameplate. The right to continue into Montreal was only recently acquired by Dominion charter.

Grading work is now being done on the line, and will probably be continued all winter. It is planned to have sixty miles of steel down by October next. The entire length of the road will be 240 miles.

Prayer For Missions.

Toronto, Jan. 6.—January 21 has been fixed as the date for the day of prayer throughout the Dominion for the success of this year's plans of the Canadian Laymen's Missionary Movement.

The members of the special committee on the plans of work will be held to-night, preceded by a supper at McConkey's. S. J. Moore will preside. General Secretary H. K. Caskey, and the secreteries of the denominational boards will attend.

The vacancy caused by the resignation of Rev. W. Anderson, secretary of the Presbyterian Laymen's Missionary Committee, who is taking up pastoral work at Orillia, will be one of the matters to be considered.

Newfoundland Prosperous.

Montreal, Jan. 6.—That there is not a poor man in Newfoundland, that the year which has just gone into history has been perhaps the most prosperous in the annals of the country, and that prices for fish are "way up" were statements made yesterday by J. W. N. Johnstone, general manager and ticket agent of the Reid-Newfoundland Co., who is at the Windsor Hotel for the meeting of railway men, who are discussing the question of excursion fares for the summer months.

Apropos of the conference, Mr. Johnstone said that there would be but slight changes in the rates, and that he expected to leave for Boston to-day on the same business.

Civil Service Board Busy.

Ottawa, Jan. 6.—The Civil Service Inquiry Commission is settling down into its offices and will be busy for some time with the work of organisation.

It is unlikely that the commission will appoint a general counsel. Instead, it will act as its own counsel and will save the expense. The next few days will be devoted to preliminary work and the formal investigation will not begin until next week. While nothing has been decided, it may commence with the Department of Public Works.

The commission ultimately may be expected to go west and investigate on the ground the work of the Department of the Interior.

Thank You!

THE Optical Institute

Wishes to thank its many patrons for the increased business of the past year which has made our improvements and enlargement necessary.

We invite any or all of our patrons to call and see that they are obtaining every possible help from the Glasses they are using.

Wishing all a Happy and Prosperous 1912, I am,

Yours very respectfully,

J. W. Browett

G.N.R. Anxious.

Montreal, Jan. 6.—The Canadian Northern Railway Co. sent an urgent letter to the City Hall yesterday, asking the mayor and controllers to at once meet the representatives of the company in order to arrange for the entrance of the company into the city.

The mayor has convened a special meeting of the Board of Control for Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock to discuss the great project.

Minister Suing City.

Toronto, Jan. 6.—Rev. Prof. Jos. H. James of Burley, Eng., has issued a writ against the City of Toronto for $20,000, claiming damages to that extent for a broken knee cap sustained while he was attending the ecumenical council here. He fell into an excavation made by the Hydro-electric system on Queen street. The writ was issued yesterday morning by the firm of Rowell, Reid, Wilkie & Wood.

A Narrow Escape.

Kingston, Jan. 6.—F. Zimmerman, a Toronto traveler, came near being buried alive here yesterday afternoon. He was stepping off the veranda of the Iroquois Hotel and did not notice that a coal hole, where a carter was at work had been left open. He stepped into the hole and went down out of sight. Someone heard his groans and extricated him. His arms were above his head and he was wedged in, helpless. A bruise on his shin was the only injury he received.

Rival Steamship Line.

Toronto, Jan. 6.—That the R. & O. Steamship Co. is to have a rival on Lake Ontario seems to be the prevalent opinion among steamboat men at the present time.

The recent increase in the authorized capital stock of the Niagara Navigation Co. from one million to three million dollars and following the purchase of the Hamilton boats, it looks very much like an effort on the part of the N. N. Co. to control the steamboat business on Lake Ontario.

Hamburg Liner Released.

New York, Jan. 6.—The Hamburg-American Line steamer Prinz Joachim, which went on the rocks at Atwood Bay, in the Bahamas, several weeks ago, was extricated from her position yesterday and will proceed under her own power, after making temporary repairs, to an Atlantic coast port, according to a wireless despatch received here yesterday afternoon by E. L. Boas, resident director and general manager of the line.

Pageant at Calcutta.

Calcutta, Jan. 6.—King George and Queen Mary yesterday witnessed a great pageant in their honor. There were two processions—Mohammedan and Hindu—in which there were fifty elephants, hundreds of camels and horses and elaborate state cars. Many of the contingents had retainers equipped with ancient weapons. There was a gorgeous display of jewels. Hundreds of thousands of natives gave Their Majesties an ovation.

What Value Do You Put On Your Eyesight?

We have people come to us, after they have tried all kinds of cheap Glasses, bought from some house to house fakir, or picked out of an assortment of "cheap glasses" in a haphazard way. In buying glasses to suit your sight, you cannot afford to take any chances. The small difference of price should not be considered when the question of Eyesight is involved. Remember we guarantee all our work, and our prices are very reasonable, considering the quality of goods we handle.

SHE HAD CONSTANT PAIN

Until Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Dewittville, N.Y. — "Before I started to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered nearly all the time with headaches, backaches, and bearing down pains, and had a continuous pain in my left side. It made me sick if I tried to walk much, and my back was so weak that I was obliged to wear corsets all the time. But now I do not have any of these troubles. I have a fine strong baby daughter now, which I did not have before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. A. A. Gillis, Route 44, Dewittville, N. Y.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

"THE SECRET OF PAUL FARLEY"

By JOHN MARCH

"Yes," the Squire concurred, "and a quiet, gentlemanly fellow to have constantly about one's place. Judith must be made to see her folly. What is her object in wandering about the grounds at this time of night?"

"I don't know, unless it's temper and a vague idea of intercepting Farley on his way back from East Weyberne. I wish to goodness her intentions had not been frustrated. I don't think he would have much patience with that kind of evanescent silliness. At present the fellow has no prospects, and accordingly does not give a thought to such foolery. He has his way to make—I won't deny but that I think he will succeed in making it to the top of the tree; still, if human foresight and skilful diplomacy can accomplish anything, Anthony Pelham will be my son-in-law."

"Of course. Any other supposition is beside the mark. If you will stay by the mare, sir, I'll walk down the avenue and try to find Judith. I don't seem to recognise the shy Judy under the influence of these love vagaries."

"Wait a moment, Fleming," Sir Thomas said, beckoning to James, who was busying himself beneath the hall lamp, ignorant of the picturesque effect the glare lent to his silk stockings, velvet breeches, and powdered hair, "let us inquire first if she has returned. The young puss may have gone in unnoticed, either through the conservatory or by the French window in the library."

The two men did a little star-gazing. Squire Fleming accepted a cigar from Sir Thomas, and they exchanged humorous comments on the weather until James came back with a message from Miss Hargrave's maid. The young lady had returned half an hour ago, and had since gone to bed.

"Oh, well, that's all right, Sir Thomas, I'll bid you good night," the Squire said, taking the cigar from between his teeth and springing into the dogcart.

"I wonder who it could be wishing to escape observation," he said to himself, as he drove down the avenue. Farmer Ashwood has three daughters, and Farley's handsome eyes certainly had a way of looking unutterable things, and perhaps caused some devastation in that quarter. But in all likelihood it was only a girl out of the village. It was of very little consequence, he ultimately decided, providing pretty Judith was not rambling about after dark, waylaying and encouraging eligible young men.

Meanwhile, Paul, having related the story of his unfortunate adventure to Lady Hargrave and Miss Primrose, and been efficiently cross-examined upon the minutest detail, went to his room tired and over-wrought.

On the toilet table lay a large square envelope, redolent of musk, and addressed to him in a thin pointed handwriting. He took it up, guessed the caligraphy, and tossed it back again. It fell upon the other side disclosing a large gold monogram of the initials R. W. fantastically interwoven.

"Come in," he said wearily, in answer to a sharp decided rap upon the door.

A neat maidservant entered and set a brass ewer of hot water on the washstand.

"I am Lucy," she said, curtseying and smiling, "Miss Judith's maid. She asked me to take a note to you, sir, so I thought I had better bring your hot water instead of Susan."

"Thank you," he said, holding out his hand for the missive.

"We heard in the kitchen, sir, that you had met with an accident to your face. I'm sure I hope it will be better in the morning," she added, moving away.

"Thank you, Lucy; good-night," he said, following and closing the door behind her.

He drew an easy chair to the small compact writing-table, and placing his elbows on the blotting-pad he rested his aching head upon his hands. After a while he sighed, reached for the paper-knife and opened Judith Hargrave's letter.

An impatient frown drew a perpendicular line between his brows as he bent to peruse the neat closely-written sheets. Ere long a dark red flush crept over his face and slowly mounted to his forehead. He bit his lips, unloosened his grasp on the arm of the chair, and resorted unconsciously to his old trick of stroking the back of his head when in uncertainty or agitation. A distressed smile succeeded the rush of hot blood to his face. He turned the fluttering pages, and commenced reading the letter a second time.

"Please forgive me for writing to you," it ran. "I have tried several times to tell you how miserable I am, but whenever the opportunity came my nerve always failed me. To-night I knew you were gone to East Weyberne, so I went part of the way home with Agnes Fleming, and waited in the avenue, thinking it would be easier to speak in the dark. You didn't come. I knelt down on the dead bracken and asked God to send you to comfort me, because I know that just the touch of your hand would ease the dreadful ache in my heart. I waited and watched until I grew frightened and sick and mad with suspense. I daresay you will think I am mad to write this, but Luey says you are hurt, and I am frantic with fear. The uncertainty of not knowing whether you care is killing me. I can't read in your dear eyes what you feel towards me, but it seems to me that such a passion of love as fills my heart must compel some sort of return. I know I ought not to send you this, but if I do not to-night, I shall to-morrow, or the next day. I can't help myself; I am past caring for proprieties, past caring for anything. I am just mad—of drunk—with love of you. For God's sake send me one kind word to-night and forgive.—Judith."

He paced up and down the room, the letter in his hand, a half-smile on his lips, and a troubled expression in his great dark eyes.

"Desperate diseases require desperate remedies," he muttered. Reseating himself and drawing a sheet of notepaper towards him, he wrote:

"Dear Miss Hargrave,—The truth in this instance is essential and may be brutal. I am sure you are too wise to fret at the inevitable, and have too much pride to allow any man to spoil your happiness. Be a sensible girl and marry that dear good fellow Anthony Pelham and I will forgive you, Miss Judith. I have a simple cut under my eye which will heal in a day or so.—Yours faithfully,

Paul Farley."

He took off his boots, thrust his feet into a pair of cloth slippers, and carefully let himself out of the room. He crept downstairs to the next landing, and slipped the note under Judith Hargrave's door, and returned as noiselessly as he had gone.

"Now, Mrs. Wycherly," he said, catching up the scented gold-emblazoned envelope, "I don't know what you can have to say to me, but I am too tired to answer any more letters to-night."

He cut it open and drew forth a thick gilt-edged invitation card, printed on a fine glossy surface.

"Requests the pleasure of my company at a Bal Masque on the tenth of next month. Thank you, madam, I will give the matter my special attention to-morrow. Mon Dieu! what an atrocious headache. I'll lie down a few minutes before I undress."

He stretched himself on the bed, drew the coverlet over him, shivered, and clasped his fingers across his smarting eyes.

Thus Paul Farley, bruised, harrassed, and over-wearied, fell asleep.

CHAPTER VI.

THE TRYST IN THE SHRUBBERY

Judith Hargrave did not put in an appearance at the breakfast table. Sir Thomas refrained from commenting on her absence, but he cast covert glances at his secretary's dark, inscrutable face as he sat silent and preoccupied, trifling with his bacon and eggs.

"Finished, Farley?" he asked, as Paul, putting an end to his pretence at eating, rose and excused himself. "God bless my soul! You look seedy enough in all conscience; I should say an hour in the saddle before breakfast would put a little grit and stamina into you. I want to look at the foals and at the second crop of grass down in the nine-acre meadow to-morrow morning. I can mount you very decently, Farley, if you care to go?"

"You are very good, sir," he answered, smiling a little, and gathering the untidy heap of correspondence beside Sir Thomas's plate into a semblance of order; "I was never across a horse in my life."

"That is no reason why you never should be," he returned, laughing; "a hack and a country lane serve as first principles, and they are both accessible."

"Thank you. I'll have the answers to these ready in half an hour, sir," he said, hurrying from the room with his bundle of letters, telegrams and circulars.

"I'll come with you," Sir Thomas called after him, gulping down his coffee and dusting his moustache with his serviette.

"There is no necessity to be plagued with the boys: let things slide to-day, Farley," he remarked, as he signed the last letter and threw down his pen. "Besides, I shall have to make a speech to-morrow at the Farmers' Association Meeting and I want you to write me up something you consider adapted to an audience composed chiefly of tenant farmers, with a sprinkling of landlords and labourers." He lit a cigar, flung the spent match into the fireplace, and walked to the door. "By the way, Farley," he said, "just bear in mind that the majority of the audience have not matriculated, and that a sense of the ludicrous is latent in most people, and, as I haven't an itch for speaking, for heaven's sake don't make the affair too long."

"I understand," he answered readily; "I'll see to it at once."

He sat down there and then and wrote a concise, lucid oration on agricultural depression, the cause and effect of rural depopulation, interspersed with a few statistics. There were some clever hits at the Government's policy, and a telling, pithy story of an Irish landlord. He typed it and laid it in a conspicuous place on the writing table, where it would catch the master's eye, and he could peruse and study it at his leisure.

He passed the rest of the morning lying full length on a garden bench with a cigarette and a French novel. After luncheon he played cricket in his shirt sleeves with Tom and Harry Hargraves, and eventually sipped a cup of tea in the library while he wrote an article for a London daily paper. Later, he dined alone with Lady Hargrave, and seeing she was absentminded and not in very good spirits, he laid himself out to win her attention and draw her thoughts away from domestic worries. He clothed his original ideas and views with an indescribable grace and witchery, and marshalled the conversation with such consummate skill that the kind soul was charmed out of herself, and for the first time in her life discovered she was a brilliant talker.

Lady Hargrave left him over his Canary wine in the dusk, and he sat musing until the starlight glimmered through the giant branches stretched across the window. At a quarter to eight he donned his tweed cap, buttoned a light overcoat over his evening clothes, and set out in the direction of the Manor.

The moon had been slowly climbing overhead, and now shone out broadly across the turnpike, its soft effulgence embellishing the immediate vicinity. Although the woods and plantations were thrown into greater obscurity. The silvery beams enhanced the weird aspect of the old Manor House, they chased the black shadows into the angles and crevices, and watched them lay silently brooding under the projecting roof. The Squire's garden was transfigured by the charm of romance, every shrub and every flower assumed an added beauty with the lapse of each moment.

Influenced by his sensitive imaginative temperament, Paul fancied a century's mysterious years must be whispering among the fruit trees in the shrubbery whenever the night wind stirred or rustled their leaves.

Expectant, and somewhat exhilarated by the solitary grandeur of his surroundings, he peeped between the gnarled twigs and saw the flicker of the moonlight on the dark floor as it fell through the foliage that thatched the summerhouse. Sifting his position a little, he discerned a figure seated upon the worm-eaten circular bench, kept green and moist by the summer rains and the droppings of the roof.

"Shall I come in?" he asked, standing in the doorway smiling.

The figure started to her feet and stood motionless.

"Won't you really welcome me?" he inquired, amused at Agnes's attitude, smiling more broadly and holding out his hands.

"No? Oh, fie, you dear silly little prude!" He laughed as she shrank back.

"Come," he said, striding across the stained floor, "I'll take the initiative, sweetheart, and that means I shall kiss you."

He caught her to him, pushed back the lace which partially concealed her face, and kissed her eyes, her mouth, each separate dimple, and under her rounded chin. He laid his cheek on the soft fluffy tendrils of her hair and held her to him with a firm fond pressure.

"You really love me then?" asked a muffled voice from his shoulder.

"Love you! With all my heart and soul. Why, Agnes, you are the only creature on earth whom I care for, or who cares for me."

A little hand stole up to his neck, and in the moonlight he saw the fire and flash of a large diamond. His heart stood still. The pressure on the slim waist gradually relaxed. He bent closely over the head nestled coyly against his breast, and brushing aside the lace mantilla looked into the lovely blushing face of Rowena Wycherly. He started as if stung, and staggered back on to the crazy damp-rotted bench.

"Pardon me, Mrs. Wycherly," he gasped. "I ask ten thousand pardons!"

She gave a little, low, childish laugh with a joyous lilt in it, and her beautiful bosom heaved and gleamed like polished ivory under the black sequined net.

"I'll not pardon you for such kisses, Paul," she whispered, going to him and twining her arms about his neck. "Dear heart, I never dreamed of winning your love so soon."

"But I don't love you," he said, recklessly, unclasping her arms and holding her away from him; "it's a mistake, Mrs. Wycherly, a horrible, treacherous, ghastly mistake. I thought to meet—a friend, I expected to find—someone else."

They stood staring at one another in a tense, deathly silence. A little breeze swayed the branches of the pear trees, and the play of silvery light through the chinks and crevices of the summerhouse fell across the widow's face. Paul could have sworn that the wide, wonderful hazel eyes were ablaze with a furious insensate rage. The next moment he thought his nerves and the moonlight had played him false, for Mrs. Wycherly lowered her long dewy eyelashes and gazed about her in distressed pathetic embarrassment.

"I hape, Mrs. Wycherly, you will accept my most humble apologies," he said, irritated and annoyed beyond expression at the foolish blunder.

"Can I do otherwise?" she asked, clasping her hands and looking at him with wet, innocent eyes. "As you say, we have both been the victims and sport of circumstances. I suppose it was to be, Mr. Farley, and we must make the best of an abusrd situation. I do hope you won't allow this stupid mistake to spoil our friendship?"

He could see she was employing all her energies to subdue and control a powerful, almost overmastering excitement.

"I don't see why it should," he said quietly; "we understand each other."

"Oh, yes, thoroughly," she responded, as if anxious to conciliate, "and I must admit, Mr. Farley, I am extremely mortified that you should have found me at this hour and uninvited on Mr. Fleming's premises. It must seem so very odd to you; perhaps you won't mind if I stay a few minutes just to explain? It was impossible to remain indoors on such a night; so, after dinner, I threw this lace hood over my hair and went into the garden. The scene was so still so solemn, so enchanting, that a vague childish longing crept over me to wander away somewhere in the miles of fairyland that lay around me. I stole out on to the road, and became so enthralled with the mysterious elfin beauty that I scarcely realized I had left the Larches so far behind When close to the Manor I heard the sound of wheels and a long peal of thrilling laughter, and, anxious to escape observation, I glided through the little wooden gate into Mr. Fleming's orchard. I passed round into the shrubbery, intending to go out that way on to the road again, and while I waited for the echo of the horse's hoofs to die away I spied this poor, dingy hut, and thought if it were not too overrun with spiders and insects I would rest a moment. I had scarcely seated myself when you appeared in the doorway. I thought you must have seen and followed me. I had no reason to suppose that you cared for or came here to meet another woman."

Paul stood watching the varying expression of her lovely face, his head thrown slightly back, a scornful curl on his short upper lip.

"I am sorry," he said politely, "to have caused you a moment's uneasiness. I trust, Mrs. Wycherly, you will forgive and forget."

"I will," she said, eagerly looking up at him with a frank ingenuous smile. "I don't mean to be a bit squeamish or prudish; I'll just forget everything save that we two are firmer and better friends even than we were before."

She drew her cloudy lace about her head and slipped her hand through his arm.

"You will walk back with me?" she said, persuasively; "it's very light and bright I know, but the road is lonely."

The statement was undeniable, and he considered it would be highly injudicious to refuse. He thought of Agnes, and felt convinced she would await his return, so he smiled, judging it wiser to end an awkward and disagreeable episode pleasantly if it were at all possible.

She clasped both her tiny jewelled hands on his arm, and laughed and chatted with bright girlish vivacity. She strove gracefully to erase any invidious impression and to infuse an entirely new set of ideas and thoughts and accordingly he found it a difficult matter not to be influenced by her sweet womanly indescribable charm.

Tells of the Wonderful Benefits Obtained From

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Like many another Newfoundlander living far from doctors, Mr. Stone feels unbounded gratitude for the benefits obtained from the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

For years he had suffered from a congested condition of the liver and kidneys, with headaches, backaches, pains in limbs and body. Words fail to describe his sufferings as well as the gratitude he wants to express for the cure.

Mr. Alex. J. Stone, West Point, Nfld., writes: "I suppose you thought I had forgotten all about you when I got Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, but I haven't. You must excuse mistakes, for like many Newfoundland men, I have not much education, but I want to thank you many times for your medicine.

"I cannot tell you what I suffered from liver and kidney derangements, indigestion and constipation, nor can I find words to express how much good this medicine has done me. I feel better than I have for ve years and have given some of these pills to friends, who tell me they have done them a wonderful lot of good. I want to express my heartfelt gratitude for the benefit derived from the great medicine."

DOCTORS HAD GIVEN UP ALL HOPE

"Fruit-a-tives" saved my Life

RIVIERE A PIERRE, Q., May 9, 1910.

"I look upon my recovery as nothing short of a miracle. I was for eleven years, constantly suffering from Chronic Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

I was treated by several doctors and they simply did me no good. During the latter part of my illness, I was so thin that I weighed only 90 pounds, and I vomited everything I ate.

The doctors gave me up to die as the stomach trouble produced heart weakness and I was frequently unconscious. I received the Last Rites Of The Church.

At this time, a lady strongly urged me to try 'Fruit-a-tives'. When I had taken one box, I was much better and after three boxes, I was practically well again, and had gained 20 pounds. I have taken 13 boxes in all and now weigh 150 pounds and am well."

Pimples So Bad He Was Ashamed

Tried Everything but Did It No Good. One Box of Cuticura Ointment Took Pimples Away.

"About seven years ago pimples broke out all over my face and neck. When they would first come out they would be big and red, then after a while they would turn white, and matter would come out. Sometimes they would itch so I could hardly sleep. I was ashamed to go down street my face looked so bad. I went to several doctors and got medicine, which did me no good, and bought cintments, salves and patent medicines, but none of them would cure my face and neck. A friend advised me to try Cuticura Ointment. I got one box, and it took the pimples away. Before I had it all used up. I can say it is a wonderful remedy. Any friend who has pimples should use Cuticura Ointment if they want a cure. I never had any equal to Cuticura Soap." (Signed) Arthur Mathers, Parkhill, Ont., Dec. 28, 1910.

Sores All Over Baby's Body

"When my baby boy was six months old, his body was completely covered with sores from head to foot, and he was terribly fretful with the suffering. The eruption began in pimples which would open and run, making large sores. His hair came out and finger nails fell off, and the sores were over the entire body, causing little or no sleep for baby or myself. Great scabs would come off when I removed his shirt. We tried a great many remedies but nothing would help him, till a friend induced me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment but a short time before I could see that he was improving, and in six weeks' time he was entirely cured. He had suffered about six weeks before we tried the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, although we had tried several other things and doctors too. I think the Cuticura Remedies will do all that is claimed for them, and a great deal more." (Signed) Mrs. Noble Tubman, Dodsen, Mont., Jan 26, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., 94 Columbus Ave., Boston, U. S. A., for a liberal free sample of each, with 32-p. booklet.

CANNOT ACCOUNT FOR THIS SKELETON

Hunter Found It—There are Many Conjectures but no Facts.

The mysterious possibilities connected with the discovery of the skeleton of a man in the woods near St. Leo, Quebec, have increased with the discovery, beneath a stump near by where the skeleton mouldered of a little hoard of gold, amounting to $330. Even after all clues have been discussed by a jury empanelled by Coroner Chevalier, however, the man's identity remained unknown.

The weather and the coyotes of the woods had long since stripped the flesh from the bones. The material of the clothes which had once covered the body, lay in scraps about it, and the watch which the dead man had worn in life had fallen through his skeleton and was almost washed underneath the ground by successive rains. The timepiece had a French movement. A set of prayer beads and a prayer book were the only other articles discovered. It is assumed from the presence of these that the man was a Roman Catholic. The story of the skeleton is a constant topic of discussion in the vicinity of the long undiscovered tragedy. It will pass into history as one of the weird countryside tales which finally developed into masterpieces of the mysterious.

It is thought very strange that nobody in the vicinity can even guess at the man's identity. Nobody remembers having ever seen in the vicinity anyone who might be he. The body might have dropped from an airship, so unaccountable is its presence in this not very thickly settled district.

PRINCE RUPERT

Prince Rupert, British Columbia, the new seaport on the Pacific Coast which has been founded by the Grand Trunk Pacific Company for the western terminus of the National Transcontinental Railway through Canada, continues to demonstrate the stability with which the enormous resources in that part of the world have endowed her. The population of about five thousand people who have settled there, thus forming the beginning of this future city, have shown their faith in its future by building permanent homes and business establishments in almost every line of trade and commerce. Not alone is this faith confined to the citizens of Prince Rupert, but foreseeing the important factor she must early become in the commerce of the world, the leading banks, viz: The Bank of Montreal, the Canadian Bank of Commerce, the Bank of British North America, the Royal Bank of Canada, etc., have located branches there. When the first lots in the townsite were placed on the market and sold a little more than two years ago the prices realized exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine by reaching figures in many cases several hundred per cent. and in numerous instances as much as one thousand per cent. above what was estimated to be a fair valuation, and ever since that time have given no cause to change the confidence then shown, as reports have just been received of the sale of an additional section of the townsite containing about six hundred lots, for which there was an increasing demand and which realized prices of about two hundred per cent. above what was considered a conservative valuation. The completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway through to the Pacific Coast is rapidly approaching completion, when trans-pacific steamships will sail from this new seaport, and in order to be prepared for the increased accommodation and facilities that will be required large additional capital expenditures will be made within the next two years to provide commodious hotel accommodations and also a dry dock and ship repairing plant, the latter of which will be constructed under a subsidy granted by the Dominion Government. During the past year the principal thoroughfares in the business section of the city have been contructed to grade and extensive plans are at present receiving the serious consideration of the city council for municipal improvements in the way of heat, light, power and water.

CAUGHT A BAD COLD.

DEVELOPED BRONCHITIS. SHE COULD HARDLY SPEAK.

Bronchitis begins with a tightness across the chest, difficulty of breathing, hoarseness, and there is a dry, harsh, croupy cough.

After a few days mucous begins to be raised. This is at first white, but later of a greenish or yellow color and is occasionally streaked with blood.

Cure the first symptoms of bronchitis by the use of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and thus prevent it becoming chronic and perhaps turning to consumption.

Mrs. Edward Travers, Campbellton, N.B., writes:—"I thought it my duty to write and let you know what your wonderful medicine has done for me. I caught a very bad cold which developed into bronchitis. I was so choked up I could hardly breathe. I tried many medicines but they did me no good, and I had almost given up in despair. A friend advised me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, so I got a bottle and felt much better, and by the time I had taken four I was completely cured and I can assure you I cannot say too much in its praise, as it is all you claim for it, and more."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price 25 cents.

LEADING EVENTS OF THE PAST YEAR

Some of the Happenings of Note in 1911 that Passed Into History

When the historian of the future records the events of the year 1911, he will lay particular stress on the political and social unrest throughout the world. This was not confined to any one country; it was world-wide, involving practically every nation.

Most significant of all the events of the year was the explosion in open rebellion of the hatred that had been accumulated through the ages of the Chinese against the Manchu dynasty.

Aviation has made tremendous strides during the year. About all that remains to be accomplished is the crossing of the ocean. Following are some of the important events of the year:

January

1.—Juan Estrada inaugurated President of Nicaragua.
10.—Tobacco Trust dissolution suit started in U. S. Supreme Court.
26.—Reciprocity Agreement presented to Congress by President Taft.

February

11.—Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia, dies.
21.—Premier Asquith introduces into the British House of Commons the bill abolishing the veto power of the House of Lords.

March

4.—Reciprocity fails in the U. S. Senate. Sixty-first Congress ad journs, and call for extra session issued.
6.—U. S. troops ordered to Mexican frontier.
11.—Trial of the Camorrists begins at Viterbo, Italy.
26.—Triangle Shirt Waist Company fire in New York, resulting in 141 deaths.

April

4.—Two special sessions of Sixty-second Congress convenes.
21.—U. S. House of Representatives passes Canadian Reciprocity, 265 to 89.

May

2.—Chines rebellion begins in Kwangtung Province.
8.—Battle of Juarez begins, resulting in success of Mexican rebels two days later and end of rebellion.
15.—Standard Oil Company ordered dissolved by Supreme Court decision.

June

18.—European Aviation Circuit race begins at Vincennes, France. Three aviators killed when machine fell to ground.
22.—Coronation of King George and Queen Mary.

July

11.—Big fire in Porcupine district.
14.—Investiture of Prince of Wales at Carnarvon, Wales.
18.—Henry Clay Beattie shoots his wife.
22.—Reciprocity bill passed by U. S. Senate.

August

10.—London dock strike begins.

September

16.—Premier Stolypin, of Russia, shot.
21.—Defeat of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's government and the Reciprocity bill.
25.—French battleship Liberte blown up at Toulon.
29.—Italy declares war on Turkey.
30.—One hundred killed by breaking dam at Austin, Pa.

October

13.—Republic of China proclaimed at Wu Chang.
19.—Aviator Eugene Ely killed at Mason, Georgia.
23.—Winston Churchill appointed First Lord of Admiralty, being succeeded as Home Secretary by Reginald McKenna.

November

4.—Chinese rebels capture Shanghai, controlling mouth of Yangtse-Kiang River.
6.—Persia refuses Russia's demands to remove W. Morgan Shuster, the treasurer-general.
7.—Italian advance in Tripoli begins.
16.—Russia starts troops for Persian frontier.
24.—Henry Clay Beattie executed.
30.—Public Consistory creating nineteen Cardinals at Rome.

December

1.—McNamara brothers change pleas in dynamite case to "guilty."
2.—King George arrives in India for the Durbar.
5.—The McNamaras sentenced.
9.—Constitution of Chinese Republic framed.
11.—Sir James Whitney's government in Ontario returned to power.
12.—Durbar at India crowning King George Emperor of India.
17.—Russo-American treaty of 1832 abrogated.
21.—Russian forces open hostilities with Persia.

AERONAUTICAL ENGINEERING

A School Has Been Established at Hendon Flying Ground.

The first practical school of aeronautical engineering has been established at the flying ground, Hendon, and to judge from the number of pupils under instruction the school bids fair to be a success. It is under the management of the Aeronautical Syndicate, Ltd., one of the first firms to undertake aeroplane construction in England, and its technical adviser is Mr. H. Barber, who has greatly distinguished himself as an inventor, constructor and pilot. It will be remembered that it was Mr. Barber who made a patriotic gift to the Government of four of his all-British "Valkyrie" machines, and in addition to practical construction and in aeronautical design of all types of aeroplanes is given, and there is also a scheme by which those pupils attaining a certain standard of efficiency secure positions and have the opportunity of becoming pilots. There is a demand for skilled mechanics and designers, and the first-comers should find a better paid and less crowded profession than in more exploited lines.

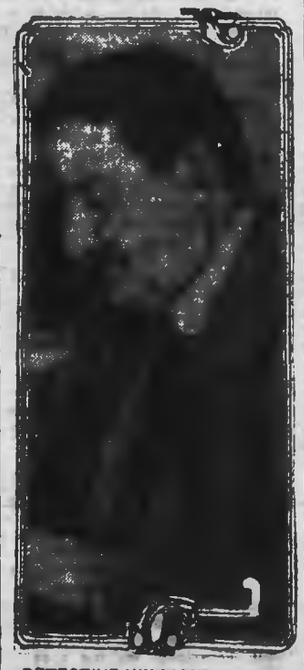
BOUGHT HAUNTED HOUSE

British Solicitor-General Evidently a Courageous Man.

Sir John Simon, the Solicitor-General of Great Britain, is a courageous man. He has bought an old manor house reputed to be haunted. It is known as Fritwell, and is located near Banbury. Sir John paid $36,500 for the estate. The spooky reputation of the house arose from three tragedies. A man was killed there in a duel in 1712. The next tenants, Longueville by name, were involved in a great scandal. Two brothers of the family were in love with the same younger imprisoned the elder in what was known as "a human dog kennel" in the attic for fourteen years. The elder brother's death was attributed to starvation. Sir Baldwin Wake, who bought the place shortly after the Longuevilles' tenancy expired, was suspected of having killed his son in a quarrel over a card game. According to the tradition the body was concealed by Sir Baldwin and another son in the 'dog' kennel." Ten years ago the house was renovated and the "dog kennel" removed. Entrance to the "kennel" was obtained through a sliding door in the rear of a cupboard.



DETECTIVE WILLIAM J. BURNS

Who uncovered the famous dynamite outrages and secured evidence that led to the arrest and confession of the McNamara brothers.

A PECULIAR ACCIDENT

How a Boy of Three Caused the Death of His Father.

A boy of three accidentally caused the death of his father—Captain Albert Verdier, a French officer—at grades. The child, who slept in the same room as his parents, cried in the night. His mother got up and took the boy into bed with her. He was restless and began to play with a lace-edged cloth on a little table at the bedside. Captain Verdier's revolver was on the table. Mme. Verdier saw it falling as the boy pulled at the lace, and tried to catch it. The trigger caught in the lace, the revolver went off, and Captain Verdier, who was sound asleep, was shot through the head. He was thirty seven years old.

Westminster Abbey Veteran.

Mr. Robert Hilton, after forty one years' resonant service as lay vicar choral at Westminster Abbey, has been obliged to retire on account of ill-health. Appointed by Dean Stanley in 1870, he has taken a part in every historical service since. He the bass solo at the first Jubilee service in 1887, and was present in the Abbey at the Coronation ceremonial this year. In recognition of his devotion to duty, the dean and chapter have accorded to Mr. Hilton a retiring pension on full salary.

SLENDER SKIRTS CAUSE DISTRESS

Fabric Weavers in the Manufacturing Districts of France Complain of Decrease

The vogue of slender skirts is producing disastrous effects in the industrial districts of France. It may not be believed by those women who punctiliously follow Dame Fashion's decrees, but it is a fact that the hobble skirt is causing great distress in the manufacturing districts in the north.

At the Roubaix the manufacturers and workpeople earnestly hope that women will return to more ample garments. One manufacturer makes the alarming statement that the hobble skirt has stopped one-half of the Lyons looms in that town, which is passing through one of the most serious crises it has ever known. The trouble is that dresses can now be made with one-half of the material that was formerly needed. As a consequence the output of dress stuff has been considerably reduced. There is not sufficient work for the looms, and something like 20,000 men and women are affected. Those workers who come from Belgium have been dismissed, while a large number of French workers are on short time.

Combing and spinning mills and dying and finishing factories have, it is computed, paid $4,000,000 less in wages this year. The hobble skirt is not the only cause of this decreased output. Increased tariffs have closed many foreign markets to French goods. The president of the Roubaix Chamber of Commerce shows how the Customs duties, especially in North America and Spain, have now become prohibitive. Following the hobble skirt in the suppression of the underskirt which has served to aggravate the crisis.

Manufacturers are also disposed to blame the "kimono." Here is what M. Paul Loth, President of the Cloth Merchants' Syndicate, says about this garment: "A piece of foulard is taken one metre square. A hole is made in the middle to pass the head through. Two slits serve for the sleeves, and with a pleat at the waist a woman is content with one where she formerly used two metres of foulard."

The plaint of the workers is a serious one. They say that they are working two days a week now, and that with their reduced wages they are simply watching one another die of hunger. They think that the time has come for women to stop wearing narrow skirts. The Roubaix district is the richest manufacturing region of France. It will depend on fashion's decrees whether it will retain that distinction.

SMELTS ARE PROFITABLE.

New Brunswick Fisherman Making Over $100 Per Day.

Making over one hundred dollars a day is the fortunate experience of some of those fishing smelts on the Big and Little Buctouche and other rivers in that part of New Brunswick. The buyers have been paying as high as 5½ cents a pound, or $110 a ton, for the fish this year, and as some of the nets yielded over four tons in the three first days of the season, the fishermen are making money fast.

WIRELESS ON THE LAKES.

Arrangements are in progress, it says, for the establishment of a chain of wireless stations on the lakes from Port Arthur to Kingston, including Port Arthur, Sault Ste. Marie, Midland, Tobermory, Barnia, Port Stanley, Port Colborne, Toronto and Kingston, with the station at Kingston of sufficient range to communicate with Montreal.

The Robbery at the Tower

An Adventure of Peter Crewe—"The Man with the Camera Eyes"

By Harold Carter.

(Copyright, 1911, by W. G. Chapman in the United States and Great Britain.)

After the adventure of the Box of Borneos, which I have already described, and which Peter Crewe was enabled to solve by his peculiar optical powers, we struck up a warm friendship. It was arranged that we should work together in the future for the solution of any similar difficulties which might come to me in the course of my professional career. We had arranged to catch the next steamship for America, but on the day before she sailed there occurred in London a robbery of such a mysterious character that neither of us could resist the temptation to remain and lend our aid to the discovery of the criminal.

Everybody remembers how the famous Gwyn jewels were stolen from the Tower of London. These emeralds, which had a historic rather than any especial intrinsic value, had been presented by Charles II. to his famous favorite, and were preserved in a small chamber in the Tower, where were stored miscellaneous treasures of secondary importance not usually placed on public exhibition. They were kept in an isolated building, a round turret which ran straight up to a height of seventy feet, and was absolutely inaccessible from the outside, the brick walls affording not the slightest foothold. In fact there was no direct access to this tower at all, since it connected with the main building by a series of passageways, intricate, and entirely unapproachable except from the central building, 200 yards away, which was guarded by a file of soldiers. This turret had a small barred window overlooking the road, 60 feet up. It was too high for any thief to throw up a grappling hook; in short nothing but a fireman's ladder could have gained access to it from the outside.

Yet in spite of this the window was entered from the outside, a bar was removed from the mortar setting, and the thief gained entrance, obtained possession of the emeralds, and calmly descended, unobserved. The robbery was not discovered until the following day, by which time the perpetrator of the crime had got safely away.

The daring nature of the crime excited all London. It was certain that no ladder had been used to gain admittance. While the tower was unguarded, persons were continually passing and repassing in the road beneath, and any such device would have been speedily detected, the more so inasmuch as any ladder placed against the wall would have been set at such an angle that it would have blocked the sidewalk underneath.

On the third day after the robbery the emeralds were discovered in the pawnshop of a notorious "fence" in Whitechapel region. They had been left there by an Italian, the man confessed, when threatened with prosecution. Neighbors of the pawnbroker confirmed this statement. An itinerant organ grinder, accompanied by a monkey, had been seen to enter the pawnshop on the day after the robbery. His monkey seemed to be sick, one neighbor added. It was wrapped in blankets and lay listlessly on the top of the organ. It was an extremely large animal and those who saw it had received the impression that it was a chimpansee, but nothing of it could be seen, since it was swathed from head to foot.

Other witnesses confirmed this statement. It was, furthermore, known that an Italian organ-grinder had been seen in the vicinity of the tower for several days before the robbery. Although he had chosen the worst place for the plying of his trade, and had taken in practically nothing, he had cheerfully ground out his tunes day after day at the base of the turret. His monkey, however, lay on the top of the organ, just as the other witnesses had described, and never stirred a muscle. Some children, who had tried to pet it, were angrily "shooed" away by the organ-grinder, who asserted that the animal was sick.

That was all that could be learned. All the itinerant organ-grinders in London were promptly investigated by the police, but no man with such an animal was found. Although the jewels had been recovered, fear of other daring robberies of a similar kind impelled the authorities to prosecute their search in the most vigorous manner.

"The first thing to do," said Crewe to me, when we had agreed to do our best to unravel the mystery, "is to look at the turret."

We went thither accordingly and found a curious crowd standing in a solid phalanx at the base of the tower, gazing up at the brick walls, while a couple of policemen stolidly moved them on whenever their numbers became too great for street traffic to pass. It seemed impossible that anyone could have scaled those walls without a ladder.

"Do you suppose the man sent his monkey up?" I hazarded.

Crewe smiled and shook his head.

"A monkey might possibly be able to find a foothold in the bricks," he said. "But how could it have sawn out the iron bar? Apart from this, no monkey could be trained to bring down any article its trainer wished for. No, Langton, ingenious as your theory is, we must dismiss it from the realms of possibility."

The sun was shining—a rare thing in London—and Crewe, having carefully inspected the base of the walls, now fell back to some distance and proceeded to take them in as a whole. He fixed both eyes unwinkingly upon the tower, so that every detail should impress itself upon either retina.

"And now," said Crewe, "we will take our photograph from the other side." And we moved round, and once again he focussed his eyes upon the brick work.

"That's all," he said, as the sun went behind a cloud. "I think the discovery will not prove so difficult as it appears."

"Indeed!" said one of the policemen on duty, who overheard this remark. "May I ask, sir, if you can furnish any clue?"

"Tell the governor of the tower," said Crewe, smiling, "that the robbery was not committed by an Italian at all, but by a South American, whom you people would doubtless confuse with Italians, seeing that there are not more than half a dozen in England."

"A South American!" repeated the other policeman stolidly. "And doubtless, sir, his monkey was also a South American," he continued, with clumsy sarcasm.

"You are quite right," said Crewe calmly. "His monkey was not a monkey, but it certainly was a South American."

"And you get all, all this from hinspecting the brick walls, sir?" the policeman asked.

"Every bit," said Crewe.

"You don't 'appen to know more about this affair than you have told us, sir?" said the policeman.

I pulled Crewe away. "If you awaken suspicion in the minds of these addle-pates you will find yourself arrested on suspicion," I whispered.

We moved off, the policemen following us with suspicious glances. It was not until we were upon the outskirts of the crowd that I breathed freely. "Crewe," I said, "it does not do to prod the British policeman. Now tell me, were you serious in what you said about the South American and his monkey?"

"I was never more serious," Crewe answered. "But I said that it was not a monkey. Tell me, Langton, what you saw on the tower."

"I saw a series of well-fitted bricks," I answered, "offering good foothold for a fly and possibly for a small monkey, but certainly not for a man."

"But what did you see on the bricks in the shape of markings?"

"A few mosses, which some scientist might label and classify."

"Tush!" said Crewe petulantly. "This is what I saw." He stopped, produced a pencil and a piece of paper from his pocket, and began to trace a series of three-pointed marks like hen's tracks.

"There was a well-ordered series of these," said Crewe, "commencing upon the nineteenth layer of bricks from the bottom, and thence running, with a slightly oblique movement, clear up to the window." He closed his eyes. "I am looking at them now," he continued. "At intervals corresponding, roughly, to every four of these tracks, there are slight but well-defined depressions in the surface having the rough outline of a shoe. Fragments of brick have crumbled here and there under the pressure of hobnails. In other words, Langton, our South American friend did ascend that turret, walking up its surface as a fly might walk. What is the inference?"

"That he threw a rope up over the bars and climbed, pulling himself up hand over hand. Therefore he is a sailor," I said, with a sudden light.

Crewe looked at me in great amusement.

"My dear Sherlock Holmes, you are quite wrong," he answered. "Ingenious, but speculative. We are dealing in exactitudes and there is no possible evidence to show that the man threw up a rope or is a sailor."

At the juncture a newsboy came past yelling a special edition of an evening newspaper. "Murder at Notting Hill! Murder at Notting Hill! Full description of scenes of 'orror," the vendor called. Crewe stopped to purchase a copy, unfolded the damp sheet, and read from under a staring headline:

"A dastardly murder was committed in the early hours of this morning at Notting Hill. The residence of Mr. Walter Deans, a retired tradesman, was entered, and valuables to the amount of more than a thousand pounds were taken, and the owner was shot down while endeavoring, as is supposed, to defend his home. The body of Mr. Deans was discovered by his servants about eleven o'clock lying across the fireplace in his bedroom, which was in confusion, as though it had been minutely ransacked. No clue has yet been discovered as to the identity of the murderer, although a foreign-looking man had been observed lurking in the vicinity recently. Mr. Deans' house stands alone in extensive grounds; it is a perfectly plain brick structure, and the robber appears to have entered through the window of the third story, on which is Mr. Deans' bedroom, though how he contrived to effect an entrance without foothold remains for the present a mystery."

"I suspected as much," said Crewe. "The fellow is so emboldened by the success of his first attempt that unless he is caught a series of crimes will follow. We must get him this afternoon."

"You think it was the same man?"

"Undoubtedly," said Crewe. "But, to make sure, let us take the train for Notting Hill immediately."

We arrived there an hour and a half later. The grounds were packed with an immense throng, whom the police were ineffectually endeavoring to disperse. Crewe stopped and focussed his eyes upon the building.

"What's your business 'ere?" demanded a policeman roughly. "Move on there!"

Crewe turned abruptly and left the grounds. "The same tracks," he muttered. "Now, Langton, we must catch this fellow tonight."

"Will you not tell me the significance of the markings?" I asked.

"Not now, Langton. I want to bend every effort to apprehending the murderer. Luckily this will not be difficult. Since the police imagine him to be an Italian, he will have no incentive to disguising his true nationality. You know the Spanish quarter?"

"Bloomsbury," I said.

"We shall find him there. These people would rather die than live outside their own neighborhoods. Watch for a man with a sack."

"A sack?" I queried.

"Yes," said Crewe impatiently. "He will not dare to maintain the organ-grinder fiction; nor will he venture to leave the creature in his room. We must search the streets until we find him."

At Tottenham Court Road we took an omnibus and, seated upon the roof, observed the streets narrowly. Nothing escaped Crewe's observant eyes. When he had passed through the Bloomsbury district we descended, Crewe hailed a hansom, and for an hour or more we drove slowly up and down the squalid thoroughfares, Crewe's eyes registering every human being among the moving mass of pedestrians. Suddenly he signaled to the driver and leaped out.

"Follow that man!" he exclaimed.

In front of us, some two hundred yards' distance, a swarthy fellow of Spanish or Italian origin was strolling leisurely through the streets. He was attired in the corduroys and overalls of a working man and had a small sack slung over one shoulder.

"We must not let him escape," Crewe muttered. It was growing dark and we hastened our footsteps until we were almost abreast of him. Then we followed him, now on this side of the road, now upon that, while he pursued his course through Bloomsbury, into Seven Dials, thence through Covent Garden and along the waste of half-erected buildings on Kingsway, the new County Council thoroughfare. At a signal from Crewe we fell back a little.

"How do you know that is the man?" I questioned hurriedly.

"He bears the mark of the beast," Crewe returned.

"The beast?"

"Look at his collar."

I crept up more closely and suddenly perceived, upon the cheap celluloid collar that the man wore, the identical hen-track—three finger marks, clearly outlined—that Crewe had drawn upon the paper. A sudden sense of horror almost overcame me. I fell back again and waited for Crewe to join me.

"What are you going to do?" I whispered.

"Seize him—at an opportune moment."

It was night now, and the thoroughfare, which was not yet installed with street lamps, was so dark that we could discern our man only as a shadow moving among shadows. He stopped before the flank of a new building from little cells in whose walls lights gleamed fitfully. I knew it to be one of the County Council structures for the housing of poor persons, but could not imagine for what purpose the robber intended breaking in.

He hesitated a moment, then moved round toward the end of the block. And suddenly I was enlightened. As though emerging out of squalor into fairyland, I saw before me the splendid new Wemyss hotel, fronting upon the Strand. Now the robber's purpose was made clear. If he could ascend that blank wall of the lodging house for fifty feet and more—if, like a fly, he could climb that apparently impassable structure, he could gain the unlit back court of the hotel and have each tier of rooms at his mercy, while their occupants were dining or enjoying themselves at some place of entertainment. It was a daring conception, for the inclosed courtyard, dominated by a bare brick wall, was wholly unguarded, being deemed unenterable.

As we crouched in the shadows we saw the robber glance swiftly round. The thoroughfare was apparently deserted; nobody was likely to pass through on any honest purpose. Stealthily he opened the sack, plunged in his arm, and drew out some furry creature of large size—a monkey, and yet not a monkey, for instead of chattering and leaping this thing lay apparently lifeless in his arms. The man deposited it carefully in a recess between two angles of the building and then began pulling out of the bag what seemed like an unending cord.

"By God, I was right!" I heard Crewe mutter. I was trembling with excitement; yet for the life of me I could not see what the man intended to do.

Presently he appeared to come to the end of the cord. He pulled off his coat and waistcoat and made it fast around his waist. Then, picking up the creature in his arms, he placed it against the side of the building.

To my astonishment the thing began to move. The strange black creature climbed higher and higher against the blank wall of the lodging house. Higher and higher yet it went, apparently walking upon the perpendicular slope, until the topmost window was attained. Then I saw the burglar jerk the rope. The animal disappeared. A moment afterward and he was hauling himself up the wall, hand over hand, with perfect ease and apparently perfect security.

Crewe crept forward and drew a revolver from his pocket. "Halt!" he said quietly to the man in the air. "Halt, or I fire. Come down!"

I saw a struggle upon the perpendicular wall. The clinging man grasped at the rope, missed it, seemed to lose his foothold, and suddenly fell some twenty feet in the air. The loose rope tightened with an awful shock; the body quivered an instant, and then began to swing like a pendulum from side to side along the flank of the building. At every turn the rope rose higher around him. It was slipping upward from his waist, where he had fastened it, toward his throat, one arm having slipped through the noose in the struggle. At every turn the body assumed an attitude more and more perpendicular; finally, with a sudden shock the noose slipped round the neck and the corpse swung evenly at the rope's end, the vibrations gradually lessening until the body hung limp and loose and lifeless, its one free arm dangling, the other pinned by the rope to the neck, the forearm waving weakly around the head. Nothing that we could have done could have saved him. Twenty feet at least above our heads that dreadful drama was enacted in the air.

"He has but anticipated his fate," said Crewe. "Poor devil! His ingenuity undid him. Let us go, Langton; there is no purpose to be served by our remaining here."

On the following morning all London was agape over the latest mystery. A policeman, according to the account, had found the body of a man suspended from an upper window of a tenement house by a rope of prodigious length. He had cut him down, but the suicide had evidently been dead for several hours. The rope was ingeniously knotted around the window bars; yet it had not been fastened within, the window being bolted and the room having been unoccupied for more than a week previously.

Another item in the same newspaper passed without notice; yet the two were indissolubly connected.

"Early this morning," it ran, "while going to work, John Jarvis, a plumber, noticed a strange beast in the Strand. It was suspended from a window sill, and at first seemed to be dead, but was subsequently found to be sleeping. The beast was noosed and taken to the police station, where it was discovered, after some investigation, to be a harmless sloth of the armadillo type. Its final destination will probably be the Zoological Gardens."

Crewe looked up at me.

"The greatest mystery," he said, "is how the creature contrived to knot the rope round the window bars so that it held up the body of the burglar after it had departed upon its nocturnal prowlings in search of food."

"Crewe," I said, "you have not explained anything of the mystery to me as yet. I do not know how the burglar entered the tower, nor how you knew him to be a South American, nor the meaning of the hen-tracks."

Crewe started. "My dear Langton, forgive me," he pleaded. "I will do so at once. Do you know anything about the habits of the sloth?"

"I never heard of such an animal before today," I answered.

"Just so," Crewe answered, smiling. "Now if you, an educated American, know nothing of this animal, it is safe to say that nobody else does, except, here and there, some naturalist. Is it not reasonable, therefore, to assume that the man who owned it was intimately acquainted with it—in other words that he was a denizen of South America, the continent in which the sloth has its habitat? And if that deduction were not logical enough, we have the testimony of the pawnbroker and his neighbors to the effect that the man was an Italian—the generic term in England for all southerners of swarthy complexion."

"Yes," I said, "granted the sloth, I will admit that its owner was probably a South American. But what gave you the idea of its being a sloth, and how does it come into the story?"

"Why," said Crewe, "I saw its marks upon the brick work of the tower, and also at Notting Hill. The sloth has only three toes, and its marks are as much like hen-tracks as anything in the world. You have undoubtedly seen a sloth's feet at the Zoological Gardens when you were a boy."

"Undoubtedly; but they have entirely escaped my recollection."

"That is the difference between us," said Crewe, smiling. "But, to continue, the sloth has acquired the remarkable habit of hanging by its toes from the branches of trees. With its head down, its heavy body suspended by its slender paws, it sleeps happily all through the day, awakening only at night, when it pursues it insect prey. When suspended in this manner nothing can dislodge it; in fact, the sloth seems able to defy the laws of gravitation. A weight of a ton, affixed to its body, would not pull it downward or disturb it in its ecstatic slumbers. On the other hand, by unclasping the paws and pulling upward, the sloth can be easily and harmlessly removed from its resting place. And so our organ-grinder had a sloth in place of a monkey. The plan of displaying it in the streets openly, under the guise of a sick monkey, was a brilliant conception, and shows us that our criminal was a man of a high degree of mentality.

"The rest of the picture, Langton, you can fill in for yourself. Having discovered the most convenient hour for his enterprise, the burglar attaches a long rope around the creature, coiling the other end around his body, and places it upon the wall. Our sloth, feeling the smooth surface beneath him, and being unable to sleep perpendicularly, conceives the idea that he is [illegible] the stem of a peculiarly high and smooth palm tree, at whose summit he may hope to find a comfortable branch from which it is his delight to feed. He ascends as long as the rope holds out. When he reaches the level of the window, his master maneuvers him against the bars, feeling which, and imagining them to be branches, the sloth promptly fastens himself by the feet, lets his head fall, and passes into a delicious slumber.

"We now have our sloth firmly affixed to the bars. No weight, pulling from below, can dislodge him. In other words, the burglar has anchored his rope outside the window of the room to which he desires to gain admittance. Now, aided by darkness of one of these perpetual London fogs, he ascends the rope, bracing himself against the brick walls, reaches his destination, effects his haul, and then descends in the same way, afterward pulling down the animal, probably through some slip-knot arrangement. It was a most ingenious contrivance, Langton, and if our robber had not wrongly adjusted his rope, so that it slipped round his throat and strangled him, he might have scrambled up out of reach and managed to elude us."

He was hauling himself up the wall.

POPE WILL NOT LEAVE ROME

Paris Paper Says It Is Folly to Believe His Holiness Will Move to Lourdes.

Apropos of the celebrations attending the fiftieth anniversary of Italian independence there is again, it is said, some talk that Pope Pius X. may leave Rome and install himself at Lourdes, the most pronouncedly Catholic community, perhaps, in France.

Commenting on this, Le Cri de Paris says that it is folly to believe that his holiness has ever seriously entertained the project of quitting the Eternal City, and still less that of establishing himself upon the territory of the French republic. "The only time," says Le Cri, "that the papacy thought to come to French soil as in the days of the popes at Avignon was immediately following the occupation of Rome by the Italians. After the election of October 2, 1870, which assured the union of Rome with united Italy, Pius IX. thought he could no longer remain in his ancient capital. Vincenti, then the physician of the papal hospital, suggested to the pope that he install himself in Corsica, a country of the Italian tongue, and well placed to permit his holiness to observe the Catholic agitation in the peninsula. This project pleased the pope greatly and he entered into negotiations with the French government. Monsieur Thiers declared himself favorable to the project, but Cardinal Antonelli opposed it and had sufficient influence with Pius IX. to have him resolve to 'remain a prisoner in the vatican.' After this Bismarck offered Pius IX. an asylum at Cologne, and still later the pope's household formed the project of installing him in the Azores."

Will Be Valuable Book.

Masons of Chicago started a Bible on a long journey in the fall of 1909. It is to be kept for a time in the possession of at least one lodge in every principal city of the country and ultimately returned to its starting point, to be placed among the precious archives of the Chicago Masons. It is expected that twenty-five years will be required for the Bible to complete its passage from lodge to lodge until all the blank pages provided for the record of its custodians shall have been filled. A lodge in Columbus, O., which had the Bible recently, sent a special train to Springfield in that state to convey the traveling Bible to a lodge there, where it was received with impressive ceremonies.

"YES, I'M A GREAT AUTHOR"

Reade, Balzac and Sue Puffed Their Own Works as Being Fine Literature.

Authors in "the good old days" were not above writing their own puffs, a writer in the Bohemian says. Charles Reade wrote a long article on himself for Once a Week, in which he said:

"It is impossible to speak too highly of 'The Cloister and the Hearth.' It is one of the most scholarlike and learned as well as one of the most artistic and beautiful works of fiction in any language. Read him. Resign yourself to the magic spell of his genius. The effect of 'Foul Play' is perfectly marvelous. It leaves the stories of every other sensational writer far behind."

Nor was Balzac in France above praising his own works. "If you have not been born a story teller," he wrote in a review, "you will never obtain the popularity of M. de Balzac. And what a story teller! What nerve and wit! How the world is dissected by this man! What passion and coolness!"

But the height of literary advertisement in the first half of the last century was reached in the case of Eugene Sue's famous novel, "The Wandering Jew." Every little while the daily installment in the newspaper in which it was appearing would be missing, and in its place would be an announcement that M. Sue was suffering from a slight indisposition and readers would be obliged to wait 48 hours for new developments of the narrative. "And all the while Sue himself was industriously abetting the publishers by posing overdressed and with spurs in his boots at the Cafe de Paris in an attitude of deepest abstraction, as if wondering what the next installment would be about."

The earliest weapons of mankind—of the cutting, thrusting, hacking and stabbing variety—were undoubtedly suggested by the natural weapons of the animals—the tusks of the boar, elephant and walrus, the sword of the swordfish and narwhal, the pointed antlers of the deer and the short horns of the steer. In fact, it is well known that these weapons, taken directly from the fruits of the chase, were actually employed by men before they made for themselves any other weapon than the club. The sword is simply the buffalo's long curved horn made into steel and flattened out, just as the dirk is deer's antler made out of the same material, and on to the end of the chapter.

Little Jimmy Patterson, visiting with his mother's family in the Alhambra apartment, was taken to call on some friends on the fourth side. On the way home his auntie discovered stuck into his shoe top a beer opener.

"Why, James!" she exclaimed, "what will the people do without this article?"

"Oh," replied James, "they all wear laced shoes. Not one of them wears button shoes."

They have no use for beer openers in his family.—Cleveland Leader.

NEW BATTLESHIPS WITHOUT RIVALS

LONDON, DEC. 28.—The five battleships of this year's shipbuilding program which are about to be laid down will be as superior to the Dreadnought and her sisters as the Dreadnought was to the vessels which preceded her.

The five new battleships—or, to be strictly accurate, four battleships and one battle cruiser—which are now about to be commenced will be the most remarkable ships yet conceived by the naval instructor. They will not be the largest armoured ships in the world (though larger than any hitherto added to the British fleet), but in offensive and defensive power and speed—in fact, in the combination of all the most valuable fighting qualities—they will be without rivals.

It is rather more than a year ago since it was announced that the ships then building would carry a new type of 13.5-inch guns, throwing 1,250 lb. shell, instead of the 12-inch gun hitherto mounted, and discharging an 850 lb. shell. There are under construction eleven ships with this very powerful weapon, and these vessels carry with them an assurance of supremacy in armoured ships down to the spring of 1913. At that date the last of them will pass into the British fleet at a moment when in no navy in the world will there be a ship with a heavier weapon than the 12-inch gun.

STRENGTH OF THE NAVY.

These capital ships carry all their guns on the centre line—that is the whole battle armament can be brought to bear on either broadside at will. Eight of these vessels—the Orion (just completing), the Thunderer, Conqueror and Monarch (to be completed in the spring), the King George V., Centurion, Ajax, and Audacious — each carry ten of these guns; and the other three—the Lion, Princess Royal and Queen Mary, which are battle cruisers—have eight each. Consequently, early in 1913 the British fleet will be strengthened by 104 guns of the 13.5-inch type, and at that time there will be no ship under any other flag carrying as deadly pieces of artillery.

There has been a further development in the past year in the King George V. class. The 13.5-inch gun will be mounted, but it will be of a more powerful type than was originally anticipated. Instead of throwing a 1,250 lb. shell, it will use a 1,400 lb. shell—an increase of 150 lbs., which will be translated in action into destructive power. Consequently, in the new battleships of last year's program—the King George V., Ajax, Centurion, and Audacious—the broadside fire, instead of being of 12,500 lbs., will be of 14,000 lbs., a gain of 1,500 lbs. in this one quartet. The battle cruiser Queen Mary will have eight guns of the new 13.5-inch type. These five ships will be completed early in 1914.

TO MEET DESTROYERS.

In the five ships of the present year's program, the keels of which are about to be placed in position, this new 13.5-inch gun will be mounted, and the anti-torpedo armament will be greatly strengthened. The Dreadnought carries only 12 lb. guns for dealing with attacking torpedo craft. Subsequently this piece was replaced by a new 4-inch gun, with 25 lb. projectile, which has hitherto been exclusively used. The ordnance department has now recommended that in the new battleships a 6-inch gun shall be mounted. This action has been taken owing to the increase in the size and speed of destroyers, which must be hit end-on when they are approaching a battleship, and they present so small a target that it is felt to be essential that every hit shall not merely disable the boat, but wreck her. This effect the 100 lb. shell of the 6-inch gun is calculated to produce. These guns will be carried in armoured casemates, thus offering to the crews a considerable measure of protection.

It is believed that each of the new battleships will carry sixteen of these 6 inch guns, which will be of 45 calibres, instead of 50 calibres, thus giving to the navy a thoroughly serviceable weapon, which will not suffer from corrosion so seriously as the longer weapon with a heavier power charge. These guns will not be for use in battle, but purely for resisting attacks by torpedo-boat destroyers.

Simultaneously with this development in fighting power, steps have been taken to give the new vessels better protection against the explosion of torpedo or mine. This end has been attained by a far greater subdivision of the hull, so as to localise the effect. It is believed that, owing to this increased precaution, these men-of-war will be practically unsinkable. If hit by a torpedo, the damage must necessarily be considerable, but it will not seal the fate of the ship.—Vancouver World.

WAS TROUBLED WITH

Headache AND Constipation.

After Suffering For Two Years Was Cured By

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS.

Headache of whatever nature is nearly always symptomatic of other diseased conditions, rather than a disease itself, but in most cases a disordered stomach, constipation, or bad circulation is the chief source of the difficulty. Burdock Blood Bitters removes the cause of the trouble through its cleansing, strengthening and tonic action on the stomach, liver, bowels and blood. Mr. Wm. Redmond, Cardigan Bridge, P. E. I., writes:—"I have been troubled with headache and constipation for about two years. After trying every doctor I knew, a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I found myself, after using one bottle, getting much better, and after using three bottles I was completely cured.

After then I was on a visit, and found my cousin very sick, and the doctor told her there was something wrong with her head. I told her to use Burdock Blood Bitters and she was cured in a short time. I can safely recommend it to all."

Heartburn, Gas, Sourness and Stomach Misery Vanishes

There would not be a case of indigestion here if readers who are subject to Stomach trouble knew the tremendous anti-ferment and digestive virtue contained in Diapepsin. This harmless preparation will digest a heavy meal without the slightest fuss or discomfort, and relieve the sourest acid stomach in five minutes, besides overcoming all foul, nauseous odours from the breath.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on each 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin. Then you will readily understand why this promptly cures Indigestion and removes such symptoms as Heartburn, a felling like a lump of lead in the stomach, Belching of Gas and Eructations of undigested food, water brash, Nausea, Headache, Biliousness and many other bad symptoms; and, besides, you will not need laxatives to keep your stomach, liver and intestines clean and fresh.

If your Stomach is sour and full of gas, or your food doesn't digest and your meals don't seem to fit, why not get a 50-cent case from your druggist and make life worth living? Absolute relief from Stomach misery and perfect digestion of anything you eat is sure to follow five minutes after, and, besides, one 50-cent case is sufficient to cure a whole family of such trouble.

Surely a harmless, inexpensive preparation like Pape's Diapepsin which will always, either at daytime, or during night, relieve your stomach misery and digest your meals, is about as handy and valuable a thing as you could have in the house.

OLD COUNTRY NEWS

DUBLIN, DEC. 29.—An interesting relic of the Indian mutiny came under the auctioneer's hammer in Dublin auction rooms the other day. It was a Victoria Cross and medal for the defence of Lucknow, which were awarded Private McManus, of the Fifth Foot. His act of bravery was thus described: "A party on 26th of September, 1857, was besieged in a house in the city of Lucknow by the rebel Sepoys. Private McManus kept outside the house until he was himself wounded, and under cover of a pillar kept firing on the Sepoys and prevented them rushing on the house. He also, with Private John Ryan, First Madras Fusiliers, rushed into the street and took Captain Arnold out of a 'dooly' and brought him into the house in face of a heavy fire, in which Captain Arnold was wounded." The trophy was bought for £84 by an officer in brave McManus' old regiment.

With their leaking ship aground and in a perilous position the crew of the steamer Citadel were in a desperate plight one recent stormy night in Lough Foyle. While bound from Londonderry to Belfast, the ship was caught in a violent gale, and despite the utmost efforts of the crew she was driven aground. While the pumps worked the men's position was not so serious, but when the pumps became choked with sand and water rushing in through the leak, flooded in an alarming manner, and when eventually, the hold was completely full the men gave themselves up for lost. However, when morning broke they were still in the ship, and their distress signals were then observed and the desperate men were quickly rescued.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Robert Christie, a middle-aged man, had a very narrow escape from drowning the other day in the Middletown Canal, County Armagh. He is skipper of a vessel which at the time was lying at the quay, and while he was engaged at some work on deck he tripped and to his horror fell overboard headlong into the water. The canal is about fifty feet broad and ten feet in depth, and on the Middletown side, where cargoes are discharged, a wall is built. Losing his presence of mind, unfortunately, Christie struck out for that side and when he reached the wall he was unable to get out and too exhausted to swim to the other side. Fortunately constables discovered his plight and in the nick of time succeeded in rescuing the drowning man.

A mysterious fire and explosion resulting in the death of an unknown man, occurred the other morning at the Belfast Motor Works. The establishment was locked up in the usual way the previous night, and no one had access to the premises. But about four o'clock in the morning a motor car was seen in the street, but whether or not the occupant entered the works is unknown. A few minutes later, however, a great volume of flame burst from the building, followed by a series of violent explosions, whih wrecked the building, flinging masses of masonry, iron and woodwork in all directions. The charred remains of a man were discovered under a heap of debris. One leg had been blown almost completely from the body, and the features were unrecognisable.

Mr. Bonar Law, the new leader of the Unionist party in the British Isles, who, as is already known, has Irish connections, has received from the representatives of the Presbyterian Church of the Parish of Ballywillan, in the Counties of Antrim and Londonderry, a message of congratulation. It is well phrased, and gave great pleasure to its recipient. "We claim a unique interest, and feel a pride in the honour conferred upon you," says the message, "for while we acknowledge the Dominion of Canada as the land of your birth, Ireland is your fatherland, and your ancestors have been for generations residents, holders of property, and employers of labour in this parish, and faithful members of this church."

Queen Mary, who for many years has taken a very practical interest in the cottage industries in County Donegal by making extensive purchases at the annual exhibitions in London, found the Irish hand-knitted golf coat which she had specially made for her, very useful on the voyage to India. The coat, which was knitted by the cottagers in their own homes, is made of high-grade wool and silk thread. It is a splendid example of the great success of the cottage industries, through the development of which employment is found for as many as 1,500 of the poorer peasantry in North-West Donegal.

GIRDER COLLAPSED.

When a huge iron girder, weighing about three tons, suddenly crashed down the other day while being hoisted into position at a new building being erected in Dublin, several people had astounding escapes from death. Wicklow street, across which it fell, is always a busy thoroughfare, and it was crowded at the time, so that it seems a miracle that many people were not killed. The girder had been raised past the second story when the rope broke, and it crashed down, carrying everything before it. A workman was swept down with the debris, but fortunately his injuries are not serious.

The Marquis of Waterford, who was found drowned recently in the River Clodagh, near his residence at Curraghmore County, Waterford, had a miraculous escape from being killed by a lion while on a hunting expedition in British East Africa in 1910. He was a son of that most popular member of his house, the late Marquis, popularly known as "Tye." "Tye" during the latter portion of his life enjoyed the unusual privilege of being allowed to address the House of Lords sitting. This was owing to a frightful accident in the hunting field which altogether crippled him.

The Belfast harbour board have practically decided to establish a wireless telegraphic station at Belfast. The subject has been under discussion for some time, and has only been deferred pending inquiries regarding cost and other details. In view of the constantly increasing number of vessels visiting this port, as well as the number which are compelled to take shelter in the harbour in a storm, a wireless telegraphic station in Belfast will be of incalculable service, and add much to the security of ships using the harbour.

Mr. Balfour, though he has given up the leadership of the Unionist party, has determined that he will not be left out of the fray when the home rule struggle comes on next year. He is going abroad for a long rest, but will return early next session, and, like a giant refreshed, will lend his powerful aid to the new leader. His advice and assistance will be invaluable to the party, for it will be freely used, and only those in the House of Commons know how great a force he is to contend with.

YOUR OPPORTUNITY

ARE you aware of the excellent speculative chances prevailing at present in the staple stocks of Cobalt and Porcupine?

Now that the Yuletide season is over, the investing public are once more directing their attention to this department of the market and basing our opinion on the strong undertone, we believe a sharp advance is inevitable and absolutely warranted in certain of the Cobalt and Porcupine stocks.

We are constantly in touch with the underground development work now going on at the particularly proven mines of Porcupine and in a number of these we can show where mine values are far in excess of market valuations. How long this unique condition will last we are unable to tell, but while such excellent chances do exist, herein lies your opportunity to reap big returns within a very short time.

Write us for particulars and we will gladly keep you posted on what is going on at Cobalt and Porcupine, as well as what the "inside" interests are doing in the market.

This is valuable information and is returning many of our clients big profits.

NERVOUS DEBILITY

Thousands of young and middle-aged men are annually swept to a premature grave through Early Indiscretions, Excesses and Blood Diseases. If you have any of the following symptoms consult us before it is too late. Are you nervous and weak, despondent and gloomy, specks before the eyes, with dark circles under them, weak back, kidneys irritable, palpitation of the heart, bashful, dreams and losses, sediment in urine, pimples on the face, eyes sunken, hollow cheeks, careworn expression, poor memory, lifeless, distrustful, lack energy and strength, tired mornings, restless nights, changeable moods, weak manhood, premature decay, bone pains, hair loose, sore throat, etc.

YOU WILL BE A WRECK

Our New Method Treatment can cure you and make a man of you. Under its influence the brain becomes active, the blood purified, so that all pimples, blotches and ulcers disappear; the nerves become strong as steel, so that nervousness, bashfulness and despondency vanish, the eye becomes bright, the face full and clear, energy returns to the body and the moral, physical and sexual systems are invigorated; all drains cease—no more vital waste from the system. Don't let quacks and fakirs rob you of your hard earned dollars. We will cure you or no pay.

GAGGED AND ROBBED.

Two Masked Men Loot Express Train Near Reading, Cal.

Reading, Cal., Jan. 6.—The mail car of the Oregon Express, on the Southern Pacific, was robbed early yesterday of all eastern registered mail by two masked men. Three mail clerks were bound and gagged by the robbers, who entered the car while the train was between Redding and Red Bluff. The train pulled into Redding at 5.40 a.m., and the robbers, carrying their loot, dropped off and escaped.

The train left San Francisco at 9.30 Thursday night. When it stopped at Red Bluff, 35 miles south of this city, early yesterday, mail sacks were thrown out and others taken on. One of the three mail clerks was about to leave the car, when the two bandits moved past him into the car and closed the door.

"What's up?" exclaimed Charles J. Rhein, a clerk.

"This is a hold-up," coolly responded one of the men, covering the trio with a revolver. Rhein, E. E. Warner and their assistant, were bound and gagged by the second bandit.

When the train reached Cottonwood, 17 miles north of Red Bluff, the bandits acted as clerks in exchanging mail, without arousing suspicion. At Anderson, five miles further, they repeated the performance, showing familiarity with the clerks' duties.

When the train stopped at Redding at 5.40, Geo. Westlake, the local clerk, was waiting to receive the mail. The bandits threw open the doors on each side of the car and walked in opposite directions. Westlake thought they were the regular mail clerks.

He threw a sack into the mail car and was surprise that no one received it. A moment later he heard a feeble cry and discovered the plight of the clerks. Mail sacks had been piled on them, but Rhein had managed to loosen his gag.

Strewn over the floor was the wrappings of hundreds of mail packages. Every sack of registered mail had been looted. Posses are seeking the bandits.

CARS TURNS TURTLE.

Cincinnati is Scene of a Trolley Disaster—Four Dying.

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 6.—Four persons were fatally injured while another was seriously hurt here last night when a South Bellevue street car jumped from the central bridge, which connects the city with Newport, Ky. The car landed on Front street after turning a somersault in its drop of fifty-five feet to the pavement below.

The fatally injured are: Harry Wessing, Newport, Ky., conductor of the car, skull fractured and internally injured; Benton Schroll, secretary-treasurer of the Central Bridge Co., Newport, Ky., skull fractured, internal injuries and broken bones; Edward Hapfel, Cincinnati, skull fractured and contusions of the body; Harry Finnan, Covington, Ky., motorman of the car, skull fractured and both legs broken.

Samuel Hollow, Newport Ky., the only other passenger, sustained scalp wounds and a contused body, but will recover.

The car left the tracks after crossing the Ohio River at a sharp curve in the bridge. It was making its first trip of the night from the barns in Newport, which accounts for the small number of passengers aboard.

The OXYPATHOR
Daily Physician
RHEUMATISM, PNEUMONIA, LA GRIPPE
CROUP, NERVOUSNESS
And Other Diseases (both acute and chronic) of Men, Women and Children
YOU call a doctor when sick because you don't know what to do. If you owned an OXYPATHOR you'd know what to do and you wouldn't have to call a doctor.
Eventually your family doctor will be an OXYPATHOR. In thousands of homes all over the world the OXYPATHOR has taken the place of drugs and medicines.
The OXYPATHOR is always ready for instant use day or night; no need of anxiety or fatal delays, waiting—possibly in vain—for the arrival of the physician.
No diagnosis is necessary when using an OXYPATHOR—simply two small clasps to adjust—Nature does the rest. With the OXYPATHOR you treat yourself, in your own home—the ideal way.
The OXYPATHOR not only cures the immediate trouble but wipes out completely in a few weeks time the ailments of years standing.
The OXYPATHOR is a money-saver—the first cost is the only cost—lasts a life-time—never loses its force. Doctor bills, usually a fixed expense in every household, became but a memory.
We want you to investigate, without obligations to buy, this modern drugless cure. Let us refer you to people who own OXYPATHORS. Your investigation will both surprise and interest you.

Reducing Tax With Profits.

Berlin, Jan 6.—The new city council will start its business for 1912 with about $10,000 in the treasury, $9,000 of which will be applied toward keeping down the tax rate for this year. Town Treasurer Huber has been notified by the light commission authorities that $7,200 will be paid out of the profits of the light and power plant for 1911 and handed over to the town treasury. This amount is equivalent to one mill of assessment. The rate for 1911 was 28 mills and a reduction of two mills for the current year is predicted, notwithstanding increased expenditures for the new school.

MARKET REPORTS.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Lower, Chicago Higher—Live Stock —Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Wheat scored today the highest close of the present bulge. Wretched harvest conditions in Argentine formed the moving cause. Final prices were 1-2c to 1-4c up, as compared with 24 hours preceding. Corn showed a net gain of 1-2c to 5-8c, oats an advance of 1-2c to 1 1-8c, and hog products an additional cost of 10c to 12 1-2c to 25c.

Liverpool wheat closed to-day unchanged to ½d lower than yesterday; corn unchanged to ½d lower. Buenos Ayres wheat was 3c to 4½c higher, Berlin ¾d higher, Budapest ½c higher.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE MEETINGS WERE VERY SUCCESSFUL

Instructive Addresses Were Given in the Council Chamber by Capable Speakers Yesterday.

MEETINGS IN SOUTH

The Farmers Institute meeting held in the City Council chamber yesterday afternoon, was not largely attended, but from other points of view was a grand success. Mr. J. H. Garbutt presided.

Mr. C. W. Gurney, of Paris, spoke on the "Care of Apple Orchards" and gave some very valuable information. He stated that apple trees will not thrive with "wet feet" so to speak. And on the other hand they will not be a very great success if planted on high sandy land, but should be planted on loamy land. Light sandy land produces a very good looking apple but it is deficient in quality and flavour.

Speaking of the Northern Spy, Mr. Gurney said that it was an apple unsurpassed for flavour and the best keeping apple on the market. Young Northern Spy trees must be watched, however, or when heavy loaded, they will spit down the middle. Ontario is the home of the Northern Spy, and may be proud of its product, as there is no apple so popular.

"The Duchess is also a good apple," said Mr. Gurney. "We should not try to produce a third class article; it gives a man a bad reputation. If one purchases a good apple, one that is solid and not wormy, even if it costs twice the money, we will likely buy more. The Duchess is a very good apple and not susceptible to worms. In planting trees, the top earth should be placed around the roots and the earth from the bottom of the hole should be placed on top. A little water should be put in on the bottom earth and this earth should not be tramped in, but the top earth might be pressed in. If the season is very dry it is good to sprinkle half a pail or so of water over the trees. Orchard soil must be cultivated and matured to get the best result. I don't think that anything pays better. You must fertilize it. Our experience has been that a moderate coat of manure and some commercial fertiliser is a splendid help to the trees. Trees like something predigested. The orchards should be ploughed in the fall, but plough very shallow and then in the winter, put on rough manure. The rough, loose bark, should be scraped off with a hoe or wire brush; it is very important.

Pruning.

Pruning should be done in summer. It checks wood growth and produces fruit. Trees are sometimes all cut out in the centre and the limbs on the outside, with a tuft at the end of them like a cow's tail. This is a mistake. The outspreading limbs should be cut off. Apple trees should not be placed closer than 6 feet. On large trees the long ends of the limbs should be cut back. You will notice some small limbs growing near the end and it should be cut off just where they are. Any limbs over an inch in diameter, should be painted. The wounds heal quick in summer of course, but with the paint they will heal much quicker.

Spraying.

There are sometimes little lice get on the trees in the spring. They should be sprayed with a mixture of 3 gallons of water and one gallon of sulphur of lime. Sometimes in the advance stage a pound or two pounds of poison might be added. Arsenic of lead is preferable.

The spraying for the moth is also very important. The trees must be watched and at the first signs the trees should be sprayed. This spraying must be done thoroughly and the trees must be covered. Put on plenty. Put it on until the tree starts to drip.

As regards the cultivation of the orchard, white turnips are good as a crop. They should be planted about 3 lbs. to the acre.

Mr. Gurney spoke of the different modes of shipping apples and imparted some valuable information on both subjects.

Mr. E. S. Hopkins, of Norwood, district representative of the agricultural department, successor to Mr. Duff, was the next speaker. He spoke on "Drainage" and his address was much appreciated.

Mr. E. A. Peck, M.P.P., spoke a few words at the close of the meeting.

FELL IN A FAINT

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall to the floor. I could not sweep without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can wash and do my housework. Your medicine cured me when doctors had failed."

PITCHED BATTLE

Chinese Imperialist and Republican Forces May Come Together at Any Time---Foreigners' Tact

IMMEDIATE EXODUS

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., JAN. 6.—The officers commanding the various contingents of foreign troops have been instructed to take charge of the railroads so that communication may be maintained from Pekin to the sea. This is taken to indicate fears that there may be a pitched battle between the Imperialists and Republicans any time in the neighbourhood of Pekin, and an immediate exodus may be necessary for the natives and foreigners.

St. Peter's T. A. S. will celebrate their 12th Anniversary on Monday, Jan. 8th, with a Two-Act Play by Local Talent, entitled "The Squire's Daughter." Seats are 25c and 35c. KEEP THE DATE OPEN. 3d-4

BORDEN'S STATEMENT

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, JAN. 6.—Right Hon. R. L. Borden gives emphatic denial to the report published in the Globe this morning about the alleged mission of Rev. Father Burke, of Toronto, to Rome, on behalf of the Government. The Premier says that he has not the honour of Father Burke's acquaintance more than casually. He declined to say whether he had had a conference with Archbishop Bruchesi, in Montreal, declaring that it was nobody's business as to whom he saw as a private friend.

WONDERFUL PICTURES

The wonderful pictures shown by the Kinemacolor Company at the Grand Opera House last night were pronounced by those who saw them as the best exhibition of its kind ever seen in Peterborough. Nothing so realistic or artistic has been seen, and the audience was loud in its praises of the pictures. Mr. R. M. Roy of the Roy Studio, was particularly enthusiastic, and expressed his admiration in no uncertain terms. The pictures are as different from the ordinary moving pictures as night is from day. They are clear and remarkably life like. The colour photography is marvellous. In addition to a magnificent series of pictures of the Coronation the programme includes a number of other most interesting scenes, the whole exhibition being enjoyable and instructive.

The Kinemacolor pictures will be shown again to-night and to-morrow night, with a special matinee to-morrow afternoon for children, who will be admitted to any seat in the house for 10c.

LECTURED AT NORMAL

Rev. Dr. Marsh gave a much-appreciated illustrated lecture on Astronomy at the Normal School to the pupil-teachers yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. At the close of the lecture he extended a hearty invitation to those present to visit Springville and take a view of the solar system through his telescope.

HAS IT BEEN COLD ENOUGH FOR YOU TO-DAY?

The Bottom Dropped Out of the Thermometer in Peterborough Last Night—Registered 23 Below

MORE IS COMING

The winter has been comparatively mild up to the present, and until the cold wave struck us last evening the thermometer had not been down to zero. The temperature gradually went down yesterday afternoon accompanied by a very cold wind. At 6 o'clock we had it 6 below; at 9.30 14 below. At 7 o'clock this morning the official reading was 23 degrees below; no lower figure was reached during the night.—W. P.

The observations taken by the Meteorological officials to-day, at noon, indicates that the prospects for warmer weather in any part of Ontario were not very immediate. It was quite possible, said the weatherman, that this cold spell last three or four days. White River, Ont., north of Lake Superior, is again maintaining its reputation as the coldest place on earth. The official temperatures there vary from 50 to 64 degrees below zero, all morning. Their best thermometer froze up at this point.

COLD EVERYWHERE.

TORONTO, ONT., JAN. 6.—There is extreme cold weather this morning in all parts of Ontario and in many cases the roads are snow blocked preventing the farmers coming into market and sending prices of provisions sky-ward. In the northern part of the province various temperatures of from twenty to thirty-eight below zero are the records, while along the counties in old Ontario and along the neighbourhood of the Great Lakes, they were basking in the comparatively balmy atmosphere of from eight to sixteen below.

ASSAULT CHARGE IS WITHDRAWN

John Knott, of Chemong, Accused of Assault, Must Pay the Costs of the Case

WILL BE $20.00

John Knott, the Chemong Indian, who was charged with assaulting Mrs. Abraham Taylor of the Chemong Reserve, appeared before Magistrate Edmison this morning. Mrs. Taylor and the witnesses were all present, but the case was not proceeded with, as Mrs. Taylor requested to have the charge withdrawn upon the accused paying the costs and expenses. Knott did this and the matter was accordingly settled. The total costs would be in the neighbourhood of $20.

A SUDDEN DEATH

Well Known Ottawa School Principal is Dead

Special to The Examiner:

WINDSOR, ONT., JAN. 6. — To come home with a view of spending a joyous Christmas with his mother and other members of his family, and on his very arrival to be stricken down with heart failure, was the sad fate of Frank A. Cleminson of Ottawa, a young man of high ideals, respected by all who knew him and son of Mrs. Sarah Cleminson, 72 Pelissier street. The deceased, who was 29 years of age, was principal of the Kent street Public school, Ottawa. He was active in Masonic and church circles and known in many cities of Ontario.

SOCIAL EVENING

Enjoyable Event Under Auspices of Park St. Helping Hand Bible Class

The first social evening of the Helping-Hand Bible Class was held last night in the parlours of the Park Street Baptist Church. A good time was spent in social intercourse by all who attended. In spite of the many counter attractions a goodly number turned out—and why shouldn't they? The church was warm and comfortable, thanks to Janitor Bradley and the Coal Board. Parlour games were played. The boys sang merry songs, or tried to, and the girls smiled sweetly, and said things. The old folks felt young again, and enjoyed it. A few lonely chaps turned up without company, including the pastor, Rev. W. C. Riddiford, and, according to rule No. 1, viz.: "That any one coming alone be fined five cents," these come-alone fellows were a nickel short, when they left for home; but some of them didn't go home alone. This money will be spent on our next social evening. The class meets to-morrow at 3 p. m. Come along.

INSTALLATION AT HAVELOCK

The officers of Royal Lodge, No. 286, I.O.O.F., Havelock, were installed last night as follows:

Bro. Wm. Weese—J.P.G.
Bro. H. W. Roche—N. G.
Bro. P. J. Wright—R. S.
Bro. R. V. Cook—V. G.
Bro. H. Wing—Fin. Sec.
Bro. G. Childs—Treas.
Bro. J. V. A. Coon—Chap.

The installing officer was Bro. W. G. Freeburn, D.D.G.M., assisted by Past Grands Duncan, Gillespie, Watts, Campbell, Cairns and Savigny of Peterborough and Past Grands Denike and McMaster of Havelock.

The installation was a public one, with all the countryside there.

An oyster supper was served and music and speeches made the event a very enjoyable one.

A BAD FIRE IN MONTREAL

Twenty People Are Driven From Their Homes in Below Zero Weather---Firemen Frost-Bitten

LOSS WILL BE $30,000

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, JAN. 6. — Twenty people were driven from their homes in twenty-below-zero weather. Several firemen were badly frost-bitten, and a total damage of $30,000 was the result of a fire this morning at the corner of Plessis and Sherbrooke streets. The water was frozen as it sprayed from the hose.

MEAT SHOP ENLARGED

Mr. James Grady's meat shop, at 244 Charlotte street, has been enlarged, the new addition giving about double the size to the interior. Mr. Grady's business has steadily grown in this section of the city, and for some time the shop has been altogether too small for his increasing trade. What with his now enlarged premises and the addition of new refrigerators and other conveniences Mr. Grady will now be able to cater to the wants of his customers with better satisfaction than ever.

RAISED $298.50 BY SALE OF STAMPS AND CALENDARS

Peterborough Health Association is Grateful to the Citizens for the Support Given---School Children Are Especially Deserving of Thanks for Their Work.

The committee of ladies of the Peterborough Health Association, who had charge of the sale of Christmas calendars and stamps, in aid of this organization, has realized a handsome sum towards assisting in the carrying out of the objects for which the association has been formed. The stamps brought $180 and the calendars yielded $118.50, making a total of $298.50 In the sale of the stamps the school children worked very earnestly, especially those of the South Central, who excelled all others. This school sold nearly seven thousand, one pupil, who is deserving of honourable mention, selling two hundred and seventy-five. The Association is indebted to the citizens of Peterborough for the generous response to this, the first appeal. It is indeed encouraging and is an evidence that the people are heartily in accord with its worthy objects. The sale this last Christmas served two purposes. The first one of course was the stimulating of the funds, and the second that of advertising the Association. Many citizens were not aware that there was a Health Association in this city until they were asked to buy the calendars and stamps, personally and through the appeals made from time to time in the daily papers. In this connection the press is to be heartily thanked for their readiness in giving space to appeals for assistance in this praiseworthy enterprise.

HURRAH FOR BORDEN--- WHICHEVER YOU LIKE

Pleasant information, especially to East City residents, has arrived in the city, to the effect that Peterborough will have a new park. The Borden Government has faithfully carried out the decision arrived at, and the arrangements made, by the late Minister of Militia in the Laurier Government, Sir Frederick Borden, whereby what is known as the old drill shed property, in dear old bygone Ashburnham, was to be turned over to the city for the purposes of a breathing spot for East City residents especially.

We have to thank Sir Frederick Borden for providing for the transfer to the city of the drill shed property, and to thank Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden for carrying into effect, through Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, an arrangement that gives the city one more park to enjoy.

Under the circumstances, with two Ministers of the name of Borden—by the way, cousins in blood, but aliens in politics—with the Grit minister providing the gift, and the Tory minister presenting it—would it not be a fitting recognition of a double debt of gratitude to give the name of "Borden Park" to the new East City breathing spot? Then, Grit and Tory fathers could tell their children that they owe the park to the good offices of a great Grit and a great Tory statesman, as the case may be, of the name of Borden. In both statements they both would be correct, and as the park belongs to the people, Grit and Tory alike, they would have equal claims to its source of possession, as they have to its use and enjoyment. Hurrah for Borden!—whichever you like.

Y. W. C. A. BRANCH FOR THE WORKING GIRLS IS OPENED

Rooms in the South End of the City Should Prove of Great Benefit to Feminine Employees of Factories

COMMENDABLE MOVEMENT

The Young Women's Christian Association branch at 133 Rubidge street was formally opened last night, when a reception was held in the comfortable new quarters. In spite of the intense cold there was a good attendance and the evening was very enjoyable one. Rev. H. U. Keith pronounced the dedicatory prayer and Rev. W. C. Riddiford, Mrs. Crossman, president of the Board and Miss McCalla, the Y.W.C.A. secretary made short addresses. Coffee, sandwiches and cake were served and a pleasant social hour spent. The Association has pleasant rooms, including a reading room well furnished with magazines, a rest room and a lunch room. They will be kept open from 12 to 1 noon and for the present from 7 to 9.30 in the evening, and are intended primarily for the use of the girls of the different manufacturing establishments in the south end of the city. They will be invited to make use of the lunch room and other departments during the dinner hour and in the evenings. There is no membership fee and all girls will be made welcome.

DISCOVERS A TATTOOED PIGEON

A tattooed pigeon was discovered recently by Mr. Clayton Handbridge, who lives in Otonabee, about five miles south of the city.

It had become a sort of habit with pigeons to congregate about Mr. Handbridge's barn, and, as grain is rather expensive these times, he decided to do away with a portion of them. The "double-barrelled" was brought into commission. Several were slain and others wounded. Among the latter was one with "Tor. 1908" tattooed on one of its legs. Evidently it was a "Homer" from Toronto, which had forgotten the way back; and, anyway, who wouldn't want to live in Otonabee once the place had been visited?

Mr. Hanbridge has clipped its wing and those who have seen it say it is a most beautiful bird.

MR. T. F. MATTHEWS RE-ELECTED CHAIRMAN OF WATER COM'RS

At a meeting of the Water Commissioners held this morning, Mr. T. F. Matthews was re-elected chairman of the Board for the coming year.

There were present, Messrs. T. F. Matthews, W. H. Moore and W. H. Hill.

A letter was read from the City Clerk, saying that Mr. T. F. Matthews had been re-elected a Water Commission. The secretary reported that Mr. Matthews had filed declarations of office and qualifications.

On motion of Mr. W. H. Moore, seconded by Mr. W. H. Hill, Mr. Matthews was re-elected chairman.

A letter was read from W. Kendry, Jr., regarding a test of the venturi meter.

Mr. Moore moved, seconded by Mr. Hill, that Mr. Kennedy be asked to instruct the John McDougall Caledonian Iron Works Co., to have an expert sent from the factory to test and correct the venturi meter on the terms proposed by the company, namely, the commissioners to pay the expenses of the expert only if the meter is found to be in accordance with the specifications and that Mr. Kendry be asked to be present when the meter is tested and to advise the McDougall Co. that the commissioners will not recognise any test of this pump until the meter is found to be correct, or is made correct.

A report was read from A. G. Fawcett of the work done during the year 1911 and also an inventory of the stock on hand.—Received.

An application from the Canadian Canoe Co. ,for a service at their new factory was referred to the acting superintendent for a report.

The following accounts were read and passed:

Adam Hall $1.40; Jas. Morrison Brass Mfg. Co., $17.47; Kingan Hardware Co., $10.10; Trebilcock Bros, $2.70; Jones Bros. $25.50; Keuffel and Co., $1.40 Peterborough Hardware, $1.23; E. Wand, $16.55; J. L. Robinson $2.00; Davis Thompson $20.00; Roy Studio, $10.00.

On motion of Mr. W. H. Moore, seconded by Mr. W. H. Hill, that the payment to R. A. Morrow of $800 for rent of office and yard for 1911 be confirmed.

The secretary was instructed to have insurance policies on old pump houses cancelled and to procure a new policy on the pump house at the end of the old dam for $1,000 and to get a rate for the new pump house, for fire insurance and for insurance against lightning.

The Coming Of Fiske O'Hara

Considerable interest is being taken by local play-goers in the appearance here on Tuesday night next at the Grand Opera House of Mr. Fiske O'Hara, the famous Irish actor and singer in the comedy drama, "Love's Young Dream." The sale of seats opened this morning and there was a brisk demand, the continental reputation of Mr. O'Hara insuring a capacity house. His present vehicle is said to be the best in which he has ever appeared, giving him plenty of opportunity of demonstrating his ability both as an actor and as a singer. He will be heard in a number of new songs as well as some of his older favourites. A complete scenic equipment is carried, and Mr. O'Hara is supported by a splendid company.

DICKENS IS BURIED

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, JAN. 6.—The body of Alfred Tennyson Dickens was interred this morning in Trinity Church churchyard, where, seventy years ago his father, the great novelist, Charles Dickens, attended service several times, and made the place immortal in his books.

REPAIRS TO DAM GOING ON RAPIDLY

The section of the Power House dam at Auburn, which was swept away by the breaking up of an ice jam, near Lakefield, last Friday evening, is being rebuilt. A large gang of men have been employed on the work of reconstruction all week, and expect that some time within the week, the repairs will be completed. The machinery which was swept down stream, has been replaced, and set up in working order, and the big 50 horse power boiler, which was carried down three hundred feet by the force of the current, has also been established on its foundation.

TIRED-OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common that it was in a terrible condition. man because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or anxious living and eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort, but by awakening the action of liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

WEEK OF PRAYER IN THE CHURCHES

Union services will be held during the week of prayer in the folowing churches, to which all are most cordially invited. Meeting will commence at 8 o'clock, sharp:

Monday, Jan. 8th, at Park St. Baptist church. Subject, "Youth and Origin of the Church".

Tuesday, at St. Andrew's. Subject, "Religion and Business".

Wednesday, regular prayer meeting in all the churches.

Thursday, at Charlotte street. Subject, "Christian Citizenship".

Friday, at Knox. Subject, "Parental Responsibility".

Tramps Shun This City

A feature which speaks well for Peterborough, in the midst of what may be termed a trying time for the poor, is the fact that the zero weather has not driven a horde of vagrants and homeless men into the city, while other towns are reporting an influx of vagrants, who are being cared for by the respective civic authorities.

Chief Thompson has yet to report the first apprehension of a vagrant for the year 1912. While this does not constitute a record, it indicates that the moral tone of the city is comparatively good for this season of the year.

Persons troubled with partial paralysis are often very much benefitted by massaging the affected parts thoroughly when applying Chamberlain's Liniment. This liniment also relieves rheumatic pains. For sale by all dealers.

SATURDAY, JAN. 6, 1912

THE CITY COUNCIL.

On Monday, the City Council elect for 1912, will meet for organization. At first thought, this may be regarded as a mere formality, but it is really the most important work of the council of the year, for upon the organization effected the choice of committees and chairmanships, largely depends the effectiveness of the work throughout the year. We shall have many important matters presented to our aldermanic board this year. It is probable that the paving of George street and adjacent streets will engage attention. The difference between getting good value and extravagance and waste of people's money will depend largely upon the maner in which the business is conducted. The general management of our streets also admits of a good deal of improvement and there are many other things that demand good strong committees capably led, in order to secure even approximately satisfactory results. It will therefore be seen that a great deal depends upon our alderman getting started right in the matter of organization.

STEEL BOUNTIES.

The steel-producing interests are besieging the Borden government for the restoration of steel bounties, allowed to lapse by the Laurier government. It is probable that the Borden government will yield to the demands of the steel producers and reverse the Liberal policy in respect of steel bounties, as they have reversed the Liberal policy in the matter of the Canadian navy. If Mr. Borden, as he frequently advocates, had applied the Laurier policy of building the ships of the Canadian navy in Canada, of "our own material" as Mr. Borden put it—a much greater impetus would have been given to the steel industry than could result from any amount of coddling in the shape of bounties. The Liberal policy was a national policy, tending to develop national resources and stimulate national industry, making it strong, self-supporting and self-reliant. A spoon-fed industry promises to be always a weakling. Under the bounty system our production of iron and steel has not been satisfactory and the production of iron ore for smelting purposes, shows an actual decrease.

SMALL VOTING.

Apropos of the municipal elections some journalistic wiseacres are pointing out that the elector who stays at home on polling day is unrepresented in city, or other councils; that the taxes he pays will be spent by men he had no voice in electing. That's not much in Peterborough, under the best conditions of the ward system—if every elector votes—eight tenths of the electors are unrepresented in the Council. The taxes they pay are spent by men for whom the electors did not vote; and whom they have no power to punish by their votes, no matter how much mischief they may do. Under the ward system an elector has a chance to vote for only two out of the ten men that compose the Council; he has no voice in electing eight out of the ten men who are to do his business, spend his money, and perform civic service in his behalf, and in his interests. So that the elector who stays at home and refrains from voting has a good excuse. He reasons that his small voice in electing the Council might as well be a still voice. The ward system may suit some persons, but it is a practical negation of the spirit of representative government.

TRAINING OF CADETS.

Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, proposes to train 60,000 cadets in the military training camps this year. Whatever may be the objections to the undue development of the military spirit, one thing, at least, can be urged in favour of military training. Under proper conditions it develops the advantages of discipline. And discipline is what our Canadian youth need more than anything else. The spirit of irreverence, the lack of respect for superiors, is a capital defect in the results of our domestic and school training. If military training will mend the bad manners and eliminate the crudeness, the bumptuousness of Canadian youth; if it will tame the swaggering spirit developed by the monstrous heresy, that one man is as good as another, whether he may be, or not; if it tends to develop a higher sense of respect for constituted authority, and, its agents, for age and superiority of character, it will be a good thing. Respect for superiors and elders, and constituted authority, is the twin child of a higher form, the reverence that finds expression in the cult of religion. If it is lacking in one case it is bound to be so in the other.

STATEMENTS AND FACTS.

The Orange Sentinel is quoted as claiming that "while the Roman Catholic Church may have encouraged learning in its early days, it can hardly be claimed to-day that the church is the friend of education." It is added that in her religious schools "the teaching of the catechism is the most important part of tuition".

The only words needed in comment on these statements are the few required to instance something very like practical disproof in our very midst. If only the catechism is taught, how explain the fact that the pupils in the Separate schools of this city furnish as large a relative proportion of successful candidates for the entrance examinations as do the public schools of the same class, and it may be mentioned that the first of the Mrs. Nicholls' scholarships—given to the candidate taking highest standing at the entrance examinations, was won by a pupil prepared in the Separate school, "where the teaching of the catechism is the most important part of the tuition." The existence of three excellent separate school buildings in the city, well equipped in the matter of staffs and appointments certainly argues some interest in secular education.

In the Township of Ennismore, for years, under the influence of Separate schools only, there is in successful operation one of the best continuation class schools in the county. The "catechism" influence of the schools is shown, perhaps, in the fact that the Township of Ennismore was one af the first to "banish the bar" from its borders, in which not a single tavern exists, or has existed for a generation.

Holy Scripture tells us that a tree is known by its fruit.

PARTY CONDITIONS.

The wave of temporary political insanity continues to set adversely to Liberal interests in Canada. The pocket edition of a province, Prince Edward Island, after twenty-one years' allegiance to Liberalism, has entered the Conservative fold. The means by which the Conservative victory was effected as emphasized in this case, reveals one of the dangers of provincial governments being in political harmony with the central government. Before the Prince Edward Island elections, the success of the Conservative party was predicted, the prediction being based upon the influence to be exercised by the promise of the Borden government to establish a car-ferry between the Island and the main land. That is to say the support, in Conservative interests of Prince Edward Island electors was to be purchased by expenditure of Dominion money. In effect, if not in form, such bribery is not morally different from buying an elector's vote with, say $5.

All the provinces in political sympathy with the Federal government, are looking for financial favours from it, and their expectations are strengthened by the frank statement that the Dominion government will naturally be good to their political friends. It can easily be seen how such conditions can be made—and we have evidence that they will be made—to promote extravagant expenditure, waste and diversion of Dominion funds. We have abundant use for these in the way of legitimate provision of national needs. The Confederation Act sharply defines the respective powers and juridiction of the provinces, and the Federal government; provides against overlapping If the Borden government yields to the demands of the Ontario government for assistance in the building of provincial railways, it cannot deny similar assistance to other provinces. If the Borden government devotes public money to the building of highways in provinces politically friendly to them, there promises to be an enormous diversion of Dominion funds to objects that are purely provincial and municipal, and it may easily come to pass, that our national expenditures will be enormously increased, and that the demands of necessary and legitimate national work may be met with the curt answer, "no funds." Works like the enlargement of the Welland Canal, the building of the Georgian Bay canal, and of the Hudson Bay railway, are proper objects of the attention of the Federal government. The Borden government will have quite enough to do in looking after the discharge of the responsibilities rightly belonging to them, without dabbling in municipal matters, in order to hold an unbroken line of Conservative provincial governments. While there seems to be a great present supremacy of Conservative influence, it may not be enduring. It is less founded on principle than on policy and the spoils of office. There is still a saving remnant of sound Liberalism; and the stronger the flow of Conservative wave, with the inevitable undesirable results, the sooner will come the ebb, and a more or less general return to political sanity.

WILLIAM SMITH AND LYMAN SMITH.

(London Advertiser)

The callous application of the spoils system in Oshawa at the instance of Mr. Wm. Smith, M.P., brings that statesman into the limelight again. In the Provincial election of 1898 he acted as the universal provider of his party in the riding of South Ontario, with such success that his beneficiary, Mr. Calder, captured the seat from Hon. John Dryden by a majority of 96 votes. A petition was entered on behalf of Mr. Dryden, one of the charges being that money for buying votes was paid to one Baker by one Luke, on the written order of William Smith. Luke was missing at the trial, and Smith, on oath, denied the story. The court accepted Baker's word, and unseated Calder. Shortly afterward the persons reported for bribery in the election were put on trial, and Smith then acknowledged the corn. Here is an extract from his cross-examination by Mr. Lount:

"Did you use any money during that election A.—I did

"Q.—For what purpose? A.—I suppose it was for buying votes.

"Q.—How much did you use? A.—I cannot tell you.

"Q.—About how much? A.—I cannot tell.

"Q.—Over $100? A.—Yes.

"Q.—Over $200? A.—It might be.

"Q.—Over $300? A.—It might be.

"Q.—Over $400? A.—It might be.

"Q.—Over $500? A.—It might be.

"Q.—Over $600? A.—It might be.

"Q.—Over $700? A.—It might be.

"Q.—Over $800? A.—It might be.

"Q.—Over $900? A.—It might be.

"Q.—Over $1,000? (No answer).

"Q.—Then you were willing to use money for buying votes at that election? A.—Yes, sir.

"Q.—How did you work it? Did you select persons to pay it out? A.—Yes, sir.

"Q.—Do you decline to name the persons? A.—I do.

"Mr. Lount—How many persons were there to whom you gave money?. A.—Half a dozen.

In answer to further questions, witness admitted that Baker showed him a list of money that would be required in Cedar Dale, to the extent of $100.

"Judge Ferguson—Can you tell us how much more than $900 you paid? A.—No, I can't.

"Q.—Can you say not as much as $1,200? A.—It could not be more than $1,200.

"Q.—Will you say that it was not more than $1,200? A.—No, I cannot.

"Judge Ferguson—Have you any means of saying where Baker got the money that he actually did spend? Does he own a bank? A.—No, sir.

"Judge Osler—I should not call Mr. Smith's manner candid.

"Mr. Patterson (counsel for Smith)—He showed no disposition to fence with the counsel.

"Judge Osler — I should call it brazen; that is the word.

"Judge Ferguson — I think Mr. Smith's evidence cannot be too strongly condemned. As it bears on the question, it is discredited by his admission that he was guilty of this gigantic corruption. I have some regrets that this large offender, Mr. Smith, is not before us. I have nothing to say to him, but that his evidence is the most glaring piece of corruption I ever heard".

Ten months after this exposure, Mr. William Smith was unanimously nominated as the Conservative candidate for South Ontario, perhaps as a reward for spending his money. He was defeated, but he "came back" in the last election. This fine exponent of public morality has procured the dismissal from public office of Mr. Lyman C. Smith, a man of national ditinction in letters, who has given a long life to high and useful service to his fellow-citizens of Oshawa. No charge has been laid against Mr. Lyman Smith, and he has had no opportunity of defending himself. He is the victim of the malice of a proved corruptionist, whose will has been made law by a Government pledged to civil service reform"

THE SHARE OF THE ELECTORS IN NATIONAL GOVERNMENT

The decline of legislatures and the corresponding overgrowth in the power of cabinets have given rise to a conviction that the position of the elector, the man who holds a ballot in his hand once every four or five years, ought to be improved in some way. The legislature has abdicated its powers, or the cabinet has usurped them. At any rate representative government, i.e., government by accredited representatives, has given place, not entirely, but very largely, to oligarchy.

At the very point upon which we pride ourselves as being better than our neighbours, namely, the ability to bring our will directly to bear upon public policy, we find that our system of cabinet government is not doing its work. We have always been proud to show the American the superiority of our plan of government over his in the happy quality of responsiveness to public opinion. We point out the advantages of being able to turn a government out of office any fine morning. We draw a moving picture of the local representative listening attentively to the smallest sound of discontent or approval from his constituents, of his remonstrances or assurances when the matter in hand is discussed in caucus or in private interview with the ministers, and of the cabinet either altering its course in conformity with the warnings it has received or preparing for an appeal to the country. All this in praise of the glorious constitution, the delight and joy of all true patriots, the envy of surrounding nations.

How has it come about that the machinery which used to work so effectively in the past now fails to accomplish its purpose? What has happened to change the quality of our members of parliament since 1858, when Palmerston's majority of two hundred on the first reading of the Conspiracy Bill was turned into a minority of nineteen on the second reading, or when Lord John Russell's resolution in favour of extended franchise in cities and boroughs compelled D'Israeli to go to the country, or when Lord John Russell's government was driven from office in 1866 by a combination of Conservatives and Adullamites, or when Gladstone asked to be relieved of office in 1873 because of an adverse majority of 3 on the Irish University Bill

How often since Confederation has public opinion as interpreted and expressed by members of Parliament turned a Government out of office, Federal or Provincial?

A Government entrenches itself in office as in a stronghold, and to win an election to-day practically means a safe lease of power during the life of the Parliament. The machinery of party now works with such power and precision that the private individual who desires to make his influence felt in the actual working of the Government is practically helpless. The private citizen—save on one single day every four or five years—now occupies a position of subordination comparable with that of his ancestor of 500 years ago, who had neither vote nor party organisation, and who was not even regarded as a counter in the political game. He was a counter in the game. The citizen of to-day counts one as the obedient member of a party once in five years.

Theoretically he counts one. He has the opportunity, when an election actually occurs, of casting one vote for a candidate whom he has had little, perhaps no part in selecting. He elects. The party organisation selects. Between elections he expresses his views on public affairs among his companions, or, perhaps on the public platform, or in the public press. The party lieutenants may happen to hear his opinions, or they may not. It is their business to keep in close touch with the people. A member of Parliament looks to the local party politicians to reflect the opinions of the rank and file of the people, because a sitting member, although he serves his party masters with a quite undivided obedience during the life of the Parliament, must finally reckon with his constituents when that life ceases. The individual voter is certainly master of the situation on election day, but he is as the fine dust in the balance at other times. In theory, our system is perfect, and ought to work as effectively to-day as it did in earlier times. Only it actually doesn't do so in practice.

A man who is allowed to record his opinion at the polls only once in every four or five years, does not, under present circumstances, exercise his fair share of control of public policy. When cabinets were less strong than they are now; when there had not yet been fixed that great gulf between the cabinet minister and the private member, which now yawns between them; when, as a matter of fact, and not merely in theory, the elected member kept in close touch with local opinion, and, therefore, was able to act as a true representative, the private individual was a real force in determining political action.

It is for the individual voter to reassert himself and to regain the position which he has lost owing to the shifting of the centre of gravity from the legislature as such to the cabinet. How this is to be accomplished is one of the present-day problems in politics, for which a solution must be found.—Manitoba Free Press

Peterborough Intermediates Have Easy Win Defeat The Lindsay Team In Hollow Style

Local Team Won Last Night Opening O. H. A. Game by 13 Goals to 1, Making a Runaway of the Last Half.

FANS ARE DELIGHTED

Before 1500 fans, whose enthusiasm was of the warmest kind in spite of the fact that the bottom had dropped out of the thermometer, the Peterborough intermediate O.H.A. team decisively defeated the Lindsay team in an O.H.A. game at Brock street rink last night by 13 goals to 1. The locals led by 4 to 1 at half time and the result was never very much in doubt.

Peterborough were always in front and in the second half made a runaway game, scoring nine goals in a row, while Lindsay failed to register at all. It was an easy and clever victory and the good work of the Peterborough team made a big hit with the fans, who were delighted with the showing of the locals. On last night's form, the team should go a long way towards the silverware, and with a little more practise they will develop into a formidable machine. They gave a grand exhibition both on the attack and on the defensive last night and the outfit looks remarkably well-balanced and capable.

Considering that they had only three practises together the forward line displayed splendid combination and in another week will have perfected an attack that will be a difficult proposition for any defence to solve. The team has speed to burn and scoring ability, while the have weight enough to take care of themselves in any old kind of a game. Another week's consistent training will round the team into mid-season form and there should be breakers ahead for any seven they are called upon to meet.

Last night's game was a good exhibition considering the fact that the teams have had little practice. The pace was fast from the beginning, and at times was blistering in speed, there being plenty of brilliant work for the big crowd to enthuse over. Peterborough got the pace better and were all over the Lindsay team on end, playing them off their feet in the last period. Peterborough outskated the Midgets, far more system and team play were one hundred per cent. better, close in to the nets, taking advantage of their opportunities in front.

Derocher has added good games to his credit as goalkeeper for Peterborough, but he was severely furnished a better article of net guardianship than last night. He was as cool as the ice beneath his feet and handled shots from all ranges with sureness and confidence, several times picking off the shot when his defence had been beaten. In front of him Bearss and Bond played a remarkably effective game. They played the cross-rink method with conspicuous success and used their bodies to the best possible advantage. The stiff jolts they handed out soon took the steam out of some effective rushes, two of which culminated in scores.

FRED KELLY,

the Lindsay attack and the visiting forwards soon decided on long distance shooting campaign as the most comfortable under the circumstances. Pete Spratt the old St. Michael's star, tried to bore in, but he was bowled over time after time with body checks. Bush relieved well and in the last half Bearss came through with

All four forwards played good hockey from start to finish, both in their methods of attack and in their back checking. Bud Kelly had it all over Cote in their battle along the boards and the Peterborough boy was always in the limelight, his deadly shooting being responsible for five goals. His shooting from the side was pretty to watch. Captain Park played his usual brilliant game in centre, his quick shooting and playing being a decided factor in the victory. Coughlin, playing the first game of his career at right wing, looks like a decided find in the position. He took to the boards like a veteran wing man and was going stronger on end than in any other period, fitting into the combination nicely and doing some fine shooting. Giroux's rushing and checking were effective all through. His consistent backchecking was of great help to the defence, and he showed speed and cleverness on the attack.

For Lindsay, Pete Spratt at point was the shining star. The ex-St. Michael's defence man was not especially effective on the defence, but his rushes were instrumental in carrying the puck away from the danger zone time after time and on one occasion he got through for a goal. Stoddard, the slippery rover at times showed his old form, but he was cleverly looked after and was not nearly as effective as he has been on other occasions against Peterborough. Cote, another old timer, was no match for Kelly, who outclassed him along the boards, while Cain, although fast, had the worst of the battle with Coughlin The others were only fair.

Harvey Sproule handled the game most satisfactorily, there being no complaint about his work.

The teams lined up as follows:

Peterborough started on with a rush at the beginning and the game opened out at a furious clip. Spratt was first in the limelight with a nice dodging rush, but lost the rubber. Kelly and Park came through with a pretty piece of combination and the former slammed the first goal past Connor in two minutes. Peterborough 1, Lindsay 0.

Pete Spratt cut loose with a pretty rush and was tearing in for the mouth of the Peterborough nets under a full head of steam when he met Bearss and was completely telescoped. The ex-St Michael's College star was bowled over completely and Bearss was chased for dumping him. Peterborough had a couple of openings, but lost the chance and then Spratt came tearing down again, eluding everyone until he encountered Bearss, who hoisted him into the air with a clean body check, the crash shaking the rafters. Peterborough took the rubber down and there was a fusilade around the Lindsay nets to no avail. It was up to Spratt to relieve the situation and he did it with one of his characteristic rushes.. Bearss bowled him over again and was once more sent to the side lines. A moment later Kelly was sent away for tripping. Cote and the Petes were playing five men to seven. Stoddard, however, drew a penalty for tripping Giroux and things were evened up a little better. Finally, after nine minutes' last playing, Giroux scored with a pretty shot, following a scrimmage, and the score was Peterborough 2, Lindsay 0.

Lindsay got their one and only goal at this stage. Spratt broke away from his position at point and carrying the rubber in a puzzling dodging rush, scored with a low swift shot. Peterborough 2, Lindsay 1.

LEO DEROCHER,
Peterborough's Goalkeeper, Who Was at His Best Last Night.

It only took Peterborough 30 seconds to get this back. Almost from the face-off, Coughlin rushed and passed to Giroux, who transferred to Kelly and the latter fooled Connor with a nice shot from the side. Peterborough 3, Lindsay 1.

Cain broke away with a nice rush and was sailing in towards Derocher when Bond hoisted him and was benched. The heavy checking of the Peterborough defence was beginning to have its effect and Lindsay started shooting from outside to no avail, as Derocher was picking them off in grand fashion. It was Peterborough who scored again. Park beating Connor with a beautiful shot from well outside. Peterborough 4, Lindsay 1.

Giroux was penalized for tripping. The remainder of the half was unmarked by any spectacular incident.

The last half was Peterborough all the way. Although Coughlin was sent away for tripping shortly after the period opened, the Petes were always on the aggressive. Kelly stole the puck from Spratt when the latter tried a rush and scored easily. Peterborough 5, Lindsay 1.

Bond served two penalties in succession for tripping, but the odd man advantage did not benefit Lindsay. They were kept back on the defensive in fine style. Park tore off a nice rush from centre and fooled Connor from close in. Peterborough 6, Lindsay 1.

It was all Peterborough now, with the forwards rushing nicely and showing streaks of good combination. Spratt and Stoddard kept coming down with rushes, but were stopped with a jar when they reached the Peterborough defence, while Derocher took care of the shots from outside in grand fashion. Coughlin scored on a nice shot from the side. Peterborough 7, Lindsay 1.

The Petes were all over the visitors at this stage. Kelly and Coughlin rushed together nicely, Kelly passing to Coughlin, who returned in front of the nets and Kelly found an opening. Peterborough 8, Lindsay 1.

From the face-off Park rushed nicely and although his shot was blocked, Coughlin slammed the rubber past Connor on the rebound. Peterborough 9, Lindsay 1.

Bearss was responsible for the next goal. Breaking up a Lindsay attack, he came down alone and scored from outside Spratt with a pretty shot. Peterborough 10, Lindsay 1.

There was nothing to the game but Peterborough, the locals seeming to increase their speed as the game went on. In a minute Kelly had scored another with a good shot from the wing. Peterborough 11, Lindsay 1.

Bearss was benched again, but the Petes kept pressing. Kelly started a rush and passed to Park, who shot the rubber across to Coughlin and the latter culminated a pretty piece of combination by scoring neatly. Peterborough 12, Lindsay 1.

Bearss wound up the scoring by going with Coughlin in a nice combination rush which ended in an easy score. Peterborough 13, Lindsay 1.

GREAT JUNIOR GAME ON TUESDAY NIGHT LINDSAY MIDGETS HERE

Peterborough fans will have another great game of hockey here next Tuesday night, when the Peterborough Juniors will meet Lindsay in a junior O. H. A. game. The splendid form shown by the local youngsters in Thursday night's game with Cobourg opened the eyes of the fans, and the "kids" are sure of a big following from now on. They will have their work cut out for them on Tuesday night, judging by the manner in which the Lindsay Midgets walloped Port Hope this week, and also by the fact that Lindsay has most of last year's juniors in action. However, the local team is not inclined to worry about the outcome, and will go out determined to hand the visitors the same kind of a trimming as the Intermediates did last night. Jerry Coughlin, who played such a splendid game for the Intermediates last night, is eligible for the junior series, and will likely be used against Lindsay here Tuesday night. Coughlin, Hall, Weir and Clancy will make some forward line and the youngsters look stronger than last year's septette, despite the fact that they have lost their entire defence. Lindsay Juniors are very confident of winning the district, but may get stopped with a jar here next week At all events, it will be a game well worth seeing and will attract a big crowd of fans.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

Preparations Made To Receive Him

TORONTO, JAN. 6.—It was announced yesterday that Mr. H. M. Gilchrist, the New Broadview Y. M. C. A. secretary, will enter upon his duties the first of February. He is at present Y. M. C. A. secretary at Peterborough, but will be free to take up his new duties on that date.

Mr. Gilchrist is a son of the late James R. Gilchrist and was born in this country some thirty-two years ago. His early training he received in the Hamilton schools and in the Toronto Bible Training school before entering on Y.M.C.A. work, being engaged as pressman on the Hamilton Times. Eleven years ago he entered upon his present work, his first appointment being to Stratford, where he spent four years. At the end of his Stratford term he was moved to Paris for two years, and then to Quebec, where he stayed three years. Two years ago he was appointed to Peterborough, from which place he comes to Toronto.

At the Broadview branch, preparations are being made to receive the new head. According to his friends Mr. Gilchrist is very much of a "hustler" and thorough organization of all branches of the work is expected in this centre.

Mr. C. J. Atkinson, former director of the Broadview Institute, leaves town on Sunday for a prolonged trip to the States.

Here is a remedy that will cure your cold. Why waste time and money experimenting when you can get a preparation that has won a world-wide reputation by its cures of this disease and can always be depended upon? It is known everywhere as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and is a medicine of real merit. For sale by all dealers.

Scarcity Of All Kinds Of Products This Morning

There was a comparatively small attendance on the market this morning, due to the intense cold. Scarcely more than a dozen sleighs were on the market square, and the usual groups of men standing around, talking about the weather, and the advisability of putting the price of hay up another dollar, were missing. There was an absence of all kinds of vegetables and fruits, but those who did brave the elements, brought loads of pork, beef and lamb, the latter, however, was in limited quantities. Beef sold at 7 1-2 to 9c., and pork and lamb sold at 11 and 12c. Baled hay was selling at the usual price, 85c. per cwt., while the loose hay sold at $14 to $17. Hardwood was sold at $6 per cord, while tamarac and the softer woods were sold for $4.00 to $4.50. The above-mentioned commodities constituted the entire stock on the ouside market.

The inside market was also very small. The tables were not more than half-covered with produce, the major portion of which consisted of chickens, butter, and geese. There was a noticeable scarcity of ducks and turkeys. Ducks sold for 90c., chickens, $1.00 to $1.40 per pair; turkeys, $3.00 to $4.50; butter, 30c.; eggs, 40c. There were no apples or potatoes offered. Geese sold at $1.25 to $1.50. Farmers' hides, 8c., butchers' hides, 9c. Live hogs, 6.25; dressed hogs, $8.25. There is a heavy supply of hogs at present.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

THE mind is its own place, and in itself
Can make a Heaven of Hell, a Hell of Heaven."

—Milton.

Doubtless, you have heard many times, both from other folks' pens and mine, the essential philosophy of the above.

It's the point of view that we take of our circumstances, and not the circumstances themselves, that does most to make us happy or unhappy — dissatisfied or contented. You have probably been told that again and again, and having common sense and reason of your own, knew it anyway.

But let me—or rather, one of my letter-friends — present this same philosophy in a more original, newer and more concrete form. I think it will interest and amuse you, as it did me.

"My sister and I," writes this friend, "are rather imaginative, and when we have nothing else to do, we build the most wonderful air castles. Sometimes we merely draw exaggerated word pictures of little happenings. One afternoon after work we walked home, stopped on our way out for a chat with our married sister, and when we got home found that the rest of the family had finished supper. We ate ours and repaired to the porch. I plumped down in the hammock and Jane on the porch settee, piled high with pillows. She drew a pathetic picture of the walk up, describing the two poor stenographers toiling weary miles after a hard day's work—the tall, thin, angular, gray-haired one (my hair is gray hair, but prematurely so) with a half soiled white shirt that had seen better days, and a white waist that she had spent many weary hours embroidering — the short, dragged-out-looking younger sister in a similar costume. She told how they dragged their weary footsteps to their married sister's flat, where they could smell the supper cooking for her husband when he returned from his days' labour, and after talking for awhile proceeded on their journey home. They sat down to the table and partook of a frugal supper of bread and preserves, a bit of lettuce and some lukewarm tea, and then dragging their weary feet to the porch, threw themselves down in utter exhaustion.

You must admit this tale of woe sounds heart-rendering.

"Then, I said: "Now listen while I draw the other side of the picture. The two sisters, after leaving their offices, one in a bank, the other in a mercantile office, strolled up town, in the late afternoon, stopping en route for a frappe at the ice ceram parlour. The older sister, tall and slender, with a mass of fluffy gray hair, was dressed in a dainty, well-fitting linen skirt and hand-embroidered lingerie waist. The younger one, a short ,attractive blonde, was similarly dressed. As the two sisters walked they discussed intelligently Elbert Hubbard, Charles Lamb, and Robert Louis Stevenson. En route they stopped for a moment's chat with their married sister, who sang them an aria from one of the operas, while she awaited her husband's home coming ,in anticipation of which she had prepared a dainty supper. Upon their arrival at their own home, they sat down to a tempting supper of lettuce with mayonnaise, preserved peaches and fragrant tea (it wasn't lukewarm at all.) The polished table was bare with a drawnwork luncheon square, and bowl of roses, and the china was of a dainty gold and white design.

"After supper they repaired to the wide verandah with the rose vines, awnings, and rustic sofa and chairs piled with sofa pillows, and while one settled herself comfortably in the hammock, with a couple of feather pillows under her head, the other piled the settee high with pillows and curled herself up for a happy evening.'

"When finished we both laughed— the pictures were so completely different, yet both were correct in the essentials. I told Jane it only shows what a point of view can do, and she admitted that she was feeling quite sorry for herself when she finished her narrative and that mine cheered her up so that she felt quite happy."

Now, all of us in our thoughts are all the time unconsciously making word pictures of everything that happens to us.

I wonder which kind of word picture you have the mental habit of making—the kind that makes you feel sorry for yourself, or the other kind?

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS GATHERING AT ORILLIA

The Orillia Times says::

"The Knights of Columbus held a large gathering here last Thursday when an exemplification of the three degrees of the Order was given. It was put on under the auspices of Orillia Council, No. 1428. A special train brought in some forty-five members from Lindsay and Peterborough and many arrived at noon on the regular trains, making a gathering of over two hundred and fifty. The Councils of Peterborough, Soo, Lindsay, North Bay, Toronto, London, and Sudbury, were all represented. Members of the Orillia Council from the following paces were also present: Barrie, Midand, Penetanguishene, Styner, Creemore, Parry Sound, Gravenhurst, Huntsville.

"On Tuesday morning those here marched to the new Church of the Angels Guardian, where High Mass was celebrated at 10 o'clock. The sermon was preached by Father O'Malley and appropriate lectures on matters pertaining to the Knights were delivered by the State Deputy, John Dromogole of London, and District Deputy Phelan, of Peterborough. Visiting priests to the number of fifteen were present.

The initiation ceremony in a class of over forty-five candidates, was put on in the Parish Hall, Separate School grounds. The first degree was put on Wednesday night by the Orillia Council team. The second degree was put on Thursday morning by the Lindsay Council, ad the third degree Thursday afternoon by Past State Deputy Daniel O'Connell, of Peterborough and team.

"A banquet was tendered the Knights on Thursday evening in the Parish Hall, at the conclusion of which the special train left for Lindsay and Peterborough at 1 o'clock. The remainder of the visiting Knights left for home next day, after an enjoyable and profitable visit to Orillia."

ST. LUKE'S SUNDAY SCHOOL HOLD SUCCESSFUL CONCERT

A capacity audience filled the Sunday school room of St. Luke's church last night. The occasion was the annual Sunday school concert: The hall was prettily decorated with flags, flowers and other decorations consistent with an event of this kind. A large Christmas tree occupied a prominent place in the schoolroom and up to the time the distribution of presents commenced, was the centre of attraction for the children, who were present.

During the evening each member of the school was the recipient of a present, while prizes for good attendance, etc., throughout the year were also given. Mr. R. B. Rogers impersonated Santa Claus, and Rev. F. J. Sawers occupied the position of chairman during the evening.

The list of prize winners was as follows: 1st prize Harold Adams, Fred Legon, Kenneth Whittaker, Earl Maniece, John Maniece, Joseph Beauchere, Irene Whittaker, Francis Legon, Mabel Watson, Bessie Adams and Ivy Foster. 2nd prize, Wilfred Adams, Ernest Legon, Fred Doupe, Wilhelmine Joskins and Florence Pammett.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC

The blast of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway contractors is echoing against the rock wall of Tete Jaune Cache to make way for civilization and the shrill echoes of the locomotive whistle later on.

Going westward from Edmonton along the Grand Trunk Pacific route the traveller sees the trail of the second comer already strongly marked, and Tete Jaune Cache is the objective point at present for the end of steel by the spring of 1913. At present the Grand Trunk Pacific steel is beyond the Great Divide, and over the summit of the Yellowhead Pass.

Historically, Tete Jaune is a centre of interest in Western Canada, as this point was the site of one of the Hudson Bay posts one hundred years ago, when the route from the Pine, the Peace and the Fraser Rivers brought the furs and merchandise through this gateway. At the present time there is only a band of Shuswap Indians camped on the south side of the Fraser, and as soon as the steel reaches this locality and civilization with its kodaks and pocket books will effect the establishment of a permanent order of things.

Death Of Mr. Samuel Sherin

Word was received in the city this afternoon of the death this morning of Mr. Samuel Sherin, one of the best known residents of Lakefield. The deceased, who was eighty-one years of age, had lived in Lakefield for over fifty-seven years, and was known and respected by every member of the community. He had been in poor health for the past couple of years.

Mr. Sherwin is survived by his widow and four children, Miss Alice, of Toronto, Miss Ninan at home, and Messrs. Wesley of Lakefield, and Samuel B., of Baltimore, Md.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock to the Methodist church, Lakefield, and thence to the Lakefield cemetery.

OSLER RIGHT; YOUTH SUCCEEDS AGE

Gray Hair is First Sign of Age --Harmless Remedy Restores to Natural Colour

Osler isn't the only man who turns down old age. In the business world the "young man" is always the one who picks the plums. It is an age of "new thought," "new talent," etc., and the old man is passed by in the race.

One of the first signs of coming age is the appearance of gray hairs. When you see them, act promptly. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy will correct this sign, which so often deceives people into thinking that age is really upon them. It is a well-known fact that Sage and Sulphur will darken the hair. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur combines these old-time remedies with other agents, which remove dandruff and promote the growth of the hair.

The manufacturers of this remedy authorize the druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

Don't look old before your time. Get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur to-day, and see what an improvement it will make in the appearance of your hair.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Special agent, Warne Drug Company.

ROBBIN SEEN THIS MORNING

Mr. F. Mitchell, 489 Donegal St., informed the Examiner to-day, that he had observed a robin flying among the trees in front of his house, this morning. This is an unusual occurrence, and one that is seldom duplicated, as the robin usually is the first of the feathered tribe to migrate

NARROW ESCAPE

A long-expected accident nearly materialized yesterday afternoon, when the C. P. R. shunter struck a farmer's sleigh on the Hunter St. crossing of the Quaker Oats Co. siding. The farmer, whose name is not to hand, but who is presumed to be an Otonabee man, drove directly in front of the engine, heedless of the flagman's warning, and had it not been for the presence of mind of the Engineer, there would undoubtedly have been a fatality; however, as it was, the sleigh was merely dashed sideways from the track by the locomotive, little damage resulting. To make matters worse, about ten or twelve little school children were riding on the sleigh, and had it not been for the signal man's warning, and the whistling of the engine, which drew their attention to the imminent danger and enabled them to jump off the sleigh in time, there might have been a tragedy.

There are no fast trains running on this siding, but the "shunter" often has to make "running shunts," and it is while doing this that the danger is incurred. While it is not known whether this was the case in the present instance, it is an unavoidable danger, rendered greater by the level crossing.

In the incited above related, onlookers, in conversation with an Examiner reporter, stated that the fault was entirely with the farmer.

Stole Ride On Tender And Was Badly Frozen

The recklessness of a youth in riding on the tender of an engine resulted in his being badly frozen.

The engineer of the Belleville train immediately prior to leaving Belleville, was asked by the lad to give him a "lift" to Campbellford. The engineer justly refused and proceeded o nhis way. On approaching Holloway, however, both the engineer and the fireman were startled when the youth fell from the tender into the cab. He was badly frozen about the ears and nose and had lost his speech.

It was ascertained that the lad had taken an excursion to Kingston and as his ticket had expired, he strove to insure returning to his home by climbing on the tender. Particulars as to name, etc., are not yet to hand.

KIT'S COLUMN

One of the unpleasant, if necessary, features of a new year is the bills that come trooping in to be settled. They are grim old reminders of the practical side of life after the riot of the Christmas giving and Christmas spending. The purse strings so widened and loose at Christmas time snap back on what is left with more vim than usual in the elastic. Accounts have to be settled. It is the cold, gray dawn of the morning after feeling. There is a blue tint about the grayness that is not a little depressing. If we have that extra sixpence left to our credit, about which Mr. Micawber speaks in such a joyous, not to say debonnair manner, we are sailing true; if the sixpence be on the wrong side we will have to take another tack and change our course.

That is what your writing friend here will have to do, the sixpence like its fellows having gone to glory. Veer around, my hearty, and steer for the open sea! I rather like the adventuring upon the new year without that necessary sixpence. That is the Irish of it, rather a splendid feeling that you will have to wrest fresh coins from the crest of such lucky waves as come lifting and lowering that frail craft of yours which is named "My Business Life." A joke of a craft, between you and me, with a touch of pirate in her. She is made of paper and manned by pencils, and for sail has a sheet of words, hollow things that catch the wind and sometimes drive the ship to fair ports and oftener dash her upon a sunken reef. She has weathered many a storm and is out again to seek fortune on the high seas of a New Year. That is if she ever clears with free decks out of the Christmas wreckage.

You have broken that batch of new resolutions. I knew you would. They were too hard and fast and grimly set forth. No human being could keep all of them. But we made them in a fine glow, some of which will last all the year, and which will help in a weakening hour. To be confidential, I have broken my finest one. Who could get up early winter mornings after a small-hours' seance? The first day we accomplished the feat and crept out of the warmth, feeling meager of coul and peeved. The day was a thin one all through. Life grew gloomier as it progressed. By noon we seemed to have been up ten hours; we tried some of the advice we offer each week with such pedantic placidity to our correspondents. "Cheer up! little woman!" we cried to the disgruntled picture in the mirror, "Life is not all shadow! 'Tis a good old world after all! Come out of the dark corners and walk in the sunlight. Cheer up. Look the world in the face. Be a sport!" we cried in an access of fervour, "Blow away the blues! Get busy, and thank your stars for the blessing of work!—" And then we were a sport, and there was a smashed looking glass glittering among the broken resolutions. We Lily-Elsied the New Year and now—like the beauteous bride — we sit awaiting the consequences.

I know well the little river, the Clodagh, in which that splendid chap, the Marquis of Waterford—the most superb rider in Ireland—met a mean and dreadful death the other day. It runs on the estate between the "big house" and the kennels—a foolish river of no account at all the summer time and only dangerous when swollen with the rains. He was found in only four feet of water, for the body had drifted. A tragic family the Beresfords. "the wild Beresfords," as the peasantry call them. There is an old saying in Waterford that only every third Beresford will die in his bed. The late marquis—a young man of 37—was adored all along the country side—more for his recklessness and gallant bravery than for any more so-called "sterling qualities" (personally I consider courage the most sterling of qualities). Three of the six marquises went out in a tragic manner, one, at least, in the way he would have chosen—by a fall in the hunting. The fifth marquis, disabled in hunting, took the quickest way out—by a gun shot; this poor chap, a handsome, daring, well-set-up young man, died miserably in a swollen brook. It now appears that for a week before the tragic event—the ghosts of the family were restless. The Banshee was wailing, and the country people crossed themselves and talked in whispers of an ill fate coming.

I hold it idle to laugh at these things. If ever people were racially mystic, the Celts are. They undoubtedly have in a measure spiritual vision, by which I mean in one sense, "second sight." The veil between such a people and the unknown is of thinnest material, is transparent in a shadowy way. I have known, and personally felt this strange influence, and I cannot doubt it in view of subsequent happenings. Call it superstition if you like. But it is not what is commonly termed superstition, such as fear of going under a ladder, spilling salt, or the number 13 legend. Not that at all. Something far more subtle, more awesome, more intelligent—a gift of sight—fading, shadowy, and very fleeting—of that which passes behind those great doors which close upon Life and open on another world.

Thus I pay heed to the printed line which somewhat superciliously tells that "for some time previous the ignorant (?) Irish peasantry of the neighbourhood had been talking of the strange wailing heard by night along the banks of the Clodagh." The story of the withered wrist of the old Lady Beresford was told again—in a whisper. The great gates were a trifle ajar. The veil was growing transparents for a moment. Then in the dark, while the fog lay thick on the river, and the broad dun dogs beyond, there was a stumble, a splash, a wild cry, and the pitiful effort to escape his doom which showed so plainly on the broken fingers of the dead man. Fate had once more laid her tragic hand on the throat of a Beresford.

Curraghmore House is a beautiful old place. The estate covers an area of about sixty-five thousand acres of splendid heritage. The Beresfords were never absentee landlords and are greatly beloved by their tenants. Always a hunting family, you have doubtless read of the great dining table over which Lords Charles and Marcus used to jump their horses, and which yet bears the imprint of hoofs and nails. There are six children left, the eldest only eleven years of age. Not only in the direct line have the Beresfords been the victims of disaster, but branches of the same family have had their tragedies. Only last year Captain Beresford lost his life at Aldershot trying to stop a runaway; while a cousin was killed recently in a railway accident. The Beresfords are hunting men, soldiers and sailors—always fond of adventure, daring men and women, generous, brave and beloved. There ought to be a horse somewhere in the 'scutcheon of the house, but there are angels instead. However, there is also a dragon's head, the neck pierced with a broken tilting spear, while the motto is the simple one "Nil nisi Cruce."

In the various cities the Relief Officer seems to be the man who does most of the work associated with the Christmas charities, and who gets the least recognition and no appreciation whatever. As a rule, the Relief department is the one to which the least municipal attention is paid. When Christmas looms, extra work, and very heavy work, is put on the officer responsible for the department, and I have yet to hear of any substantial reward or recognition of such work. It is the same with the post office employees. They are literally worked off their feet during the Christmas rush and get nothing at all for working overtime. Surely these labourers ought not to go unrewarded. Public sentiment should be aroused in behalf of these hard workers in a thankless field. The charitable societies and their promoters get all the kudos and advertising, while the honest toilers in the cause of charity go unheeded. It would be a proper and graceful act of each city to vote to its Relief Officer a substantial check in recognition of his services, and the same applies to the government in regard to the employees of the post offices. This is only fair.

Did you ever notice how prevalent are accidents and disasters about Christmas and New Year time? The recent street car accident—the suicides and murders, cast a shadow over the community during the holidays. If I remember rightly, the Iroquois theatre fire occurred at the beginning of a year, also the Messina earthquake, and the Paris bazar holocaust. The late Leopold of Belgium was always afraid for his life during the first two weeks of the new year. That time tided over, he regained his balance. The Kaiser fears Christmas eve; the Czar, the last day of the year, while King Edward's ill-fated time was—strange to say—the period during which he died—the first two weeks in May. This "superstition" seems to creep in everywhere, in palace as well as peasants' hut. It was well known that in the old days the prince consort dreaded beyond measure a visit to Ireland, but perhaps he was moved by something of the same feeling as that which inspired the artist to put "Birdie has reasons" under the picture of the girl with the match-like legs who refused to cross the stile while anybody was looking. Ireland was known to be in a very excited condition about that time, I believe, and it was the custom of the moment when firing at a landlord to shoot low and lame him instead of "murtherin' him entirely," so, no doubt, his highness, like Birdie, had his reasons.

The latest news in the matter of hair fashions is that human hair is the most perfecteof barometers. A certain Professor Macgregor has studied it and says so. You have heard the expression "My hair always curls in damp weather," or the contrary, "the wet weather always takes the crimp out of my hair." The professor heard this also and made a note of it. His series of experiments extended over a period of a year and involved the use of over 300 girls. He has just given out the results. Brown and black hair becomes limp and straight on the approach of rain, while red hair is not influenced a particle by the humidity or aridity of the atmosphere. It is when thunderous weather is approaching that the red-haired girl comes into her own. Her locks become stiff and bristling and gave the professor shocks. That is why Mrs. Leslie Carter always plays shocking characters, and why Minnie Madern Fiske's best roles are Magdalen and Becky Sharpe. They are lad little bunches of electricity, these red-haired girls. Sarah Bernhardt found out long ago that she could never be really wicked in black hair. Ginger locks—she declares—put ginger into her acting. "There is something about red hair," the Divine One said to me once, "that attracts the affections of men," and Sarah always hankered after delusions of that sort. She still retains her russet locks and though she denies it vehemently, a foolish little French bird which landed recently on these shores, trills a silly song about a young poet whose rapturous effusion on "the flaming hair which matches the flaming soul" of the actress, has caught the ever-young Bernhardt in a weak spot. She denies report of an approaching marriage, but not the soft impechment that she is still eligible for the court of Cupid.

Dear Kit,—Will you say a word for the girls behind the counter, now that the holiday rush is over and done with? To begin with, all admonitions about shopping early were of little use. At the last people crowded in thicker than ever, and it was no joke, I can tell you, trying to keep the tiredness out of my voice and treat customers politely. But customers are so unreasonable, Kit. I know we saleagirls are called everything, and if you will let me I want to go over some of the things counted against us. For instance, why should I be expected to be interested in the selling of—handkerchiefs, say? Suppose you were handling handkerchiefs from morning till night, talking them, living among them from nine to eleven hours out of the twenty-four, day in and day out, don't you think that you would grow pretty thoroughly indifferent to the charms of handkerchiefs yourself, especially during Christmas week, when everybody under heaven seems to be buying handkerchiefs for everybody else? And then a customer complains that she doesn't think I am interested in her purchase!

Now, why should I be interested? The most I can be, sometimes, is simply civil. Personal attention to each one of my customers will not advance me in my business. I am here, not to make "hits" with people, but to wait on the greatest number of customers as quickly as I can. In big stores success depends not upon getting the individual but upon getting the crowd. What difference does it make to my employer whether the person who buys one fifty-cent handkerchief at my department comes back for another? To give personal attention to one customer would mean a blockade in front of my department.

Just think of the routine of it for a moment. There's not a day during the two weeks before Christmas that I did not say something like this: "Yes, madam, we have a very nice, serviceable line of handkerchiefs for boys at twelve and a half cents," about three hundred times. The customer forgets that the thing she asks has been asked by a hundred others before she came to the store. I have heard "These are very coarse for the price," or "These twenty-five-cent goods are hardly worth giving for Christmas," at least five hundred times before she says it. I am weary to death of handkerchiefs. Somebody sent me two for Christmas. I tore both of them up. That helped some.

It is the same with corset laces, and gloves and everything else. Women come in and haggle and twist and talk over a ten-cent purchase, and then move away to do the same at some other counter, and glare at you, and report you for impudence if you happen to ask one of them to wait her turn. Of course, we are not angels; but are customers? Then some customers are too kind. Oh, don't raise your eyebrows in wonder at that. It doesn't help in business, especially when the floorwalker's eye is on you, to have some kind soul wait to shake hands with you and wish you "Merry Christmas" when there's a jam in front of your department. I know it is well meant, but it is out of time and out of place. Ten to one the shopper is airing her own philanthropic spirit. Even if she does it out of pure kindness it doesn't help any. You are not there to be shaken hands with or wished merry anythings. You are there to make sales and serve people as quickly as you know how. But there—! M.

I have but room for a part of M.'s letter. It is a good, if impetuous letter, and we may see more of it. Of course Christmas is now over and some of the irritation has passed. Next year, no doubt, the slogan "Shop Early!" will be started again—to more purpose, let us hope. Meantime we might learn a few lessons in regard to conducting our shopping on business principles, eliminating the tawdry snobbishness so many customers affect towards the girl behind the counter, while the girl herself might in all truth resolve to be, if not interested, as courteous and polite as her duties will permit. As for the poor soul who wished my correspondent the compliments of the season, I hope it was not myself, for in the joy of getting what I wanted quickly and easily one day before Christmas, and with the spirit of the feast stirring in one's soul, I did that very thing—wished my girl a merry season of it. Could it have been M.? But no. For there was no "jam" in front of her department, and the eye of the floorwalker was throwing glances of admiration our way which were not meant for.

DOCTORS ENDORSE

Newbro's Herpicide

When a doctor endorses a preparation it means more than an ordinary testimonial. His opinion is always that of the professional man devoted to the welfare of the people.

Dr. J. J. Boyd, Covington, Tenn., says: "I feel it my duty to write this for the benefit of those suffering from dandruff. In the average case a few applications of Newbro's Herpicide will remove all dandruff. It is advisable to continue its use for several weeks."

The words of J. B. Thompson, M. D., No. 2 Burrough Place, Cor. Hollis St., Boston, Mass., are not less enthusiastic: "I can only speak in praise of Newbro's Herpicide. It is all that it is claimed and perhaps more. Herpicide not only cleanses the scalp but brightens the hair, gives it life and makes it soft."

Dr. T. A. Moore, Duncan, Ariz., writes of his experience: "My scalp was in places covered by patches of dry, scaly material and the itching was incessant. Since using Herpicide all these evils have disappeared and my hair is soft, smooth and growing. Hair has grown on spots before but thinly covered."

Newbro's Herpicide is the original remedy to kill the dandruff germ and stop falling hair. The terrible itching which goes with dandruff is allayed almost at once.

Herpicide is for sale at Drug Stores and one dollar size bottles are guaranteed. Applications may be obtained at the leading barber shops. Be sure you get genuine Herpicide. Send 10c. in postage for sample and book to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

A Temperance Field Day

Rev. Dr. W. S. McTavish, of Toronto, one of the field secretaries employed by the Dominion Temperance Alliance, has been in Peterborough county the last few days making arrangements for a field day, to be held on Sunday, January 28th. On that day, representatives of the Alliance will occupy the majority of pulpits in the county and temperance sermons will be preached. It is probable that a conference will be held in the city on the Monday following field day, when consideration will be given to the present situation in the county, and a decision will be arrived at as to what steps will be taken in the matter of local option or temperance reduction. Peterborough, Burleigh and Anstruther are eligible for local option contests next year.

Mrs. A. R. Tabor, of Crider, Mo., had been troubled with sick headache for about five years, when she began taking Chamberlain's Tablets. She has taken two bottles of them and they have cured her. Sick headache is caused by disordered stomach for which these tablets are especially intended. Try them, get well and stay well. Sold by all dealers.

SETTLING A POOL

Sporting Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly settle a dispute over a pool on Thursday's hockey match between Peterborough and Cobourg. A has 10 to 5 in favour of Peterborough, B has 10 to 6 in favour of Peterborough and C has 9 to 5 in favour of Peterborough. Which wins.

Hockey Fan.

The correct score was 9 to 8 in favour of Peterborough. Therefore the correct p. c. is nine-seventeenths or .529. A's score of 10 to 5 gives a percentage of .666, B's score of 10 to 6 gives a percentage of .625, and C's score of 9 to 5 gives a percentage of .643. B's score therefore, wins the pool.

Richeson Confesses

BOSTON, JAN. 6.—Rev. Clarence Richeson, the ex-Baptist Minister, has confessed to the murder of his sweetheart, Miss Linnell, whose body was found in a bathtub, dead, from poisoning.

OBITUARY

MISS PHOEBE JANE LOWES.

A bright young life ended at 4 o'clock this morning, when Miss Phoebe Lowes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lowes of Ennismore passed away.

The deceased was born in Enniamore and was a life-long resident of that township.

In addition to her sorrowing parents, the deceased is survived by one sister, Lily. Funeral will take place in the Omemee cemetery to-morrow at 1.30.

EDWARD BURSTOW.

Mr. Edward Burstow passed away at his home on Maude street last evening. The deceased was in his 68th year and was a native of England, having resided here for a number of years. His many estimable qualities created for him a wide circle of friends, to whom the news of his death was a severe shock.

The late Mr. Burstow is survived by one sister, Mrs. Ilford, with whom he resided, and one brother in England.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon. There will be a service at the house at two o'clock, after which the funeral cortege will proceed to Little Lake cemetery for interment.

NEW RECTOR ARRIVES IN PETERBOROUGH.

Rev. R. B. Grobb, the newly appointed rector of All Saints church, arrived in the city to-day and will occupy the pulpit of his new charge tomorrow. He is a man of great ability, and a splendid speaker. His services here will no doubt be a valuable acquisition to the ministerial forces of this city.

DEATHS.

SHERIN—In Lakefield on Saturday, Jan. 6, 1912, Samuel Sherin, aged eighty-one years.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock to the Lakefield Methodist Church and thence to the Lakefield cemetery.

CURLING NOTES

Lady curlers were very much in evidence at the Charlotte Street rink yesterday. There were two rinks in action, altogether, and the outstanding feature of the play was the entire absence of the male element. As yet, they have not arranged a schedule for the season, and yesterday's game was merely a friendly contest.

The sheet of ice is in splendid condition at present, and is improving by the judicious use of water, every day.

The first schedule game of the season will be played on Monday, January 8th. As yet no draw has been made for the opening.

HOCKEY

The Peterborough junior O. H. A. team will practise to-night between 6 and 7 o'clock in preparation for next Tuesday night's game with Lindsay. Every member is asked to be out.

Trenton Intermediates defeated Belleville in an intermediate O. H. A. game at Trenton last night by 8 goals to 2. The game was a listless one, the teams showing lack of practice.

The under sides of the lids of a trunk that a Florida man has invented are padded and open out to form a bed for use in emergencies.

CHAIRMEN AND COMMITTEES FOR YEAR CHOSEN BY THE CITY COUNCIL TO-DAY

All Departments Except the Property Committee Have New Chairmen This Year.

COMMITTEES SELECTED

The 1912 Chairmen.

Board of Works—Ald. Buller.
Fire Water and Light Committee—Ald. Johnston.
Manufacturers and Power Committee—Ald. Gillespie.
Finance Committee—Ald. Anderson.
Property Committee—Ald. Duncan.
Legal Committee—Ald. Brown.

This was the list of Council committee chairmen for the year, chosen at a meeting of the committee of the Whole Council this morning. The personnel of the committees is given below.

When the question came up it was unanimously agreed that the chairmen should be selected by open vote.

Ald. Gillespie moved, seconded by Ald. Anderson, that Ald. Buller be chairman of the Board of Works.

Moved in amendment by Ald. Morgan, seconded by Ald. Graham, that Ald. Johnston be chairman.

Mayor Bradburn asked if both aldermen were prepared to accept the position.

Ald. Buller replied in the affirmative but Ald .Johnston said that he would not be able to spare the time to do justice to the appointment, and at his request the amendment was withdrawn and Ald. Buller declared elected.

There was a vote on the Fire, Water and Light chairmanship.

Ald. Duncan moved, seconded by Ald. Graham, that Ald. Morgan be re-elected chairman.

Ald. Gordon moved in amendment, seconded by Ald. Buller, that Ald. Johnston be chairman.

The amendment was carried by a vote of 6 to 4.

In regard to the Manufacturers and Power Committees, it was decided, on motion of Ald. Buller and Gordon that these two committees be combined and on motion of Ald. Buller and Johnston, Ald .Gillespie was elected to the position.

Ald. Anderson was unanimously elected chairman of the Finance committee on motion of Ald. Duncan and Johnston.

Ald. Duncan was returned unopposed as chairman of the Property committee on motion of Ald. Morgan, seconded by Ald. Duffus.

There were three nominations for th Legal committee chairmanship.

Ald. Graham, last year's chairman, was nominated by Ald. Morgan, seconded by Ald. Duncan.

Ald. Brown said that he felt that the West Ward should have a representative among the chairmen and he moved that Ald. Duffus be appointed.

Ald. Duffus said that he agreed with Ald. Brown's suggestion and accordingly seconded the amendment.

Ald. Gillespie moved, seconded by Ald. Johnston in an amendment to the amendment that Ald. Brown be elected.

The amendment to the amendment was carried being supported by five votes, while the original motion had three and the amendment two.

The chairmen then selected their committees as follows:

Board of Works—Ald. Buller, chairman; Alds. Johnston, Anderson, Duffus, Gillespie and Gordon.

Fire, Water and Light.—Ald. Johnston, chairman; Alds. Morgan, Buller, Gordon and Brown.

Manufacturers Committee.—(Power, Railways and Franchise).—Ald. Gillespie, chairman; Alds. Duncan Gordon, Duffus, Morgan and Graham.

Finance Committee (Printing and Licenses.)—Ald. Anderson, chairman; Alds. Buller, Johnston and Duncan.

Property Committee (Market Building and Health.)—Ald. Duncan, chairman; Alds. Graham, Morgan and Brown.

Legal Committee—Ald Brown, chairman; Alds. Gordon, Anderson, Duffus and Gillespie.

MAYOR'S INAUGURAL ADDRESS TO COUNCIL

First Meeting of the Year Was Held This Morning—Mayor-Elect Outlines the Work Council Will Have to Take Up During the Year.

The inaugural meeting of the City Council for 1912 was held this morning at 11 o'clock in the Council chamber, with Mayor Bradburn presiding and all the members of the Council present. City Solicitor Hall was the only one present in addition to the Council, City Clerk and reporters. There were no preliminary ceremonies of any kind.

After Clerk Armstrong had announced the results of the municipal elections, and stated that the aldermen had taken the necessary declarations, Mayor Bradburn gave his inaugural address. He said that it was his first duty to welcome the old members of the Council who had returned to the Board and to congratulate Ald. Gordon upon his election. He felt that if a spirit of harmony was developed in the Council a policy of progress could be worked out that would benefit the city.

Among the questions which he would like to see the Council take up was that of the appointment of a permanent assessor. If there was a man appointed permanently to act twelve months in the year he would be able to look after the work better and get better results. Under the present system, new men have necessarily to be appointed from time to time, and they spend considerable time in getting acquainted with the work and with the assessment law. Better equalization of assessment would be secured with a permanent assessor and the council should be prepared to act in the matter at the February meeting.

The question of permanent work on the business streets, on George street from Brock to Charlotte street, or perhaps from Central Park to the C.P.R. station, and on Charlotte street, from George street to the Grand Trunk tracks, should also be taken up. It was time the Council did something in regard to putting the main business thoroughfares in proper order. Such work would not only be a benefit to those using the streets, but would also prove a good advertisement for the city. Before anything could be done, however, some method of getting the poles off the street would have to be adopted, and the Board of Works might take the matter in hand. It might cost some money, but the expenditure would be a wise one. The Board might go into the whole matter with the engineering department and have estimates prepared and arrange to have the gas and sewer connections and other underground work done so that it would be possible to commence street paving in the early summer.

Another question for the Council was that of better bridge accommodation for the people of East City. He had an interview with a number of gentlemen and felt that the Council could secure financial assistance in erecting a new bridge at Huntef street strong enough to carry the street car system to the East Ward. With this done the present Hunter street bridge could be moved down to Sherbrooke or Dalhousie streets.

The Manufacturers' committee should make a special effort to secure new industries for Peterborough this year. A small amount should be placed in the estimates to cover the expense involved in this so that the Council in hearing of a new industry likely to locate in Canada could send a representative at once to interview the heads of the concern and if possible induce them to come to Peterborough.

The question of cheaper power for lighting and other purposes would have to be taken up, probably through the Hydro-Electric Commission. The people had voted strongly in favour of power owned by the municipality, and he believed that it would result in better lighting of the streets, cheaper light in the houses and cheaper power for manufacturing purposes. He would like to see a change made in regard to the payment of taxes by which the present discount could be done away with. This discount had simply to be added to the taxes and if it were cut off the tax rate could be reduced half a mill. In addition it might be advisable to consider the question of having the taxes paid in three instalments annually, say on June 15th, August 15th and November 15th.

There were certain works taken up by Mayor Morrow and last year's Council which were not completed and which would come before them later.

He hoped that the Council would work harmoniously and in the best interests of the city. If they did so, 1912 would be a banner year for Peterborough.

The Council then adjourned until 8 o'clock this evening.

RICHESON WILL APPEAR LATE THIS AFTERNOON

Special to The Examiner:

BOSTON, MASS., JAN. 8.— It has been arranged that Rev. Clarence Richeson, who on Saturday confessed to the murder of his sweetheart, Avis Linnell, shall appear before Judge Sanderson late this afternoon with his plea of guilty to the indictment. His Honour may pronounce the judgment of death forthwith, or he may decide to wait till the doctors have passed on Richeson's mental condition. In any event, it is understood that Richeson's lawyers will take the confessor to Governor Foss immediately, with a plea for executive clemency in view of his previous good character and his desire to do penance for his crime by making a life ministry among the convicts of the States prisons.

Labour Men Wait On Premier Borden To-day

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, JAN. 8.—While the delegates of the Dominion Trades and Labour Congress waited to have a conference with Premier Borden and the Cabinet, President Charles M. Hayes and Vice-President Wainwright of the Grand Trunk Pacific were conferring with him on some matter regarding which particulars were not given. The labour men complained that the promoters of the Grand Trunk Pacific were using the money the government gave them for the operation and construction purposes, for fighting unionism and labour movements. The labour men also demanded stricter immigration regulations, especially against Asiatics, including Hindus, whom they thought should be kept out of the country altogether, to all of which Premier Borden promises consideration and investigation.

TWELFTH ANNIVERSARY OF ST. PETER'S T. A. S.

To-night the members of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society will celebrate the twelfth anniversary of the founding of that flourishing society, which was formed by Rev. Father Frank O'Sullivan on Jan. 8, 1900. The Society, which started with seventy-five members, has had a most successful career, and, with the Sacred Heart Society, has a membership of 1,200. Rev. Father O'Sullivan was succeeded by Rev. Dr. O'Brien, as spiritual advisor, and the Sacred Heart Parish being formed, Rev. Father McColl became spiritual advisor. As a result of the formation of the Society, in Peterborough, societies have been formed in Galway, Enniamore, Norwood, Campbellford, Trenton and Belleville. To-night an entertainment and play, entitled "The Squire's Daughter" will be given in celebration of the occasion.

To Secure One Day's Rest In Seven For Workers

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, JAN. 8.—The necessity for providing one day's rest in seven for all workers was brought before the attention of the Premier and his colleagues this morning by James Simpson of Toronto, who laid emphasis upon the fact that in the steel mines of Nova Scotia and the Soo, men were not only compelled to work seven days a week, but also had to work in shifts of 11 and 13 hours. He also urged the need for legislation to provide that hotel employees and railway men, whether steam or electric, should, by right, be given one day off each week.

NOTICE FOR WEEK OF PRAYER

District East of Rubidge Street

That there may be no confusion, announcement is made to-day again of the fact that for the convenience of all in the city who wish to have some part in the week of prayer, a division has been made of the city into two districts. One of these includes all the congregations west of Rubidge street, and the other all east of Rubidge street. The places of meeting for those east of Rubidge street are as follows:

Monday night—Mark street.
Tuesday night—Bethany Tabenacle.
Wednesday night—St. Paul's.
Thursday night—Murray street.
Friday night—George street.

Investigating Double Murder

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, ONT., JAN. 8. —An inquest into the recent double murder on Walpole Island Indian reserve, commenced to-day before Coroner Ferguson Courtright. The body of Indian Nahdee is still under the ice, where it slipped from the men who found it. The jury viewed the other body and adjourned until Friday. The police have discovered that the gloves found in the hut stained with blood and hair, fit Mrs. Flossie Williams, now under arrest, exactly and the pair corresponds with Nahdee's.

Parade In Toronto

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, JAN. 8.—Led by a man with a huge key, symbolic of the opening of China to civilization and Republican ideas, five hundred Chinamen with banners flying and bands playing, paraded the streets of Toronto to-day in a snow storm, to celebrate the advent of the Chinese Republic. It was the first Chinese parade in Canada, so far as known.

Special to The Examiner:

BOSTON, JAN. 8.—It was decided at noon to postpone the hearing of the Richeson case before Judge Sanderson till to-morrow.

Important Real Estate Deal

An important real estate deal was consummated during the past few days whereby hat parcel of property on Hunter street, and known as the American House, and forming part of the Halpin estate, passed into the hands of Mr. John Young, of Enniamore. The deal was put through by the J. T. O'Connell Company, and while the purchase price is not available for publication ,it is said to represent a handsome sum.

The property has been leased to Mr. W. J. Scollard of Enniamore, and Carey, Moher Bros., of this city respectively. The former will occupy the west half and will conduct an implement agency of the International Harvesing Company. The east half will be converted into an up-to-date garage by Carey, Moher Bros., where the well known Hupmobile and Mitchell cars will be on sale. The remainder of the building will be converted into an apartment house.

MOTOR TRAIN RAN AMUCK

Special Wire to the Examiner.

NEW YORK, N.Y., JAN. 8.—A three car motor milk train on the Long Island railroad became unmanageable near here this morning, jumping the tracks, smashing down a strong bumper, knocking a taxi cab into smithereens and finally landing in a big shop window where the gasoline in the motor reservoir exploded, sending tons of milk skyward like geysers. Conductor Lutterman was killed and two passengers severely hurt. Moterman Weber, who stuck to his post through all, miraculously escaped, though severely cut by flying glass. All the traffic was stopped for two hours because of the frozen milk and cream on the tracks.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS In Great Demand in Canada

The Hydro-Electric policy of the Government has so enlarged the field for rising young electrical engineers, that greater opportunities for experienced men can be found at home than anywhere else. Our correspondent is informed by one of the head officials of the Toronto Hydro-Electric System, that probably their hardest problem at the present time is to obtain competent men to fill the most important positions. He said that owing to the popularity of the Hydro-Electric and the great demand made upon them to supply service, they are compelled to augment the already large force of the business staff by employing an extra sales manager and additional power and lighting solicitors. "Even now," he stated, "we are advertising for such men, but find difficulty in getting ones that have made good elsewhere and are experienced in this kind of work." It is necessary to fill these positions with men of proven ability, as the Hydro-Electric is beyond the experimental stage.

Here certainly is a good opportunity for those who have selected this field of activity.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

MONDAY, JANUARY 8, 1912

THE PANAMA CANAL.

The fact that the opening and operation of the Panama Canals will probably greatly promote Canadian transportation interests, especially of the west, and especially of the producers of the west, has given a greater interest to the rumours that the United States contemplated imposing discriminating rates of canal tolls on all shipping other than that of the United States. There however seems to be no danger of such a course being taken. The Hay-Pannaforte treaty between Canada and the United States stands in the way. This provides that there is to be no discrimination between United States and foreign shipping in the matter of canal tolls; that the Panama Canal is to be in the same position in regard to privileges of shipping as the Suez Canal, in which Great Britain has established the precedent of placing all nations on the same footing in the matter of the use of the canal for commercial purposes.

OBSTRUCTING THE FIREMEN.

On Saturday, in Toronto, the dangerous possibilities of the tangle of wires in front of buildings in a business section were demonstrated. A fire broke out in the wholesale district and [illegible] of the firemen was greatly delayed and hampered by the obstructions, in the shape of wires, to placing their ladders. During this delay the fire ate away additional thousands of dollars' worth of valuable property. It may easily happen that in case of a fire on George street, the delay and obstruction of the firemen's work may involve great destruction of property, and, perhaps, loss of life. The City Council, in considering the paving of George street, and other streets, should provide for the undergrounding of all wires, as in the case of the Bell and Machine Telephone Companies. It may cost a little to extinguish the "rights" of the telegraph and other companies, whose wires are not placed underground, but it will cost more to extinguish fires and prevent additional loss to have the network of wires kept in the way of the firemen's ladders. In fire fighting, even seconds are sometimes of countless value, and obstruction involving delay is dangerous.

SOMETHING ABOUT PEAT.

About 10,000,000 tons of peat fuel are yearly produced in Europe.

Russia is the largest producer of peat fuel, her output in 1902 being 4,600,000 tons, which has increased 200,00 tons a year since then.

1,300 plants making machine peat are now in operation in Russia.

The United States exclusive of Alaska, is estimated to have 11,200 square miles of peat bogs, averaging 9 feet in depth, and containing nearly 13,000,000,000 tons of fuel worth at $3.60 a ton—$39,000,000,000.

Canada has 37,000 square miles (23,680,000 acres) of known peat bogs, but these form probably but a small fraction of the total, constituting a potential national asset of enormous value.

Some idea of the possibilities may be gained from the estimate that 28 acres of peat 9 feet deep should yield 50,000 tons; enough to supply 100 families for 25 years, allowing 20 tons per annum to each family, or enough to furnish a power plant of 100 H.P., using steam engines, with fuel of more than 25 years of 300 ten-hour days, allowing 12 lbs. of fuel per H.P. hour developed. The feul, if used in a suitable gas producer would last the same plant about 109 years.

Four bogs within a few miles of Ottawa, examined by Government experts, are estimated to contain over 25,000,000 tons of fuel.

The provinces of Ontario and Quebec send $20,000,000 a year to the United States for coal. In 1909, we imported coal to the amount of nearly 10,000,000 tons, valued at $26,831,869. The development of some of our extensive peat bogs will help to keep some of this money at home and to furnish additional employment to Canadians in Canada.

In Northern Europe peat is being successfully converted into fuel and gas and used for generation of electricity at the bog by means of gas producers and producer-gas engines, which are displacing the steam-boiler and engine in many lines of industry owing to their lower cost of fuel.

To re-establish confidence in the value of peat as a domestic and industrial fuel, and to stimulatae development of our peat resources, the Government has acquired 300 acres of peat bog at Alfred for the purpose of manufacturing peat fuel on a commercial scale by a method which has proved successful in Europe.

The capacity of the plant is 30 tons per day, and during part of the past summer, 1,600 tons of machine peat were produced.

Allowing 140 days for a season's operations the cost of the fuel on the field is $1.40 per ton, under conditions existing at the government plant. By the use of larger plant and using mechanical excavators to replace hand labour this cost of production can be greatly reduced.

3600 lbs. of machine peat fuel is equal in calorfic energy to a ton of anthracite coal.

THE RIGHTS OF THE STRONG.

Under the above heading the Montreal Herald had the following apposite and temperate comment:

Mr. Borden is learning that a new Prime Minister has time on his side. For a few days after his Cabinet was formed there was quite a little talk about some who were not in it. There was Mr. Casgrain, for instance; but presently Mr. Casgrain was appointed to a position under nomination by the British Government, one in which he can serve his country with distinction, and he goes to Washington next week to begin. Possibly he values the honour as much as he would a portfolio. Then there was Mr. Forget. He was alleged to have been in the Cabinet and out of it again, while the slate was being made, but his name was not in the final list. He is now Sir Rodolphe Forget, and one may suspect that his eagerness for Cabinet honours has suffered much abatement. Mr. Osler couldn't be bothered, being a Minister, and left the open road to others who wanted the honour; Mr. Osler becomes a Knight. Mr. Magrath was in the shadow Cabinet before the election, but he didn't get elected. Mr. Rogers got the office for which he was hooked, but he gets his chance on the Waterways Commission. And almost at once began a series of appointments to judgeships, which will continue year by year, and by virtue of which men of standing in the party will have their services and, what is more important, their abilities, recognized.

This brings up the whole subject of the object and value of representative government. The object of government being created by the people, for the benfit of the people, for the public service it can render, seems to be entirely lost sight of. The Borden Government, with its ostensibly large majority—counting heads of elected members—actually as far as popular vote is concerned, only represents half the people. But, in the broader sense, according to the spirit of representative British institutions, it actually represents the whole body of the people, and has a duty to discharge to the whole people. Of course, within reasonable limits, it is to be assumed that the members of the party it represents should have the preference in the distribution of favours, rewards for the success achieved in its name. But this should be subordinate to higher considerations of the proper functions of popular government. Distribution of the spoils should, in its extremist application, be merely an incident—not a basis of policy. In this regard the Borden Government has failed in its recognition of its legitimate responsibility. As the Herald points out, the chief energy of executive action has been directed to the distribution of favours, while the higher matters of policy, the question of national defence, the question of implementing the alleged high ideals, upon which the Government secured a majority, and other great questions have so far been displaced by the question of finding places, creating places for party workers, and the disorganisation of the civil service in the interest of place hunters. Government by the people, for the people, seems to have become an academic abstraction.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE

Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK

Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD

Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

ACHE

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them.

Small Pill. Small Dose. Small Price.

HERE IS A PROBLEM.

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review.)

An esteemed contemporary in a worthy and enterprising attempt to discover the origin of the leap-year custom of allowing the ladies to propose, has unearthed an interesting bit of legislation associated with the name of Margaret of Norway, who reigned over Scotland from 1286 to 1290. In the year 1288, which was leap year, the following law was passed in her realm:

"It is statut and ordaint that during the rein of hir maist blissit Megeste, for ilk yeare knowne as lepe year, ilkden ladye of both high and low estait shall hae liberte to bespeek ye man she likes; albeit he refuses to taik hir to be his lawful wyfe, he shall be mulcted in ye sum ane pundis or less, as his estait may be; except and awis gif he can make it appeare that he is betrothit an either woman he then shall be free."

The "statut," no doubt, was justified by conditions existing at the time. It would be meaningless in some parts of our own country today. Not long ago the editor of the Sentinel-Review received a proposal from an esteemed correspondent in Alberta. It was not a proposal of marriage, but an appeal for the advocacy of some scheme that would help to supply that country with marriageable young women.

The situation, according to the correspondent, is desperate in that part of Alberta from which the appeal was sent. "In a four mile ride," the correspondent writes, "I passed only bachelors' shacks, and in nine weeks in this district saw only one unmarried woman belonging in the district." The correspondent strongly urges the revival of a scheme that was suggested several years ago, partly as a joke, for sending out a carload of women to the Northwest. "I would propose it in all seriousness now," says the correspondent. "You remember the shiploads of young women they brought two hundred years ago to New France. Well, this Province has quite as much need of them as New France, and if you can think of any scheme that is workable you will do as much for your country as any man can hope to do. The need for men here is not half so great as the need for women."

Here is a chance for some practical patriot to distinguish himself; but it is to be feared that the task is too difficult for modern ingenuity. Clearly the remedy is not to be found in any such "statut" as the one above quoted. Perhaps the problem is one for a woman to solve.

THE ANNEXATION MOVEMENT.

(Toronto Star.)

One finds it difficult to realize that sixty years ago there was a formidable movement for the annexation of Canada to the United States, and that men of high standing in the community were willing to sign their names to a manifesto of that kind. The history of the movement of 1849 has been written by Cephas D. Allen, M.A., L.L.D., assistant professor of Political Science in the University of Minnesota, and George M. Jones, B.A., Humberside Collegiate Institute, Toronto.

A certain element of the Canadian people at that time and at other times, have regarded French influence and American influence as evils between which they had to choose. Lord Durham in his famous report spoke of annexationists who believed that in order to remain English they must cease to be British; that is, they would have Canada join the United States in order that the French-Canadian element might be swamped by the English-speaking people of the United States. This seems to have been one of the causes of the annexation movement of 1849.

Responsible government or self-government had been conceded and there were Conservatives who regarded it as a concession to "Frenchmen and rebels." There was much talk of French domination. The Rebellion Losses bill was assailed as a measure for rewarding rebels, and in the fury which it aroused the Governor-General was mobbed and stoned, and the Parliament Bulidings in Montreal burned.

Another cause was commercial discontent. Canada had enjoyed a preference in the British market, and the withdrawal of this preference caused a disturbance of business. The merchants of Canada turned their eyes to the American market. Afterwards they obtained access to this market through the Elgin reciprocity treaty. But in 1849 the sense of disappointment was so keen that the discontented element could not separate commercial from political measures, and would stop at nothing short of annexation. The annexation manifesto declared that reciprocal free trade with the United States would yield but an instalment of the advantages which would otherwise be secured.

The authors of this book have made a very full and careful analysis of the opinions expressed by public men and newspapers at this critical time. The movement had its origin in Montreal, and some of the leading citizens of Montreal were involved. There was an interesting bye-election in Sherbrooke, a county not far from the American border. The annexation candidate, Sanborn, was elected by the small majority of 36. There were many American settlers in the riding, and most of these, with the ultra-Tories, voted for the annexationist, while the English-born settlers and the bulk of the French-Canadians, voted for his opponent, Cleveland. There was a curious alliance between the ultra-Tories and the Rouges, but annexation did not make many converts among French-Canadians. Nor did it make great headway in Upper Canada. Its strength lay mainly among the English-speaking minority of Lower Canada. The revivial of business dealt a crushing blow to the cause. The book is written in an impartial spirit. The writers have been desirious to give not so much their own opinion as a picture of public opinion in 1849 and 1850.

Here is a remedy that will cure your cold. Why waste time and money experimenting when you can get a preparation that has won a world-wide reputation by its cures of this disease and can always be depended upon? It is known everywhere as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and is a medicine of real merit. For sale by all dealers.

Crashed Into Pole.

New York, Jan. 8.—Fred Plougher, conductor of a Gravesend avenue trolley car, was killed and five other persons seriously hurt when the car was derailed and crashed into a telegraph pole early yesterday.

The motorman, James Hughes, benumbed with cold, was thrown from his post while the car was taking a curve at high speed and the car went without a driver for four blocks before it jumped the tracks. Conductor Plougher dashed to the forward platform of the car to stop it, but as he reached the controller the car jumped and struck the pole, smashing in the front vestibule. The man was crushed and is believed to have died instantly

Galway May Be a Port.

London, Jan. 8.—The establishment of Galway, Ireland, as a trans-atlantic port is advocated by Lord Killanin in the forthcoming issue of The Empire Review. He predicts a revival of the trade of the Irish port which was at one time second only to London as a port of the United Kingdom.

Steamers leaving Galway could get under way at full speed The minimum loss of time would be the delay incident to the fog and traffic in the Irish Sea. The transatlantic ships built for high speed are delayed in the channel.

The harbor at Galway is wide, deep and free from obstructions, with two feasible channels leading to the sea, and the surrounding hills provide splendid shelter from storms.

Were Afraid of Oblats.

Montreal, Jan. 8.—Hon. Senator Legris tells in Le Pays yesterday why he sends his two sons to McGill University and replies to L'Action Sociale of Quebec, who claim that the Senator is hitched up with a Freemason, meaning, no doubt, G. Langlois, M.P.P., editor and proprietor of Le Pays. He says he does not care whether he had to do with Freemasons or not, all he wants is a sincere adherent to Liberalism.

The Senator points out that Sir John A. Macdonald was a man high up in the Masonic Order and asks what is the difference, as Sir John Macdonald was supported by the clergy of this province to a man. Then Senator Legris tells how an Oblat Father brutally assaulted his son Wilfrid while the latter was asleep in the dormitory, and that, although the boy lost an eye and carries a broken nose as a result of the attack, the college authorities pleaded that they were not responsible for the act of one of their number, and, consequently, Senator Legris affirms that he is more afraid of an Oblat than a Freemason, and regrets that his sons were not always at McGill.

Calls Contribution Insane.

Ottawa, Jan. 8.—"Any contribution to these insane naval armaments is a backward step, and we should be careful in Canada," declared Dr. L. E. Horning, professor of Teutonic philology at Victoria University, Toronto, in the course of an address on the present day relations of England and Germany, before the Canadian Club, at its weekly luncheon, in the Grand Union Hotel, Saturday.

Of an optimistic nature were Dr. Horning's remarks regarding the relations between England and Germany. The close relationship of the two great nations in many lines made for peace to a greater extent than any fiscal difference of trouble with reference to colonization might counterbalance in the direction of war.

"It is not possible to think that these great Teutonic nations, with the same high ideals, the same love of home, justice, right and God, and the same high thought, can come to war," he said. "They cannot be separated and must be together if they are to continue their parts in the development of the world."

Session to Last Till March.

Ottawa, Jan. 8.—The House of Commons gets down to work again on Wednesday and will be in session, it is expected, until the end of March. The Government is practically ready with all its important legislation and has finished up the preparation of estimates for the year.

The session's work is already for the House and it is up to that body to take a long or short time over it. There have been some rumblings within the last few days indicating a desire on the part of the Opposition to get up a series of fights on those subjects, which it thinks the Government is least willing to have discussed. The friends of the Government say that there are no such questions and that the Opposition is perfectly welcome to go ahead. In any event there is a general expectation of prorogation by Easter.

POISON SUSPECTED.

Four Dead and Crystals In Pitcher In Philadelphia Home.

Philadelphia, Jan. 8.—Mystery surrounds the deaths of four persons whose bodies, fully clothed, were discovered yesterday in the second storey back room of the boarding-house of Mrs. Bridget Flanagan, No. 1,323 North Twenty-fourth street. Mrs. Flanagan, who was among the dead, was deserted by her husband ten days ago, but was said to have been in fairly prosperous circumstances. She was 38 years of age.

Her daughter Anne Flanagan, aged 10 years, and Joseph Flanagan, aged 15 months, an adopted child, died with her. The fourth body was that of Catharine Murray, aged 18 years, a boarder in the house, who recently came to this country from Ireland. Her room was on the third floor, but she had evidently decided to sleep with Mrs. Flanagan, because of the greater warmth of the latter's room.

The police officials and coroner, who are investigating the case, are unable to determine whether the deaths were caused by coal gas or whether the poison had been administered in milk, of which all four had partaken. The latter theory is supported by the finding of some crystals in an empty milk pitcher. These crystals have not yet been analyzed.

Mrs. Hannah Curran, a sister of Mrs. Flanagan, who came with her family, was also found seriously ill. She was removed to a hospital, where it is said that she is suffering from pneumonia. They are unable to say as yet whether or not she was poisoned.

Demands Labor Reform.

Ottawa, Jan. 8.—Dominion Trades and Labor delegates meet the Government to-day with numerous requests for reform. Among them are:

Allowing musicians to play on Sunday; one day off in seven for waiters and waitresses; exclusion of Asiatics and insistence that all immigrants have $25 in cash on landing; eight-hour day and increase of letter carriers; eight-hour day on public works and adoption of federal department of public health; fortnightly pay of railway employes; opposition to bounties on steel, etc.; more practical enforcement of alien labor law and Government inspection of locomotive boilers.

Delegates here include Jas. Waters, Vancouver; Fred. Bancroft, Toronto; P. M. Draper, Ottawa; James Toureville, Moose Jaw; J. E. O'Donoghue, A. Verville, M.P., James Simpson, W. Glockling, J. Bruce, and A. McMurdie, Toronto.

No Peace Negotiations.

Constantinople, Jan. 8.—The rumors that peace negotiations have been entered into by Turkey and Italy, it is announced, are without foundation.

THE WORLD'S WORK DEPENDS ON THE WORLD'S DIGESTION

From the captain of industry to the hod carrier—from milady in the auto to the woman with the scrubbing brush—the accomplishments of every one of us depend absolutely on the accomplishments of our stomachs. Backed by a good digestion, a man can give the best that is in him. When his stomach fails, he becomes a weakling.

To this loss of power no one need submit. Right habits of eating, drinking, sleeping and exercise, aided by Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, will restore and maintain the full efficiency of the human mind and body.

Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets contain the active principles needed for the digestion of every kind of food. They go to the assistance of the weakened stomach, and enable the sufferer, right from the start, to assimilate and get the benefit of the food eaten. With this assistance, the digestive organs regain their tone, and soon the use of the tablets is no longer necessary.

If your stomach is not working properly, try Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets. 50c. at your druggist's. National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Montreal. 146

"THE SECRET OF PAUL FARLEY"

By JOHN MARCH

"I have not had any reply," she laughed, "but of course, you are coming to my ball?"

"As you are kind enough to make such a point of it, Mrs. Wycherly, I suppose I must come," he said, a little bewildered at being unable to fathom her intense desire for his presence.

"Good-night; run in, the wind is chilly."

She laughed gleefully, gesticulating coquettishly with her little hands, and danced lightly backward over the shimmering grass. He watched her disappear with the Larches, then threw up his head as if inhaling a purer atmosphere, buttoned his coat more securely, and ran swiftly back to the summerhouse.

Agnes was standing in the doorway of the summerhouse, a shepherd's plaid around her shoulders.

"How long have you been here?" he panted.

"Not very long this time. I came before, but, hearing voices, I went back and waited."

He drew her down to the seat beside him.

"I have been acting like an imbecile," he said, breathing quickly and opening his coat. "I arrived here half an hour back and found a woman sitting just where you are now, Agnes. Of course, I idiotically took it for granted that it must be you, and—well, I kissed her and said she was the only person in the world I cared for."

"Who was it?" she asked, surprised and puzled. "A lady or any nice-minded woman would have disclosed her identity and prevented a mortifying denouement."

"It was Mrs. Wycherly," he said, setting his patent leather boot on a large earwig.

"Oh, my dear, how unfortunate!" she exclaimed, gently touching the bruised and discolored cheek. "Felix told me about the East Weyberne incident."

"Who is Felix?"

"Why, my brother, Felix Fleming, the best and dearest, the most sensible and kindest-hearted man in the world! I am so glad he has asked you up to-morrow night."

"So am I; clandestine meetings are evidently too dangerous a game for you and me to play."

"Yes, I would rather it had been any other woman in the country than Mrs. Wycherly. I—oh, Paul, I nearly forgot it—we saw her last night, Rowena, I mean, hiding in he Hargrave's avenue."

"And I also!" he said, pursing his lips as if he were about to whistle. "Mr. Fleming thought it was one of the servants just a little bit moon-struck."

"What business has she to creep and hide about other folks' premises?" she asked indignantly. "She has large, beautiful grounds of her own; why can't she keep there?"

"Perhaps she is tired of her own society, and is looking for—"

"Yours! I dare swear she is! My dear, pray be very careful and very cautious. Felix never says a word against anyone, but I have heard him anathematize Rowena Wycherly. He once said had she lived a hundred years ago she would have been burnt as a witch."

Paul laughed and slipped his arm round her waist.

"You're a goose, Aggie! The woman can't do more than make love to me, and however aggravating that may prove, it can't surely hurt me."

"Ah, well," she said, nodding her head wisely, "when I think about it, I am afraid for you. Iam positive you couldn't shake her off as you could—Judith Hargrave, for instance."

"What do you know about Judith?" he asked, flushing.

"Everything. She told me directly I came home. She told me she meant to arry you at all costs, in spite of what her family might say or do to the contrary. She also assured me she would not sleep again till in some way she had broken the ice between you."

"Mis Hargrave's creed teaches that the accident of birth and long descent admits of unique claims and privileges, that when a baronet's daughter stoops to woo lowly hearts a resilience is inevitable ,a foregone conclusion."

"It's all very well to sneer and ridicule Judith," she said crossly, pushing him away. "I daresay she has been foolish, but it is terrible to witness the alteration in Anthony Pelham; he doesn't look as if he enjoyed the joke much."

"Nor I, Agnes," he said, the amused smile dying out of his face, "that is if Judith Hargrave's miserable infatuation constitutes a joke."

He rose and moved restlessly about within the narrow confines of the summerhouse, his brows contracted, his glorious eyes luminous in the moonlight.

"You cannot feel more repugnance or be more troubled at the situation than I," he said, standing before her, his hands clasped behin dhim. "Still, conscientiously reviewing the events of the past few weeks, I fail to see that a particle of blame attaches to me, if it were in my power he should be put in possession of it to-night."

"It does rest wit hyou," she said, vehemently. "There will never be happiness, good fortune, nor harmony at Weyberne Hall while oyu are there. eB advised, my dear, be persuaded befoer a foolish complication develops into a genuine calamity. No good, no success can result from a lie, however craftily uttered or well acted."

She went to him in her agitation, and laid both hands on his shoulders, garing up at him with imploring eyes.

"You don't know what you are asking, Agnes. You don't realize the magnitude of your demands," he said gravely. "There is another key to the tune, and in your eagerness to strike a right note, you lose sight of the part I should play in your programme. If, as you suggest, I leave Weyberne, I am without employment, without friends or eans. Sir Thomas accepted the account I gave of myself unbacked by credentials, but I cannot expect to meet his like a second time. The demon Self is a tremendou sforce which has to be reckoned with, Agnes, and in spite of adverse circumstances I must stay on her until I have won my spurs," at is, until I have earned some sort of reputation, however flimsy. Few men or women have the boldness to take the axe in their hand and cut out a new and original path for themselves, but I, after years of steady, quiet thought, patient work, an dambitious dreams, have lifted the axe, and now no power, whether it b egood or evil, shall rwest it from me. The consequences may be disastrous or unprecedented success; my life may be a noble one, crowded with high aspirations and honeycombed with splendid opportunity for the betterment of humanity, or it ma ybe one long tissue of lies, a merry rollicking sport of the devil. Nevertheless, whether it brings phenomenal good, or its own peculiar Nemesis, I shall abide by it."

She looked into the marvellous eyes, liquid with emotion, laid her head on his shoulder, and without any sort of warning burst into a flood of tears.

With one arm he encircled her, stroked her chee kand smoothed her ruffled hair very tenderly.

"Don't fret about it, Agnes," he said brokenly; "I have just flashed meteor-like across your path, only for a moment. I shall be gone directly. Don't let us turn a corner on purpose to meet trouble; half the calamities we see coming towards us pass us by. The six months will be gone in no time, an dthen it will rest with you as to whether we ever meet, or hear of one another, again."

"You hva enever told me yet how you got on alone in London," she sobbed.

He smiled, though the troubled expression remained in his eyes.

"Fairly well. During the first few days the sense of freedom and the knowledge that I was my own monitor was simply delicious. The novelty, of course, soon wore off. I sold the violin, and took up my abode at a small private hotel in Southampton Row, and kept myself out of mischief by studying the advertisement sheets of all the London dailies and replenishing my wardrobe. One morning I came across Sir Thomas Hargrave's advertisement and answered it. I told him I wa san American and had lately flown to England to try my wings. I made it quite clear that testimonials, references or recommendations, the usual registered avenues to social salvation, were closed to me, and awaited his reply with some trepidation. He answered in person. In his jovial, rough and ready way he marched into my room and said, 'I thought I should like to see the kin dof fellow who wrote that letter.' I satisfied him regarding my respectability, packed my traps, and went down to Weyberne Hall with him that night."

He took out his watch and showed it her.

Psoriasis Was Cured

After Five Years of Suffering ---Three Doctors Failed and Said Case Was Incurable

Itching and Burning Was Terrible Until Relief and Cure Was Effected by

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Psoriasis is another name for chronic eczema. It is the worst form of this dreadful itching skin disease. Once eczema has reached this stage it is usually considered incurable.

But here is a case which proves again the wonderful healing power of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Not only does relief come quickly, but the resulting benefits are thorough and lasting.

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Consecon, Ont., writes: "I thought it my duty to write you telling you the great benefit I received from using Dr. Chase's Ointment. For five years I suffered with what three doctors called Psoriasis. I doctored with three different doctors, with no good results, and one of our noted doctors told me if any one offered to guarantee me a cure for $50.00 to keep my money in my pocket, as I could not be cured.

"The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head. The itching and burning was hard to bear. At last my brother read in the paper about Dr. Chase's Ointment as a healer. I got 8 boxes, and I am glad to say I am entirely cured, not a sign of a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise the ointment enough, and you are at liberty to use my testimony, as I hope thereby to induce other sufferers to try the same."

GOD'S INFINITE WISDOM AND LOVE

The Creator's Noblest Gifts to Humanity—He That Seeketh Findeth.

Shanghai, China, Jan. 7.—China's hundreds of millions of patient, incessant workers have had my sympathy from childhood. The philosophies of childhood are often as correct as those of mature years—sometimes more so. Well I remember as a child inquiring what would be the fate of the heathen, and the answer that I got, namely, that only through faith in Jesus, the Redeemer, is there any salvation. Then I queried, What is the penalty of their ignorance of the Only Name given under heaven or amongst men whereby we must be saved? The answer was the usual one of all our "Orthodox creeds"; that they would spend eternity in a hell of unutterable anguish. How my heart went out sympathetically toward every missionary movement on behalf of the heathen!

Then came mature thinking and I said, Like others I am imperfect in every way; my sympathy and love, therefore, cannot be as great as that of our Creator. How is it possible that God, with all the force of the Universe at His command, could look calmly on and see the operation of His own laws carrying thousands of millions to eternal misery and yet refrain from giving those creatures the necessary information? I said, there is something wrong with the Bible and with our creeds which we have built upon it.

I threw all away and began to reason—but, thank God! not along irreverent lines. I reasoned that He who made the Universe also made man; that whatever noble qualities I could find in humanity were the work of the Creator. I said, Man's noblest qualities are justice and love, and hence the Creator must possess these unlimitedly. I bowed in worship before God, Infinite in Wisdom, Justice, Love and Power.

I said, Oh, great, Almighty God, although unknown to me, I worship Thee! I adore Thee! My whole being cries out for the pleasure of more intimate acquaintance with Thee, that I might know Thy will regarding me and Thy purpose respecting humanity. I said, Assuredly, as God is All-Wise, He must have an All-Wise purpose, of which I need not be ashamed! So surely as He is just and loving, all of His plans and purposes must accord with these qualities; and having made man capable of appreciating these qualities, He will surely be willing to bestow the information which I desire—information as to how I can best please and serve Him and as to what His purposes and intentions are respecting mankind.

My prayers convinced me the more that there must be a Divine Revelation somewhere in the world. I thought that I had searched the Bible faithfully and proved it unreasonable and contrary to every conception I could have of a Divine Creator and His purposes; hence my eyes turned toward this Eastern land and your sacred books. I studied them for a time, only to find them far less satisfactory to my intellect than the Bible I had already cast aside.

I returned to the Bible. I asked myself, Might you have been prejudiced when you examined it before? Although I thought not, I made a fresh investigation, because I felt there must be a Revelation from the true God somewhere, and because the Bible thus far gave the best testimony. It, indeed, told of a God of Love, as no other religious books do, yet its teachings respecting the future of the non-elect staggered me, for I was sure that they were not Godlike, but the reverse.

Disregarding the Old Testament Scriptures entirely I began with the New. I said, Was not Jesus a most wonderful Character? Is it not true that "never man spake like this Man?" Both heart and head answered, Yes! His teachings are the noblest found on earth! His example fully comports with His teachings! I asked, Can I rely upon the evidence? My mind replied, Yes. If just such men to-day told you their observations you would believe them implicitly. These men confessed that they were ignorant and unlearned men, telling of their own weaknesses in a way that impostors would not do. Their Message abounds in "good tidings of great joy for all people," and not merely for their own nationality. My heart began to take courage. I began to feel that I had found a footing for my faith and that the Bible indeed differed considerably from the various and conflicting creeds which claimed it as their support and Authority.

However, I suddenly remembered that much of the New Testament is composed of passages from the Old Testament and comments thereon. Alas! I said, for I cannot accept the Old Testament Scriptures. But the more I studied the matter the more convinced I was that if Jesus and the Apostles were at all what they claimed to be the Old Testament must be as true as the New—as St. Peter declared, "Holy men of old spoke and wrote as they were moved by the Holy Spirit."

Then I began a more critical study of the Old Testament, and to my joy, as I sought, I found, as I knocked the door of Truth opened for me. I found the Bible teaching very different from what I had supposed it to be, very contrary to that of all the creeds. The latter, indeed, each and all, contain truths taken from the Bible, but truths incrusted with various human credulities and misconceptions—the Bible message as a whole divided amongst many creeds and made to contradict itself.

To my surprise I found the presentations of the Bible not only more logical than anything else in the world, but absolutely the only logical presentation on earth. As interpreted by itself, and not by the creeds and theories of the Dark Ages, the Bible tells one beautiful, reasonable, harmonious story, from Genesis to Revelation. It tells nothing of a fiery hell manned by fire-proof demons, and supplied with fuel for all eternity, to which Adam and his race were sentenced on account of sin. On the contrary, it teaches that "the wages of sin is death."

It tells that "the soul that sinneth, it shall die"; and tells that Adam sinned and came under this death penalty and that all of his race by the laws of heredity are subject to frailty, weakness, mental, moral and physical—and that these have triumphed in a reign of sin and death for now six thousand years. It tells that this death is the death into which Adam and all of his race go—sheol, the hell of the Bible, for all mankind, good and bad. It tells that there is no pain or suffering there, no knowledge, no work of any kind.

It tells that all, both good and bad, sleep, awaiting the resurrection of the dead. It tells that man's death would have been an extinction as complete as that of the brute beast had God in His Wisdom and Love not arranged for human redemption and a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust. It tells that the Divine arrangement whereby God could be just and not repudiate the rulership of His own Court and yet recover man from the death sentence, was arranged for. The arrangement was that Jesus, "by the grace of God, should taste death for every man"; that "as by a man came death, by a Man also should come the resurrection of the dead; for as all in Adam die even so all in Christ shall be made alive, every man in his own order."—Hebrews ii, 9; I. Cor. xv, 21, 22.

With God "a thousand years are as one day." (II. Peter iii, 8.) He has therefore arranged that six of these great days shall constitute man's period of battling with sin and death and that the seventh of these great days shall be the Day of Messiah, the Sabbath or Rest Day to the world, in which Messiah, as the Divine Representative, shall lift up all the willing and obedient, opening their blind eyes, unstopping their deaf ears and causing all to know the Lord, from the least to the greatest.

As a result, some will refuse and die the "Second Death"—utter destruction. No more than a century of trial is to be granted, because we read, "The sinner a hundred years old shall be cut off"—a child a century old in sin shall be accursed—to the Second Death. (Isaiah lxv, 20.) But all who will accept Divine favor may then be brought to full, human perfection, similar to that which Adam enjoyed at the beginning, plus the knowledge of good and evil, which he lacked.

Of these willing and obedient ones it is written, "Every knee shall bow and every tongue confess, to the glory of God." Many of you Chinese, doubtless, will then be bowing before the great King of kings and Lord of lords, whom then you will know completely; for "the knowledge of the Lord shall fill the whole earth as the waters cover the great deep." And your forefathers, whom you reverence, will he there, too; their eyes shall be opened and their ears unstopped, as it is written, "All the blind eyes shall be opened, and all the deaf ears shall be unstopped." What a great re-union time that will be for the Chinese hundreds of millions! Yes, and still more as the Scriptures declare, all the families of the earth shall be blessed similarly with a knowledge of God and with a full opportunity for restitution to all that was lost in Adam—to all that was redeemed at Calvary.—Acts iii, 19-22.

Do you say to me, This news is too good to be true? Do you say, No missionary ever told us of such a gracious God and such a mighty Saviour! Had we heard such a gracious Message it would have attracted our hearts long ago, for our gods are non-sympathetic—they are great, powerful vicious! But we thought as we heard the missionaries' message that the Christian God must be even more ferocious than ours, for the awful, burning hell of which we have heard through Christians is terrible beyond anything we heathens had ever heard of before or conjectured for ourselves!

Alas, my dear friends, I know this very well and the Bible explains the whole matter. It tells us that we have been believing "doctrines of demons" (I. Timothy iv, 1). These vicious doctrines in the past, when more literally believed than to-day, led some noble Christian people into most atrocious conduct.

We are all awaking from this sad blindness, thank God! We are emerging slowly from the darkness of the past. We are in the very dawning of the morning of Messiah's Kingdom, which is to bless the world. The rising of the Sun of Righteousness is to bring the New Day of emancipation from ignorance, superstition and death. The more awake we become the more clearly do we see the beauty of God's Word and the ridiculous inconsistency of things we once believed.

St. Paul explains to us why Satan strives to put darkness for light and light for darkness. He explains why Satan represents himself as an angel of light and endeavors to besmirch the Divine character and to make God the very personification of wickedness and injustice! It is a part of his general endeavor to thwart the Divine Plan, to mislead those who are seeking to know God. Hearken to the Apostle's words: "The god of this world hath blinded the minds of them that believe not, lest the glorious light of God's goodness, as it shines in the face of Jesus Christ our Lord, should shine into their hearts." (II. Corinthians iv., 4.)

In proportion as humanity misconceives God's character and His Word, in that same proportion they will shun the Bible and its God, and thus get away from the faith and hope revealed in the Bible. As I have told you, I had my own bitter experiences along this line. How I thank God for the "eye-salve" and for the glorious vision of the Divine character and Plan which now stands out so distinctly before the eyes of my understanding!

The Gospel of the Bible, the Message of the great God, Infinite in Justice, Wisdom, Love and Power, is a Message of grace, of mercy, as has emanated from no other quarter—such as no other religious book in the world presents. And what else should we expect than that the great Supreme Being would be a Fountain of grace, or blessing to His dependent creatures. It should not surprise us, then to find the Bible clearly teaching that the God of all Grace has in store for humanity great blessings—"times of restitution of all things spoken by the mouth of all the holy Prophets since the world began." (Acts iii, 19-21).

Another Message should not surprise us; it is the message that was sung by the angels on the night of Jesus' birth, "Behold, we bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be unto all people"—the thousands of millions of the Chinese included! It is a joy to me to be permitted to tell this glorious Message to such as have the ear to hear it. It is a further joy to me that in the Divine arrangement the time is coming when "all the deaf ears shall be unstopped" and when the clear knowledge of God's goodness shall fill the earth as the waters cover the deep.

God first told this Message of His benevolent designs toward humanity about thirty-six hundred years ago, when He declared to His friend Abraham, I intend to bless all the families of the earth, and this shall be done through your posterity—"In thee and in thy Seed shall the families of the earth be blessed." The natural seed of Abraham was first developed and instructed, and consequently uplifted, under a Law Covenant. This arrangement prepared the natural seed of Abraham more than others of the world's peoples to receive Jesus; hence, when He presented Himself, and when afterward His message was proclaimed by His twelve Apostles, approximately sixteen thousand Jews became His footstep followers, were begotten of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost and after, and thus became members of the Spiritual Seed of Abraham.

But this number was short of the Divine intention — "a hundred and forty-four thousands." (Revelation xiv.) Hence, in due time, the Message of grace and the privilege of becoming members of the Spiritual Seed of Abraham was extended to one nation after another—to the Jew first, but also to as many as the Lord our God has called, of every nation, people, kindred and tongue. This "elect" number of spirit-begotten followers of Jesus will very soon be completely changed by the glorious First Resurrection, when this mortal and corruptible shall put on immortality. All those found faithful will be made partakers of the divine nature, far above angels, principalities and powers—associates with the Redeemer. (Ephesians i, 21.) Then the Seed of Abraham will be completed and qualified for its great work of blessing the race.

St. Paul declares, "Know ye not that the saints shall judge the world?" (I. Corinthians vi, 2.) The judging will be in the nature of a trial or testing to determine how many of humanity can be helped up to human perfection and harmony with God and everlasting life, and how many unworthy will be destroyed in the Second Death. God, who has elected these kings, priests and judges, has appointed a Day in which they shall rule, bless, instruct, judge mankind in general. It will be the thousand years of Messiah's Kingdom, for "a day with the Lord is as a thousand years."—(II. Peter iii, 7, 8.)

It affords me great pleasure to have the opportunity of delivering this Message of the grace of God in this; the Chinese Paris. May the Lord bless it, not only to the Chinese, but to all who have hearing ears and hearts appreciative of the Divine character. May it assist some in making their "calling and election sure" to membership in the "little flock" to whom the Kingdom is soon to be given. May it favorably influence others that they may walk nobly, reasonably, and be the better prepared to receive the Kingdom blessings and earthly restitution.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

"THERE, I turned that two hundred and eighteen times," said the little bride-lady whom I was visiting.

She had been whipping cream for the dessert, and made the above remark as she lifted the dripping egg beater from the mass of creamy smoothness.

"My gracious, you don't count everything you do, do you?" I questioned.

The little bride-lady laughed. "Yes, I do—that is lots of things. I find it helps quite a lot when I have anything perfectly stupid like that to do, to amuse myself by counting and seeing just how many motions I do have to make."

I suppose a great many people will sniff at the little bride-lady's device. But it seems to me that she has the right idea.

In housework—and indeed in many other lines of work—there are a great many tasks which are monotonous and wearisome on account of their mechanical and routine character. Some of these tasks require so little attention that one can concentrate the mind on other things without being in danger of slighting them. Others require just enough attention to make it inadvisable to turn the mind entirely to other things. Now, I think that there are many little devices which can be used to make these tasks a trifle less monotonous, and I think the little bride-lady's trick of counting does not deserve to be snifted at, if it helped make the work a wee bit less dull and stupid.

Another device that I often use, is to time myself and see if I cannot accomplish the daily task in a little less time than usual. Of course, the objections to this are that too rapid work is apt to be slipshod work, and that continual "speeding up" is bad for the nerves, but used with discretion, I find this a great help.

Still another device, and probably the best of all, is to try to do your work a little bit better than you have ever done it. Try making the glasses look more crystal like. Try to make the beds smoother and the cake lighter and the toast more evenly golden brown, than you ever did before.

Especially, when I have anything to trouble me and find it hard to keep my mind on my work, do I find this little device a help. Again and again I have gone to some task with a mind distracted by other problems, and found it almost impossible to concentrate on the matter in hand. And then I have said, "I'll see just how much better I can do this work than usual," and lo and behold, before very long, my newly stimulated interest in the routine task has banished my troubles and problems quite to the back of my mind.

It often seems too bad that so much routine work must be done over and over and over again. It seems unfortunate that we cannot have machinery to accomplish all these dull little daily tasks, and perhaps sometime we shall. But in the meantime, why not employ any device that will help to make the monotony a trifle less monotonous.?

"The Science Of The Mind"

Address By Mr. R. J. Todd

At the Helping Hand Bible Class of Park Street Baptist Church yesterday a lengthy paper was read by Mr. R. J. Todd, Christian Science practitioner, on the subject, "The Science of the Mind," based on the great commandment, Mark 12:30.

Mr. Todd's address was very interesting and instructive, and was listened to with a great deal of pleasure, by a large class of men, as a masterly exposition of the subject. The subject was dividided into three parts:: The duty of man to his Creator; second, the Method of Worship; third, the results.

The first argument was that we must first know God aright; this includes the topic, "The Science of the Mind". Defined by Webster, science is "the comprehension or understand of truth, or facts of the mind. For the definition of Mind, Mr. Todd took the Bible and Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy, showing that the real mind is God, while the human, or carnal mind, which is in need of changing, is a counterfeit of the divine mind, a belief in another power besides God, called Adam in the Scripture, Genesis, second chapter. This materialistic belief ruptures the brotherhood of man, as seen in the action of Cain slaying his brother, Abel. The beginning of the war in Heaven. Rev. 12::7.

This belief is seen and felt all down the ages in wars, famine, disease, sickness and death, and although it tries many methods to save itself, it utterly fails. Hence the need of a Saviour, the true spiritual knowledge, or the Science of Mind. The speaker then showed that this knowledge began through Abraham, which he defined as faith in the Divine Life; this was seen in healing and saving power, through Elisha, Daniel and others, recorded in the old Testament. Later on it was manifest through Mary, in the child, Jesus—God manifest in the flesh. Through mighty wrongs he proved man's atonement with the Father, thus becoming a Way-shower. He then threw off the flesh, leaving the works to be carried on by those who believe on Him.

Through persecution and unbelief the healing power was lost, but was again rediscovered by Mrs. Eddy, in 1866. The rule and application of the Divine to the human thought she wrote in a book, known as "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures." In proof of the redemptive and healing influence of this book, or Science of Mind, Mr. Todd gave some of his own practical experience, showing that truth is the same yesterday, to-day and for ever. He further declared that it was the Science of Mind, which enabled John to see that eventually the devil would be cast out of Heaven, that death and hell would be cast into the lake of fire—Rev. 20::14. This, Mr. Todd explains as sin, disease, sorrow and death, swallowed up in the infinite ocean of Divine Love; then Heaven harmony would reign supreme here, and now, as in the beginning.

In concluding, he quoted a hymn, written by Charles Parsons. We give the last stanza:

"Then open wide your heart
To truth and light and love,
You then shall know your life is hid
With Christ in God above".

Old Country Dance Success

The Old Country Dance, held in the Conservatory of Music Hall on Friday night, was a most gratifying success, and the energetic committee, which had the affair in charge are to be congratulated upon the result of their efforts. There was a very large attendance of Old Country people and the evening was thoroughly enjoyable. The programme, consisting entirely of British dances, for which splendid music was provided by the Orchestra of the Grand Opera House. Refreshments were served, and the gathering broke up at an early hour.

LIVELY RUNAWAY

A lively runaway on Chralotte St., west of Park street, furnished excitement for the few pedestrians who chanced to be passing that way this morning, about 8 o'clock. A horse attached to a butcher's outfit, left standing in front of a residence, became impatient for its master, or its animal instinct drove it to seek freedom, and it bolted, west, on Charlotte, to the boundary, where it upset the sleigh in making the turn. A number of men engaged on the erection of a building near there, ran out, and succeeded in stopping the animal before any more damage resulted. The sleigh did not suffer much damage.

IN DREAD OF CROUP

Every mother dreads croup unless she knows about Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Given in frequent small doses, at the first indication of trouble, this treatment loosens the cough and affords relief and comfort. No one should be kept up until the child is entirely recovered.

NEW RECTOR OCCUPIES PULPIT OF ALL SAINTS'

Rev. R. B. Grobb Preached His First Sermons Yesterday and Made a Most Favourable Impression.

LARGE CONGREGATIONS

The initial services conducted yesterday at All Saints' church by the Rev. R. B. Grobb, M.A., who hails from Toronto, were exceptional in the fact that the attendances were the largest recorded in the history of the church.

The beauty of the services was enhanced by the specially selected music sung by the choir. The rendering in the evening service of the anthem, "Sleep, Holy Babe," was especially well balanced and denoted a careful training.

The Rev. Mr. Grobb proved himself an eloquent preacher and his sermons were interesting and highly edifying. He chose as his text for the evening's address the 31st verse of the 40th chapter of Isaiah, "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength. They shall mount on high as eagles; they shall run and not be weary; they shall walk and not faint."

"I want you to notice," said the preacher, "the formation of this text. They shall fly, they shall run, they shall walk. Were we to make use of such words in the present day, I think we should revise them. We should say: They shall walk, they shall run, they shall fly. But the prophet was right. irst the vision, the ideal, then the rush after the ideal, then the dreary drudge through life.

"If we read this 40th chapter of Isaiah, we will see here that we have a panoramic view of the life of Israel, and you can well understand the condition of the people at that time. They had lost faith. A spirit of scepticism was rife. Not only were the people's bodies, but their minds were in bondage. They wanted to fly. They wanted visions to encourage them to go on.

"What next did they want? They wanted enthusiasm. They must begin that life anew; they must run, and they did run.

"And what next? They must walk. There were some who thought that when Jerusalem was built the Messiah would come. But not yet—they had to wait 500 years before He would come. And when He did come, He didn't come as they expected him to come. He came meek and lowly. And then comes the Christian era when we have instead of general enthusiasm, pioneers of gospel. The prophet had those men in mind when he said, they shall walk and not faint. The prophet was thinking of the nation. But he was also thinking of the individual who lives in very uninspiring circumstances.

"There is one word that I want you to notice, and that is the world renew. What we want from time to time is to have our faith renewed. We don'tcome here to have God renewed to us. We come here to have our faith renewed. Sometimes our faith wavers a little and we want it increased.

There is in the world a power of rising above things and that power is the gospel. If we could understand it it would be of no use. It would be small. There would be no room. The Bible never tires of talking about "aboveness." They shall mount on high as eagles. The climax of our faith is that it improves us every day. The only danger that ever comes to you or to me is the danger of losing faith in our purpose in life, and that purpose is the love of God. We must go on and on until we obtain that enthusiasm that will never faint.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Patterson Receive a Silver Tea Service From Their Friends

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Patterson were most pleasantly surprised on Friday evening—their silver wedding anniversary—when a number of Mr. Patterson's gentlemen friends, waited upon him, at his home, on Hunter street, and presented him and Mrs. Patterson with a very handsome silver tea service. An address, appropriate to the occasion, was read by Mr. W. H. Denham, and Mr. Patterson replied in an effective speech, in which he expressed the deep gratitude of himself and wife for the kind words and beautiful gift from their friends.

The visitors were most pleasantly entertained, and the evening was one of thorough enjoyment. The Examiner joins with their many friends in congratulating Mr. and Mrs. Patterson upon their 25th anniversary of their wedding.

ALL YOU NEED IS A CASCARET TO-NIGHT

No Sick Headache, Bilious Stomach, Coated Tongue or Constipated Bowels by Morning

Turn the rascals out—the headache, the biliousness, the indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases—turn them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse and regulate your stomach; remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and that misery-making gas; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out of the system all the decomposed waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Children love to take Cascarets because they taste good—never gripe or sicken.

Cold Wave Strikes Peterboro' With A Jar

Frozen Ears and Noses Are a Common Malady These Days

If the testimony of eighteen or nineteen thousand citizens counts for much, it is evident that Peterborough has not been overlooked by the Frost King during his stay in the province. As a matter of fact his visit has been the coldest proposition that this city has had to contend with this winter. To the old timer it obtains as being an excellent opportunity to bring forward that antedated crop of cold weather yarns, that found their beginning many years ago, and to the new arrival who has yet to endure a Canadian winter, it inspires a profound respect for the rigours of our climate.

The Coldest Yet.

It was on Friday evening that the mercury in the thermometer began to do the disappearing act, and for the first time this winter, it hit the zero mark. Not contented with that, it proceeded on its downward course until it registered 23 degrees below zero according to the official reading at 7 o'clock on Saturday morning. The extreme cold weather prevented many farmers coming to town with the result that the price of provisions went skywards. Toward noon the mercury began to emerge from its hiding place, and for a couple of hours during the noon-day it hovered around 10 degrees below zero.

Pipes Froze Up.

"'Tis an ill wind that blows no one good," says the old adage, and the plumbers certainly reaped a belated harvest, as the result of the sudden drop in temperature and the neglect of many householders to adopt precautionary methods. Frozen and burst water pipes, with all their attendant discomforts, were common. St. Paul's church was among the places to suffer from a disabled heating apparatus. The steam heating pipes of the church burst on Saturday night and were therefore out of commission for the Sunday morning services. Repairs were hastily made in time for Sunday school, but a few minutes prior to the opening one of the steam pipes burst and a hurry call was sent to the Fire Department. They responded and soon had the situation in hand, and peace and tranquility settled down once more within the edifice.

"Oh, You Furnace."

It's funny how obstinate the furnace of a boarding house will become on a very cold day, absolutely declining to emit any warmth to the top story. The unlucky occupant, on descending to the ground floor to interview the head of the house, gets little encouragement, being told that coal is dear, and on returning to his quarters he decides that the landlady's sympathy is dear also.

Cases of Frost Bite.

There has been an unusually large number of cases of frozen ears and noses in the city during the past two days. One prominent member of the medical fraternity, treated seven cases on Saturday and there were several more reported yesterday. A case was reported in the south end of where four members of one family were afflicted with frozen ears.

THE WEATHER

The lowest the thermometer went Saturday night was 12 degrees below zero; the lowest last night was 14 below. This morning at seven o'clock it was just zero.—W. P.

A Sunday Morning Visit to Knox Presbyterian Church

(By Roy Gilray.)

"Our to-days and yesterdays
Are the blocks with which we build"
—Longfellow.

The phenomenal growth of Peterborough to the South and West has been responsible for the construction of a number of churches in that section of the city.

One of the first to be established to meet the growing need is now known as Knox Presbyterian Church. When the two ladies—the late Mrs. Jas. A. Hall and Miss Charlotte Dickson—who first had the vision of the growth of the city towards the south, saw the need of work in that section there was no church south of Charlotte street. Now there are six, mostly in new buildings.

The only unoccupied building that could be found at the commencement, in 1872, was a stable on the east side of Aylmer street, between Charlotte and King. (This very building was originally the first Presbyterian Church in Peterborough, having been used during the early ministry of the late Rev. Mr. Roger.) The school was opened with a membership of nine scholars, with Mr. T. W. Nisbet as its first Superintendent, assisted by Mr. Jas. A. Hall.

In one year the school had outgrown the place of its birth. A vacant lot was found on Dalhousie St., between Stewart and Rubidge, and a building erected thereon. The school made great strides in its new quarters, under the leadership of Mr. W. W. Johnston.

St. John's Church made a request for the use of the building, and, as a result of their work, All Saints' sprang up. Park Street Baptist also made use of the building in its earliest efforts.

In 1892, the property now occupied by Knox Church was purchased—thanks to the generosity of the late Mrs. Nicholls, who gave a substantial donation. Arrangements were made for the erection of a school, but the Presbytery did not sanction the move, so the project was given up. The school disbanded and the scholars became scattered among other denominations.

Ten years later the Presbytery reconsidered the matter and granted permission to proceed, and the building now used as a Sunday School was constructed under the direction of a committee appointed by St. Paul's Church. It was conducted as St. Paul's Mission, the services being in charge of Rev. Dr. Torrance, and his assistant, Rev. J. A. Wilson, who was succeeded by the following: Rev. H. B. Ketchen, Rev. W. M. MacKay, and Rev. A. Bright.

The present congregation became an independent organization Jan. 1st, 1907, the step being made easier by a donation of $5,000 from the Trustees of the Nicholls' estate. On March 3rd of that year, Rev. Hanry J. Keith, M.A., B.D., was called to be the Minister of the new congregation.

The Church has made rapid progress, and, under his leadership they are now domiciled in one of the finest churches in the city. The popularity of Mr. and Mrs. Keith, among their people was clearly shown last month when they were presented with an address of appreciation and a handsome Christmas box, each by the members of their congregation.

Mr. Keith, though young has had wide experience in the service for his Master. After graduating from the Theological College, at Montreal, he received two calls: one from Winnipeg, as Assistant to Rev. Dr. Du Val; the other, from the International Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association of New York, as Travelling Secretary in India, to have special supervision of Bible study work among the students of the universities. He accepted the latter, and, in company with Mrs. Keith, journeyed to India, where they visited the principal seats of learning in that country. The climate did not agree with Mrs. Keith, however-so, after a stay of two years, they returned to Canada.

Knox Church is named after the great Scottish Reformer, John Knox—born at Haddington, 1505, educated at the University of Glasgow, a disciple of Wishart, the martyr, who was burned at the stake in St. Andrew's, for his heresy. Wishart came to Scotland from Germany, filled with a burning zeal to gain his country to the Lutheran reformation.

Knox became the apostle of the cause with which his name is forever identified—the establishment in Scotland of what he deemed the only true conception of the primitive church as based on the teachings of Christ and the Apostles.

After the burning of Wishart, Knox was sent a prisoner to France, where he worked for two years as a galley slave. His sufferings here told greatly on his health and were the means of seriously impairing his future usefulness. This imprisonment was never forgotten by Knox and accounts for his conviction that no good thing could come of France or her religion.

Regaining his liberty through the intercession of Edward VI., he deemed it wise to remain on the continent during the regency of Mary in Scotland. It was during this sojourn at Geneva that he came into touch with Calvin.

In 1559 he returned to the country of his birth, and was instrumental, the following year, in having the "Confession of Faith" drawn up, which was formally established as the religion of the country.

Knox was Minister of St. Giles Church, Edinburgh, (after which New St. Andrew's in Toronto is modelled) and was buried in its churchyard, a small square stone, marked "I. K. 1572," now indicates the spot where he is supposed to lie.

He stands as the pre-eminent type of Religious Reformer. The revolution he was the main instrument in effecting was the transformation of the national ideals, the quickening of the national life, the victory of principles, which eventually assured to Scotland the free and natural development of the life of her people.

The severity of the weather of Saturday made many people shiver when they thought of going to church on Sunday, at least I imagined so, when I saw the large number of empty seats in Knox Presbyterian church last Sunday morning. Having a long distance to go we started early and arrived early, almost the first there. We were well repaid for the long walk, however. It was our first visit to the new church, and a handsome structure it is. The people are to be congratulated on possessing such an attractive church home. They have every opportunity for accomplishing a great work in the south part of the city, and it is to be hoped they will realize the great responsibility that lies at their door.

In nearly all the other churches we visited we knew a large number in the audiences, but last Sunday we realized we were strangers among a strange people. Nevertheless we were received kindly, if hearty handshaking at the close of the service is any evidence. The singing was very hearty, notwithstanding the fact that there was but a small organ to assist the choir. They believe in creeping before they walk. A pipe organ will come in due time. We did not miss the larger instrument very much, however, for a young man who sat near us had a voice as deep as the longest pipe on any pedal organ.

The mid-week prayer meeting is well organized, being along the same lines as the system in vogue in St. Andrew's, which I fully outlined in my report on that Church: the chief feature being the holding of seven distinct meetings in as many parts of the city, once every month.

The work among the young men deserves special mention, particularly that being done by the Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip. This society has for its sole object, the spread of Christ's Kingdom among men. It is founded on Scriptural authority, and derives its name from the account contained in the first chapter of the Gospel of St. John, in which Andrew is described as bringing his brother Simon, and Philip, his friend, Nathaniel, to Christ. It appeals to men of all ages; it binds them together for more effective service. It seeks out those who do not go to church and brings them in. It is the pastor's body-guard, ready for any service, even as teachers in the Sabbath School. It induces them to attend the morning church service by their presence at the 10 o'clock meeting of the Chapter. It has formed the rallying centre for a number of the earnest young men of the Church, and has become a warm, spiritual fireplace for newcomers. The outstanding feature of the Brotherhood is personal work. It is the personal invitation, the heart to heart talk that counts in bringing men into the Kingdom.

The text was taken from Acts 9:11—"Behold he prayeth". Going back to the time of our childhood, when at our mother's knee we lisped our little prayer, we delighted in the time of prayer; we prayed in faith, and believed that God answered our petitions. Since then a great change has come over us. Some think they do not need to pray, and seldom raise their voices in supplication; others have given it up altogether.

The weakness of the churches today can be explained only by a lack of prayer.

We wonder at the great progress of science, the wireless telegraph, and other marvellous inventions, but these are no more wonderful than the great results that have been wrought through prayer.

Prayer is the evidence of new life.

The thought of Saul praying was strange, indeed, so strange, that when Ananias was commanded by the Lord to go to Saul, he hesitated because he had heard how Saul had persecuted the disciples in Jerusalem, and how he had come to Damascus for the purpose of carrying them bound to that city. But the great difference in Saul was that he had prayed. Therefore, he became a new man.

The effect of prayer was illustrated by reference to a man in New York, who, while standing at a bar, exclaimed: "I am going to die"; then the awfulness of his condition flashed over him and he added: "But I do not want to die drunk". Making his way to a mission he asked for their prayers. The only prayer he could offer himself was: "Jesus I am in an awful hole, help me out". The result of this strange prayer has been the reclamation of the Bowery. He became one of the greatest workers of New York City.

Paul was a new man because he prayed, but he never ceased praying. Throughout all his letters to his fellow disciples in other cities he not only told them how he prayed, but besought them to be diligent in prayer.

As long as our souls are turned to God in prayer we are turned away from the world and its evil influences.

A traveller in Texas spent the night in a hut, along with a number of rough-looking men. He lay down with his revolver by his side, fearing the worst, but presently one of the men took a Bible, read a chapter and all the men knelt down in prayer. The whole situation was changed; the traveller put away his revolver; he lost all fear when he saw the men pray.

Paul's prayer was the evidence of a new power.

We need more of that power which Paul exercised in the early Christian Church. The churches of to-day are reaping the results of his power. The prayer-life is the bulwark of the church. The foundations of all great movements have been laid in prayer. To realize the great power of prayer in our day we have but to look at the achievements of such men as Livingstone, Gordon, or Carey, in India.

Prayer is the evidence of a new service.

All the great blessings are ours if we but claim them. Prayer is needed for the spiritual growth of the church. If we do not pray we are sinning against the church. Is this congregation not in need of great blessings as the result of prayer to make it alive and accomplish great things in spiritual service? Then our weaknesses would vanish, God's people would be united for greater service in His vineyard. If we have never prayed before may this Week of Prayer give us the spirit of prayer until the heavens are opened and the spirit of God is poured out on His people.

SHOULD WOMEN VOTE

No one who keeps posted on the great work being done by women in professional and business life, and, most important of all, in the American home, can for a moment doubt that they would vote wisely.

If they would only guard their own health as carefully as they do their children's they could accomplish even more.

One woman who knows how necessary it is to stay well is Mrs. Herman of North Birmingham (Ala.) Her daughter, Miss Mona, says in a letter: "We have used Vinol in our family for four years. Whenever my mother gets a bad cold or feels weak and run-down she always uses Vinol and it makes her well again. She says Vinol always gives her strength and builds her up."

This delicious cod liver and iron remedy without oil is so certain to cure up chronic coughs, and build up weak, run-down, sickly people of all ages, that we sell it under a positive promise to give back your money if Vinol does not satisfy you. Try Vinol. McDermid and Jury, corner George and Charlotte streets; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe streets.

WERE DELIGHTED

A prominent member of the Board of Trade, Toronto, writes to Grand Trunk Ry. System as follows: "The members of the Board that took advantage of the dining car on your railway on their return from Guelph last evening, were delighted with the accommodation, and service given on the car, and we are sorry that our party did not include more members to take advantage of the splendid service we all enjoyed.

Mrs. A. R. Tabor, of Crider, Mo., had been troubled with sick headache for about five years, when she began taking Chamberlain's Tablets. She has taken two bottles of them and they have cured her. Sick headache is caused by disordered stomach for which these tablets are especially intended. Try them, get well and stay well. Sold by all dealers.

A Language Legend

The woes of a foreigner grappling with the peculiarities of the English language are numberless. I have come to this conclusion in view of the experiences of a great, many foreigners from different parts of the world, and, still better, after some years' struggle on my own part to master the intricacies of this tongue, of which the Germans are accustomed to speak as "a monster having two mouths, with one of which it speaks German and with the other Latin." Only two mouths? — speaking two languages? The Germans would come nearer to the truth if they had multiplied these numbers by a dozen or a score.

When a boy I heard a fantastic Turkish legend, which, to my mind, aptly illustrates the actual facts concerning the origin and formation of modern English. After creating the first parents of each of the races, so the story runs, Allah took a large piece of meat, and, cutting it into slices, distributed them among these people to serve them as tongues. But for some reason the Englishman was absent while the other received their share. At last he came to the presence of his Maker and in mute humility begged him to put a tongue into his mouth. But nothing was left of the meat. So Allah was obliged to cut a little piece from the tongues of all the others, and joined these pieces. He thus fashioned a tongue for the Englishman.

This story seemed merely amusing to me as a boy; but when I came to this country and began to struggle with English I found to my exasperation and sorrow that the legend approached the facts too closely to be amusing.

Not long ago I was talking with two educated American women about the difficulties of a foreigner in acquiring English. "Do you know how many letters and combinations of letters are used to represent the sound sh?" They confessed they did not, having never thought of it—"two or three, perhaps four." On stating that there were more than half a dozen of them, they demanded proof, and when I put down on paper these words—sugar, shoe, tension, chaperon, social, ocean, obnoxious, nation, issue, conscious—their astonishment was great. Here are ten different symbols for the same sound. I acknowledge this as an extreme case, but a little consideration will bring to notice marked singularities in almost all the other consonants.

A literary young man asked: "Miss ——, I suppose you are familiar with Crabbe's Tales?" The young woman scornfully replied: "I was not aware that crabs had tails." The young man hastened to add: "I should have said read Crabbe's Tales." Still more scornfully the young lady replied: "And I was not aware that red crabs had tails, either."

Many foreigners have attempted to find a system in the spelling of English words, but, to their dismay, they have found that it was like the Irishman's flea—when they had it, it was gone. While grouping with satisfaction such words as exceed, proceed, that ended in ceed, they came upon other words, such as accede, recede, precede, that ended with cede, with no earthly reason, and cast their short-lived satisfaction to the winds. Deceit and receipt would not come under the same spelling. All these peculiarities impose upon a foreigner's memory a heavy and intolerable burden. A learned man has said that the English language is "the most barbarously spelled of any cultivated tongue in Christendom," and I do not think that anyone can dispute the assertion.

The orthography of the English language does not by any means cover the whole of a foreigner's troubles. One of the most perplexing features of the English tongue is the fact that, as a rule, the same word has different significations. My dictionary attributes to the to the verbs see, lead, hold and draw, fourteen, eighteen, nineteen, and thirty-two meanings respectively. Now, for a foreigner to be able to distinguish all their various meanings is a herculean task. The words which have only one or two meanings are comparatively few. Is it surprising that a foreigner is often puzzled by the numerous and sometimes opposite meanings of many an English word? Just for an illustration, consider the perplexity of a persevering Frenchman, arising from the word fast, as is shown from the following dialogue:

"Zis horse, said, he go queek; what you say?"

"Yes, he is a fast horse."

"Ah, pardon, monsieur, but your friend say he make fast his horse, and he tie him to a post so he no go at all."

"Very true, he is made fast by being tied."

"Ah, sat cannot be; he cannot go fast. But what you call a man that keeps fast?"

"Oh, he is a good man that does not eat on fast days."

"But I have seen one bon vivant, who eat and drink and ride and do everything. Ze people say he was a bad man—he is very fast."

"True; that is called living a fast life."

"Ah, certainement; sen all ze days of his life must be fast days."

"Certainly they are."

"Eh. bien! Does he eat every day?"

"Certainly he does."

"Zen how can he keep fast?"

"Why, he keeps going, to be sure."

"Vy, you tell me to stand fast when you want me to keep still, and go fast when you want me to run—how can I understand?"

Once, while talking with a school teacher, I said: "I hear you are leaving us; I hope you are going for good." I cannot forget the woman's amused expression as she understood that I wished her well.

Take the words "up" and down." Last summer the selectmen of our town put up on the roads signs bearing the legend, "Autos Slow Up." I do not even now understand why it should not as well be "slow down." If both expressions are permissible, will someone explain the difference between "slowing up" and "slowing down?" The following telephone conversation illustrates some of the singular uses of these bothersome words. To a request of a friend to speak to Mr. ——, Mrs. —— replied: "I'm sorry my husband isn't down yet. I mean, he isn't up yet. I'm letting him sleep late this morning. He was so down last evening over his office troubles that he was about ready to give up. He says he'll be down as soon as he gets up.—Bookman.

Modest Veteran

(Ottawa Citizen.)

There is in the ranks of the 23rd Battery of Ottawa probably the oldest active militiaman in the Dominion, Sergt. W. H. Sullivan, who has served since 1863 and is still hale and hearty. Sergt. Sullivan has seldom missed a training camp, is still active and efficient and can handle a horse with the best of them. His son served in South Africa and both are members of the same corps. Sergt. Sullivan wears the Fenian Raid and Long Service medals, but such a remarkable period of service seems to be deserving of some special recognition at the hands of the authorities. At the artillery brigade dinner the health of the veteran was proposed, and in response he modestly put aside the complimentary reference to himself, but characteristically put in a good word for the battery horses, which are his special charge, remarking: "All I can say is that I hope the new Minister of Militia will allow us more hay for our horses." This sentiment could not be improved upon by a whole military conference.

YUAN SEEKS EXTENSION

He Asks for a Delay of Proceedings and Dr. Sun Accedes

POWERS PROTECT RAILWAY

Shanghai, Jan. 8.—There is reason to believe that the armistice will be extended for fifteen days. Yuan Shi Kai has requested the extension and President Sun Yat Sen is willing to agree to it conditionally. Terms are now being arranged.

The republicans Saturday assumed control of the Tientsin-Pekow Railway. They notified the foreign officials representing the British and German bondholders that the headquarters of the road have been removed from Pekin to Nanking. Foreigners are being re-employed.

By order of the president a prominent contractor was shot Saturday evening for extorting funds in the name of Sun Yat Sen.

Gen. Homer Lea, the American officer who accompanied Dr. Sun Yat Sen to China, it was said for the purpose of taking a responsible position with the revolutionaries as military adviser, has received official notification that there is a penalty of death attached to the participation by an American in the insurrection in China. Gen. Lea some time ago declined to act as chief of staff.

Powers to Act.

Pekin, Jan. 8.—The treaty powers have undertaken the protection of the railroad between Pekin and the sea. Interruption of traffic along this line, which has prevented the passage of the mails for four days, has resulted in this decision. Detachments of British, German, Japanese, and French troops have been stationed at intervals between Pekin and Chinwangtao, according to the plan devised two months ago. A Japanese general is in command, as he is the training officer.

The respective nations assume charge of different sections of the road, Great Britain taking care of the section between Pekin and Yangshan, the United States, Tangshan to Lanchow, and Japan from Lanchow to Chin Wang Tao. The United States has no troops in North China, except 300 legation guards, and has been unable to assume responsibility for the section alloted to it, but British troops are protecting that district until the Americans arrive. Just when additional American troops will reach China is not known, although Minister Calhoun cabled several days ago to the State Department at Washington, advising the despatch of a regiment on a peace footing. So far he has received no reply from the Department.

The legations regret that they cannot control the Chinese Imperial Railroad up to the Japanese junction in Manchuria, thereby ensuring a continuation of the trans-Siberian mails, but the protocol does not authorize anything further than maintaining communication to the sea, the nearest open port being Chinwangtao, as Tientsin is icebound.

Yuan Shi Kai is pleased at the action of the powers, because it relieves the Imperial administration of responsibility and ensures the maintenance of communication, which the Imperial troops might be unable to do. The powers do not assume the administration of the district, and consequently the Imperialists profit by the arrangement, the trains not being available to the rebels.

Premier Yuan has sent a telegram to Wu Ting Fang complaining that it is inconsistent with the national constitution to establish a republican government, the president of which has taken an oath to overthrow the Manchu Government. Yuan asks to be informed as to the object of the establishment of a republic and whether the president could be removed from office should the national convention decide on a constitutional monarchy.

It would appear as if the Imperial Premier is seeking delay, believing that time will cause dissensions in the south. Several generals are urging him to fight, but it is thought that he will await an attack. The people of Chili and Shantum Provinces, who are for the most part revolutionary, are organising, but they find that they are not in a position to take part in a rising, as they are without rifles or military supplies. Should the Imperial army become disaffected, the case would be different.

The Empress Dowager has issued orders to the princes not to leave Pekin. Recently there has been a stiffening of the court's decision to hold out.

Brutal Hangings at Tabriz.

Tabriz, Jan. 8.—Four more nationalists were hanged on Saturday near the Russian camp. The executions were carried out in a primitive and brutal manner. The ropes were placed around the necks of the condemned men and pulled sharply. Thus the victims were slowly strangled. Some of the victims lived fifteen minutes. No bandage covered the eyes, and in some case the arms and legs were unbound.

PASTOR CONFESSES.

Rec. G. V. Richeson Admits Murdering His Sweetheart.

Boston, Jan. 8.—The Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, formerly pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church of Cambridge, yesterday made a written confession to the effect that he poisoned his former sweetheart, Miss Avis Linnell. The statement was given into the hands of his counsel, who made the confession public at one p.m. Saturday.

As Rev. Mr. Richeson stands today before the law, he is indicted for the murder in the first degree of Miss Linnell, by giving her a quantity of cyanide of potassium. The penalty for such a crime in Massachusetts is death in the electric chair. If Richeson stands in court on Jan. 15 next, the date set for his trial, and acknowledges his guilt in accordance with his statement made public Saturday, the court, under the law, would be obliged to impose the death sentence, in the opinion of court house officials.

The confession of Rev. Mr. Richeson follows:

"Boston, Jan. 3, 1912.

"John L. Lee, Esq.:
"William A. Morse, Esq.:
"Philip R. Dunbar, Esq.:

"Gentlemen: Deeply penitent for my sin, and earnestly desiring, as far as in my power lies, to make atonement, I hereby confess that I am guilty of the offence of which I stand indicted.

"I am moved to this course by no inducement of self-benefit or leniency. Heinous as is my crime, God has not wholly abandoned me, and my conscience and manhood, however depraved and blighted, will not admit of my still further wronging by a public trial her whose pure young life I have destroyed. Under the lashings of remorse I have suffered and am suffering the tortures of the damned. In this I find a measure of comfort. In my mental anguish I recognize that there is still, by the mercy of the Master, some remnant of the Divine Spark of goodness still lingering with me. I could wish to live only because within some prison's walls I might, in some small measure, redeem my sinful part, help some other despairing soul, and, at last, find favor with my God.

"You are instructed to deliver this to the district attorney, or to the judge of the court.

"Sincerely yours,
"Clarence V. T. Richeson."

Just before noon Saturday the judges of the Supreme Court and the district attorney went into conference at the court house, and about an hour later representatives of the press were called to the office of William A. Morse, the leading counsel for the accused clergyman. Typewritten sheets containing the confession were handed to the newspaper men, and those who paused to ask for some further explanation were told that there was nothing more to be said at this time.

The fact that the confession was dated three days ago was also pointed out to the counsel, but they refused to comment upon it at this time.

Fatality on C.P.R. Crossing.

Glencoe, Ont., Jan. 8.—A double fatality occurred at the Canadian Pacific Railway crossing at North Glencoe Saturday night at midnight, when Henry and Walter Smith were struck and instantly killed by the Canadian Pacific express. Walter Smith, an employe of John Curnoe of London, had arrived by the Grand Trunk Limited Express, which was about three hours late, for a visit to his brother, Henry, a farmer of Mosa.

It is thought that they were heavily wrapped, as the night was very cold, and they did not hear the train. Their horse was killed and the bodies of the unfortunate brothers mangled almost beyond recognition. Walter was unmarried, while Henry leaves a young wife, the daughter of the late William Quick.

$30,000 Fire at Montreal.

Montreal, Jan. 8.—Fire broke out on the second floor of the factory of the Dominion Button factory on Visitation street at midnight last night, resulting in damage from fire, smoke and water to the building and stock of from $20,000 to $30,000. The entire second storey was gutted and the rest of the building badly damaged. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Despair and Despondency

No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures so bravely endured completely upset the nerves if long continued.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for weaknesses and disease of the feminine organism.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. Honest medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing to urge upon you as "just as good." It is non-secret, non-alcoholic and has a record of forty years of cures. Ask Your Neighbors. They probably know of some of its many cures.

If you want a book that tells all about woman's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 21 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to date edition, in paper covers. In handsome cloth-binding, 50 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

OLD COUPLE WERE SLAIN

Terrible Double Murder Shocks New York City

WORK OF A FANATIC

New York, Jan. 8.—A case of double murder found in an east side house yesterday is one of the most shocking in detail of any since the Goldensuppe dismemberment and the "Jack-the-Ripper" series of crimes. Isaac Futerman, 69 years old, and his wife, Rachael, 72 years old, were found dead in their rooms at No. 161 Norfolk street, their bodies terribly mutilated.

The police believe that the aged couple were practically tortured to death, and in the absence of any well-established motive for such a crime, the police think the Futermans were victims of some religious maniac.

Futerman was a retired manufacturer, who had accumulated a small fortune, but he had always refused to leave the east side neighborhood, where he settled when he came from Russia many years ago. He was a zealous church worker and aided in founding a synagogue in his district, at which he and his wife have been regular attendants for many years. The couple lived alone, with three children living in other parts of the city.

One of these, Aaron Futerman, superintendent of a brass factory, discovered the bodies when he called at the house yesterday for his regular weekly visit. He and the police forced an entrance and found the father's body on a sofa and the mother's on a bed, both only partially dressed. There were deep gashes across both faces and bodies, and the eyes of both were terribly mutilated. The nature of the mutilation led the police to believe that it had been begun while the Futermans were alive, and that death had actually been caused by blows over the head which fractured both skulls.

The bodies bore finger prints which police experts took photographs of. The key to the door of their rooms was missing, and a small bag in which Mrs. Futerman is said to have carried money, tied about her neck, and jewelry which Mr. Futerman is said to have worn, could not be found, but the police did not believe that robbery was the motive of the crime. The murderer evidently locked the door behind him and took the key with him and left no trace of his identity except the bloody finger-prints on the bodies.

The son, Aaron Futerman, declared that the murder was a complete mystery to him, for he did not know that his father had an enemy in all the world. He said that what money the murderer could have secured was comparatively small, as his father kept practically all his money in a bank.

A large number of central office detectives were at work on the case last night, but up to a late hour they had run upon no good clue. The police believe that the murder occurred several days ago, as decomposition had set in slightly, the neighbors do not remember seeing the aged couple since January 3.

AN UNHAPPY TRIBUTE.

England, Germany and France Resent Lonsdale's Talk.

Berlin, Jan. 8.—The interview with the Earl of Lonsdale, concerning the German Emperor, published in The London Daily News, divides interest with the elections. The German newspapers carry long despatches, quoting Lord Lonsdale, but what comment has been elicited so far is unfavorable, with the recent Anglo-German difficulties fresh in mind.

The Post says that Lonsdale's references to the Emperor's greatness as a general or his genius for flattery are in the first taste. The Emperor, added the paper, long since realised that he is no Frederick the Great nor another Frederick William, the great elector, and has announced that if war came, although assuming nominal command of the army, he would refrain to the utmost from interfering with the professional leaders.

The references of Lord Lonsdale to His Majesty's 'anglophilism, says The Post, are insulting, in view of the summer's events.

France Is Uneasy.

Paris, Jan. 8.—The uneasiness felt by French financiers and diplomats relative to Great Britain and Germany is again voiced in the leading article in The Temps. Yesterday concerning the Lord Lonsdale interview on the German Emperor, The Temps regrets these repeated attempts to force the feeling of friendship between the two countries. Lonsdale's efforts in that direction, it says, like others, has failed lamentably and only increases the spirit of bitterness. Germany no longer believes what Englishmen say. On the other hand, the paper points out, the projected augmentation of the German navy strikes a blow at English national security and the English national purse.

"The most glowing words of the Emperor," The Temps says, "will never advance the cause of peace an inch, so long as this national menace hangs over the head of Great Britain."

The newspapers also give prominence to the statement in a German newspaper by M. Pichon, ex-Minister of Foreign Affairs, that the new year does not augur well for the disciples of peace and that the horizon seems obscured by difficulties and complications.

Rejected Suitor's Revenge.

Montreal, Jan. 8.—Because he was rejected as a suitor by fifteen-year-old Denise Sarrazin, who said that she would never marry an Italian, Victor Ruceppi, aged 23, attempted Saturday night to blow up the young girl's home with dynamite. The dynamite cartridge went through the lower storey of the house and exploded in the kitchen flat occupied by Joseph Cousineau. No one was hurt.

Ruceppi was arrested, later confessing. He will be arraigned to-day.

THE NAVAL WAR STAFF

Great Britain is to Have a Board of Advisers

THEY WILL STUDY TACTICS

London, Jan. 8.—The First Lord of the Admiralty, Winston Churchill, has made further important changes in addition to those initiated in November last, when Admiral Sir Francis Bridgeman, Vice-Admiral Prince Louis of Battenberg and Captain Wm. C. Pakenham became first, second and fourth sea lords respectively. An Admiralty memorandum issued yesterday, completes the naval reorganization by the creation of a naval war staff, of which Admiral Ernest Troubridge, heretofore private secretary of the First Lord of the Admiralty, becomes chief.

Sir Francis J. S. Hopwood, formerly Under Secretary of State for Colonies, who was on the staff of King George, then Prince of Wales, during his visit to Canada in 1908, is appointed an additional Civil Lord of the Admiralty Board. Rear-Admiral David Beatty, who, in 1901 married Ethel Field, daughter of the late Marshall Field of Chicago, succeeds Admiral Troubridge in the secretaryship.

Capt. Geo. A. Ballard, of the battleship Britannia, and Capt. Thomas Jackson, assistant director of naval intelligence, have been appointed directors of the operations division and the intelligence division, respectively.

Mr. Churchill, in a long explanatory statement, says that the war staff is to be the brain, applied continuously to scientific and speculative study of naval strategy and preparation, and will be organized from the existing elements in the three divisions—intelligence, operations and mobilization. These divisions will be combined under a flag officer as chief of staff. The war staff will have no executive authority. Its responsibilities will end with the tendering of advice to the First Sea Lord.

A complete list of the officers forming the staff, which will comprise most of the grades, will be promulgated soon.

Mr. Churchill further explains that the new Civil Lord will be the "buyer and business manager" of the navy, while there will be close co-operation between the naval staff and the war staff of the army.

Capt. Alex. L. Duff, director of naval mobilization, has been appointed head of the mobilization division of the new war staff. The cost of the staff will be provided by abolishing four official Admiralty yachts, thus saving about $175,000 annually.

The body of Harold Comer, who broke through the ice on the Sydenham river at Wallaceburg on Saturday, was recovered yesterday. The search was made after a statement of Mrs. Scott, who dreamed where the body could be found.

Got A Pain In Your Back?

IF YOU HAVE HEED THE WARNING.

You get a pain in your back, and you wonder what is the matter. When the back aches or becomes weak it is a warning that the kidneys are affected in some way.

Heed the warning; cure the weak, lame, aching back and dispose of any chances of further trouble.

If you don't do this, serious complications are very apt to arise, and the first thing you know you will be troubled with Dropsy, Diabetes or Bright's Disease; the three most deadly forms of kidney trouble.

On the first sign of a pain in the back, Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken.

They go right to the seat of the trouble, cure the backache and prevent any further complications arising.

Mr. Stewart Johnston, Richardson Mines, N.S., writes:—"For years I was troubled with my back, and I had to give up work. I tried Dr. after Dr., and was getting no better. I had almost given up hope when I began to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I took three boxes of them, and found I was completely cured. I feel I owe my life to Doan's Kidney Pills."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

BIG CROWD WILL SEE O.H.A. JUNIOR GAME

Lindsay Midgets Who Say They Will Win the District Without a Defeat Will Play Peterborough Here To-morrow Night---One of the Best Junior Battles of the Season is Looked For---Game is Called at 8:15 O'clock.

All indications point to a record junior game attendance at Brock Street Rink to-morrow night, when the fast Lindsay Juniors will meet the local Junior team in an O. H. A. game. The result will have considerable effect upon the district championship, and the game promises to be a hard-fought and brilliant contest. Lindsay were the only junior team in this district to beat the Grillers last year, and they have most of their last year's seven on hand again this year. The Peterborough team made an instantaneous hit with the fans by their showing against Cobourg, on Thursday night. Before that night they were an unknown quantity, except to a few of the executive and their playing surprised and delighted those who saw the game. The team has lots of speed and grit and showed remarkable combination for a squad that had never been together before. The youngsters are willing and anxious, never miss a practise and will work their heads off to win. These are the qualities the fans appreciate, and that is why there will be a big crowd outto-morrow night to see them take on the redoubtable Midgets. The latter are very cocky as to the result, and expect to meander gaily through the district withotu losing a game. They will have their strongest line-up tomorrow night and expect to win here. Well, they may, but they will have to step in jig-time to do it, particularly as the local youngsters will have Jerry Coughlin in fine for this game. The Peterborough team will line-up as follows:

Goal—Dwyer.
Point—Milloy.
Cover—Kenneally.
Rover—Weir.
Centre—Hall.
Right Wing—Cougnlin.
Spares—Cook, O'Dette.

in the Cobourg game, when they appeared in all the colours of the rainbow, will be missing to-morrow and the fans will welcome the change. The new sweaters are striped horisontally in royal blue and white, with blue collars and cuffs, and present a striking and neat appearance. By the way, that outfit the Intermediates wore Friday night was not the new uniforms, as many in the crowd imagined. The new garb had not arirved, but through the kindness of Mr. "Bill" Milburn, and the All Saints' Soccer Club, the uniforms of the latter were secured for the occasion. The Intermediate sweaters will be of royal blue and white, with vertical stripes.

Are With Oshawa.

Leo Quinn and Joe Quigley, formerly of Lakefield, are with the Oshawa Intermediate O. H. A. team, which defeated Bowmanville, on Friday night, by 23 goals to 6.

Toronto-Nova Scotia Won.

In a Bank League fixture at Brock street rink on Saturday night the Bank of Toronto-Nova Scotia combination won an easy victory over the Dominion-Montreal team, winning by 8 goals to 1. Mr. A. J. Lisle refereed satisfactorily.

Kinemacolor To Be Seen Here Again

The Kinemaculor Company's pictures delighted another large audience at the Grand Opera House on Saturday night, with views of the Royal progress through London the day following the Coronation, the unveiling of the Queen Victoria Memorial, the investiture of the Prince of Wales, the naval review at Spithead and other remarkable pictures. Nothing like these views has been seen in Peterborough before and will be welcome news to those who have seen the pictures that the Kinemacolor will be back at the Grand the last three nights of this week, with a new programme of films. The views of beautiful Lake Como, as shown on Saturday night, especially the sunset scenes were alone worth the price of admission.

RAILWAY NOTES

No. 10 G.T.R. engine came to grief this morning. When aproaching the Bonacord street crossing the plug blew out, allowing the steam to escape and deadening the fire. Engine No. 9 set out and brought the damaged engine back to the round house, where it received attention.

INDIGESTION GAS-WATERY RISINGS

Do you belch up gas?
Does your head feel light and dizzy?
Is your tongue coated?
Do you hawk and spit?
Have you distress after eating, and gnawing sensation in the stomach?
Is there a constant bad taste in the mouth, and a rush of blood to the head?

Do Not Despair

Nerviline is the best stomach tonic known to science—it cures every case promptly. By sending warmth and comfort to the tired organs that need assistance, Nerviline corrects fermentation and gas - belching, drives out dyspeptic pains, clears away bile and bilious feeling.

Nerviline Cures Stomach Trouble

The appetite grows enormous—you digest and assimilate all you eat—this means you gain reserve vigor and cast off depression.

NERVILINE will "test" you up—will make you well. Every doctor who has seen its formula is surprised how many ingredients of wonderful power it contains. Good for young and old, and safe to use at all times. Large 25c bottles, all dealers.

TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE TO OPEN ON THURSDAY

Peterborough fans will get their first taste of Trent Valley League hockey in some years on Thursday night at Brock Street Rink, when the speedy Campbellford team will be here for the opening game with the local T. A. S. President Grady of the latter aggregation has rounded together a very capable team, judging by their work in practise, and he will trot out a seven that will be a surprise to the fans. There will be a number of new faces on the T. A. S. line-up, and on paper the team looks like a very formidable contender for the Trent Valley silverware. The Campbellford team has a great reputation in its own district, and will be worthy adversaries. It should be a good game of hockey.

HOCKEY HAPPENINGS

There are busy doings for local hockey teams and fans this week. Following is the programme:

Intermediate O. H. A.—Peterborough at Belleville, Friday, Jan. 12.
Junior O. H. A.—Lindsay at Peterborough, Tuesday, Jan. 9.
Trent Valley League.—Campbellford vs. T. A. S., Thursday, Jan. 11.
All Saints at Havelock, Friday, Jan 12th.
Mercantile League—Clerks vs. Machine Shop, Monday, Jan. 8th.
Lock Works vs. Bell Telephone Company, Saturday, Jan. 13th.
Bank League.—Ottawa-Union vs. Dominion-Montreal, Wednesday, Jan 10th.
Toronto-Nova Scotia vs. Royal-Commerce, Saturday, Jan. 13th.

The T.A.S. hockey team will practise at Brock street rink to-night between 9 and 10 o'clock. A full attendance is expected in view of Thursday night's opening game with Campbellford.

This is a busy night at Brock street rink with practises and games. The programme follows:

5 to 6 p.m., Collegiate girls.
6 to 7 p.m., Bankers.
7 to 8 p.m., Peterborough O.H.A. teams.
8 to 9 p.m., All Saints' Trent Valley team.
9 to 10 p.m., T.A.S. Trent Valley team.
10 to 11 p.m., Mercantile League.

Speaking of Friday night's game, the Lindsay Warder says: There are some fans who are sanguine that in the return game here the locals will win out by a tidy score. However, there is no use counting chickens before they are hatched, nor is there any use in denying the fact that the local team received theirs in the same place where the chicken got the chicken got the axe. On the showing last night Peterborough had the better team; they are to a man heavier than the Lindsay seven, and furthermore, (thanks to the painstaking care and attention of physical director "Tommy" Thompson of the Peterborough Y. M. C. A.) they were in the pink of condition. In fact in order to be headed on their way to the championship of the district, it will be a pretty fast seven which will be able to take their measure.

Juniors Out To-Night.

The Peterborough Juniors will have a twenty-minute work-out at Brock Street rink to-night in final preparation for to-morrow night's big game with Lindsay. As the time at their service is short, only the following regulars are asked to be out to-night: Dwyer, Milloy, Kenneally, Hall, Weir, Clancy, Cook, and Jerry Coughlin. The team will practise sharp at 7 o'clock, and as the squad will be called off the ice sharp at 7.20, every player is asked to be on hand early.

Intermediates' Work-Out.

The Peterborough Intermediates will be out to-night for their usual Monday night's workout. Every player is expected out as the team has a hard game at Belleville this week and must be in shape.

To Run Excursions.

The Peterborough Club will run an excursion by special G. T. R. train to Belleville, on Friday, for the Intermediate game in the Bay of Quinte City, and will also run a special train to Lindsay on the following Monday for the junior game.

Had a Good Practice.

The Junior O. H. A. team had a lively practice at Brock Street rink on Saturday night and the team will be in good shape for to-morrow's game with the Lindsay Midgets.

Lindsay Will be Strong.

They have great confidence in that Midget team up in Lindsay, and prophesy that the Scugog seven will gallop through the junior district without a defeat. You can't always tell from where you sit. Anyway Denison, Callaghan and Company will realize that they have been in a pretty good imitation of a hockey match before the young Petes are through with them to-morrow night.

Coughlin Will Help.

Jerry Coughlin will be of material assistance to the juniors in their game here with Lindsay to-morrow night. He will be played at right wing and will add weight, speed and scoring ability to the line.

An Important Game.

The Peterborough intermediates have only one game this week and that away from home. This contest with Belleville is an important one, and the Petes, realizing that way will go down determined to win out. They will practise to-night and on Wednesday night, in preparation for the game.

New Uniforms are Here.

The new uniforms for the Junior team have arrived, and will be worn to-morrow night for the first time. The picturesque effect of the juniors

FACE WAS LITERALLY COVERED WITH PIMPLES.

Four Different Doctors Did Her No Good.

Two Bottles of BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS Cured Her.

Bad blood is directly the cause of the face breaking out in pimples, and it is impossible to eradicate them unless you put your blood into good shape

Burdock Blood Bitters is compounded from roots, herbs, barks and berries, and is without a doubt the best remedy procurable for the purpose of driving all the blood impurities out of the system

Mr. Geo. E. Miller, Clavering, Ont., writes:—"Last fall I was very much troubled with pimples. My face was literally covered with them. I went to four different doctors, but they could do me no good. One day a friend advised me to use Burdock Blood Bitters, so I got two bottles, and before I had taken all the first one, the pimples had nearly all disappeared, and by the time I had taken all the second one the pimples had disappeared completely, thanks to Burdock Blood Bitters. I would advise anybody who is troubled with any blood trouble to use Burdock Blood Bitters.

BETTER THAN EVER

The first rush that followed the opening of the Great Retiring Sale was indeed a harvest to Peterborough residents, and was taken full advantage of by people with an eye to business. We did all we could with a doubled staff to fill every want, as there was no reserve of any kind in the offering. Now, however, the has reached a stage when we can give more attention to sections of the stock that have seemed to lag somewhat in interest, and in these lines there will be sensational bargains in order to move them.

There must be a big move of the stock during January and the prices will be the attraction that will bring the result.

Don't wait for prices to be quoted on anything you may have in mind for present or future needs. Just make it a point to look the things up on your very first day's shopping—you will find a first-class selection, and the thing that will please you most will be the little price. This will be more especially so in Winter Coats, Winter Suits, Millinery, Carpets and Rugs.

A lot of Spring Goods, contracted for last May & June, have arrived, and go on sale at Retiring Sale Prices. They include Spring Embroideries, Spring Ginghams, and New Vestings, and many other materials in early Spring fabrics. All Departments are being maintained, fully equipped.

HAMILTONIANS LIKE FISKE O'HARA

The best evidence that Fiske O'Hara is one of the most popular actors appearing before the Hamilton public is the fact that the Grand Opera House is practically sold out for the two remaining performances, while yesterday at both the matinee and night performances the S. R. O. was displayed very early in the day.

Apart from his popularity as a drawing card from a box office point of view, Fiske O'Hara has that charming personal magnetism to draw his audiences nearer to him, make them feel as he does, and thereby bring their sympathies in whatever play he may be using.

"In Love's Young Dream" Mr. O'Hara is given plenty of opportunity to display his ability as a singer and an actor, and is equally satisfying to his audience in other roles. His songs, while new, are possibly not as good as some of his former compositions. At the same time, that is not saying they are not good. Mr. O'Hara seems to invest each song with his personality to such an extent that one cannot keep the song and Mr. O'Hara apart. But that is to his own credit.

The broad Irish wit of the seventeenth century runs throughout the entire play and Mr. O'Hara is given lines that tickle the risibilities of his audiences. The supporting company was all that could be desired. Miss Marie Quinn, Mr. O'Hara's leading woman, was pretty and vivacious, and with a dainty charm. Scenically, the play is a success, the first and third acts being especially clever works of art.

Go by all means and see Fiske O'Hara. He will not tire you, in fact, you will feel refreshed, and pleased with yourself after hearing him sing.—Hamilton Times.

Mr. Fiske O'Hara and his company appear at the Grand on Tuesday night, Jan. 9th.

Firemen Attend Church In Body

A broken steampipe in St. Paul's church yesterday afternoon, gave the firemen the first opportunity they have had, since the inauguration of the permanent brigade, of attending church in a body. The call was received at 2.30 p.m., just prior to the opening of the Sunday School, and when the Fire Department arrived on the scene the Sunday School room was full of steam. No damage was done to the building. The morning service at St. Paul's was called off, owing to broken steam pipes. As a result, a large section of the congregation attended George Street Methodist. They were accompanied by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Pogue.

Firemen Clean Shaven.

One would think on entering the Fire Hall this morning, that an edict had been issued from official headquarters, calling for the abolition of moustaches. As the personnel of the brigade now stands, there is only one member of the force who can boast of a growth on his upper lip. Since Saturday night three of the men have joined the ranks of the beardless youths, and Dame Rumour has it that one of them was induced to take this drastic step very much against his wish, he being the victim of a practical joke.

Big Night For The Woodmen

This will be a big night for Sherwood Forest Camp, Woodmen of the World ,when the annual installation of officers will take place. A number of the Head Council officers will be here. Among those expected are the Head Council's commander, Dr. W. S. Harrison of Toronto, L. H. Taylor of Brantford, chairman of the Board of Managers, D. Cinnamon of Lindsay, the Head Advisory Lieutenant and Colonel the Hon. Samuel Hughes.

Insurance Agent Is Arrested For Theft

Frederick C. Carter, representative of the Union Life Insurance Co., in this city, was arrested on Saturday night in Toronto, charged with the theft of $30.60. Detective Newhall left this morning to bring the prisoner back to the city. Chief Thompson was informed that a short time ago, Carter received a letter from the Supervisor of the company to the effect that he was coming here to look over the books at a certain date, and requesting Carter to have things in readiness. He eventually did so. The Supervisor discovered upon his arrival that the office was open, unoccupied, and the keys lying on the desk. On further investigation he found that Carter's books showed a balance of about $30.60 on the credit side, and further that he had collected all the outstanding accounts possible, and taken his leave, without applying for same. The Supervisor then notified the police department, and Chief Thompson communicated with the police authorities in the neighbouring towns, with the result that the accused was arrested in Toronto.

Ready For Opening

Everything is in readiness for the big show of the Peterborough Poultry Association, which opens in the Market Hall to-morrow at noon. Secretary Kelly has received no less than 1,100 entries, away ahead of last year, and among them are a large number of birds from Quebec, which show how thoroughly the exhibition is advertising Peterborough.

The coops are all in position for the birds ,which will arrive to-night and to-morrow morning. The same judge who officiated last year will be on hand for this year's show.

School children will be admitted on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons for five cents, and no doubt many of them will take advantage of the opportunity.

OBITUARY

HEATED BICKERING CHARACTERIZES THE FIRST BUSINESS SESSION OF COUNCIL

Ald. Anderson and Ald. Morgan, East Ward Representatives, Exchange Heated Remarks Over Fire, Water and Light Committee

ALD. JOHNSTON'S REMARKS

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID

Added Ald. Anderson to the Fire, Water and Light committee.

Appointed H. R. H. Kenner on the Public Library Board.

Appointed Jas. Murty and David H. Kerneghan on the Board of Health.

Appointed Sheriff Hall and Ald. Anderson to the Almira Grover Foley Poor Fund Trust.

Granted $75 to Peterborough Poultry Association and made provision for similar grant next year.

Refused to make grant for entertainment of Scotch curlers.

Arranged for payment of January demand of Board of Education.

Referred T.A.S. exemption question to Legal committee.

The spirit of harmony that Mayor Bradburn asked for in his inaugural speech to the Council yesterday morning did not materialize at the first regular meeting last night and the session was marked by several heated verbal tilts, one between Ald. Morgan and Ald. Anderson and the other between Ald. Johnston and Ald. Duncan. Ald. Johnston also took advantage of the opportunity to say something in regard to his attitude in connection with the Chief of the Fire Department, and altogether, the meeting was somewhat out of the ordinary.

The bickering between the two East City aldermen grew out of a motion from Ald. Johnston, newly elected chairman of the Fire, Water and Light committee, that Ald. Anderson be added to that committee.

The motion was seconded by Ald. Duffus.

Ald. Duncan asked why it was desired that Ald. Anderson should be added to the committee. The committee had been selected in the morning and why was it necessary to add another.

Ald. Buller said that a similar action had been taken last year when Ald. Metheral had been added to the committee.

Ald. Morgan said he would like to know Chairman Johnston's reason for adding Ald. Anderson, especially when he was already on three or four committees.

Ald. Johnston explained that with a small committee it was harder sometimes to get a quorum present.

Ald. Duncan said that he objected to the motion because it would give the committee a majority of the Council, and they would be independent of the Council.

"It's all right if my friend here wants to be a tool for every one about the Board," said Ald. Morgan.

"Ald. Morgan threw that out for an insult," retorted Ald. Anderson. "He is sore because I would not be a tool in his hands."

Ald. Johnston's motion was carried on the following division:

For—Ald. Johnston, Duffus, Anderson, Buller, Gillespie and Gordon.

Against—Ald. Duncan, Brown, Morgan and Graham.

Ald. Johnston's Statement.

Ald. Johnston stated that when he left the Council he had left under an indictment from which he would like to clear himself. There were things that had taken place that never should have taken place. He had come back into the Council to do what was just and right. He had not been seeking the chairmanship at all, but if the aldermen in their wisdom saw fit to appoint him, he was going to show the people that he would do what was right. If Chief Howard had done what was wrong and he (the speaker) had been the means of bringing that out, he hoped that it had made a better man of the Chief.

"As long as Chief Howard does what is right," remarked the Fire, Water and Light chairman, "he is not going to find in me a vindictive spirit. It has been thrown up to me that I am in a certain position for a certain purpose. I want to say that the past is buried. I am going to do what is right, and I am going to see that Chief Howard does what is right. Just watch me and see."

Another Argument.

There was another argument when the by-law appointing members of the Board of Health was receiving its readings.

Mr. Jas. Murty, who has been a member of the Board was decided upon as one and Ald. Duncan suggested ex-Ald. Kerneghan for the other.

Ald. Johnston said that he had spoken to William Langford, Jr., in connection with the appointment and stated that Ald. Duncan had given him his promise that he would support Mr. Langford for the position.

Ald. Duncan said that he had made no such promise.

"You did give me your promise," remarked Ald. Johnston. "I met you in front of the Peterborough Hardware store on Saturday night and mentioned Mr. Langford to you and you said, "That's all right for me."

"I did not give you any promise," retorted Ald. Duncan. "I said, "That's all right for me as far as we know now."

Ald. Gillespie, who was in the chair at the time, restored order at this stage.

Ald. Gordon moved, seconded by Ald. Johnston, that Wm. Langford, Jr., be appointed to the Board of Health.

The amendment was lost, being supported only by Ald. Gordon, Johnston, Buller and Duffus.

By-laws were passed appointing Mr. H. R. H. Kenner as one of the Council's representatives on the Public Library Board and appointing Sheriff Hall and Ald. Anderson on the Almira Grover Poor Fund Trust.

The T.A.S. Redemption.

Ald. Duncan brought up the recent decision of Judge Huycke in regard to the exemption from taxation of St. Alphonsus' Lyceum, the T. A. S. property on Simcoe street. He did not think the decision a fair one. He would not have minded so much if His Honour had only exempted the part that was used for religious purposes. He moved that the City Solicitor secure a stated case from Judge Huycke with a view of appealing the case.

Ald. Morgan seconded the motion.

Ald. Buller said that he had been informed that the city could not appeal the case. It was as he had always said, the whole thing worked back to the principle that all institutions, churches as well, should be made to pay taxes.

Ald. Gordon moved, seconded by Ald. Gillespie, that the matter be referred to the Legal committee and the City Solicitor who will report to the Council. This motion was carried unanimously, Ald. Duncan withdrawing his resolution.

Communications Received.

W. H. Denham wrote on behalf of the Quaker Oats Company in regard to a cess pool on Hunter street, which he complained was a great nuisance.

Ald. Gillespie said there was no question about the cess pool being a nuisance. It was within a foot of the sidewalk. The matter was referred to the Board of Health.

J. Ross Robertson wrote, asking for a grant for the Sick Children's Hospital and the matter will be taken up by the Finance committee.

G. H. Thompson, secretary of the Board of Education, wrote, enclosing the estimates of receipts and expenditures of the Board and a resolution making a demand upon the city for $65,000 for school purposes. This is $3,000 more than last year. The communication was referred to the Finance committee, but on motion of Ald. Graham, seconded by Ald. Johnston, the $1500 January demand will be paid to the Board of Education on Jan. 15 as requested.

A letter was read from the City Engineer asking what rates for interest and sinking fund he would base his assessment on for sidewalk and sewer construction.

On motion of Ald. Gillespie, seconded by Ald. Duffus, the rates were fixed at 4 per cent. for sinking fund, and 4 1-2 per cent. for interest.

Mr. Ed. Hickey was present and said that he had waited on the Council some time ago in regard to a light on Elm street and had been promised that a light would be placed on that thoroughfare, where it was badly needed. Nothing had been done in the matter.

Mayor Bradburn said that there had been a light promised for his street, which had failed to materialize.

Ald. Morgan said that they had difficulty in getting the Peterborough Light and Power Company to put lights up as required.

Ald. Brown pointed out that lights that were to have been erected on Pearl aevnue and other streets in the West Ward were not put up for this reason.

Ald. Brown called the attention of the chairman of the Board of Works to the necessity of a pavement on the south side of Charlottestreet and of extending it as far as Freedrick street. He would also like to see a sidewalk on the south side of Bolivar street.

Ald. Graham said that something should be done to make the steps on Sheridan street less dangerous to pedestrians. The snow should be kept off this point.

Ald. Buller promised to have the matter attended to at once.

New York Skyscraper Is Completely Destroyed Many Lives Are Lost

Twelve Storey Equitable Building Gutted—Thrilling Episodes in Connection With Blaze

Special Wire to The Examiner.

NEW YORK, JAN. 9.—With a loss of from eight to ten lives, some seven million dollars in property, and many irreplaceable documents and records of the Harriman Railroads, the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company and Equitable Life Insurance Company, and perhaps the destruction of tens of thousands of dollars of securities, the twelve-storey Equitable building was totally destroyed by fire this morning. The flames, apparently, started from the kitchen of the restaurant, in the basement of the building, about six o'clock. They swept up the elevator shafts, and presently broke out with ungovernable fury from the windows of the eighth storey of the structure. Within a few minutes the whole place was a roaring furnace.

The building is surrounded on all sides by narrow streets and edged in by other high buildings, to which the firemen had to confine their efforts to protect. Soon the streets below were black with fire apparatus and ambulances. There were many spectacular episodes. Three men, cleaners of the building, were caught on one of the upper storeys. They were seen to kneel together in prayer, then jump to the pavement, one hundred and fifty feet below. All were fatally injured.

One man, thought to be President William Giblin, of the Mercantile Trust Company, was trapped in the basement and burned to death, or killed by the falling debris.

Firemen discovered one man locked in a safety deposit vault, but could not get the door open. Father MacGean administered extreme unction till the firemen dragged him away, just as a shower of bricks and mortar came down and would have buried him. As the fireman dragged the priest away the man pinned under the debris said: "For God's sake, Father, take me out of here, I am dying". He was buried under the falling debris a minute later. Deputy Fire Chief William Walsh, with five men, were caught on the upper storey; three jumped and will probably die. Walsh fell back in the flames and has not been seen since. It is believed the watchmen are caught in the big steel vaults and the firemen cannot get the doors open. They will probably have to be dynamited. Finally the fire was got under control. For a time, Old Trinity Church, across the street, and several other sky-scrapers were seriously threatened. The loss may be more than seven million dollars.

NEW YORK CITY, JAN. 9.—(Later.)—President William Giblin, of the Mercantile Company, was taken out alive from the vaults of his company in the burned Equitable Life Building after the firemen had sawed through several steel bars. It is believed he will die. The monetary loss is now estimated at seven million dollars. The Equitable Life officials say that neither the policy holders nor shareholders will lose by the fire, and the Mercantile Trust declares their papers are in the vaults all right. It papers are in the vaults all right. It lower Broadway. The giant Trinity building and other skyscrapers had a narrow escape.

BLIZZARD WAS CAUSE OF CONSIDERABLE TROUBLE

Railways Having Their Difficulties With the Beautiful To-day and Trains Have Been Running Late

A typical Nor' Wester swept down upon the city and district last night, following the heavy snow storm which commenced at noon and increased in velocity towards evening, continuing through the night and for the most part of to-day.

The abundance of snow has threatened trouble and inconvenience in many directions. The Street Railway Company kept their sweeper in service throughout yesterday and again to-day and even now the cars are running off schedule.

Outside the city the big snow storm is asserting itself and railway companies are experiencing similar difficulty to that of the Radial Railway people.

The G.T.R.

Consequent of the corroding of the snow in the point at Brock street, the G.T.R. flyer became derailed this morning, the engine, with the baggage car running towards the Lakefield line and the coaches maintaining their hold on the Toronto line.

The Belleville train, arriving shortly pushed the coaches into the siding some distance south. Meanwhile the yardmen, with dogs and jacks were busy with the derailed engine, and ultimately, with the aid of the auxiliary, ran the engine and baggage car on to the Lakefield track, proceeded south to the siding, hitched on the coaches and continued its journey shortly after 9 o'clock. This derailment was the cause of some delay to the Port Hope train.

At 9.30 the Belleville train had not arrived, but on enquiry it was ascertained that the train was expected at 10.35.

The C.P.R.

The snow plow ran through from Havelock to Toronto on the C.P.R. last night, but this did not altogether eliminate the possibility of delay. All three of this morning's trains were late, the express especially being almost one hour and a half late. This delay was occasioned by the derailment of the engine of a freight train at Havelock.

The Sidewalks.

It was amusing to follow in the track of the snow plow this morning which, owing to the large precipitation, could scarcely determine the precise position of the sidewalk. The track in some places was partly on the sidewalk and partly off and it would not have been a difficult matter to have unconsciously stepped off the sidewalk and found a bed in the snow bank. This annoyance was, in fact, experienced by a letter carrier who fell on George street, precipitating his freight into the snow.

AN OPEN LETTER TO J. HAMPDEN BURNHAM, M.P.

To J. Hampden Burnham, Esq., M. P.

Dear Sir:—May I as an old citizen, ask for a little information on your proposal that the city should buy up all the hotels and groggeries in the town in order to run at a loss the hotels which you say cannot be profitable without bars or without the privilege of selling liquor.

If respectable hotels cannot be run at a profit in a dry town, how do the present hotels make money? Do the profits of the bar make good the loss incurred by the decent part of the hotel business, and leave a margin over?

Is that margin of profit taken wholly out of the pockets of the patrons of the bar—and are the temperate guests imposing on the poor hotel keepers?

Would it be more profitable for the town to multiply the patrons of the bar or to wipe them out by depriving them of the dope?

Which course would best serve the interests of the wives and children?

Is a big revenue from the police court, or no revenue, the more profitable for the town?

If the city ran the hotels without bars, you say they would run them at a loss—and you intimate that the city should buy them in order to supply the demand for them by the poor commercial travellers.

If the travellers of all kinds require hotels, should they not pay for their accommodation a sufficient price for that accommodation, or do the travellers want something for nothing?

Would not the demand for proper hotel accommodation in this town create a supply equal to the demand?

Has not this problem been solved in the many states of the American Union that have gone dry? Or has the race of "Trimmers" there died out for want of proper hotel accommodation?

Think these matters over, Mr. Burnham, and give us from your lofty pedestal a little more light on this interesting subject.

Yours sincerely,

Anxious Enquirer after Truth.

N.B.—Please give specific answers to the questions.

THE DEATH SENTENCE

Rev. Clarence Richeson to be Electrocuted for the Murder of His Sweetheart Avis Linnell

IN MIDDLE OF MAY.

Special Wire to The Examiner.

BOSTON, JAN. 9.—The Rev. Clarence Richeson to-day pleaded guilty of murder in the first degree and was sentenced by Judge Sanderson to death by electrocution some time during the week of May 19th, for the murder of his sweetheart, Avis Linnel. His counsel are already preparing a petition to Governor Foss for commutation to imprisonment for life. Richeson is very closely guarded lest he should attempt suicide.

ONLY COVERING THE RETREAT.

There are some fault finders who object to the militarism of our gallant Minister of Militia. He is accused of a design of converting the 3 1-2 million square miles of Canada into a camping ground and our people into conscripts; of putting a rifle into every hand from the kindergatener to the octogenarian. But it is probable that the Hon. Col. Sam has no such bellicose intentions. He is a loyal Britisher and Canadian as he has shown by his services and sacrifices for home and empire, but he is also a loyal servant to his political chief. Is it not probable that all the warlike talk credited to him is merely what in military language would be called a "demonstration in force" to cover the retreat of Rt. Hon. Mr. Borden on the naval question? ?

A CONTRAST.

There are in the Post Office and Customs and Inland Revenue departments of the Dominion public service in Toronto perhaps two thousand officials, and it is somewhat interesting to note that not one of these has been removed from, or replaced in, office. Is it because the gentlemen representing Toronto constituencies are gentlemen, and take their election to parliament as representing a somewhat higher function than catering to the call of the seekers of office. The Examiner does not agree with the political principles and practices of these gentlemen, but welcomes their recognition of the fact that there is a higher form of exercise of representative responsibility than that of playing political headman, as a sign that, while there is in some quarters a disposition to adapt the spoils system of our neighbours to Canadian politics, there is still a saving remnant of self respect for the higher forms of political ideals, and less regard for the materially acquisitive side of politics. Messrs. Osler, Foster, Bristol, Macdonnel and Kemp are to be congratulated.

PETERBOROUGH FIRE RECORD

The losses resulting from fires in Canada last year, according to the Monetary Times, amounted to a sum that equals a waste of $44 during every minute of the year. It is fortunate for Peterborough that she contributed very little to this ominous record. The amount of losses from fires in Peterborough last year, according to figures taken from the records of Chief Howard, of the Fire Department, totalled $23,734. This compared with the general record, is an exceptionally excellent one. It shows that the fire losses in Peterborough, instead of amounting to $44 per minute, actually amounted to only one twenty-fifth of a cent per minute. Assuming that the prevalence of conditions favouring the outbreak of fires, in the form of defective construction, and carelessness of occupants, etc., is the same, we can well be proud and gratified with the showing, and in fairness attribute a good deal to the promptitude and effectiveness of our fire department. We have a well housed, well equipped, well manned fire department. True, the cost is large, but is it not money well spent, if it keeps our fire loss and fire insurance rates both low? If with the same general prevalence of character of causes of fire throughout the Dominion, we had had similar fire losses according to the average of $44 loss per minute, as worked out by the Monetary Times, Peterborough's fire losses last year would have amounted to more than two and a quarter millions. While our appliances for fighting fires may reasonably be credited with a good deal of this comparatively good results, there is no doubt something due to the better general character of construction of our buildings.

On the whole, we may well congratulate ourselves on our continuous comparative immunity from serious fires. So long as our Fire Department does what may be regarded as good work, it will get credit.

BUSINESS ETHICS.

The Hamilton Times asks this timely question: "Do you owe any unpaid debts of 1911? Are you square with your grocer and tailor and butcher and baker and the rest?" This may be a personal, but it is not an impertinent, question. It is one that appeals to the people of Peterborough. The pleasure and profit, the thrift, the interests, of business and the general prosperity of the city depend very largely upon the promptitude with which citizens pay their bills. Merchants and business men of all kinds are long suffering and suffering too, many of them, from lack of the money represented by long overdue bills, small and large. They cannot be honest and at ease themselves in regard to their own obligations, if the people they trust prove unworthy of trust by unduly delaying or refusing to pay their bills. Ten, twenty or fifty dollars paid to-day, in discharge of a debt, can go the rounds and help in succession in the payment of thousands of dollars; for the course of business is so interlaced that almost everybody does business with everybody else. The cash system is the only logical system. It is better for the business man, and far beter for his patrons. The latter would get goods of every kind very much more cheaply if the business man did not have, in self defence, to practically tax his cash customers in the way of advanced price to compensate the losses sustained by slow pay or no-pay customers. The next best thing to cash payment is prompt payment of bills, which, with the prevalent employment of the telephone in giving orders, seem to be inevitable. But that is no excuse for neglect of prompt payment, and prompt payment is what makes business profitable and comfortable for all concerned, debter and creditor alike. If you have a bill unpaid, even ever so small, the payment of it will, if added to by other payments by other persons, put your merchant or milkman or any other purveyor, at ease financially, and help to give him the dreamless sleep that cannot come with the maggot of, no means to meet a bank draft to-morrow working in his brain; and you will give yourself the sweet sleep that can only come of a clear conscience, so far as compliance with the great apostle's dictum, "Owe no man anything," is concerned.

CANADIAN PULPWOOD IN THE UNITED STATES.

In a Pulpwood Forest Products bulletin, shortly to be published by the Dominion Forestry Branch, statistics are given of the amount of pulpwood exported from Canada into the United States during 1910. Nine hundred and forty-three thousand cords of pulpwood (sixty per cent. of the total Canadian pulp-log cut) worth six millions, two hundred and ten thousand dollars, were shipped across the border in a raw state, without undergoing any form of manufacture. This pulpwood export was out from the various provinces in the following amounts and values: 779,000 cords worth $5,080,000 from the timber limits of Quebec; 99,000 cords, worth $647,000 from New Brunswick, and 74,000 cords, worth $473,000, from Ontario. It is interesting to note to what extent provincial industry would have been increased if the pulpwood exported to the United States had been converted into pulpwood on Canadian soil. The seven hundred and seventy-nine thousand cords exported from Quebec would have supplied material for a year to fifty-six pulp mills of the average size operating in Quebec. In Ontario, five mills, of the avertge size could have been kept running with the pulp logs exported from this Province. The ninety thousand cords shipped from the ports of New Brunswick would have produced the most startling results if the amount had been domestically manufactured into pulp. The amount exported was sufficient to supply with wood twenty-four mills of the average size, with the result that five times the number of mills operating, would have been at work if Canadians in New Brunswick had been far-seeing enough to manufacture their own raw products.

HAD VERY BAD COUGH.

Tickling Sensation In Throat.

Could Not Sleep At Night.

A bad cough, with that distressing, tickling sensation in the throat, is one of the most aggravating coughs a person can possibly have.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will quickly stop that tickling in the throat which causes the dry cough that keeps you awake at night, for the simple reason that it is so rich in the healing virtues of the Norway pine tree, it cannot help but do otherwise.

Miss C. Dillabaugh, Bowsman River, Man., writes:—"Last fall I had a very bad cough and a tickling sensation in my throat. It was so bad I could not sleep at night, so I went to a druggist and told him I wanted something for my cold and he advised me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup which I did, and after taking one bottle I was completely cured. Let me recommend Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup to any one who suffers from a cough or throat irritation."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.

Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE POWER SCHEME.

(London Advertiser.)

The proposal to make the work of the hydro-electric commission a department of Government, under a cabinet minister, ought to be opposed by the municipalities, which bear all the financial responsibility of the project. It has been from the first a municipal enterprise, and so long as the municipalities carry the whole burden, they should have the right to say how the scheme shall be administered. As a mere branch of the Government it will be another engine of party patronage, though it has not entirely escaped the reproach under the commission system.

The condition which would justify the step the Government is about to take would be the conversion of the project from a municipal to a provincial undertaking. This would involve a uniform rate for power and government ownership or transmission lines. This plan has become more practicable since the hydro-electric commission has arranged to cover large areas outside the Niagara power zone, by utilizing water powers in Northern and Eastern Ontario. So long as the scheme remains on its present footing, a great number of communities will remain unserved, for many years, at least, and there will be permanent discrimination in two respects; first, between large and small municipalities, since the price of power is regulated by the amount of consumption; second, according to distance from the water powers. The Government, by assuming the cost of the transmission lines, could charge a uniform flat rate, and diffuse through the whole Province the benefits which by the present system will be confined to a portion of the Province, while water power runs to waste.

POLICE COURT

Another blacklister appeared before Police Magistrate Dumble this morning and contributed $13.40 to the Police Court fund for 1912; this being the first case since the commencement of the year.

The evidence submitted, appeared to be that the "blacklister" found a bottle of whiskey in his room. He subsequently stated that his son had purchased the liquor and placed it there, where he easily obtained it. The "blacklister" then stated that when he went down town to get a new suit of clothes, he met another party in an alleyway who gave him a drink. Mr. Dumble stated that it was a pretty expensive flask, but the "blacklister" replied that it had often cost him more than that before. He paid his fine, $13.40 and was discharged.

There seems to be quite a number of blacklisters who are able to obtain liquor in many ways. It looks as if there was a special work to be done by the License Inspector and Police, on behalf of those who are endeavouring to work an improvement in the habits of others. The person who supplies liquor to a "blacklister" should be severely punished, for it is only in extreme cases that this means of preventive is used.

Another case that came up this morning was that of a drunk. His good resolutions at the beginning of the year had been broken. His contribution to the treasury amounted to $2.60.

CATARRH

THIS DEEP-SEATED DISEASE CAN'T BE REACHED THROUGH THE STOMACH.

Cure can come only from cleansing the air passages with the soothing vapor of Catarrhozone, which cured ex-Mayor S. L. McKay of Kingsville, Ont., who says:

"As the season for Colds and Catarrh is again on, I wish to be prepared with the right remedy. Send me Catarrhozone—which is without doubt the best remedy I have ever tried—and I have used not a few. I strongly recommend Catarrhozone."

THE ONE TRUE CURE THAT NEVER FAILS IS CATARRHOZONE.

Complete Outfit for Two Months' Treatment, $1.00; smaller sizes, 50c and 25c, at all druggists.

TAXPAYER APPROVES COURSE OF COUNCIL

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Will you give me space to say to the City Council that, as a ratepayer, I quite approve of the course pursued by the Council in declining to vote the people's money to enable the curlers of Peterborough to entertain their guests. If gentlemen like Waddell, Brightman, McIlroy and the curling fraternity of Peterborough are not sufficiently able to entertain their friends, it is hardly reasonable to expect the taxpayers to come to their rescue. The several organisations in Peterborough, who invite their friends to visit them, are not asking the City Council to give a contribution, and of all the organisations in Peterborough, the Curlers should be the last to expect that at the first meeting of the Council, money should be voted for that purpose, and I am glad to see that the Council declined to grant the request.

Yours truly,
TAXPAYER.

USUALLY ONE DOSE ENDS INDIGESTION

Dyspepsia, Heartburn, Gas and all Stomach Distress Vanishes

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or you feel bloated after eating, and you believe it is the food which fills you; if what little you eat lies like a lump of lead on your stomach; if there is difficulty in breathing after eating, eructations of sour, undigested food and acid, heartburn, brash or a belching of gas, you can make up your mind that you need something to stop food fermentation and cure Indigestion.

To make every bite of food you eat aid in the nourishment and strength of your body, you must rid your Stomach of poisons, excessive acid and stomach gas, which sours your entire meal—interferes with digestion and causes so many sufferers of Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Biliousness, Constipation, Griping, etc. Your case is no different—you are a stomach sufferer, though you may call it by some other name; your real and only trouble is that which you eat does not digest, but quickly ferments and sours, producing almost any unhealthy condition.

A case of Pape's Diapepsin will cost fifty cents at any Pharmacy here, and will convince any stomach sufferer five minutes after taking a single dose that Fermentation and Sour Stomach is causing the misery of Indigestion.

No matter if you call your trouble Catarrh of the Stomach, Nervousness or Gastritis, or by any other name—always remember that a certain cure is waiting at any drug store the moment you decide to begin its use.

Pape's Diapepsin will regulate any out-of-order Stomach within five minutes, and digest promptly, without any fuss or discomfort, all of any kind of food you eat.

SIR GEORGE ROSS LEFT FOR HOT SPRINGS

In order to seek relief for rheumatism, which has been severe of late, Sir George Ross has gone to Arkansas Hot Springs, accompanied by Lady Ross. If the treatment he receives there appears to benefit him it is Sir George Ross' intention to remain about six months, but if it does not benefit him he may return before then. In any case he will not attend the session of Parliament this year.

WHAT I WENT THROUGH

Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Natick, Mass.—"I cannot express what I went through during the change of life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold, I had creepy sensations, and I could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I also had a tumor. I read one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it has worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. If it will help others you may publish my letter."—Mrs. MATHAN E. GILMATON, 61 E. Main Street, Natick, Mass.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

"THE SECRET OF PAUL FARLEY"

By JOHN MARCH

"The die is cast, Agnes," he said in a lighter tone, "the worst is over. I have launched myself to find the sea not nearly so rough as I anticipated. I have launched myself to find the sea quite expectations. I can't look into Judith Hargrave's eyes without knowing I have surpassed my wildest hopes of creating a strong, striking, potential personality. I don't attribute the secret of my success so much to my native ability as I do to the intense feeling I throw into the part I play. My identity is submerged in that of Paul Farley; I am he in every act, desire and thought. We are wedded, welded, soldered together by a rocky cement, a powerful will and a vivid imagination. The last post is in, and I may be wanted. Don't fret, and don't let Mr. Fleming see your red eyes, sweet."

And with a long kiss on her lips that had a heart throb in it, he left her.

CHAPTER VII.

A Contrite Heart.

The Hargrave family had dined at an earlier hour in order to enable Sir Thomas to discuss his favourite meal in peace, and afterwards to drive leisurely away to the agricultural meeting at East Weyberne.

Paul Farley, a light coat over his evening dress, his cap in his hand, ready to sally forth and keep his appointment at the Manor House, stood by the library window endeavouring to decipher a letter in the failing light. He was so engrossed with his difficult task that he neither heard nor saw the opening and shutting of the library door.

A soft rustle, a faint scent of Parma violets, a weird feeling that he was not alone in the room, at length compelled him to raise his head and his eyes fell upon Judith standing on the opossum rug, in a long trailing gown of turquoise blue silk. Something cold, like an icy hand, gripped his heart as he beheld the swift subtle change in this young rosebud of a girl. She was very white, but composed, and appeared older, with all the piquancy and rich colouring gone from her pretty face. The violet eyes the shade of a purple iris, were rerimmed, bloodshot, and swollen.

"Will you give me back my letter, Mr. Farley?" she asked, advancing and blushed deeply under his gaze.

"It is destroyed, Miss Hargrave. No man would keep a letter like that."

"I came to ask your pardon," she said. "I am sorry, I, oh, Mr. Farley, no other moment in my life can hold so much shame as this."

She covered her face with her trembling hands and stood crushed and shrinking. He went to her and laid his hand on her shoulder.

"Miss Hargrave," he said, in his low, slow voice, "it hurts me beyond expression to see you so humiliated. Whatever shame or blame you feel called upon to bear, remember that I too share it. Your letter came to me in something of the nature of a shock, and labouring under its influence I answered it. I ask your pardon, Miss Hargrave, and your forgiveness."

"You are very generous," she said. "but——"

"Just look at me, Miss Judith," he said, trying gently to draw away the hands from the tear-stained face; "I can't have you afraid to meet my eyes. I want you to trust me, and let me give you a helping hand, through this dark passage in your life. Once again in the sunlight we can drop hands, and go our separate ways. What did you say?" he asked, bending his ear to her quivering lips, "there will never be any more sunlight? Oh, Miss Judith! When the sun is even now peering over the shadow's shoulder. You won't be able to see it to-day or to-morrow, perhaps, with those misty eyes, but the future is warm and beautiful, flooded with golden sunlight. I think," he resumed after a brief, unbroken pause, "I think you have magnified this trouble out of all proportion. We must get it into proper perspective, and look at it, if we can, in a disinterested light. You see, Miss Judith, you had the temerity to deprive a man of a great treasure, a treasure which practically constituted the sum and substance of his whole existence, and you offered it to another who was powerless to accept it and also incapable of estimating its value."

"Yes," she said, "I know, but now, what now?"

"Why, now we must take our courage in both hands and remedy the mistake."

"How?" she asked in a frightened whisper.

"By giving back the treasure to its rightful owner. I am going to ask you to go to that fellow, to go to Pelham; to just creep into his arms and beg of him to forget all these past weeks of unrest and heartbreaking misery. Tell him your life will be insufferable, almost intolerable, without his love, that you need his forgiveness, that you want him to comfort you now that the pain is past."

"Oh, I can't do that; I can't," she said passionately, a bright red spot burning on each cheek. "I told him I hated him; I said he had been a plague and a nuisance to me all my life, and I wished he were dead."

He dropped her hands suddenly, and crossed to the window.

"I didn't mean it, of course, I really did not mean it," she said piteously. "I was wretched, I did not care what I said, if only I could make him feel something of my heartache."

"But the poor fellow had a heartache of his own," he said, returning to her with a melancholy smile.

"Had he? He threw up his head and laughed, and said he would never trouble me again."

"Then, Miss Judith," he said, laying an impressive hand on her arm, "you must trouble him."

"I will not do that, I cannot," she said, somewhat deffantly.

"Why not?" he asked.

"Because by this time he may have become, like you, utterly indifferent."

"I venture to think the comparison is not synonymous," he replied stiffly, "one is the substance, the other the shadow. I never loved you, I never should; but he did, and does. His heart is under your beaded shoe; you can mar his prospects and ruin his young life. Let us forget the inevitable, and think only of Pelham."

Her colour deepened, but she did not speak.

"It seems to me," he continued, "it has always struck me in my thoughtful moments, that some sort of opportunity is given to us poor mortals to redeem or to lessen the consequences of our blind and manifold mistakes. I think, Miss Judith, that probably your life's opportunity has come. I would recognize and use it were I you."

He spoke with the energy of a man who believed implicitly in what he said ,and she was touched by the sincerity of his every tone and gesture and the earnest appeal in his great dark eyes.

"You think that, however much it goes against the grain, I ought to go to Anthony and tell him I am willing to be engaged to him?"

"I am quite certain you ought. It's the only road by which you will ever travel to happiness."

She laid her arm on chimneypiece, and let her forehead rest on it.

"It's not a pleasant thing to do," she whispered.

"Life is not always pleasant with its thousand pressing claims and duties; we cannot have the crown without the cross; we cannot expect to enter even Paradise without a shudder. Don't dwell on the cold breathless plunge, but rather the tranquil floating on the sun-kissed waves."

"I won't," she said, looking up at him through unshed, penitent tears. "I'll do as you wish. I'll tell Anthony that I shall be—thankful for his love."

He caught her hands and kissed them.

"Thank you," he said, a glad light in his eyes, "you have lifted a burden from my heart. All along I have felt more or less responsible for the happiness of you both, and at times the weight has been only what I could just manage to carry."

"I am sorry, dreadfully sorry. I'm a sinful, selfish girl, and you've been so kind, so patient, and generous."

"Not at all," he said, stepping over the shiny folds of her gown to open the door.

"Do you think Anthony will refuse me?" she asked, suddenly turning back.

"'Tis possible," he answered gravely looking askant at her, and then, breaking into a soft laugh, he shook his forefinger at her and whispered: "Oh, woman, thy name is vanity!"

CHAPTER VIII.

A Tragedy.

The Manor parlour was a low, studded room, panelled with dark wood, having a large, high chimneypiece, artistically set round with Dutch tiles. The carpet, originally of rich texture and colouring, was now so worn that the office brilliant pattern had faded to an almost indistinguishable hue.

In one corner stood an old harpsichord ,a treasured relic, belonging in bygone years to Squire Fleming's grandmother when a girl in her teens. Sometimes in the Squire's solitary evenings his fancy had planted a slim figure on the spindle-legged stool, and out of the gloom would grow a bunch of powdered ringlets, a low-necked, short-waisted frock, with twinkling feet in sandaled shoes, and as often as not sweet, quaint, melancholy music thrilled and vibrated along the low-ceiled passage ways. The dusk was looming upward in the corners of the room, casting a dark grey shade over the oil paintings of dead and gone Flemings. The tall furniture and the old spinet had already lost the distinctness of their outline; they were slowly vanishing ghost-like into oblivion. Felix Fleming was sitting by the open glass doors leaning forward in an upholstered wicker chair with one foot in the room and the other on the stone steps leading to the garden, watching the twilight deepen and the shadows gather about the fruit trees.

SHE STRUCK AT ROOT OF TROUBLE

Mrs. Comeau Cured Her Kidneys With Dodd's Kidney Pills.

And Her Heart Trouble, Backache and other ailments Disappeared—Says She Owes Her Good Health to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Petit Rocher, Gloucester Co., N. B., Jan. 8.—(Special)—When Mrs. Pierre I. Comeau, a well known and highly respected resident of this place cured her kidney disease, her heart trouble and other aches and pains also disappeared. She cured her kidney disease easily and quickly by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"My heart troubled me all the time," Mrs. Comeau states; "and I feared for the terrible results that might follow. My limbs would swell, my back ached and I was always tired and nervous.

"These symptoms led me to believe that kidney disease was the root of all my troubles, so I turned to Dodd's Kidney Pills. Before I had finished the first box the swelling was gone, my back was well and my heart no longer troubled me. I am now in the best of health, and I owe it all to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Always strike at the root of the trouble. And in nine cases out of ten all women's troubles start with the Kidneys. That's why Dodd's Kidney Pills are women's best friend.

Sciatica AND Lumbago

Suffered for Twenty-five Years and Could Get No Relief

Now Tells of the Wonderful Results Obtained by the Use of

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Sciatica, neuralgia and sciatic rheumatism are the result of a run-down nervous system. For this reason all treatments must necessarily fail which do not build up the nervous system.

Mr. Collins suffered for twenty-five years and never was able to obtain satisfactory treatment until he began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills. While the Nerve Food forms new blood and restores the exhausted nervous system, the Kidney-Liver Pills invigorate the action of kidneys, liver and bowels.

Mr. W. T. Collins, Morpeth, Ont., writes: "It affords me pleasure to be able to speak favourably of two of Dr. Chase's medicines—the Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills. I had been a sufferer for twenty-five years from sciatica, lumbago and neuralgia and tried almost all the medicines I could hear of, without one particle of benefit, until I commenced to use Dr. Chase's. I noticed an improvement before I had used two boxes and the benefits obtained by continued use have been wonderful. I have so much confidence in these two medicines that I have recommended them to dozens of my friends, and I have yet to hear of a single case in which they failed to give satisfaction."

Dr. Chase's medicines are for sale by all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Funeral Of Mr. Sherin At Lakefield

Mr. Samuel Sherin, who was buried at Lakefield yesterday, was one of the best known residents of that village, and had been prominent in many circles since coming to Lakefield fifty-seven years ago. He will be greatly missed by his fellow-citizens. Born in the Township of Emily on Nov. 4th, 1830, he removed to Lakefield, when twenty-four years of age, and, with his brother, the late J. C. Sherin, opened a store, with which he was connected for twelve years, retiring on account of ill-health. He was then appointed Clerk of the Division Court, an office he held for nearly twenty-five years, at the same time carrying on a conveyancing and insurance business. When Lakefield was incorporated as a village, Mr. Sherin was appointed treasurer, and since that year, 1878, he had held the position almost continuously. He was married in 1863, to Miss Sarah A. Roseborough, of Smith, who, with four children, survives him. The children are: Wesley of Lakefield; Samuel B., of the Baltimore (Md.) News; Miss Alice of Toronto, and Miss Nina at home.

Mr. Sherin was a faithful member of the Lakefield Methodist Church, and, in politics, was a staunch Liberal. In his earlier days he was an active supporter of the Liberal principles, and, in later years, was always interested in the career of that party. He was treasurer of the Methodist Sunday School for forty years.

The funeral yesterday was largely attended.

ALMANAC 100 YEARS OLD

A copy of Webster's Almanac, printed in Albany, N.Y., in 1812, was shown the Examiner this morning by Mr. Geo. Spilsbury, 338 Downie street. The little booklet is remarkably well preserved, and it, along with Steel's almanac of 1831 and 1836 form an interesting collection. Mr. Spilsbury has had the almanacs in his possession for the last thirty years, securing them from his Grandfather, the late George A. Spilsbury, U. S. Army Veteran, who formerly lived in Albany, N.Y. On the back of the 1812 number is printed: 'Webster's Calendar, Albany Almanac, being Bissextile, or Leap year—1812. The twelfth year of the nineteenth century—and of the American Independence, which was declared July 4th, 1776 (till July 4th) the 36th year. (1812). The number contains many valuable cooking and medical recipes and American legal terms of that date. The 1812 number is rendered more interesting by the fact that it is 100 years old at present.

NO SMOKING

Rule to be Enforced at the C. P. R. Station

C.P.R. officials have decided to enforce the rule of "No smoking allowed" in the waiting rooms of the station. New signs have been put up and the local officials have received strict orders to see that the rules are strictly enforced. Smoking is no longer allowed either in the ladies' or general waiting rooms.

LOTS OF ICE

The cold spell, which is prevalent throughout this district at present, though inconvenient as it may seem to the citizens, in general, has been a boon to the ice vendors. They are now in a position to replenish their stock of ice for next season. Some anxiety had been entertained by ice men in the city, on account of the warm weather, and some predicted an ice famine for next summer, but nature, in its mercy, has set things right once more, and there is a bountiful harvest of the frozen liquid.

RESTORE GRAY HAIR TO NATURAL COLOUR

By Common Garden Sage, a Simple Remedy for Dandruff, Falling, Faded, Gray Hair

The old idea of using sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers used to have dark, glossy hair at the age of seventy-five, while our mothers have white hair before they are fifty. Our grandmothers used to make a "sage tea" and apply it to their hair. The tea made their hair soft and glossy, and gradually restored the natural color.

One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it, especially as it had to be made every two or three days, on account of spoiling quickly. This objection has been overcome, and by asking almost any first-class druggist for Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy the public can get a superior preparation of sage, with the sulphur, another valuable remedy for hair and scalp troubles. Daily use of this preparation will not only quickly restore the colour of the hair, but will also stop the hair from falling out and make it grow.

Get a bottle from your druggist today. Use it and see for yourself how quickly dandruff goes and gray hairs vanish.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.—Warne Drug Co., special agents.

LISTEN TO US

"We are only little ones, but we know Zam-Buk eased our pain and cured our sores. Perhaps it would cure you, too, if you tried it?"

Isn't this candid advice from "babes and sucklings"? Take it! The speakers are the children of Mrs. E. Webster, of Saguenay St., Montreal, and the mother adds weight to their appeal. She says: "My little girl contracted scalp disease at school. Bad gatherings formed all over her head, and not only caused the child acute pain but made her very ill. The sores discharged, and deserting on the scalp we feared she would lose all her hair. She was in a pitiable plight when we tried Zam-Buk, but a few days' treatment with this balm gave her ease. Then the sores began to heal, and we continued the Zam-Buk treatment, in a short time she was healed.

"My little boy contracted a serious scald on the neck. It 'ate up' a bad sore, and quite a few things we tried, failed to heal it or give him ease. Once more we turned to Zam-Buk, and up went dull disappointed. It eased the pain, and soon healed the wound."

Zam-Buk is "something different" to the run of balms. It contains powerful healing herbal essences, which, soften and relieve skin diseases, kill off the germs and seal the painful surfaces. Other essences contained in Zam-Buk so, stimulate the cells that new healthy tissue is speedily formed. Eczema, itch, ulcers, scald sores, abscesses, festers, ag sores, blood poisoning, chronic wounds, cold sores, etc., are healed and cured in this way. Useful for all skin injuries and diseases. It tells its great service for piles. All druggists and stores at 50 cents box, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

NO ASSISTANCE FROM CITY IN ENTERTAINING THE SCOTTISH CURLERS

Deputation of Local Knights of the Stanc Waited Upon the Council Last Night to Ask That a Grant of $100 be Made---Aldermen Opposed to Establishing Precedent in Matter.

The Council last night decided not to give any grant from the city to help pay the cost of entertaining the Scotch curlers during their visit to Peterborough on Jan. 21 and 22. The opinions of the majority of the members was that while they were fully in sympathy with the movement, they could not afford to establish a precedent in such matters.

A deputation composed of Messrs. W. McIlroy, R. M. Waddell, T. Brightman and other members of the Peterborough Curling Club waited upon the Council to ask that some assistance be given. Mr. McIlroy said that the curlers would arrive in Peterborough on Sunday, Jan. 21st and remain until Tuesday morning. In Halifax, St. John's and Quebec they had been given big receptions in which the Councils had assisted and other places were making similar preparations. The Council of Toronto had granted $1,000 for the entertainment of the curlers, while the Winnipeg Council had made an appropriation of $4000 for this purpose. The local curlers felt that the visit of the Scotch curlers would be a good thing for Peterborough. The curlers proposed to give the Scotchmen handsome souvenirs in the form of silver canoes and were also making their annual curlers' book a special edition containing views and information of Peterborough and district, one of which would be given each of the visitors. In all the Peterborough Curling Club had calculated that the visit of the Scotch party would entail an expenditure of $400. They were making this up largely among the local curlers but they felt that they could not do it all and would appreciate a grant of $100 from the Council to assist in the movement.

Mr. Brightman said that the curlers wanted to give the visitors such a reception that they would go away feeling that this was the best place they had visited. They felt, however, that without assistance from the Council they would be unable to accomplish what they desired.

Mr. Waddell said that he had been a member of the Canadian Curling Club which visited Scotland three years ago and they had been most royally entertained with civic receptions, dinners and luncheons everywhere. He felt that since the Curling Association had honoured Peterborough by selecting it as one of the eight or nine cities in Canada to be visited it was only right that the visitors should be well entertained. They were prominent men of different walks of life, large manufacturers and merchants, some of them men of capital, whom it might be beneficial to have visit Peterborough.

Ald. Morgan said that he would like very much to see the Scottish curlers entertained, but he did not think it was a wise precedent for the Council to start out by making such a grant. The Oddfellows and Foresters had made similar requests in the past and had received nothing from the Council. He for one was going to let the curlers pay their own shot this time and moved that no action be taken.

Ald. Buller felt that the Council would like to give the curlers a grant but the feeling of the people was against such actions. He felt sure that the Council would gladly make up the amount asked for out of their own pockets, and he for one would contribute $10 for that purpose.

Ald. Duffus, while he sympathized with the request, remarked that it was not wise to establish a precedent for this way of voting away the people's money. They would undoubtedly be approached by other Societies for a similar grant if they made this one. He was willing personally to contribute $10 towards the expense of entertainment.

Ald. Gordon said that the visit of the Scotch curlers would be a good advertisement for Peterborough. They were the kind of people the city wanted to get here. He moved that a grant of $50 be made.

Ald. Duncan said that he was not in favour of the grant. When the Painters had brought 300 or 400 people here they had not been assisted and all that was done for the Hardware Convention was to arrange to have the armouries lighted. He seconded Ald. Morgan's motion.

Ald. Johnston said that he did not think it wisdom to establish a precedent in the matter. There was no one more willing to assist than himself and he thought the Council would rather contribute the sum from their own private purse.

There was no seconder to Ald. Gordon's amendment and the original motion was carried. The curlers will therefore receive no official assistance in the entertaining of the knights of the stane and besom from overseas.

A RATEPAYER ON MAYOR BRADBURN'S BRIDGE SCHEME

Editor of The Examiner:

The Mayor in his inaugural address, advocates a scheme which takes ones breath. Just now the people are asking what they get for the very burdensome tax rate they are carrying, and wondering how Mr. Bradburn's proposal to spend $200,000 on bridges will relieve them.

His proposal is to remove the old Hunter street bridge and place it in continuance of Sherbourne street and to build a new high level bridge, broad and strong, over the river at Hunter street.

Mr. Bradburn must know that it would take three bridges like that now on Hunter street, besides heavy embankments, to span the river opposite Sherbourne street, and he must know that a new solid and strong bridge at Hunter street, broad enough for sidewalk, horse vehicles and street railway, and 20 feet higher than the present bridge, will cost over $100,000.

If such a bridge was built, who would it accommodate? Why the Quaker Oats Company, the C.P.R. and G.T.R. and the Street Railway Company. If a high level bridge is ever required, it will be necessitated by these companies and not by the ordinary want of the people. A high level bridge would have to start at Sheridan street and end on the east near Burnham street. The bill for land damages would be high, the land portion would require to be a steel viaduct to enable teams to get into the Cereal warehouses. This whole scheme, if carried out, will not cost less than $200,000 and may run up to $250,000. Right of way would have to be bought at both ends of the Sherbourne street bridge.

Mr. Bradburn will do well to let this scheme alone. The people west of the river are not shouting for it, and the people east of the river are not many and are not suffering badly.

When the C. P. R. was built, the company proposed to add a passenger walk to their bridge if the city would pay them a paltry $1500 for it, but the Council, in their wisdom, turned it down. Now, why this eagerness to spent $75,000 to accommodate a handful of people. Perhaps a couple of thousand dollars would yet secure a projecting side walk for foot passengers on the C.P.R. bridge.

The interest of the cost of the proposed high level bridge at four per cent. is $6,000; that sum would pay for double gates and ten men at $600 a year to work them. The city gave for a song the only water power they possessed which, if held, would have enabled them to utilize for the city 1000 horse power. Now the Mayor wants them to spend over $200,000 to accommodate a lot of rich companies. If Mr. Bradburn will go to the people next January on this question he will find out what the people think of it, and they will leave him where he can do no more mischief.

A RED-LETTER NIGHT FOR SHERWOOD FOREST CAMP

Annual Installation of Officers Took Place Last Night---Fifteen Candidates Were Initiated

Sherwood Forest Camp, No. 50, Woodmen of the World, had a red-letter night last night, when the annual installation of officers took place. The occasion was also featured by a visit from some of the Head Council officers, the presentation of a handsome gold watch from Sherwood Forest Camp to Clerk A. A. Haskill and of watches and rings to other members of the Camp for their services in securing new members.

There was a very large attendance of members and the event was one of the most successful in the history of the local Woodmen. The first business of the evening was the initiation of fifteen members. It is significant to note that in the last six weeks of last year no less than one hundred and fifteen members were added to the Camp and last night's initiation indicates that they are going to keep up the good work during the present year.

The installin officer was Dr. W. G. Harrison of Toronto, Head Council Commander. The following officers were installed:

Council Commander — James Valery.
Adv. Lieut.—F. Dummett.
Banker—Jas. Kyle.
Clerk—A. A. Haskill.
Escort—Jas. Bath.
Watchman—F. C. Miller.
Sentry—F. Hughes.
Managers—Wm. Gibbs, R. Waram, R. Carr.

At this stage Mayor Bradburn and Ald. Gillespie, Gordon, Brown, Johnston and Anderson, all members of Sherwood Forest Camp, arrived and His Worship was made chairman for the balance of the meeting.

Eloquent addresses on the work of the Order were given by Dr. Harrison, the Head Council Commander, D. Cinnamon of Lindsay, Head Advisory Lieutenant, L. H. Taylor of Brantford, the Head Manager, Ald. Gillespie, Ald. Gordon, Ald. Johnston, Ald. Brown and Ald. Anderson.

A Presentation.

An interesting event was the presentation of a very handsome gold watch, engraved with the emblem of the Order, to Sovereign A. A. Haskill, for many years clerk of the Camp. The presentation was made by Sovereign Andrew Graham, while Sovereign Wm. Gibbs read the following address:

To Sovereign Allan A. Haskill, Clerk of Sherwood Forest Camp, No. 50, of the Woodmen of the World.

Dear Sovereign Haskill,—The last eleven years we, the fellow Sovereigns of this Camp have been in intimate touch with you by reason of your holding office of Clerk of this Camp for that period of time. During those eleven years we have learned to appreciate your many good qualities and to know the hearty interests you have taken in forwarding the interests of Woodcraft in this city and district. You have not yet been presented with any token of our appreciation and it has been our feeling for a considerable length of time that we should extend to you in some small way, our hearty appreciation of your services and the feeling of high regard and esteem in which you are held by your fellow Sovereigns.

For that reason we have taken the liberty with the unanimous approval of the fellow Sovereigns of this Camp to tender to you this small gift as a token of our regard and respect for you as our Clerk in this Camp. We trust that during your many years of usefulness to Woodcraft in this district and to us, that this gift to you will ever remind you of our fellowship and good will towards you, and will further assist you in keeping alive that kind feeling of Brotherhood which has always existed between you and the fellow Sovereigns of this Camp.

We wish you always prosperity, happiness and the friendship of all those with whom you have come in contact and that you will always feel that you have our best wishes and highest regard.

Signed on behalf of Sherwood Forest Camp, No. 50.

The good work of the members of Sherwood Forest Camp in securing new members in the recent competition was fittingly recognized by the presentation by Dr. Harrison last night of gold watches to Wm. Gibbs, F. C. Miller, E. J. Waterman, J. Sutherland, J. J. Graham, J. Valery and J. Bath, and signet rings engraved with the emblem of the order to A. A. Haskill, F. J. Hughes and F. Arnsby.

The gathering then retired to the banqueting room, where a sumptuous repast was served by Mr. T. H. Hooper, a very pleasant time being spent round the festive board.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

"I HAVE found that one of the best ways to get children into the habit of doing the right thing, is to try to make the right course the course of least resistance. I suppose that sounds obvious, but I know a great many mothers who waste much energy because they do not realise and practice that method'.'

So a woman who has been eminently successful in the difficult profession of motherhood puts one of the secrets of her success.

And this is the way she explains and illustrates that statement.

"I used to have the children keep their rubbers and overshoes upstairs in their own closets, so that they would not get them mixed. And all the time I was bothered by finding them left all over the house. It was always 'Bobby, why didn't you take your rubbers upstairs?' or 'Eleanor, that is the second time this week that I've stumbled over your overshoes'. Finally, I decided to make it easier for them to be orderly, and see if that wouldn't help. Father made a box for the rubbers of the whole family with a little compartment for each one of us, and we kept it in the back hall—now I almost never have any trouble.

"Then, again, I always wanted the children to put on aprons before they came into the kitchen to do anything. The girls had aprons of their own which they kept upstairs, and the boys were supposed to hunt up one of mine. Well, it seemed impossible to enforce that rule. It was: 'Oh, I was only going to make a little paste and I didn't want to go way upstairs for my apron,' or 'Oh, bother, mother, I couldn't find any of your old aprons.' So finally one day after Eleanor had spilled a cup of milk down the front of her new dress, I had father put up five hooks right in the entry as you go into the kitchen — I had the girls bring down their aprons, and gave the boys each one of their own, and told them they were to hang their aprons on those hooks and were not to pass by into the kitchen without taking down their own and putting it on — you wouldn't believe the time in cleaning up their clothes that has saved me.

"That's two examples. I could give you a dozen more, but you see what I mean. Instead of wearing yourself out hammering at the children, trying to get them to do something hard or inconvenient, just study out how you can make what you want them to do more natural and easy—in other words, try to make the right course the course of least resistance."

Does this idea appeal to you as good?

It certainly does to me.

And right in my own life, I have an unconscious example of its efficacy. Last Christmas I had a small desk dictionary given me. During the last year I know that I've looked up ten words to every one I looked up during the time I had to go into the other room, open the bookcase and pull down the heavy dictionary.

It is human nature to follow the course of least resistance. Much can be accomplished in training one's children and one's self to overcome this tendency. But much can also be accomplished by making the right course the course of least resistance.

Think and see if there is not some obstacle or some unsatisfactory condition in your household which might be overcome with a consequent saving of energy for yourself.

ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED BY SUCCESSFUL PLAY

"The Squire's Daughter" Admirably Presented at St. Alphonsus Lyceum Last Night---Large Attendance Saw a Delightful Entertainment.

The 12th anniversary of the inauguration of the St. Peter's T.A.S. was very successfully celebrated last evening in the St. Alphonsus Lyceum, when an attractive playlet entitled "The Squire's Daughter," was performed by a cast of local artists. There was a very large attendance, to whom the Rev. Dr. O'Brien, of the Sacred Heart Church, delivered a brief but interesting address immediately prior to the performance. He dealt with the history of the Society, and its organization, taking, with his own, the minds of the assembly back to the first meeting of the Society, at which only the Ven. Archdeacon Casey, Father O'Sullivan and himself, were present, and which took place in the room which ultimately became the billiard room of the old T.A.S. rooms. Referring to the work of the Society, he said: "I cannot remember saying a mass at the beautiful altar of the Sacred Heart Church, which was presented by this Society, without thinking in distinct terms of the members of the Society, both living and dead. A man is a mean, despicable being who would indulge in intoxicants to excess, therefore we ought to be proud of the work of the Society in checking this evil.

In addition to the play, several musical numbers were given. Miss Vera Devlin, Mr. Ed. Hanrahan, Miss Florence Leahy and Master J. Clancy delighted the gathering with appropriate songs, while Miss Carrie White recited a portion of Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet. The Convent orchestra furnished several excellent selections.

The attractiveness of the play was enhanced by the charming costumes and the beautiful scenic effects. The plot of the piece was a somewhat amusing one. An extortionate landlord, who is also a fortune hunter, hears of the squire's daughter, and plans to make advances, with a view to a share in her inheritance. The squire and her daughter visit a widow who also has a charming daughter. On receiving the intelligence of his desire and that he was expected shortly to call for the rent, the squire's daughter, posing as the daughter of the widow, receives the landlord, and becomes cognisant of his extortionate nature. They meet again later at a masked ball, and the landlord labours under the impression that the charming daughter of the widow is the squire's daughter. At length however they unmask and the designs of the fortune hunter are frustrated.

To dwell at length on the performance of any individual would be an injustice to the others, as they all were particularly suited to their parts and portrayed the several characters to a nicety. They were: Squire Clyde, Mr. Vincent McCabe; Dorothy (his daughter) Miss L. Symonds; Mrs. Felton (the widow), Miss Emma Derocher; Emily (her daughter), Miss Carrie White; Miss Philip, Miss Gertrude Clancy, Mercy, Miss H. Pearce, Mr. Weatherspout, Mr. Ed. Hanrahan, Leslie, Mr. Elrick White; Mr. Dingle (the landlord) Mr. J. O'Brien.

The evening closed with the National Anthem, shortly after ten o'clock.

MRS. TIMOTHY WHALEY.

The death occurred very suddenly at 11.30 this morning, of Mary Ellen Hennessy, wife of Mr. Timothy Whaley, of 272 Westcott street.

The deceased was 37 years of age, and a native of Chelsea, Quebec. She is survived by a sorrowing husband and four sons, namely, William D'Arcy, John Francis, Frederick Leonard and Daniel Joseph, a babe of 10 days old.

Four sisters and three brothers also lament her demise in the persons of Annie of Montreal, Maggie, Charlotte, Mrs. M. J. Armstrong, of Ottawa; Michael, John and Thomas of Ottawa.

The funeral will take places on Thursday at 9 o'clock to the Sacred Heart Church and from thence to the Little Lake cemetery, for interment.

TIED DOWN

20 Years' Slavery — How She God Freedom.

A dypepsia veteran who writes from one of England's charming rural homes to tell how she won victory in her 20 years' fight, naturally exults in her triumph over the tea and coffee habit.

"I feel it a duty to tell you," she says, "how much good Postum has done me. I am grateful, but also desire to let others who may be suffering as I did, know of the delightful method by which I was relieved.

"I had suffered for 20 years from dyspepsia, and the giddiness that usually accompanies that painful ailment, and which frequently prostrated me. I never drank much coffee, and cocoa and even milk did not agree with my impaired digestion, so I used tea, exclusively, till about a year ago, when I found in a package of Grape-Nuts, the little book, 'The Road to Wellville.'

"After a careful reading of the booklet I was curious to try Postum and sent for a package. I enjoyed it from the first, and at once gave up tea in its favour.

"I began to feel better very soon. My giddiness left me after the first few days' use of Postum, and my stomach became stronger so rapidly that it was not long till I was able (as still I am) to take milk and many other articles of food of which I was formerly compelled to deny myself. I have proved the truth of your statement that Postum 'makes good, red blood.'

"I have become very enthusiastic over the merits of my new table beverage, and during the past few months have conducted a Postum propaganda among my neighbours which has brought benefit to many, and I shall continue to tell my friends of the 'better way' in which I rejoice." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

WEDDING BELLS

LORD—ALLEN.

A quiet, but pretty wedding took place at 8 o'clock in St. Peter's Cathedral this morning, when the Rev. Fr. McColl united in the bond of holy matrimony Mr. Joseph Lord and Miss Lauretta Allen, both of Peterborough.

The witnesses were Mr. C. J. O'Hara and Miss Lizzie Allen.

BASCIANO—CAPONE.

The wedding of Mr. Eusebio Basciano and Miss Maria Capone was solemnized in the St. Peter's Cathedral at 7 o'clock this morning.

Rev. Fr. J. J. McCarthy officiated.

THE WEATHER

Although the cold has moderated considerably a small sized blizzard has taken its place. The strong west wind has badly drifted the heavy fall of snow. Lowest temperature last night, 14 above zero. As is usually the case, it is likely that we will have some more weather of the "decidedly colder" variety.

Doubleheader Crashes Into a Train Near Montreal

FOUR MEN ARE KILLED

Montreal, Jan. 9.—Four men were killed and eight others badly hurt, while the injuries of still another are likely to prove fatal, in a head-on collision on the Canadian Pacific Railway yesterday afternoon at St. Vincent de Paul.

The collision occurred at 2.20 in the afternoon, when the Montreal train was run into by the train that left Quebec at 8.30 in the morning.

It was a double-header from Quebec on account of the heavy track, and, instead of taking the siding at the station, it went straight ahead and plunged into the engine of the train from Montreal, which was standing on the main line, with the expectation that the train from Quebec would take the siding.

The dead are:

Arthur de Hernais, brakeman, aged 40, Quebec.

Gallee Thibodeau, clerk, 20 years old, Lotbiniere.

Elzear Bedard, laborer, aged 45, Maskinonge.

Edmund Diopel, rooter, aged 32, 134 Dufferin street, Montreal.

The injured are:

Didier Dufresne, 33 years old, Three Rivers, both legs broken and serious internal injuries; not expected to recover.

Eugene Lanouette, employe at Mont St. Louis College, aged 46, legs injured and internally hurt.

Alfred Boulet, 15 years old, Quebec, contusions to abdomen.

Joseph Laverdue, Hull, general contusions.

Eugene Bedard, aged 22, Port Neuf, scalp wounds and general contusions.

Ernest Cloutier, aged 60, Three Rivers, right foot smashed.

Severe Comtois, aged 58, St. Barthelmy, right leg broken.

Andre Caron, aged 56, Three Rivers, general contusions.

O. Frechette, conductor, 43 years of age, Quebec, right foot cut off at ankle; compound fracture of left leg; severe scalp wounds.

James Hamilton, engineer, 23 years of age, Outremont, both legs broken and serious internal injuries.

It is stated that the cold weather was the cause of the wreck. The engineer of the first engine on the double-header from Quebec said that when approaching the siding at St. Vincent de Paul, he applied the air-brakes as usual. He suddenly found that they were not responding and made wild signals to the engineer of the second locomotive to use his air-brakes. But by this time the train was too close for effective application, and, apparently, the engineer on the second engine didn't discover what the trouble was until it was too late. The Quebec train did not slow down, but smashed into the waiting train from Montreal at twenty miles an hour.

The front engine of the double-header was a light one and the second a powerful locomotive. The lighter engine was badly damaged, but the other was scarcely hurt. The two front baggage and mail cars came out without serious injury, but the impact was so great that the third car, buckled in the middle and was partly telescoped.

It was here that the three passengers were killed. The brakeman, DeHarnais, was caught between the third and fourth car and crushed so badly that he died shortly afterwards.

Appeals For Quick Sentence.

Boston, Jan. 9.—The desire of Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, who has confessed, to have the degree of his punishment for the murder of his sweetheart, Miss Avis Linnell, fixed by the governor and council, rather than by a court and jury, will find its first legal expression this afternoon, when the young Virginian will ask the Suffolk County Superior Criminal Court to accept his plea of guilty, as charged in the indictment.

While Judge Sanderson has the option of accepting the plea and pronouncing the death sentence at once, or holding it in abeyance until satisfied of Richeson's mental condition, it is to Governor Foss that Richeson's counsel will go with the confession itself, as their strongest argument for clemency and ask that the life of the clergyman be saved.

Cheaper Power For Brantford.

Brantford, Jan. 9.—The City Council at its inaugural meeting here yesterday passed a resolution that, in view of the fact that other municipalities were receiving power and light at rates less than at Brantford, a committee of the council with seven other members be named to enquire into the rates charged in other cities.

Engineer Sothman of the Hydro-electric Commission addressed the council, emphasizing the importance of action by Brantford in view of the fact that Paris, Blue Lake and St. George, immediately west, were clamoring for Hydro-electric power. If Brantford came into the union matters would be greatly facilitated and a power station would be erected outside this city.

Rev. R. I. Felgate Murdered.

Shanghai, Jan. 9.—Word has reached here that the Rev. R. I. Felgate of the China Inland Mission at Mokanshan, Province of Chekiang, has been murdered, it is supposed, by robbers.

Toronto, Jan. 9.—The official list of missionaries attached to the China Inland Mission does not contain the name of Rev. R. I. Felgate. A. Langman and wife, according to the list, are stationed at Mokanshan.

London Man Killed.

London, Ont., Jan. 9.—A telegram from Wesley, Sask., announces that James Thompson, former resident of Londesboro, was killed in a railroad accident near there Sunday. He was 35 years old. This is the fourth death in the family that has occurred in the west in a few months.

IS SORRY ALREADY

Montreal, Jan. 9.—The Monumental National, the scene of former triumphs of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, was crowded last night, and for an hour and a half he evoked enthusiasm, asserting that he was in no way embittered by the defeat of last autumn, that he accepted it as the will of the people and that he only assumed the lead of the Opposition at the urgent request of friends. Once again the former Premier reiterated his adherence to the old programme of Liberalism, which he declared to stand for the prosperity that marked the past fifteen years and once more he stated that he was neither Imperialist nor Nationalist, but simply Canadian.

The Government came in for some criticism, though chiefly in relation to the Nationalists, and the speaker spent a good deal of his energy in hitting at Mr. Bourassa and Mr. Monk, and the latter's position in regard to the navy.

The meeting, under the Association of Young Liberals, was presided over by Victor Beique, and on the platform with Sir Wilfrid were several of his late Ministers, including Hon. Sydney Fisher, George Graham, William Mackenzie King, also Messrs. Mederic Martin, R. W. Bickerdike, D. Lafortune, Rosh Lanctot, Charles Marcil, M.P., Leon Garneau, L. Gauthier, M.P., Oscar Gladu, Victor Geoffron, ex-whip; Severin Letourneau, Ralph Smith, M.P., Charles Murphy and others.

Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King touched on the recent provincial elections in Ontario and marked two things that had been responsible for making the fifteen years Liberal regime famous, namely, the prosperity of the country and the personality of the chief.

Sir Wilfrid, who was the recipient of a couple of bouquets from a little girl and boy, and who was received with prolonged ovations, declared: "Never were our convictions more firmly founded than now. And what of our opponents? Already those who were victorious are experiencing regret and uneasiness of conscience on account of the violated promises, troubles which began the day after victory was attained and which will more manifest as the days go by.

"Those who were to repeal the naval law and who pretended that they were serious, have already shown what their promises were worth, and you have seen during the past three months what they have done. You know I do not exaggerate when I say that what they have done has been to organize patronage and satisfy place hunters, and these are the people; who abused me and my friends for such things, while they themselves are the greatest corrupters Canada ever saw. It has been a formidable debauch of office-seeking. And their promises before the elections, what has become of them? What about their principles which they said they would follow? Those principles have gone and the naval law will perhaps be abolished at doomsday."

WAS SO RUN DOWN

COULD NOT DO ANY WORK.

Thought She Was So Far Gone Nothing Could Cure Her.

MILBURN'S HEART and NERVE PILLS Made Her Strong and Healthy.

Many women get run down, and are unable to look after their household duties, owing to their nervous system becoming unstrung, and when this happens, the heart starts to work in sympathy with the nerves. In Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills is combined a treatment that will cure all forms of nervous disorders, as well as act on the heart itself. Mrs. F. McFadyen, Brookside, Sask., writes:—"It is with the greatest of pleasure I write you stating the benefit I have received from using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. This spring I was so run down I could not do any work, and one day a neighbor advised me to try your Pills. I told her that I thought nothing could cure me, as I was too far gone. But she told me to get a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, which I did, and before I had finished them, I began to improve, and when I had finished the fifth box I was as strong and healthy as any person. Anyone who is suffering from heart or nerve troubles should take your Heart and Nerve Pills and they will soon discover their worth."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Specific Offer

with a stated price, is the kind of advertising that appeals to the reader and makes him want to become a buyer—describe what you have to sell, giving all the points of interest, and you are likely to find many, very many people who will want what you have to sell, if only you have named a price that proves it the bargain you claim.

Advertising never becomes good advertising until you tell fully in it what the reader wants to know—what he must know before he will willingly become a buyer of your goods, candour in your advertising will inspire confidence in you and your goods.

BIGGEST YET IS THE PETERBORO' POULTRY SHOW WHICH OPENED AT NOON

It did not require the services of a brass band or a man with a megaphone to announce the opening of the annual Poultry Show to-day. The nature of the show is one that furnishes sufficient evidence of its existence, in itself, without having to resort to artificial means. The event, which has become an annual fixture with the Peterborough Poultry Association, was formally opened at noon to-day, and, judging by the exceedingly large number of entries, and the interest displayed by the many who visited the market hall to-day, this year's show will eclipse those of previous years.

Big List of Entries.

The entries this year are much larger than on former occasions, and is pretty conclusive evidence of the growing interest and enthusiasm shown by the poultry fanciers of this district. Among those of the feathered tribe, who found shelter in the Market Hall to-day, were several large entries from distant points, including a quota of fine birds from Sherbrooke. Nearly every known species of fowl is represented at the show, ranging all the way from the doughty cock, which occupies a prominent place in the section reserved for the Wyandottes, to the diminutive bantam, whose sharp, shrill crow is added to the chorus of sounds that reverberate throughout the hall. Mr. J. Baptie of Springville, is among the large exhibitors, as also Mr. Joe Kelly, and Mr. Aneerson.

Judging To-Morrow.

The services of Mr. J. E. Bennet, of Toronto have been secured to supervise the judging, which will commence to-morrow morning, and continue throughout the day. Arrangements have been made whereby the school children will be admitted to the show for the nominal sum of five cents for the three consecutive days of the show.

Special Exhibits.

The special exhibits are unusually large this year, and include a pen of beautiful silver and golden pheasants—the property of Chief Howard. Pigeons, rabbits, and small game, even to a live fox, are shown. Secretary Kelly stated to the Examiner this morning that he had received over 1,100 entries. When one stops to consider that each entry represents all the way from two to a dozen birds, a small conception of the extent of the exhibition can be gathered.

Very Fast Ice And Large Attendance For To-night's O.H.A. Game

There will be another special train from Lindsay to-night, when the Lindsay Midgets will meet the Peterborough Juniors in a Junior O. H. A. game at Brock Street Rink. They expect great things from the Midgets up in Scugogville this year, and will send down a big following to cheer them on to victory to-night. The Peterborough team finished their training for this game with a twenty-minute workout last night, with every member of the team in line and they are right on edge for to-night's battle. The ice is hard and keen, the conditions thoroughly suiting the speedy Peterborough youngsters, who are at their best when the going is good. The game is called for 8.15 o'clock, but may be a little later in starting, owing to the fact that the Lindsay team are running an excursion, which does not leave Lindsay until 7.15 o'clock. The teams will line up as follows:

Lindsay		Peterborough
Henley	Goal	Dwyer
McMahon	Point	Milloy
McConnell	Cover	Kennedy
Denison	Rover	Weir
Begg	Centre	Hall
Mercer	Right Wing	Coughlin
Scott	Left Wing	Clancy

Spares—Cook, O'Dette.

Local Interest In the Flynn-Kubiak Bout

Tom Flanagan, manager of the National Sporting Club of Canada, writes the Sparting Editor of the Examiner to say that his Club has received several inquiries from Peterborough about tickets for the Flynn-Kubiak, semi-final bout for the heavy weight championship of the world, which is to take place January 17th in Toronto.

Anyone in Peterborough may become a member of the National Sporting Club for 25c, and the prices for this bout will be $1.00, $2.00, and $3.00. By sending membership fee, and price of ticket to Tom. C. Flanagan, 57 Simcoe street, the tickets will be held at the box office of Riverdale Arena, the night of the bout.

OPENING GAMES OF CURLING SCHEDULE

The curlers opened their scheduled season in Charlotte Street Rink yesterday afternoon, when Skips C. N. Brown and Rev. Henderson lined up for a battle royal. After an exciting contest the Ministerial aggregation went down to defeat by a score of 8-10. The personnel of the two contending rinks were J. D. Collins, H. A. Morrow, J. Knapman, C. N. Brown, skip; and Rev. Webb, Rev. Rollins, Rev. Pogue, Rev. Henderson, skip.

The curlers have had a good week's practise and, in spite of the belated appearance of the Frost King, they feel confident of landing some more silverware for the Club this season.

Two scheduled games were played last night, with the following rinks in action:

No. 1 Ice—

Canfield	C. James
R. Carton	W. R. Turner
R. Best,	W. D. Campbell,
J. H. Connal	H. Foote,

HOCKEY HAPPENINGS

Callaghan, the fast centre of the Lindsay Junior O. H. A. team, and Jimmy Freeman, the hard-shooting rover and captain of the Cobourg team, have fallen under the suspicion of the O. H. A., and neither will be allowed to play until their residential qualifications have been looked into. Callaghan will not be seen in action against Peterborough to-night.

Correct score was 8 to 4.—The correct score in the Belleville-Trenton Intermediate game at Trenton on Friday night was 8 to 4, in favour of Trenton, instead of 8 to 2, as previously reported.

A Lindsay Excursion.

To-morrow (Tuesday) evening the Lindsay Junior O. H. A. team journeys to Peterborough by special train to play the fast junior septette of that city. The special will leave Lindsay at 7.15 o'clock, and the fare has been fixed at 70 cents. The G. T. R. has promised modern coaches for the trip, comfortably heated, etc. The Electric City team beat Cobourg on Thursday evening last, and their supporters believe they can duplicate the trick to-morrow night. They will run up against a snag, however, in the local seven, and a red-hot game is anticipated.—Lindsay Post.

THE MERCANTILE LEAGUE.

The Mercantile League opener on Saturday night, between the C. G. E. tool room, last year's champions, and the Lock Works, was a lively exhibition and attracted a large crowd to Brock St. Rink. The tool-room, with three of the Peterborough Junior O. H. A. team in the line-up, and further strengthened by the presence of Shortstop—beg pardon—point Ernie Rahmel, won handily by 6 goals to 1, leading at half-time by 4 to 1. It was a good exhibition of hockey, considering it was the first of the season for the teams. Fred Kelly refereed satisfactorily. The teams were:

Rahmel's dazzling rushes were a feature of the performance.

The classy new purple and white uniforms of the Clerks' team failed to win for them last night, and they had to yield the palm of victory to the C. G. E. Machine Shop, the score being 4-1, in favour of the latter. The half-time score was 2 to 1. The ice was in good shape and the game was a first-class exhibition. Leo Derocher refereed satisfactorily, and the teams were as follows:

Clerks—Goal, Wolfe; point, Loch; cover, Ross; rover, Halpin; centre, Jamieson; right wing, White; left wing, Nicholls.

16 Ounces of Unequaled Cough Syrup for 50c
The Quickest, Surest Cough Remedy You Ever Used, or Money Refunded. Stops Even Whooping Cough Quickly.

You may not need the $2 which a 50-cent bottle of Pinex saves you, but you do need the wonderful effectiveness of this famous cough remedy. It will usually stop the most obstinate deep-seated cough inside of 24 hours, and has no equal for whooping cough.

A 50-cent bottle of Pinex, mixed with home-made sugar syrup, gives you 16 ounces—a family supply of the most pleasant and effective cough remedy you ever used. Easily prepared in five minutes—directions in package.

The way this takes hold of a cough and gives instant relief will make you regret that you never tried it before. Stimulates the appetite, is slightly laxative and tastes good—children take it willingly. It has a wonderful record in cases of incipient lung trouble and is splendid for croup, asthma, bronchitis, throat trouble, etc.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of Norway White Pine extract, rich in guaiacol and other natural healing pine elements. Simply mix with sugar syrup or strained honey, in a 16-ounce bottle, and it is ready for use. Used in more homes in the U. S. and Canada than any other cough remedy.

Pinex has often been imitated, but never successfully, for nothing else will produce the same results. The genuine is guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. Certificate of guarantee is wrapped in each package. Your druggist has Pinex or will gladly get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

PETERBORO' BOY GOES WEST

Mr. Harry Quinlan of the Bank of Ottawa, leaves to-day to take up duties at the Prince Albert Branch.

He has received many presents and souvenirs, amongst which were a splendid gold watch fob, presented by the members of St. Peter's choir, and a pipe and case, from the members of the staff of the Bank.

He was very popular in the city, and while his departure will be regretted, his many friends wish him every success in his new home.

HOCKEY PLAYER INJURED

Elric White, a member of the Clerks' team in the Mercantile League, was painfully injured in last night's game with the Machine Shop. He was accidentally hit in the eye with a stick, and a bad cut, necessitating seven stitches, was inflicted. Medical assistance had to be summoned.

BETTER THAN EVER

The first rush that followed the opening of the Great Retiring Sale was indeed a harvest to Peterborough residents, and was taken full advantage of by people with an eye to business. We did all we could with a doubled staff to fill every want, as there was no reserve of any kind in the offering. Now, however, the

RETIRING SALE

has reached a stage when we can give more attention to sections of the stock that have seemed to lag somewhat in interest, and in these lines there will be sensational bargains in order to move them.

There must be a big move of the stock during January and the prices will be the attraction that will bring the result.

Don't wait for prices to be quoted on anything you may have in mind for present or future needs. Just make it a point to look the things up on your very first day's shopping—you will find a first-class selection, and the thing that will please you most will be the little price. This will be more especially so in Winter Coats, Winter Suits, Millinery, Carpets and Rugs.

A lot of Spring Goods, contracted for last May & June, have arrived, and go on sale at Retiring Sale Prices. They include Spring Embroideries, Spring Ginghams, and New Vestings, and many other materials in early Spring fabrics. All Departments are being maintained, fully equipped.

No Goods Exchanged or on Approval. Same Courtesy as Before to Open Account Patrons.

ENTIRELY BALD

Her Hair Commenced to Grow After Two Weeks' Use of Newbro's Herpicide.

"Fever caused me to be entirely bald. I had given up all hope of again having hair when I was advised to use Herpicide. After two weeks my hair commenced to grow. I now have the most beautiful head of hair anyone ever saw. Praise to Newbro's Herpicide."

Thus writes Mrs. Howard Bailey, of Bellevue, Mich. We can point to thousands of instances where the proper use of Herpicide has been followed by a remarkable growth of hair.

Newbro's Herpicide is the original remedy which kills the dandruff germ and stops falling hair.

One Dollar Size Bottles are sold and guaranteed by all druggists. Send 10c. in postage for sample and booklet to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit Mich.

A Former Peterboro' Domestic Disappears in City Of Detroit

Special to The Examiner.

WINDSOR, Jan. 9.—Enid Brock, aged 18, an English girl, was brought to Canada three years ago by the Dr. Barnardo Home, and a fter living some time in Toronto came to Detroit on December 30 last. Three days later she mysteriously disappeared from the Young Women's Christian Association rooms, where she had been boarding and no trace of her has since been seen. The local immigration officers on both sides of the river recall having seen the girl when she crossed the river from Windsor, and it was they who directed her to seek quarters at the Y.W.C.A. Miss Brock stated that she was an orphan. She had worked for a time with Mrs. Roushcraft at Peterborough, afterwards returning to Toronto, where she secured employment with a Mrs. Wright, at No. 39, Concord avenue. She had $20 with her when she arrived here and stated that she expected to make her home in Detroit. The girl is described as being about five feet three inches tall, light complexion, brown or auburn hair and blue eyes. She wore a blue hat, with white trimmings on left side, and grey striped suit of two shades. When she left the Y.W.C.A. early on the morning of January 2 she left all her effects behind. The Toronto authorities have been communicated with in an effort to trace Miss Brock's whereabouts.

The Poultry Association Gets Grant

At the Council meeting last night a grant of $75 was made to the Peterborough Poultry Association and provision was also made to place a similar sum in the estimates so that $75 may be given the Association in December to assist next year's show. A deputation, consisting of Messrs. Holmes, J .W. Kelly ond other members waited upon the Council.

HOCKEY EXCURSION TO BELLEVILLE ON FRIDAY

Big Crowd Will Accompany Peterborough Intermediates to Bay of Quinte Town for Important Game—Special G. T. R. Train to Leave at 4:30 p.m.—Fare Will be $1.75

At the request of a large number of fans the Peterborough Hockey Club has decided to run an excursion to Belleville on Friday of this week, when the local Intermediates will hook up with Belleville in their first game away from home. It is highly important that this game should be registered as a win for Peterborough and the locals are going down determined to annex the big end of the score. The team is in fine shape and should play the game of their lives on Friday. A big bunch of fans will take advantage of the excursion and cheap rates to accompany the blue and white team, and it looks like a great outing.

A special (G.T.R.) train will leave the local station at 4.30 p.m., returning after the game. The company has promised warm, comfortable coaches, and everything will be done to make the trip a pleasant one. A cheap rate has been secured of $1.75 for the round trip, with half-rate for children, and a large number have already signified their intentions of going down to cheer the Peterborough team on to victory.

WALKED FROM TORONTO IN THE ZERO WEATHER

How would you care to walk from Toronto to Peterborough in weather like this?

Three Ottawa youths completed such a journey at 3 o'clock this morning, arriving via the C. P. R. tracks. They left Toronto last Thursday, and have been en route ever since, getting food and shelter as best they could.

The trio, some weeks ago, left their homes, in Ottawa, and went to Toronto, to look for work. The employment did not materialise and their funds dwindled and finally disappeared altogether, and they were on their "uppers". The Salvation Army and other similar institutions supplied them with food for a short time, and, not finding any hope of getting work, they decided to walk back to Ottawa. They have had a rough passage as far as Peterborough, and are to-day looking for some employment here in order to get enough money to pay for their transportation home.

NEW YEAR'S GATHERING OF ST. JOHN'S SUNDAY SCHOOL

St. John's Sunday school annual New Year's gathering was held last night, a large number of scholars attending, notwithstanding the inclement weather. The Superintendent, Mr. R. J. Devey, presided, supported by the Rev. Canon Davidson, Mr. W. F. Johnston, church warden, and Mr. H. Cluxton, chairman of the St. John's Church Association. Special decorative effects were supplied by Mr. E. Langley, the school presenting a pretty appearance. A splendid programme was provided, mainly by the scholars, after which refreshments were served, ably catered for by Coleman Bros. Mr. Cole in his ventriloquial sketches was a great success, thoroughly delighting the audience.

Short addresses of encouragement to the scholars, and eulogising the work of the officers and teachers were given and a happy evening concluded at 9.30, with the national anthem and benediction. The following was the programme:

Carol, "See amid the winter snow," choir boys.
Action duet, "Mowing the barley," Daisy and Frank Shannon.
Ventriloquial sketch by Mr. Cole.
Cornet and clarionette duet, "The last rose of summer," Masters Gliddon.
Action duet—Daisy and Frank Shannon.
Violin solo, "Tannhauser," Miss Burnett.
Song, "British Lion," Mr. F. Roberts.
The pianoforte accompaniments to the various items were tastefully played by Miss Hazel Dean, Master Harold Devey and Mr. R. J. Devey.

DO OUR MERCHANTS BELIEVE THAT FAIR PLAY IS BONNIE PLAY

Time after time, year after year, The Examiner has championed the interests of our city merchants and business men, by urging our citizens to confine their purchases of goods and household supplies from local merchants and business men. This, it was insisted upon, was the fair, the reasonable thing to do. As a rule, the mass of our citizens make a living, make money, by the help and co-operation of all the others. The first principle of fair play would be that the money earned by the collective help of others should, exclusively as far as possible, be spent in the city for the benefit of the others.

The city newspapers having thus helped the merchants and business men, naturally look for a recognition by them of the principle of fair play. If merchants and business men expect that money made in Peterborough should be spent with them in Peterborough, they should naturally admit that the money gained with them from the public, and as far as the influence of the newspapers prevails, through efforts of the latter, should be spent in Peterborough. One would think that the answer of merchants to the solicitations of outside establishments for orders for printing would be that "the local establishments, who have helped the merchant, should, could and would do their work; that in fairness the merchants of Peterborough could not give outside orders for printing or anything else that could be satisfactorily filled by local establishments."

We have the representatives of outside business establishments soliciting and, far too often, obtaining, orders for printing for outside establishments, at the expense of the local establishments, who devote a great deal of space and effort to inducing citizens to patronize only local merchants and business men.

Do our merchants and business men admit that fair play is bonnie play? Do they admit that if they can lay claim to local patronage they must not themselves violate the principle they wish to have applied to themselves?

The newspapers of the city devote themselves to the advocacy of everything that can help build up the city, promote its business prosperity, and the general welfare, and in fairness deserves consideration. Fair play is bonnie play.

GREAT INTEREST MANIFESTED IN PETERBORO' POULTRY SHOW

Judging Commenced This Morning and Will Continue Throughout the Day—Poultry Fanciers Present From all Quarters of Ontario.

To the accompanyment of a barnyard chorus, the directors of the Peterborough Poultry Association threw open the doors of their annual poultry show, to the waiting public, this morning. This is the second day of the show, and one that promises to counteract the effects of yesterday's slim attendance. The severe weather, which prevailed yesterday, was a serious handicap to the success of the show, but the officials are very optimistic as to the outcome of to-day and to-morrow. They have a record list of entries, a glance over which will satisfy the most dubious as to the quality of the exhibition.

Some of the Exhibitors.

Poultry fanciers from all over Ontario, and Quebec are in attendance, among the largest being G. K. Thompson of Whitby; Vickery Bros., of Oshawa; E. Lawless, Grafton, Ont., Bottrell & Son, Bowmanville; J. R. Hope, Villiers; W. C. Way, Lindsay; and others. Some of the Peterborough exhibitors are W. P. Dunnett, W. Mein, G. B. Tucker, J. Gaites, S. Newhall, W. A. Howard, J. Denno, J. Kelly, Secretary of the Poultry Association; J. Perry, and Mr. J. Baptie of Springville.

This list represents but a small portion of the exhibitors, there being somewhere in the neighbourhood of 1,100 entries. Mr. J. E. Bennett of Toronto, arrived on the scene this morning, and the work of judging was commenced. Mr. Bennett has a wide reputation as a judge of poultry, having figured in that capacity in all the big poultry shows in Canada for a number of years. He also took a prominent part in the recent Guelph poultry show, coming out with honours against the strong competition of two American judges.

There is also a display of dressed poultry, showing the latest up-to-date methods of preparing fowl for the market. Mrs. Dawson of London, Ontario, gave an interesting address this afternoon, on the best methods of raising chickens, and preparing the product for the market. The show will be open this afternoon and evening, and also to-morrow. School children will be admitted for the nominal sum of five cents.

Seldom has such an excellent opportunity to gather new facts, and gain new ideas been offered to those who are interested in the poultry industry, as that which presents itself in the Peterborough Poultry Show, and it is up to those who are interested in this live subject to visit the show.

Bred to Lay.

This is the caption under which the following interesting figures are to be found, concerning the performance of fifteen Black Minorca hens in a Peterborough City lot. They were enclosed within a house measuring 7 feet by 7 feet, with a 7x24 ft. run attached:

January 1st, 1911, to January 1st, 1912—Number of eggs, 2,414; value at market price, $30.95; cost of feed, $13.55; profit, $26.40.

These birds are owned by Mr. J. Perry, 316 Maitland avenue.

Ruins Of Equitable Building Like A Hot Fiery Furnace

Examiner Special:

Mr. Pelletier is 88 years old.

NEW YORK, JAN. 10.— With the aid of searchlights from neighbouring skyscrapers, the firemen played all night on the ruined Equitable building with a dozen lines of hose, but still parts are hot as a fiery furnace, and no attempts possible were made to get at the billion and a half dollars of securities in the vaults of the building. One hundred and fifty police officers guarded the ruins lest looters should try to get the securities. As daylight came this morning the searchers saw the bodies of William Champion, the capt. watchman of the Mercantile Trust Co., dead at his post inside the iron fence around the vaults, also the remains of three men employed in the restaurant kitchen. It is feared that the body of Deputy Chief Walsh and other were consumed in the flames. It is not decided as to whether the Equitable will build on the site again or not.

Persons troubled with partial paralysis are often very much benefitted by massaging the affected parts thoroughly when applying Chamberlain's Liniment. This liniment also relieves rheumatic pains. For sale by all dealers.

Manitoba School Question May Cause Trouble—The Re-opening Of Parliament

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, JAN. 10.—Early morning trains from the four quarters of Canada brought back to Ottawa today another big contingent of legislators for the session, which opens this afternoon. What the Government's programme is, is not known. Around the corridors this morning it is predicted that the first serious piece of business to be discussed will be the proposed Tariff Board. Against the creation of this board the Liberals will protest vigorously. This will open up a very wide field and be productive of much high versus low tariff discussion. Estimates and supply and the Manitoba boundary question are picked by others, as about to furnish the main items on the bill of fare. The former of these will not provide more than the usual amount of entertainment, but the latter, if it really does come up, will be the signal for one of the warmest fights in recent years, involving, as it does, the raking up of the whole contentious Manitoba School Question. Sir Wilfrid is in the best of health and spirits, and Right Hon. R. L. Borden is the same.

BEAUTIFUL CEREMONY AT MOUNT ST. JOSEPH TO-DAY FINAL VOWS ARE TAKEN

One of those beautiful ceremonies which, from time to time, are held at Mount St. Joseph, took place this morning, when five Postulants took the Holy Habit and eight novices made their final vows.

At 9 o'clock His Lordship Bishop O'Connor officiated at Mass, and those present on the sanctuary were the Ven Archdeacon Casey, of Lindsay; Fr. Dowdell, of Eganville, Fr. Quirk of Douglas, Fr. Laurog of Pembroke, Fr. Galvin of Galway, Fr. Kelly of Norwood, Fr. McFadden of Wooler, Fathers McColl, F. O'Brien and McCarthy of St. Peter's Cathedral; Dr. O'Brien and Fr. McCauley of the Sacred Heart Church. The Rev. Fr. Jones, C.S.S.R., the eloquent Redemptorist of Toronto, who conducted the preparatory retreat, during the past week, preached an appropriate and edifying sermon on "The privileges and obligations of religious life," in which he dealt with the duties of a religious. The reception ceremony, which was a very impressive one, was presided over by his Lordship, and following are those who made their final vows for the profession: Sr. M. Sylvester, Sr. M. Jovita, Sr. M. Adelaide, Sr. M. Euphrasia, Sr. M. Barbara, Sr. Mary of the Angels; Sr. M. Winnifred, Sr. M. Emerentia.

Those who received the holy habit are: Miss Bridget Enright of Douglas, Ont., in religion, Sr. M. St. Leonard; Miss Adeline Agnew of Douglas, in religion Sr. M. St. Edna, Miss Adile O'Neill, Douglas, in religion Sr. M. Adile; Miss Marie Murkle, of Thomalon, Ont., in religion, Sr. M. [illegible] Wilbert; Miss Elizabeth O'Hart, of St. Columban, Ont., in religion Sr. M. Editha.

Mayor Bradburn Replies To Ratepayer Re Bridge

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I regret that your correspondent "Ratepayer" did not pay enough attention to what I said at the nomination meeting and at the inaugural meeing of the Council to know what I proposed before he wrote a criticism and had it published. I did not propose a high level bridge at Hunter street. Such a structure would, no doubt, be very useful if the expense of building it was not too great. But I did not propose the erection of such a bridge at the present time. He may not be aware of the number of persons on both sides of the river who are put to a great inconvenience by not having a means of crossing the river at a point at or near Brealbrooke street; but I have sympathy for them and believe they should have the accommodation they so urgently require, if it can be provided.

Yours truly,
W. H. Bradburn, Mayor.

HER SICKLY CHILD

Is Now Strong and Healthy — Vinol Built Her Up.

Every mother wants her little boy or girl to have a fair chance in the world. Make your children strong and healthy and they will grow up able to make their own way.

For ailing children there is nothing so good as Vinol, our delicious tonic, for it gives them a fine appetite, makes their blood rich and puts roses in their cheeks again.

"I have been giving Vinol to my little daughter," says Mrs. G. Eisenser of Hackensack, N. J. "She was very delicate and I was worried about her. Vinol has built her up fine, with a good healthy colour in her face which she never had before. It only took one bottle of Vinol to do this for her. She likes the taste of Vinol too."

We could tell you of many others right in this town—but give Vinol to your puny child and see how fast it improves. We give back your money if Vinol does not do all we claim. McDermid and Jury, corner George and Charlotte streets; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe streets.

16 PERSONS NARROWLY ESCAPE DEATH BY FIRE

WINDSOR, JAN. 10.— Sixteen persons in a double house on Aylmer avenue, narrowly escaped death last night, when warned by a passerby that their home was going up in flames. They hurriedly rushed out into the cold street, clad only in their night garb, while the temperature was at zero. The fire department quickly responded, only to find the hydrants in the neighbourhood frozen and the house burned to the ground. James Sharon, Herbert Wood and Joseph Muhetheimer were the families which suffered.

BRAKEMAN GETS DAMAGES

Examiner Special:

LONDON, ONT., JAN. 10.—John J. O'Rourke, C. P. R. brakeman, was awarded $9,500 damages here to-day for injuries received at Ayr last July while coupling cars, one of his legs being crushed. The plaintiff alleges the accident was due to negligence on the part of the Company.

What Value Do You Put On Your Eyesight?

We have people come to us, after they have tried all kinds of cheap Glasses, bought from some house to house fakir, or picked out of an assortment of "cheap glasses" in a haphazard way. In buying glasses to suit your sight, you cannot afford to take any chances. The small difference in price of glasses, is not to be considered when the question of Eyesight is involved. Therefore we guarantee all our work, and our prices are very reasonable, considering the quality of goods we handle.

DON'T LET THAT COUGH ROB YOU OF SLEEP

You probably know all too well how it goes. Just as you doze off, the tickling starts in your throat. A gentle cough, still asleep. A heavier cough, and then another. Right thing you know, you're wide awake coughing your head off.

A few nights of that and you're so worn out and vexed that the cough takes a tight grip on you.

But why endure it?

Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chloralhydrate will soothe that aggravating tickling, loosen the phlegm and cure the inflammation of the mucous membrane. It not only stops the cough quickly, allowing you to get sound, refreshing sleep, but it goes to the root of the trouble and drives out the cold completely. Children willingly take Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chloralhydrate, because it tastes so good. Your Druggist has it or can quickly get it for you. 25c. and $1.00 bottles. "Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

KEEPING IT IN THE FAMILY.

It is not often the spoils system of the Dominion Government has regard for any considerations than party advantage. But a case has developed in which family considerations and some respect to the law of compensation have been, if not intentionally, at any rate, practically, regarded. Mr. Samuel McGill, of Lindsay, keeper of the lighthouses on the Scugog waters, has been "denounced" as an offensive partizan, with about as much chance of defending himself as a "suspect" under the French "Terror." His place was given to a really offensive partizan, a Mr. Needo, (who was, perhaps, in need o' the position). The "bad" Mr. McGill, of Lindsay, has a brother in Peterborough—Mr. Benj. McGill—who was once in a state of political grace — was a Liberal — but changed his politics for reasons which are possibly expressed in the fact that he has been given the place as caretaker of the Customs buildings, made vacant by the decapitation of Daddy Taylor. Thus we may be told that the discharge of one McGill, brother, and the rewarding of another McGill brother is all in the family, and that the public have no right to "butt in". But two wrongs do not make a right—the wrong of punishing a man who has done no wrong, and the wrong of rewarding a man who went wrong—became a political pervert for the profit of the thing.

SAVE THE CHILDREN.

The importance of the subject justifies giving space on this page to a letter written by Mr. Thomas Ritchie, Belleville, upon the necessity of amending the law relating to Children's Aid Societies. As is pointed out, the law provides for machinery for the rescue of children; where it falls short is in effective application of the principle. The remedy proposed by the correspondent is all right, as far as it goes. But the provision of shelters, as suggested, is not all. What is needed is for the Government to take the aim and objects, and, if given proper effect, the possibilities, of the Children's Aid movement, seriously. The Government spends thousands of dollars every year in the administration of justice. While this expenditure is demanded, it might be greatly reduced by more liberal expenditure upon the work of the Society. If it costs five dollars to save a child, and if it costs one hundred dollars to punish a criminal, it seems to be good political economy to save the child and lessen the expense, not to speak of the unspeakably more important matter of making the neglected child a virtuous and law-abiding citizen. If the Government would provide more Liberal subvention of the work of Children's Aid Societies, it would find, in the course of time, that less would have to be appropriated for the detection and punishment of crime. The Government should do more than tolerate the Children's Aid movement—it should adopt it. Money is lavished in millions ot promote the material interests of the people. Money spent liberally to better moral conditions, would, by the resultant improvement and elevation of the standard of citizenship, more truly and effectively promote the general betterment and prosperity.

WAS TROUBLED WITH Headache AND Constipation.

After Suffering For Two Years Was Cured By BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS.

Headache of whatever nature is nearly always symptomatic of other diseased conditions, rather than a disease itself, but in most cases a disordered stomach, constipation, or bad circulation is the chief source of the difficulty. Burdock Blood Bitters removes the cause of the trouble through its cleansing, strengthening and tonic action on the stomach, liver, bowels and blood. Mr. Wm. Redmond, Cardigan Bridge, P. E. I., writes:—"I have been troubled with headache and constipation for about two years. After trying every doctor I knew, a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I found myself, after using one bottle, getting much better, and after using three bottles I was completely cured.

"After them I was on a visit, and found my cousin very sick, and the doctor told her there was something wrong with her head. I told her to use Burdock Blood Bitters and she was cured in a short time. I can safely recommend it to all."

HEATON'S ANNUAL FOR 1912.

The eighth edition of Heaton's Annual is to hand, and is a marked illustration of the progressive excellence and completeness of this invaluable publication. It contains many new features of improvement and added value.

The first half of the book contains information which the business men constantly needs at his elbow. We notice here, for the first time, an insurance directory, giving in alphabetical order a short description of the various kinds of insurance effected in Canada, with a list of the companies licensed by the Dominion and Provincial Governments to carry on business. This is quite original, and so far as we know nothing of the kind has ever been attempted in any other commercial handbook. It should prove very useful.

"Heaton's Annual" is in common use by the Customs Collectors throughout Canada and no pains has been spared to maintain the character of the book as the standard authority on the Customs Tariff, Law and Regulations. The Customs Tariff items are followed by the treaties with France, Italy, the Netherlands, etc., and a most useful summary, in alphabetical form, of the Customs Regulations compiled from the Customs Act, and the memoranda and bulletins issued from the Department at Ottawa up to the date of publication. This information is not found collected in any other book.

The last half of the book is divided into three parts: Descriptions of Towns, General Information and Descriptions of Agricultural and Fruit Districts to Which Immigration is Attracted. The descriptions of towns have all been revised ot date from information supplied by the Boards of Trade, and in every case, where possible, the latest census returns of the population is given. Appended to these descriptions is a note of the special opportunities offering for manufacturers and investors. The section headed "General Information" is a concise encyclopedia, brought up to date, and officially revised by the Provincial Governments covering the resources of the Dominion, under such headings as Agriculture, Mining, Railways, Waterpowers, etc. There is also a unique chapter, giving the requirements (examinations, fees, etc.) for all professions in each province. This is invaluable to parents and any young man who is considering his vocation in life. The description of Agricultural Districts is a new and interesting feature, which should prove extremely valuable. In most cases the curenrt price of land is given with a complete and accurate description of the district, and a local reference for further information. The illustrated advertisements of the Boards of Trade throughout the Dominion are a liberal education. These, with some useful tables, complete a remarkable and remarkably useful book.

REFORMERS BY NATURE.

Says the editor of the Ridgetown Dominion, (Conservative), Mr. P. H. Boyer, M.P.P.:

"The first Whitney Legislature contained nine newspaper men. Of the nine, not one will be in the new Legislature. Only two newspaper men are counted among the members-elect. By his very nature the newspaper man is a Reformer — he wants to do things, hence alienates certain people and interests while gaining no credit with his partisan opponents. Every line in his paper is watched and all who disagree or take offence 'get even' by voting against him. His score of good acts count for nothing, all is forgotten once he says or writes something that is not approved by John or William. The newspaper man lives and fights in the open, and while his paper may be a help to him in a way, what appears in it is always held to his personal account and satisfaction taken at the polls."

NEEDED AMENDMENT OF THE CHILDREN'S PROTECTION ACT

Dear Sir,—The Act respecting neglected and dependent children is one of more importance to the well being of our country than many are aware of, but certain amendments to the Act are needed to render it effective. In a very real sense the children belong to the State as well as to the parents, and the State is under obligation to see that they are protected from injurious treatment and thus provided with opportunity to become useful citizens, this not merely on philanthropic grounds, but also for economic and patriotic reasons. This obligation of the State is so far recognised that it provides for Public Schools to aid parents in Child Culture and enforces attendance.

Previous to the passage of the Children's Protection Act, little or nothing had been done for those children whose natural guardians utterly failed in their duty to the child, while it is well known that multitudes throughout the country are being born and growing up neglected and exposed to vicious and degrading conditions, left to become a burden to society as vagrants or criminals. Apart from the woes thus inflicted on the child itself through unworthy parentage the whole community suffers. If not for humanity's sake, yet from mere policy and for self-preservation, active means ought to be adopted to stay the evil.

This undesirable progeny beget their like, and this class is usually more prolific than the well born; thus, the evil being neglected, keeps multiplying. The only practical application of any rational system of eugenics is to deal with the subject at its source, that is, with the children; we can do little or nothing to stem the tide by dealing with the depraved men and women who bring these children into the world. We cannot dispose of them by locking them up or otherwise disposing of them, or chloroforming them, as some would suggest; such resources are impractical, except for the worst criminals.

The Protection Act of Ontario provides an excellent and efficient means of correcting the evil, if made operative. It grants authority to Children's Aid Societies to remove children from parents who are hopelessly neglecting them, and to have them committed as wards of the society, with the view of obtaining foster homes for them in respectable families. The object of these societies appeals to public sentiment and elicits much charitable aid throughout the community. What is wanting to complete the usefulness of the Act is provision for shelters wherein temporarily to care for the children until placed in foster homes. Also it will be necessary for the government to arrange for inspectors or agents, say one each to cover several adjoining counties, to aid the societies throughout the province in locating and delivering the rescued ones to shelters.

The law as it stands provides for shelters, but only for cities and large towns. The Act says, clause 6 (1): "That every city or town having a population of ten thousand or over shall provide one or more places of refuge for such children to be known as temporary homes or shelters." This seemingly contemplates that the evil exists only or chiefly in large centres of population, whereas it extends widely in rural districts, not so patent indeed as in cities, but actually to even a greater extent, in some sections, in proportion to the number of inhabitants, out of sight in obscure places. It will therefore be found necessary to amend this Act to make it imperative for eevry county town to provide a shelter which can be effected with but small cost to municipalities. Unless these shelters and a certain number of inspectors are provided, the object of the Children's Aid Society cannot be carried out efficiently. For instance, some years ago a society was formed in Belleville of members eager to help in rescue work, but previous to having a shelter which was afterwards provided by the city, very little was accomplished owing to the difficulty of temporarily harbouring the children, perhaps not more than a dozen children were dealt with in as many years, but after a shelter was secured and an inspector employed, in two years one hundred and sixty neglected ones were provided for and foster homes found for nearly all of them, and let it be noted, that the greater number of these were taken from outlying districts in the country, not more than ten or twelve being from town or city.

It is certain that the Children's Aid Societies will accomplish a most important work for the social uplift of the province if made operative by these amendments, and the Act efficiently administered. The object of the societies appeals strongly to the public and liberal contributions will be made in money and in kind, for maintenance in the shelters.

Among those neglected ones there are to be found a few defective children for whom foster homes cannot be secured. As these cannot be left to perish, the government will need to establish a central home wherein to care for them, and also to receive and care for a few very young boys between the ages of one and eight years for whom it is sometimes difficult to speedily find homes, though girls of any age are quickly adopted or provided for in families. Local shelters are not intended to retain a child for a lengthened period or to act as a training school. If this were attempted it would defeat the very object in view, which is to obtain a home for it. It will therefore be necessary for the Government to make provision to deal with these exceptional cases in a central home.

To casual observers little conception can be formed of the number of neglected and dependent children that are scattered throughout the province. Experience shows, however, that where even limited areas have been thoroughly canvassed such numbers are found as to lead to the conclusion that there are thousands of such who are growing up to become a menace to society. Therefore, if from no higher motive than for material gain alone, strenuous efforts ought to be taken to arrest this evil. Of course this will cost something, but the cost will be but a fraction of what it now costs the Province in prisons, reformatories, penitentiaries, industrial schools, etc. A competent authority has estimated that it will cost but five dollars to save a child, whereas it costs one hundred dollars to punish a criminal, and it is from neglected children that the ranks of professional criminals are recruited. Further still, in saving the children we are diminishing a fruitful source of moral corruption, and besides all this preserving valuable lives for a useful career.

For many years we have been caring for a large number of this class of children imported from the old land. Ought we not also to care for our own?

When given a fair chance these young waifs usually turn out about as well as children of ordinary well regulated families. Moral delinquency arises almost wholly from evil environment.

We are professedly a Christian people and Christ has said: "It is not the will of your Father which is in Heaven that one of these little ones should perish." The responsibility is on the State, and in proportion as we let them perish, we suffer with them.

As the law now stands and is at present administered, it is practically a dead letter except in a few localities where necessary appliance is furnished through the charity of individuals in giving a shelter and paying an inspector.

THOS. RITCHIE.

MR. R. J. TODD ON THE COUNCIL

Editor Examiner:

I have read in your paper the report of the new Council for 1912 and I want to express my appreciation of the stand taken by Ald. Johnston. Owing to his past action toward the Fire Brigade, I for one was not in favour of his return to the Council Board. Therefore, I wish to express my commendation of the spirit he manifested in the meeting. It is more manly as well as Christian to repent of our erring, and forgive the wrongs of others, than to continue a vindictive spirit. I am speaking by way of encouragement to Ald. Johnston and others to continue in the course of right doing, for nothing else will stand the test, even of public sentiment. It is also gratifying to note that Ald. Anderson, who would not be made a tool of last year, is still determined in following his own sense of justice. Altogether it looks as though we have a Council now that is going to do business for the public.

If I was qualified to make a suggestion to this wise body, it would be to see to it that we have in the near future, something in the form of a garbage system. This, I think, we are entitled to as taxpayers; yearly our taxes are going up, and still no accommodations, such as they have in other cities. They might couple with the garbage the cleaning of chimneys, which would be a great convenience, and I believe a preventive of fire.

A few months ago I took the risk of getting to the top of my chimney to ascertain why our stove had so little draft. I found part way down the chimney it was almost blocked with dirt that had been there for years. Whether this would be injurious to the public health or not I am not prepared to say; not being a searcher after microbes and disease germs, I didn't see any. However, I believe a garbage system will add much to the sanitation of the city.

I believe some of the time and money spent in water and milk tests might be saved by removing the garbage box from the kitchen door, within a few feet or yards of the milk jug. This box has been there for days waiting for the swill gatherer who comes just when it suits himself. There is the odour within a few feet of where the milk man is transferring milk to the home; then the poor milk man, or the innocent cow is blamed for the so-called microbes or bad milk.

I do not wish to dictate to the Council, but hope that a hint to the wise will be sufficient.

Thanking you for space, I am,

Sincerely yours,

R. J. TODD.

HER SKIN SEEMED ON FIRE

Every Other Treatment Failed But "Fruit-a-tives" Cures

GRANDE LIGNE, QUE., Jan. 2nd, 1910.

"My wife was greatly distressed for three years with chronic Eczema on the hands, and the disease was so severe that it almost prevented her from using her hands. The doctor gave her several ointments to use, but none of them did any good. He also advised her to wear rubber gloves and she wore out three pairs without getting any benefit. As a last resort, I persuaded her to try "Fruit-a-tives", and the effect was marvellous. Not only did "Fruit-a-tives" entirely cure the Eczema, but the Asthma, which she suffered from, was also completely cured.

We both attribute our present good health to "Fruit-a-tives". N. JOUBERT.

"Fruit-a-tives" will always cure Eczema or Salt Rheum because "Fruit-a-tives" purifies the blood, corrects the Indigestion and Constipation, and tones up the Nervous System.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fruit juices and valuable tonics, and is the greatest of all blood-purifying remedies.

50c. a box—6 for $2.50—or trial size, 25c. At all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

"THE SECRET OF PAUL FARLEY"

By JOHN MARCH

"What a good world we live in!" he exclaimed, taking his briar pipe from between his lips and combing his moustache with its amber mouthpiece; "what a good and beautiful world! I never watched the coming of a more glorious evening! Look at the icy-blue starlight through the pear trees, Mr. Farley, and that flush of crimson yonder from the west!"

Paul leaned forward, his elbows on his knees, a cigarette held daintily between a finger and thumb, and let his dark eyes feast upon the handsome face opposite to him, paled and etherealized by the last rays of lingering daylight—a strong face full of wise thought, of innate love for all things pure and of good report.

"I never felt so near happiness as I do at this moment," he continued, plucking one of the pale blush roses clustering about the windows and giving it to Agnes, who stood behind his chair with one hand on his broad shoulder. "Here's something smaller and suitable for a buttonhole," he added, tossing a half-open bud across to his friend.

For all after-time the faint delicate perfume of a pale pink autumn rose brought to Paul Farley's mind a sudden vivid picture of the quaint dusty parlour, of Agnes in her white dress and coronet of bronze gold hair, and the handsome manly figure of Felix smoking peacefully in the twilight.

"This dewy freshness, this juvenescence in the atmosphere, seems to moisten my heart," he said, with a quiet laugh. "I had almost forgotten how youthful I am still."

"You are young," Paul said, emitting thin blue rings of smoke which circled and curled above his head; "the first flush of youth has passed into early prime, the most perfect portion of a man's life."

"Our first youth is no value," he answered; "we are not conscious of it until it is gone."

"I believe that," Paul said. "I believe a later period, what one might term our second youth, is happier, deeper and richer by far."

"I suspect a second youth, a real aftermath, only comes with some great heart-joy such as a late autumn love, or—perhaps to crown some other grand festival in one's life."

"Yes, and the gods will envy a woman crowned by such an aftermath."

"Heaven and all its angels bless the woman who thinks the same," Felix said, knocking the ashes from his pipe. "Agnes, child," he added suddenly, "don't you think it's time we ha da light?"

She touched the bell-pull, and Rose Pilgrim entered with a lamp and set it on a massive black walnut table in the centre of the room. Involuntarily Paul's great searching eyes went across to her. He felt a certain interest in the girl on account of her association with the Larches and little Guy Wycherly. She was not, he discovered, particularly young looking, but comely enough in a fair red-and-white plump way. Their eyes met and Rose blushed a deep red, which suffused her whole face from brow to chin, then slowly receding left her exceedingly pale.

"Rose is all confusion at being brought unexpectedly face to face with her sweetheart's handiwork," Felix laughed in answer to his puzzled questioning look when the door had closed behind the woman.

"I don't quite understand," he said.

"Why, Denham is courting Rose Pilgrim, and Rose is a friend of Mrs. Radler at the Popinjay."

"Mon Dieu!" he said in consternation. "You don't mean that a nice-looking, respectable person like Rose will deliberately of her own free will, tie herself to that drunken blackguard?"

"Yes, I do," Felix said, "and very pleased and thankful she'll be. A man and a cottage is the goal of these country girls' aspirations. A young woman in a poor cottage with half a dozen children down with diphtheria, and a violent brute of a husband, spending most of his earnings in drink, would deem herself lucky to have clouted a few years of solid, respectable service. Such is the calibre of the bucolic mind!"

"Don't you think," Paul asked, looking at the glowing end of his cigarette, "that the reason women more especially those of the vast middle-class, are compelled to look on marriage as a means of livelihood, a sort of life insurance, because of the cheap stamp placed upon their work? Men never are, never can be fair judges of a woman's capabilities; they smile or sneer, each according to its individual cheerful or splenetic temperament, while the world at large, absorbed in its stereotyped cut-and-dried definition of things, never dreams of taking them or their doings seriously."

"A man," Felix said smiling, "can rarely disassociate the magnetism of sex and the personal char of the worker from the quality of work done. There have been and are, I will own, a few exceptional women who have competed for some sort of success or fame in the world's arena and come away with a laurel wreath. Still, Farley, taking the race, I honestly believe the woman to be man's inferior, both mentally and physically. She is the weaker vessel, an after thought, designed for a helpmate ,not a breadwinner; she was formed for the domesticity, not the publicity of life; she was constitutionally created to be in subjection to man, and therefore her modesty, her deportment, and her colour of mind should match the divine intention."

"But look at the thousands of women, sir, who are, whom adverse circumstances have compelled to be, breadwinners."

"God help them! Yes, there are millions, but, Farley, I am not saying a woman cannot or should not work. Both Adam and Eve toiled, but he delved and she span. She did not filch the spade. We have it on good authority that she worked, and was useful in her day and generation, but within the limits the Creator set when He moulded her."

"Have you never met a really clever up-to-date University woman" Paul asked.

"No, I have not," he returned with a laugh; "and I very much doubt whether I want to."

"Why?" he asked; "would you be jealous of the virility of that little grey mass of matter commonly called the brain?"

Felix Fleming threw himself back in his chair, crossed his legs, and broke into a loud, hearty laugh. "I—jealous of a woman—jealous of her hard-earned store of knowledge? Not I. With these two hands I could crush the little skull that held the lore of all the ages. A woman is welcome to all the learning she can pack her head with, provided she does not oust out her womanliness to make way for it."

"I should think a University woman could be a wealthy woman," Agnes said, hovering like a moth near the lamp in her white dress.

"No doubt you are right, sister mine," he said, holding his tobacco pouch between his knees and carefully filling his pipe, "I am simply an old-fashioned fellow, with old-fashioned ideas respecting women and their ways."

"I know exactly the kind of woman to suit Felix," Agnes said, taking a low seat between them. "To begin with she would have a well-educated, well-endowed, healthy mind, small piquant features, a clear ,wholesome bloom with just a sprinkling of freckles—because she would be fond of being about in the open-air with her husband—a little, light, elastic creature as graceful as a bird. Besides, of course, she would be domesticated, she would be just as accomplished in the drawing-room as practical in the kitchen, and whether in society or knitting ,or scouring pots and pans, Mrs. Prim would wear a black silk apron, a wincey gown, neat linen collar and cuffs, and gild the homeliest duties with an atmosphere of loveliness and joy. I think in all probability she would thrum on the harpsichord, walk a minuet, and work antique tapestry stitches on a sampler—a slightly modernized replica of Lucretia spinning in the midst of 'her maidens, if you remember, Mr. Farley?"

"Remember the croakings of the frogs in Egypt," Felix said sententiously.

"I expect that is an excellent word-sketch of the future Mrs. Fleming," Paul said, smiling at her through his glittering glasses. "Do you think she would make a nice docile wife?"

"Yes, I think she would, but, oh, my gracious, what a paragon of a sister-in-law! Felix is a good sort, but I don't believe even he is virtuous enough to live up to her."

"Nothing ever charms me more than when I meet my superior," he rearked, calmly puffing away at his pipe, "one who makes me sincerely feel he is my superior."

"I don't think you will be likely to meet that man often." Paul remarked.

"Oh, come, Farley," he returned, with a broad smile, "I can't digest flattery absolutely free of adulteration. I don't value a compliment, wrap it up as poetically and delicately as you may. I am plain, honest yeoman, and if I tried to flounder about in that artificial tomfoolery, I should soon be beyond my depth."

"Pardon me," he said, with a winning smile, "I spoke out the thought in my mind; it was not expedient, and has certainly a fulsome flavour coming from almost a stranger."

"Now, I'll compliment you both," Agnes said, shifting her ottoman nearer to Paul and treating him to a quizzing smile from her half-closed eyes, "a great, good, wise and handsome man stands the first of all created things!"

"That's a crib, Miss Fleming, and I ought to pinch you," he said, throwing away the end of his cigarette.

"Nothing of the kind, you horrid wiseacre," she pouted, taking the rose from her bosom and hitting him with it. He took it from her after a skirmish and put it in his buttonhole with the half-open bud. Felix looked from one to the other with an indulgent smile. He was glad and content to see the easy bantering bonhomie the young people had rapidly established between themselves. It augured well for the long cosy winter evenings—the parlour ruddy with a cheerful fire, the light glimmering and dancing on the dark oak panelling, and the interesting, artistic figure of Paul Farley very much in the foreground.

Kidney Pains in the Back

Could Not Stand or Even Turn in Bed —Legs Greatly Swollen

All Doctor's Medicine Failed—Cure Effected by Use of

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Again this great medicine has triumphed over kidney disease of a severe type. From a bed of suffering and helplessness Mrs. Walsh was restored to health and strength by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Kidney pains in the back tortured her. Dropsical swellings had set in and she had no reason to hope for cure since the doctor's medicine failed to even relieve her. Read what the husband says about this remarkable cure.

Mr. Thos. D. Walsh, Pictou, N.S., writes: "Two years ago my wife took to her bed after suffering for a long time from kidney pains in the back. She was not able to stand on her feet or even turn herself in bed. The doctor's medicine was no benefit whatever, that we could see. Sometimes her legs would swell considerably. Reading about a woman in similar condition being cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, we purchased two boxes, and when these were used she was able to sit up. With three more boxes she was restored to health and doing her own housework.

"As for myself I also found these pills all that is claimed for them. I give this statement in order that others may obtain the same ease from suffering as that experienced by my wife and myself."

PLAIN TALK ABOUT PILES

Don't you believe that experience is better than hearsay? If you suffer from piles, just try Zam-Buk. You can do so at our expense. So assured are we of the result that we will send you a free trial box if you send to our Toronto offices full name and address and a one-cent stamp to pay return postage.

Scores of people daily acquaint us with the benefit they have derived from the use of Zam-Buk for piles. Mr. F. Astridge, of 3 St. Paul St., St. Catharines, Ont., says: "For five years I have suffered untold agony with protruding piles. The pain was so great at times I would almost scream.

"I lost weight and had no appetite. I tried everything I ever heard of for piles, as I was willing to take anything to get relief. It was useless, however, and I almost gave up in despair.

"One day a friend gave me a sample of Zam-Buk and told me of a friend of his who had been cured. I decided to try Zam-Buk, and the relief I got was encouraging. I used three boxes, and at the end of that time I was completely cured. I wish I could have got Zam-Buk years ago; it would have saved me a great deal of misery."

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, ulcers, blood-poison, varicose sores, ringworm, scalp sores, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises, and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. You are warned against harmful imitations and substitutes. See the registered name "Zam-Buk," on every package.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

LOVE'S YOUNG DREAM.

Long before the commencement of the performance last evening, the Opera House was crowded with people who, with eager faces, were expectant of something exceptional in the Irish play, "Love's Young Dream," in which Mr. Frank O'Hara, the famous Irish tenor, appeared in the leading role. Nor were they disappointed. As Barry Carroll, a young Irish physician, Mr. O'Hara was supreme and this was mainly due to his vocal abilities. His latest hits, "Love's Young Dream," "My Own Irish Girl" and "Nora McNamara" were received with loud applause. He possesses a pure, rich, tenor voice, which is set off by his superb breathing capacity and his attractive style. Many Irish witticisms were included in the play and were greatly enjoyed by the audience. In this direction, Mr. Dan. Sullivan, as Timothy O'Rourke, and W. P. Sullivan as Militiades Duffy, were prominent. The role of Col. Richard Lovell was splendidly portrayed by Mr. Arthur Heape, who filled all the requirements necessary for the impersonation of a colonel in the Irish regiments. Miss Marie Quinn possesses a very attractive style of acting and played the part of Nora McNamara very daintily. All the other members of the cast portrayed their several characters strongly and well and the beautiful scenic effects were an added charm to a very successful play.

Lame Back Cured

Just rub the painful spot with Nerviline; not much rubbing, because Nerviline is made to penetrate. You'll not suffer long after Nerviline is applied, for it acts like lightning, swift and sure. Nerviline is good for everything a liniment ought to be good for—wherever there is pain. Apply Nerviline and the pain disappears.

No remedy so thoroughly cures lame back, stiff joints, sore muscles, lumbago, and cold in the chest as

Nerviline

The farmer, the mechanic, the man who works at hard labor, is subject to the baneful influence of dampness, fog, and inclement weather. It's hard for him to escape pain. What he needs a home is a bottle of Nerviline, which gives instant ease to every kind of pain.

Nerviline is about four times as strong as the ordinary liniment. It gets right at the core of pain and paves it as no other remedy can. So strong and concentrated is Nerviline that one application is always as good as six ordinary rubbings with other liniments. Try a large 25c bottle. Sold everywhere.

An English Chemist Has Discovered How to Grow Hair

In England the ladies have entirely abandoned wearing rats, which is due entirely to this new discovery.

It has been proven that Henna leaves contain the ingredients that will positively grow hair. That they contain this long-looked-for article is proven every day.

The Americans are now placing on the market a preparation containing the extract from Henna leaves, which is having a phenomenal sale.

This preparation is called SALVIA, and is being sold with a guarantee to cure Dandruff and to grow hair in abundance. Being daintily perfumed, SALVIA makes a most pleasant hair dressing. McDermid and Jury, your druggist, is the first to import this preparation into Peterborough, and a large, generous bottle can be purchased for 50c. Also sold at Payne's drug store.

COMING LOCAL OPTION CONTEST

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I trust the coming local option campaign will be conducted by all parties in a cool and reasonable way. The retention or abolition of the bars is a question of too serious a nature to be settled by any amount of unreasoning squabble, and whatever arguments may be adduced, either for or against, will have far greater weight if stated calmly and clearly. I read Mr. Burnham's letter, and while I do not think his suggestion of buying up the hotels is practicable, yet there is undoubtedly a need of some provision for proper accommodation for the travelling public. The thing is, which is the best way to this. It is not a question altogether of a traveler paying a fair price for accommodation given, but of paying for accommodation that has to kept up, whether used or not. If all the rooms were occupied and every sitting at the tables filled all the time, there would be no such question facing us, but this is not the case, and while I would let nothing stand in the way of wiping out such a menace to the well-being of our city, as is evidenced by the number of drunks and blacklisters appearing day after day at our local police court, yet we must do it in the best possible way. Now, I think that all hotels without the bar should still be licensed (free license), that inspectors should be appointed who would see that a proper standard was maintained and that a bonus should be given according to the size of the hotel and the number provided for. I think the municipality and the province would be amply repaid for the outlay in the increased well-being and prosperity of all classes. I do not give this suggestion as the only, or even the best way, but the best I can think of and I should be only too delighted to see a better offered.

Yours, etc.,
GEO. LEADER.

RICHARD HALL & SON

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

THE only real thing I did then was to hurry as though every moment were my last, as though the world, which now seems so rich in everything, held only one prize which might be seized upon before I arrived. Since then I have tried to recall, like one who struggles to restore the visions of a fever, what it was that I ran to attain, or why I should have borne without rebellion such indignities to soul and body."—David Grayson.

What are you hurrying so for?

Do you really need to?

Would anything terrible happen if you should stop and breathe?

Is it worth while?

It seems to me that three out of four Americans could put these questions to themselves with good results.

On a post card the other day I read this sage advice—

"There is no time to lose in hurrying; man was not made in thirty seconds, nor yet in thirty minutes."

The philosopher of the postcard did not sign his name, and give me a chance to give him credit, but I think he certainly deserves credit for reminding us of something most of us sadly need to remember.

We often ask why it is that we do not make such durable furniture, build such lasting houses, or do any work in the "for-centuries" way in which our grandfathers did it? Have we lost the knack?

No, we haven't lost the knack, but we've lost the time.

In a public library the other day, I asked for a certain volume and was told that it had been sent to be bound and wouldn't be back for two or three months. "Why does it take so long?" I asked in wonderment. "Oh we send them abroad," they explained, "we can't get any such work done in this country."

Why? Because Americans haven't as much intelligence as foreigners? No, because they haven't so much time.

Thoroughly good work, no matter of what kind, simply cannot be done in a hurry.

I know housewives who are the envy of the neighbourhood, because of the amount of work they appear to "turn off" in no time at all. I'm thinking of a particular woman who was always a marvel to me, until I slept in one of her beds. In the wee sma' hours of the night, I arose and painstakingly and timetakingly re-made that bed as it should be made—and be it explained I am not an old maid in the matter of beds. I merely like to have some of the clothes tucked in at the foot—and after that I understood how she managed to "turn off" so much work in no time at all.

We talk about the high cost of living and tell of article after article, the price of which has soared to terrible heights. I wonder that we do not say more about that which seems to have become more rare and more expensive than anything else—time—time to do work properly—time to rest—time to have friends—time to be happy—time to live.

A little book of essays has made a tremendous hit, largely on account of its clever title—"How to live on twenty-four hours a day."

"Ah, I must get that," I've heard a dozen people sigh, "I'd like to know how. I don't seem to be able to do it now."

Isn't that in itself an excellent criterion on our time starved condition?

It is said of the American man, that when he finds that his income is not covering his expenses, he does not say, "I must reduce my expenses," but "I must increase my income." Doubtless, that's what we'd like to do in the matter of time. But unfortunately we can't. We've all the time there is and clever as we are, we can't by hook or crook get any more.

The only way out is the better use of what we have now.

How?

Well, for one thing don't shorten an already insufficient allowance by those twin time wasters, hurry and worry.

Remember the advice of the philosopher of the postcard—"There is no time to lose in hurrying. Man was not made in thirty seconds, nor yet in thirty minutes."

EXAMINER SCRIBE PAYS A VISIT TO THE COUNTY GAOL

Reporter's Tour of Inspection Discloses Everything to be in Splendid and Sanitary Condition—Prisoners, Numbering in all 15, Go About Work Industriously and Cheerful.

Through the kindness of Mr. Nesbitt an Examiner reporter was, the other day, taken for a trip through the County Gaol, on a tour of inspection.

Perhaps an appropriate beginning of this article would be to congratulate Mr. Nesbitt upon the splendid manner in which everything is kept. The clean and neat floors and rooms bring considerable credit to those in charge. Fifteen prisoners, in all, are located within the walls; three of these are women, and two are in on charges of insanity. Three men, including Pete Johnston, are in on insanity charges, while five or six vagrants make themselves busy at different kinds of work. Only one or two are there on charges of theft, while the remaining two or three are in on charges of drunkenness, etc.

A genuine surprise is in store for the curious visitor to the gaol. The walls are fresh painted, the rooms well heated and ventilated, and the floors clean. In many of the rooms and halls, new floors have been put in and painted. All these improvements have not been done at the expense of the public. Not at all. The material for these necessary improvements was, of course, purchased out of prison funds, but the work was done by the prisoners. Every nail was driven, and every drop of paint was applied by prison labour. And improvements similar to those mentioned, are going on all the time, so that everything is kept in the best possible repair.

Every prisoner capable of doing work of any kind is kept busy at something. Washing, shovelling snow, sawing wood, sweeping and scrubbing floors, painting, carpentering, and anything of this sort. Perhaps the busiest room in the prison is the carpenter shop, which is situated on the right side of the main entrance to the gaol. This presented a scene of industry. Men, with their gaol suits on, bustling to and fro—one with a hammer and a board, another with a plane, and an axe, are all as busily engaged, and going about their work as industriously as if they were getting paid a good salary. Probably the secret of this industry is the kindness shown by the gaoler. Mr. Nesbitt stated that it was wonderful how the prisoners got along. He said he never had the slightest trouble with them in any way. He always treated them kindly, and with consideration, never at any time alluding to their presence being the result of their crime, and, in response, they went about their work cheerfully.

On entering the main prison, the first room on the left, is the kitchen. Here a man was engaged washing the breakfast dishes, and cleaning things up in general, as any good cook would do, after a hearty breakfast. Proceeding to the next compartment, which consisted of the room for the insane, the familiar figure of Pete Johnston was the first object to meet the reporter's gaze. Pete welcomed the reporter as a man and a brother, and took considerable pains in showing him through his spacious rooms, including his own private cell. When the scribe was departing, Pete requested him to mention the fact that he was well, etc. On going up stairs, the rooms to the right were occupied by old men, some of whom were insane. In going through this compartment, the reporter was curious to ascertain the reason of the prisoners' beds being made on the floor. Mr. Nesbitt explained that this was necessary on account of the prisoners taking epileptic fits. Leaving here, the few rooms to the right are those occupied by the female prisoners, which are fitted out in like manner to those of the other prisoners. Then there is the store room, where suits are kept, and also all sorts of medical supplies. Proceeding down stairs again, the room on the left is the neat office of Mr. Nesbitt, and along the halls are situated other store rooms and such like.

REV. PAT. MORGAN

To Give Addresses in the Park St. Baptist Church

The public are hereby reminded of the special visit to our city of Rev. Patrick Morgan, late of the Capuchin Fathers, a highly-educated society of the Roman Catholic church. Mr. Morgan was a priest in Rome, and is now a Protestant.

The months of January and February are the months in which offerings are taken in the Peterborough Association, for the work of evangelization among the French Roman Catholics of Quebec, which the Baptists have carried on now for seventy five years. It is hoped Mr. Morgan's coming will stir up the church of Christ to a deeper sense of her duty in this regard.

All will be made welcome at the meetings, while any one will be at liberty to ask Mr. Morgan why he left the church of his fathers for the Protestant faith. It is sincerely hoped that all will get a clearer understanding of the religious differences that exist between the religion of Rome and Protestantism, and that good will result therefrom, to all who attend.

The subjects which will be discussed by Mr. Morgan, who knows whereof he speaks, are as follows:

Sunday, January 14th, in Park St. Baptist Church, at 11 a.m., subject, "Our Attitude Towards the Roman Catholics".

Sunday, in Sons of England Hall, at 3.30 p.m., subject, "Why Romanism Ruins a Country".

This will be a special meeting for men only, to which all men are invited. Mr. Morgan will, at this meeting, outline four things:

1—The Sacredotal System of Rome.

2—The Intellectual Bondage of Rome.

3.—The Effect of Rome's System of Truth.

4—The position claimed by, and conceded to the Pope.

Sunday evening, in Park Street Baptist Church, 7 o'clock, subject, "What is Protestantism?" The male choir will sing.

Monday, January 15th, at 8 p.m., in Park Street Church, subject, "How Rome Treats the Bible".

Tuesday, January 16th, subject, "The Auricular Confession, or Shall we Confess?"

Wednesday, January 17th, "Why I left the Church of Rome".

The Rev. Patrick Morgan is also the editor of a periodical known as the "Liberator," published in Ottawa, and all who have read it, can see the keen and clear intelligence of its noble editor.

Everybody will be made welcome at the meetings. — Com.

CONSIDERED PERFECT

Within a very short time Prince Rupert, the Pacific Coast terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will not have any occasion to import its supply of cement from England, Germany, China or even Victoria. During the past summer there was located near Shames a large deposit of limestone, that is considered perfect for the manufacture of cement. Accordingly the locaters staked the property, awaiting an examination by an experienced mining engineer.

GOOD SLEIGHING

The recent heavy snow storm, while it has caused considerable inconvenience in the city, and to the railways, has come as a boon to the farmers. The country roads, up to the coming of this snow, had been practically bare, especially south and west of the city, and there is now good sleighing. There was evidence of this to-day, when farmers came into the city in large numbers with hay and other produce. They are enabled to convey such commodities much more conveniently on sleighs, and took advantage of the first opportunity. An Examiner reporter was informed this morning that up to the coming of the present snow, the fall wheat and other grains were left exposed to the frost, the most had fallen, almost entirely off the fields.

Much Interest In Trent Valley League Game On Thursday

Campbellford and the Peterborough T.A.S. will open the Trent Valley Hockey League here to-morrow night with a game at Brock street rink and their promises to be a big bunch of fans in attendance. Considerable interest is being displayed locally in the Trent Valley League and the hockey enthusiasts will all be on hand for the opener. The T.A.S. team will send out a number of dark-horses for this game and their line-up will be a surprise to the fans. Campbellford has a habit of turning out a speedy seven and reports from the east say that the team is stronger than ever this year. The game is called for 8.15 o'clock sharp.

City May Be Represented In Earl Grey Competition

Notices for the Earl Grey Musical and Dramatic Competition to be held in Ottawa next spring, have been sent through the whole Dominion and no doubt many companies are preparing for what promises to be a most strenuous contest for the shields. While nothing definite has been decided, the Peterborough Amateur Operatic Company may again enter the field for now operatic works are judged and marked both by singing and acting, a better condition largely brought about by the "Geisha" entry two years ago. Mr. Devey has nothing for publication as to details, but it may be taken for granted that the company from Peterborough will be a thoroughly trained and equipped one, with the fixed intention of bringing the musical trophy to Peterborough. Offers of financial assistance have been made already and a final decision as to the work will be made shortly.

Curling Club's President Takes Exception To Council's Action

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Without desiring to enter any controversy or to comment on the action of the Council in declining to make a grant towards the entertainment of the Scottish curlers who are now visiting Canada, I wish to take exception to the sneering reference to the curlers of Peterborough in a letter signed "Taxpayer" in your columns of last evening. You are aware, Mr. Editor, that the curlers of Peterborough are a body of men and women of the highest character, unworthy of being sneered at, and if they are to be criticised, let it be in a proper spirit.

For the information of "Taxpayer" and the public generally, I may say that the City of Peterborough was selected by the Ontario Curling Association as one of the points that the Scottish curlers should visit, and they requested us to make proper provision for the entertainment of them, which included the payment of their hotel bills for two days. We knew we would have them for one day, but until the itinerary of the trip was received a short time ago, we were unaware of their longer sojourn with us. This necessitated an expenditure greater than we anticipated, and up to this time we had no thought of approaching the Council nor would we have done so even then, if it were not for the action of the Councils of other cities they were visiting in making liberal grants to the Curling Associations — large in some instances—in addition to tendering them luncheons, banquets and other forms of entertainment. They have been conspicuously welcomed in the other provinces by the Lieutenant Governors and the civic authorities, and while it may not be officially so, the event has assumed the aspect of a national affair.

A special representative of the Dominion government accompanies them throughout Canada.

It will thus be seen that the visit to the Dominion of these Scottish Curlers is regarded in other sections as an important one, and no doubt collateral advantages will accrue. We have had a valuable addition to our own population by the advent of Scotch people in recent years, perhaps a large percentage of it traceable to the last visit of curlers from Scotland. On this occasion, they published on their return a large volume of their visit, giving the minutest details of their trip, how they were entertained, their impressions, etc.

From an immigration standpoint, their visit should be a splendid advertisement for the City of Peterborough, and considering this as a feature of itself, the curlers felt sufficient justification in approaching the civic authorities. We regret that we were unsuccessful, but are still of the opinion the object was a worthy one.

J. H. CONNAL,
President Peterborough Curling Club.

OBITUARY

MISS HANNAH HAYES.

Miss Hannah Hayes, daughter of the late James Hayes, "Skibbereen Farm," Otonabee, passed away this morning at St. Joseph's Hospital, after only a week's sickness.

Deceased lived for many years in Denver, Col., but during the last few years, since the death of her father, has resided with her brother, Mr. James Hayes, on "Skibbereen Farm" The deceased was well known in this city and beloved by all who knew her, and the sad news of her death will occasion deep regret in the hearts of her many friends. She leaves to mour her loss three brothers and two sisters. The sisters are: Mrs. Daniel Kelly, Asphodel, and Miss Nellie Hayes at home. The brothers are Messrs. James and Daniel Hayes, of Otonabee, and Cornelius, of Sudbury.

Funeral arrangements are not yet made, but will be announced later.

WHOOPING COUGH

Mrs. Charles Lovell, Agassiz, B.C., writes: "Seven of our nine children had whooping cough the same winter and we attribute their cure to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We always have it in the house, and recommend it as the king of all medicines. I was formerly troubled to keep Minard's Liniment in the house, as all the children would use it by using Dr. Chase's Ointment."

HAND CRUSHED

Miss Beatrice Hartley, an employee of the Quaker Oats Company, was the victim of a painful accident a day or two ago. In some manner her hand was caught and badly crushed She was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, where her injury was attended to by Dr. McNulty.

FIVE CHILDREN BURNED BEFORE PARENTS' EYES

Examiner Special:

QUEBEC, QUE., JAN. 10.—Turned out of their burning house in a bitter cold that kept the mercury hovering below the zero mark, Mr. and Mrs. Josaphat Desrochers, of Sacre Coeur, in the County of Lotbinier, were helpless witnesses of the death of their five children, who perished in the flames. The house was a wooden structure. An overheated stove started the blaze, that could not be quelled and deceased were burned to death in their slumbers. The dead are Egid, aged 20, Reol, aged 9, Alphonso, aged 4, George, aged 6, and a child aged 3 months. Their charred remains were recovered this morning from the debris, while father and mother are sheltered at the parish presbytery. A neighbouring house was also destroyed, but the inmates were rescued through the bravery of the volunteer fire brigade, who also saved the rest of the town. The mother and father of the dead children were frantic and would have rushed into the flames to get the children had the neighbours not detained them.

Mrs. A. R. Tabor, of Crider, Mo., had been troubled with sick headache for about five years, when she began taking Chamberlain's Tablets. She has taken two bottles of them and they have cured her. Sick headache is caused by disordered stomach for which these tablets are especially intended. Try them, get well and stay well. Sold by all dealers.

JEFF NOT AFRAID OF CHAMPION

Examiner Special.

TORONTO, JAN. 10.—Battling Nelson, ex-champion lightweight boxer of the world, and now the "champion talker" in regards to his proposed championship battle with young Jas. J. Jeffries, the world's champion, which was to have been held in the Island Stadium of this city, next summer, says that the champion is afraid of him. He should not forget the beating he received at the hands of the Irish wild cat three years ago. When the champion was told this morning of what Nelson had said, he smilingly said: "Why, it would be a shame to enter the ring, as it would be easy for me, and it would be like taking money from a baby." According to the opinion of sporting men, Nelson wouldn't last ten rounds at the hands of the champion, and also say that Nelson is merely talking to get a little notoriety, anyway. Jeff treats the ex-champion as a joke. A few days ago Young Jeff announced his retirement for good, and the promoters were trying to match this pair but were unsuccessful, as the champion refused to give the battle any consideration and would not talk fight in any shape or form. Young Jeff in his time has proven to the sporting world that he is one of the greatest fighters of his weight that ever climbed into a ring, and retires with a record that any champion can be proud of. In the year 1908 he fought 14 times, in 1909 he took part in 21 fights. 1910 shows that he battled 16 times. In 1911 he only fought on 10 occasions. During his term in the ring he has never been knocked down or lost a contest.

TO ANNOUNCE DECISION

Rev. Mr. Keith to Make Statement at Annual Meeting To-night

There will be a large gathering of Knox church people to-night at their annual meeting. One of the matters of chief concern is their minister's decision in reference to the call from Port Hope. A large number of Knox church people waited on Rev. Mr. Keith last Saturday evening and expressed their urgent need of his continuing in Knox church. It is understood that he will announce his decision to-night.

The officers for 1912 will be elected at to-night's meeting and other matters will be discussed. Chief among these is a new scheme for raising the interest for the year. An honour roll of one hundred has been launched and many names are already on the list. It is expected that the list will soon be complete. This will avoid the double assessment during the year.

Refreshments will be served at the close of the meeting.

BAILIEBORO ITEMS

Special to The Examiner:

BAILIEBORO, JAN. 10.—The sleighing around the town is excellent now.

The boy scouts are progressing under the leadership of V. Fell.

Messrs. Mortens and Miss Morten were the guests of the Misses Johnstons on Sunday.

The new blacksmith is liked very well around the village. His shoeing is satisfactory.

The young people of the church of England are practising for the play, which is expected to be held some time about the last of January.

WEDDING BELLS

KEENE, JAN. 10.—The marriage of Miss Irene Alberta McNeil, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McNeil, to Mr. Samuel Mather Comrie, was solemnized on Wednesday, January 3rd, at the home of the bride's parents.

The Rev. D. D. McDonald conducted the ceremony in the presence of relatives and intimate friends. The bride was attended by Miss Gladys M. Scott of Montreal. Mr. Charles W. Mather supported the groom. Miss Vera McNeil played the wedding march.

Mr. and Mrs. Comrie will reside in Otonabee.

MITCHELL—REW.

The wedding was very quietly solemnized at St. John's Church at 7 o'clock on Monday evening, Jan 8, of Miss Kate Rew, daughter of Mr. Harry Rew of Peterborough, to Mr. Ernest S. Mitchell, also of this city. Rev. Canon Davidson performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell have taken up residence at 85 Crescent street.

CHARLOTTE ST. NOTICES.

There will be a prayer service to-night at 8 o'clock, followed by a meeting of the teachers for a study of the Sunday School lesson.

The union meeting of the week of prayer will be held in Charlotte St. Methodist church to-morrow (Thursday). Subject "Christian Citizenship".

ROADS BLOCKED

Nearly every farmer who had occasion to drive to town to-day, took the precaution to bring with him a shovel, and in a great many cases were compelled by force of circumstances to use them. The roads in the country are badly blocked up in places by snow. It took three and a half hours for the Warsaw stage driver to cover the fourteen miles to this city, and before leaving for home this afternoon, he emphatically refused to take any parcels back with him as the nature of the roads would not warrant him in taking chances with a heavy load.

RATES TO BE EXAMINED

Railway Commission Will Make Investigation in West

MANY COMPLAINTS MADE

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—One of the most important orders ever issued by the Board of Railway Commissioners was made public yesterday, when it was announced that a general enquiry will be undertaken by the board into all freight tolls in effect in the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, as well as in Ontario, west of, and including, Port Arthur. The order states that, if it is found that the tolls charged by the railways are excessive, the same shall be reduced as the board may determine.

The first sitting of the board in connection with the enquiry will be held in Ottawa on Feb. 13, to consider the procedure upon the enquiry. In the meantime, the board is applying to the Minister of Justice to appoint counsel to represent the public upon the enquiry.

The enquiry will not extend to British Columbia for the reason that the tolls of the railway companies operating in that province are already the subject of enquiry upon the complaints of the Vancouver Board of Trade and the United Farmers of Alberta.

The order states that many complaints have been made as to the rates charged by the railways, but the board had delayed taking action until the Regina rate case had been settled.

The Supreme Court having ordered in connection with the consideration of this case that the discrimination in favor of points in Manitoba, against points in Saskatchewan and Alberta, must be removed by the reduction of class rates to points in the two provinces further west, the board is now free to undertake a wide investigation as to the whole question of western freight rates.

AVOID HARSH DRUGS

Many Cathartics Tend to Cause Injury to the Bowels.

If you are subject to constipation, you should avoid strong drugs and cathartics. They only give temporary relief and their reaction is harmful and sometimes more annoying than constipation. They in no way effect a cure and their tendency is to weaken the already weak organs with which they come in contact.

We honestly believe that we have the best constipation treatment ever devised. Our faith in it is so strong that we sell it on the positive guarantee that it shall not cost the user a cent if it does not give entire satisfaction and completely remedy constipation. This preparation is called Rexall Orderlies. These are prompt, soothing, and most effective in action. They are made of a recent chemical discovery. Their principal igredient is odourless, tasteless, and colourless. Combined with other well-known ingredients, long established for their usefulness in the treatment of constipation, it forms a tablet which is eaten just like candy. They may be taken at any time, either day or night, without fear of their causing any inconvenience whatever. They do not gripe, purge, nor cause nausea. They act without causing any pain or excessive looseness of the bowels. They are ideal for children, weak, delicate persons, and aged people, as well as for the most hearty person.

They come in three size packages, 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets, 25 cents 80 tablets, 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain them only at our store,—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

French Consul For Montreal.

Paris, Jan. 10.—Among the diplomatic appointments gazetted yesterday is that of Charles Jules Joseph Bonin, who has been nominated charge of the French consul-general at Montreal. At the same time he has been promoted to the rank of secretary of embassy of the first class. The principal part of his diplomatic career has been passed in the Orient and in the Far East.

Another appointment is that of Francois Marie Robert Dejean, who has been named commercial attache for North America.

Foreign Powers Suspicious.

London, Jan. 10.—The Canadian Press is informed that Sir Edward Grey's communication to the foreign Governments concerned conveying the desire of the overseas dominions to be allowed to withdraw from Great Britain's commercial treaties is not meeting with a ready response except in the case of Sweden. In some cases the communication was met with a demand for "further particulars."

SIX DEATHS RECORDED

Were Killed in Spectacular New York Fire—Loss $4,000,000

COMPANY WELL PROTECTED

New York, Jan. 10.—The immense marble and granite home of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, covering a whole block in lower Broadway, an historic landmark of New York's early period of skyscraper buildings, and one of the city's important financial centres, was yesterday destroyed by fire, with a loss of six lives and probably $6,000,000 in property. A dozen persons were injured.

Valuable records, including the biography of E. H. Harriman, and two priceless law libraries, which cannot be replaced, went up in flames, and the fate of hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of securities, stored in safe deposit vaults, was last night in question, although it was believed that fireproof construction would save them from damage.

The fire started about 5.20 yesterday morning in a storeroom in the basement of the building. The employes fought it unaided for a time, and before the firemen arrived it had burned its way through a partition into the elevator shaft. The blaze leaped with a roar to the top of the building and mushroomed into the upper floors, spreading thence rapidly down through the structure.

Occurring in the heart of the financial district, the fire upset the financial machinery of Wall street and business was practically suspended throughout the day.

The great structure, which, besides containing the main offices of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, was the home of the Mercantile Trust Co., the Equitable Trust Co., the banking house of Kauntze Bros., August Belmont & Co., the Harriman Railway lines, the Mercantile Safe Deposit Co., the Lawyers' Club, and many of the city's most prominent law firms, stands to-day a shell of ice-coated granite, with its once magnificent interior completely gutted.

Besides involving heavy financial loss and serious disturbance to big business interests, the fire, starting on one of the coldest and windiest mornings of the winter, was one of the most spectacular ever witnessed in the far downtown section. Its progress was replete with harrowing incidents, narrow escapes and brave rescues, the men who fought it did so under conditions that taxed both skill and endurance. The intense cold acted almost instantaneously upon the huge volume of water poured on the flames and a thick ice coating was speedily formed on the facades of towering skyscrapers adjacent and upon the surface of streets for blocks around. The bulwark of these modern fireproof structures, according to Fire Commissioner Johnson last night, was invaluable as a protection to the entire financial district. As it was the damage, except by water, was confined to the Equitable structure.

Of those who lost their lives in the disaster, three men were killed by jumping from a coping of the roof of the structure to which they were driven by the flames. They were employes in the building.

Battalion Chief William J. Walsh disappeared in a whirl of smoke and flame early in the progress of the fire when a cave-in occurred on the third floor where he was fighting the flames. No trace of his body has been found.

Two other men, William Campion, captain of the watchmen in the Mercantile Safe Deposit vaults in the basement of the burned structure, and Frank J. Neider, a special officer, whose bodies have not been recovered, complete the list of dead so far as known.

Several persons, watchmen and others, who were in the doomed structure when the fire broke out at an early hour, have not been positively accounted for but are believed to have escaped. The death total, however, may not be definitely fixed until the flames, which were still raging last night have been extinguished and the ruins cooled.

One man in another vault of the Mercantile Safe Deposit Co., believed to be Campion, could be seen from the streets with his legs pinned down by a mass of debris, but could not be rescued because of the heavy steel doors which barred the way of the firemen. Through the smashed windows of the door he was given the last rites by Chaplain McGeon of the fire department just as he was swallowed from view by the dense smoke, and not seen again.

Some estimates of the loss ran as high as $15,000,000, but more conservative authorities thought last night that the damage would not run over $6,000,000 at the most. The property was assessed by the city at $12,000,000, a larger sum with one exception than on any other building in the financial district, but by far the greater part is based on the value of the ground upon which the Equitable building stood.

An officer of the Equitable said that the society's own loss would probably not amount to over $500,000, covered by its own contingent insurance fund, and that duplicates of every record destroyed were stored in another part of the city. The company had planned to erect a new building on the site and as figured by the officers the expense of tearing it down will now balance well against the actual value of the building.

MRS. C. A. SELBY AND CHILD

Uses Only Cuticura Soap for Prize Baby

"I have always used Cuticura Soap and no other for my baby, and he has never had a sore of any kind. He does not even chafe as most babies do. I feel that it is all owing to Cuticura Soap for he is fine and healthy, and when five months old won a prize in a baby contest. It makes my heart ache to go into so many homes and see a sweet faced baby with the whole top of its head a solid mass of scurf, caused by the use of poor soap. I always recommend Cuticura, and nine times out of ten the next time I see the mother she says 'Oh! I am so glad you told me of Cuticura.'" (Signed) Mrs. C. A. Selby, Redondo Beach, Calif.

Although Cuticura Soap is sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a postal to "Cuticura," Dept. 28L, Boston, U.S.A., will secure a liberal sample, with 32-p. book on the care of skin, scalp and hair.

HAIR HAPPINESS

It sounds funny but the hair really must feel happy when it is clean and healthy and free from dandruff. So many people have neglected caring for their hair, that a woman with thin, harsh hair, or a man with no hair is not an unusual sight. There is no excuse for unattractive harsh hair since Sageine has been obtainable in Peterborough, and when W. J. Kent sells it with a guarantee to do all that is claimed for it, Sageine means a healthy clean scalp, a luxuriant growth of hair, and it only costs 50c. a large bottle from W. J. Kent, or charges prepaid from B. V. Marion, Bridgeburg, Ont.

RUSSIA'S BIG COUP.

Britain Is Said to Have Known of Mongolian Affair.

Pekin, Jan. 10.—To the Russian charge d'affaires at Pekin, M. Shekine, Mongolian independence is largely due. M. Shekine has always been aggressive. As soon as he assumed control of the legation here he began urging the administration at St. Petersburg to become active, declaring that the time was ripe for the assumption of control in Mongolia. The Russian action is known in but few quarters in Pekin, as the Russians are maintaining secrecy, and the Chinese Government first informed the American legation of the situation with respect to Mongolia, hoping for sympathy.

The opinion persists that Great Britain has been fully aware of Russia's intentions for some weeks. A Mongolian prince, who is now in Pekin, says that Russia has been increasing here military forces in Mongolia for the purpose of protecting Russian traders. Mutinies and revolts are reported among the various Chinese garrisons in Mongolia.

The Imperial Premier, Yuan Shi Kai, and Wu Ting Fang, representing the Republicans at Shanghai, have agreed to instruct their respective military commanders not to resume hostilities after Jan. 15 unless ordered to do so.

This, seemingly, is an agreement for a perpetual armistice, or until one side feels strong enough to defeat the other.

Yuan Shi Kai adheres to his demand that the proposed national convention to settle the fate of China shall consist of representatives of every district, and each province shall meet at Pekin. The Republicans are also obdurate, and the belief is growing that general hostilities are not far off.

Not Protected by Gunboat.

Hankow, Jan. 10.—One hundred and seven Europeans and forty-five Japanese from Chengtu, Szechuen Province, who for a long time were practically shut off from the rest of China, because of disorders and the activities of bandits, arrived at Hankow yesterday. Members of the party complain that the British gunboat Widgeon, which met them on the way to Hankow, failed to give them escort. As a consequence the fugitives were exposed to firing near Hsiangshsien, where a boatman was wounded. Bullets struck the boats several times. It is understood that a protest has been lodged with Admiral Sir Alfred L. Winsloe, commander-in-chief of the British eastern fleet.

General Montero Gains Ground.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Jan. 10.—After a battle, which ended in favor of the troops from this city, who are supporting the provisional government proclaimed at Guayaquil on Dec. 23 by Gen. Pedro Montero, the inhabitants of the Province of Canar announced their adhesion to Gen. Montero's cause. The troops from Quito, under Gen. Place, continue to occupy the heights in the vicinity of Alausi and Guaranda.

MINISTER RESIGNS

French Foreign Secretary Cannot Tell a Lie

UPHEAVAL IS IN PROSPECT

Paris, Jan. 10.—The Franco-German Moroccan treaty, which ended the war crisis a few months ago, brought about last evening in a dramatic manner the resignation of the French Foreign Minister, Justin De Selves. This threatens to be followed by a general Parliamentary investigation and a Ministerial upheaval.

Charges that financiers of France and Germany were permitted to carry on secret negotiations relative to the Congo and Morocco caused the rupture. Premier Caillaux at a meeting of the Senate committee gave his word of honor that there had been no such negotiations, but the Foreign Minister declined to back the Premier, and refused to make a statement either pro or con.

The present crisis has been brewing ever since the treaty was signed and is due to repeated allegations that the French ambassador, Jules Cambon, did not have a free hand in the negotiations with Germany, and that other negotiations, of which the Foreign Office and the ambassador were ignorant, were being secretly conducted between the two countries, concerning railroad concessions in the Congo, Kamerun and Morocco.

The storm broke at the meeting of the Senate committee, with ex-Premier Clemenceau holding a great advantage. Premier Caillaux denied that there had ever been semi-official pourparlers before the interview at Kissengen. He had, he said, repudiated a contract for railroad concessions alleged to have been made between a Frenchman named Fondere and Dr. Semler, a member of the Reichstag.

The Premier narrated the negotiations relative to the proposed railroads in Morocco, and affirmed that he was happy to give his word of honor that there had been no negotiations except those of which the Foreign Office and M. Cambon were fully cognizant.

M. Clemenceau arose and looked fixedly at the Foreign Minister. "Will you confirm the statement of the Premier?" he asked.

M. De Selves at first refused to answer, but pressed by Senator Bourgeois, chairman of the committee, finally said: "I cannot answer the question. I am tied between a double duty—to stick to the truth and tell all, and not to hurt the interests of the country by deserting the Cabinet."

These words created a sensation, and the committee adjourned in great confusion. Afterwards a second scene was enacted in the ante-room to which Premier Caillaux, Foreign Minister De Selves and ex-Premier Clemenceau withdrew. M. Clemenceau, according to friends of M. de Selves, reproached Premier Caillaux in violent terms for fostering secret negotiations, of which M. Clemenceau said he had been for a long time informed. The Foreign Minister, for his part, frankly told the Premier that he could no longer sit beside him in the Cabinet, and therefore resigned.

M. de Selves sent his letter of resignation to President Fallieres. In it he pointed out that he no longer wished to assume the responsibilities of the Foreign portfolio, with a split in the Cabinet. He added that he could not publicly protest against the statement of Premier Caillaux. On the other hand, his conscience forbade him to confirm it.

The Premier likewise issued a statement in which he insisted that he had told the whole truth. He had always refused, he said, to listen to people who approached him relative to the negotiations, saying that Ambassador Cambon alone had the right to speak for France.

Bylaws Corruptly Carried.

St. Boniface, Man., Jan. 10.—According to ex-Mayor Bertrand, the bylaws authorizing large expenditures on pavements and other public works were actually defeated instead of being passed at the recent municipal elections. He charges that grave irregularities took place in the count of votes, the instigators being parties interested in the contracts.

Judge Prudhomme, who opens an investigation into the civic federation in February, will sift this charge.

A Children's Shelter.

Brockville, Jan. 10.—Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hardy announced yesterday a munificent gift for the town in the form of a Children's Aid Shelter. The Stacey homestead was purchased by them and handed over yesterday.

The Tenderfoot Farmer

It was one of those experimental farmers, who put green spectacles on his cow and fed her shavings. His theory was that it didn't matter what the cow ate so long as she was fed. The questions of digestion and nourishment had not entered into his calculations.

It's only a "tenderfoot" farmer that would try such an experiment with a cow. But many a farmer feeds himself regardless of digestion and nutrition. He might almost as well eat shavings for all the good he gets out of his food. The result is that the stomach grows "weak" the action of the organs of digestion and nutrition are impaired and the man suffers the miseries of dyspepsia and the agonies of nervousness.

To strengthen the stomach, restore the activity of the organs of digestion and nutrition and brace up the nerves, use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is an unfailing remedy, and has the confidence of physicians as well as the praise of thousands healed by its use.

In the strictest sense "Golden Medical Discovery" is a temperance medicine. It contains neither intoxicants nor narcotics, and is entirely free from alcohol as from opium, cocaine and other dangerous drugs. All ingredients printed on its outside wrapper.

Don't let a dealer delude you for his own profit. There is no medicine for stomach, liver and blood "just as good" as "Golden Medical Discovery."

"I Suffered Intense Pains in My Left Side."

Do you realise it is better to be safe than sorry, that it is the best policy to lock the stable door before the horse is stolen?

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy

cured Mrs. C. C. Gokey, of a stubborn case of heart disease, such as thousands are now suffering with. Read what she says:

"Before I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I had been suffering from heart trouble for over five years. I had grown so weak that it was impossible for me to do thirty minutes work in a whole day. I suffered intense pains in my left side and under the left shoulder blade. I could not sleep on the left side, and was so short of breath that I thought I should never be able to take a full breath again. The least excitement would bring on the most distressing palpitation. I had scarcely taken a half-bottle of the Heart Remedy before I could see a marked change in my condition. I began to sleep well, had a good appetite, and improved so rapidly that when I had taken six bottles I was completely cured.

MRS. C. C. GOKEY, Northfield, Vt.

If you have any of the symptoms Mrs. Gokey mentions, it is your duty to protect yourself.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy.

is what you need. If the first bottle fails to benefit, your money is returned. Ask your druggist.

ANOTHER CLEVER VICTORY FOR JUNIORS
LINDSAY MIDGETS ARE BEATEN 10 TO 5

Peterborough Junior O. H. A. Team Demonstrated Their Superiority Over Scugogville Youngsters and Won Handily.

WERE AHEAD AT THE HALF

The Peterborough Junior O. H. A. team added another scalp to their collection last night when they doubled the score on the speedy Lindsay Midgets, in a fast and well-played game at Brock Street Rink, defeating the invaders from Scugogville by 10 goals to 5. The half-time score was 3 to 1, with the big end in the possession of the local youngsters. Some six hundred people saw the game, the attendance, in view of the late start of the game, the stormy weather and counter attractions being a striking tribute to the popularity which the kids have already won by their good work. The Lindsay team came down on a special (G.T.R.) train, which was very late on account of the blizzard, and, as a result, the game did not start until a quarter to ten. In spite of the delay, the fans who had come at 8 o'clock, waited cheerfully and patiently, while the attendance was augmented, just before the game started, by the wise ones, who had ascertained that the visitors would be late in arriving. The game was well worth waiting for, the pace being fast from start to finish, with both teams going hard. Lindsay started off with a rush and scored the first goal. For a while they looked very dangerous, but they faded before the half ended and the Petes ran in three goals in a row before the breathing spell. Keeping up the pace, after the rest, the locals banged five more past Henley, putting the game on ice. With the score 8 to 1 against them, and only twelve minutes left, Lindsay started a belated rally and added four counters in jig-time. The fans had visions of another close call, as in the Cobourg game, but Capt. Hall and his men ended their suspense by coming back into the game with a vengeance, and in ninety seconds scored two more goals. They were buzzing around the Lindsay nets like bees when the final gong sounded.

Peterborough had it on the visitors in team-play and in defence methods, although in the matter of speed there was little to choose. The visitors showed themselves fast skaters, but they depended too much on individual work and lost chances to score by not passing. The Peterborough defence, using the cross-rink method, looked after these individual rushes in good shape, and a little combination might have helped the Scugog bunch. Peterborough, on the other hand, played unselfishly, passing at every opportunity, and, as a result, they were continually working in on the nets with the rubber. More accurate shooting, especially in the first half, would have enabled them to pile up a big score, as many good chances were thrown away. However, they got through with enough to easily win the game, and that's the main point.

Dwyer, in the nets for Peterborough, played sterling hockey against his friends from "the old home town". He stopped a score of shots from close in, and handled himself nicely all through, clearing quickly and effectively. Milloy and Kinnealy made a very effective defence. They were steady, checked vigorously and surely, and Lindsay found the pair an awkward proposition to negotiate. Jerry Coughlin was the best man on the ice. His stick-handling was pretty to watch, and his rink-length rushes were not only spectacular, but useful, as they resulted in scores four or five times, either on his own shot, or following a pass to one of his team-mates. Time after time he carried the rubber the length of the rink, and, in spite of a bad bump on the head, was going as hard at the finish as at any other period. Hall's shooting was a feature. The Peterborough centre was always in his place, and the manner in which he took passes from the side, and slammed the rubber at the nets, had Henley on the jump all through. Four times he did not jump quick enough and Hall beat him to it. Weir was as effective and useful as ever, both in checking back and in rushing. The little fellow is a worker with a capital "W" and never lets up. Clancy showed even better form on the left wing, than in the Cobourg game. He has lots of speed and carries an effective shot, which was responsible for a couple of goals last night.

Denison, the light-haired centre of the visitors, who, by the way, is a cousin of our own Fred Denison, was, by long odds, the best man of the visitors; his speed, good shooting, and pretty stick-handling making him at all times a dangerous opponent. Although he looked considerably, Denison was effective all through. Scott and Mercer, on the wings, had lots of speed, but were not as useful as they might have been, had they passed more. The defence was only fair, although McConnell rushed well. Henley gave a good account of himself in the nets.

Harvey Sproule refereed his 'steenth game in Peterborough, and, as usual, gave every satisfaction. His duties were light, as far as rough play was concerned, as neither team showed any intention of mixing it up. There were seven penalties, Peterborough being responsible for five of them.

The teams were:

Lindsay		Peterborough
Henley	Goal	Dwyer
McMahon	Point	Milloy
McConnell	Cover	Kenneally
McIntyre	Rover	Weir
Denison	Centre	Hall
Mercer	Right Wing	Coughlin
Scott	Left Wing	Clancy

The teams opened out at a terrific clip and some lively rushes and counter rushes featured the first few minutes' playing. Henley and Dwyer were each called upon and made some brilliant stops of shots from close in. Hall scored for Peterborough, but the play was called back as the Peterborough centre had kicked the rubber. Finally, McConnell broke up a Peterborough rush and went down all alone. He slid the puck between Milloy and Kenneally, went round behind them and shoved the rubber past Dwyer.—Lindsay 1, Peterborough, 0.

The Peterborough team was not in the least discomfited by this opening and redoubled their attacks on the Lindsay goal. Only the hardest kind of luck prevented several scores. Hall tore off a nice rush, but shot wide and high, and then Weir got clean through and his shot missed by inches. The puck was lost under the boards and a new one had to be procured. At last, after hard playing, Coughlin took a pass from the corner from Hall and scooped one past Henley.—Peterborough 1, Lindsay 1.

Peterborough kept pressing, but their shooting was bad, and good opportunities were thrown away. Coughlin took the puck from behind his own goal and went the length of the rink in a brilliant rush, only to miss his shot. Denison came back with a pretty rush, but Dwyer stopped his shot and cleared nicely. Denison was benched for loafing. He was back on the ice when Coughlin was sent away for picking up the puck and was followed by Kenneally for tripping Denison. Playing five to seven, Peterborough held their own until their team was intact again. Milloy distinguished himself by breaking up a dangerous three-man rush and averting a sure goal. With seven men back in the game Peterborough assumed the aggressive, and took the lead a moment later when Weir shoved one past Henley before he could clear, after stopping Clancy's nice shot from the side.—Peterborough 2, Lindsay 1.

Hall and Milloy came through with a nice combination rush, but McConnell back-checked and spoiled Hall's shot. However, the Petes were not to be denied. Coughlin tore off a pretty rush and passed to Hall, who scored on a pretty shot. — Peterborough 3, Lindsay 1.

Half-time was called a moment or two later.

Peterborough opened the second half with a rush. In exactly thirty seconds after the face-off Hall slammed in another goal on a pass from Weir.—Peterborough 4, Lindsay 1.

Kenneally was penalized for tripping, leaving the Petes once more six to seven, but Lindsay failed to take advantage of the opportunity. Dwyer's good goal-keeping averting a couple of likely goals. Clancy scored with a neat shot following a fault side around Lindsay's nets.—Peterborough 5, Lindsay 1.

Jerry Coughlin received a clash over the head and the game was held up until he recovered. He distinguished himself a moment later by a pretty dodging rush and a neat pass to Clancy, who scored with a clean, swift shot from the side.—Peterborough 6, Lindsay 1.

Kenneally was off for bodying and while he was on the side Hall increased Peterborough's score by netting the rubber on a good shot from the side, after a combination rush. —Peterborough 7, Lindsay 1.

Clancy was fined for slashing. Scott followed him for tripping. Coughlin contributed the feature play of the night, when he took the rubber from his own goal through the Lindsay team and scored on a bullet-like shot from the side, which Henley never saw until it was in the net.—Peterborough 8, Lindsay 1.

It looked like easy money at this stage and the Petes relaxed a little. Just to show them that they had something left Lindsay suddenly took the aggressive and Scott rammed in a goal from a scrimmage.—Peterborough 8, Lindsay 2.

The Midgets came to with a rush following this success and in less than a minute, McIntyre had scored on a shot from the wing. Peterborough 8, Lindsay 3.

When Denison banged in another, from a scrimmage, and then once again, on a combination rush, it looked like another Cobourg game.—Peterborough 8, Lindsay 5.

Peterborough decided that they had fooled long enough to make matters safe and the forwards went down in a combination rush and Coughlin scored in thirty seconds.—Peterborough 9, Lindsay 5.

A minute later Weir rushed nicely and Hall scored the last goal of the game.

The summary follows:

1—Lindsay, McConnell, 2 1-2 min.
2—Peterborough, Coughlin, five minutes.
3—Peterborough, Weir, 5 mins.
4—Peterborough, Hall, 4 mins.

Second Half.

5—Peterborough, Hall, 30 secs.
6—Peterborough, Clancy, 3 mins.
7—Peterborough, Clancy, 5 mins.
8—Peterborough, Hall, 3 mins.
9—Peterborough, Coughlin 4 mins.
10—Lindsay, Scott, 4 mins.
11—Lindsay, McIntyre, 1 1-2 mins.
12—Lindsay, Denison, 1 min.
13—Lindsay, Denison, 30 secs.
14—Peterborough, Coughlin, 30 seconds.
15—Peterborough, Hall, 1 min.

Penalties— Peterborough, Kenneally 3, Coughlin, Clancy, Lindsay, Scott, Denison.

NOT ONE WOMAN IN TWENTY HAS A STRONG BACK.

THE KIDNEYS ARE TO BLAME NINE TIMES OUT OF TEN.

Women are coming to understand that weak, lame and aching backs from which they suffer are due to wrong action of the kidneys.

The poisons that ought to be carried off are sent back into the blood, taking with them a multitude of aches and pains. There is no use of expecting relief until the kidneys are restored to health.

Doan's Kidney Pills are the quickest and most reliable remedy. Mrs. Ed. Baxter, Upham, N.B., writes:—"I take a good deal of pleasure in telling you what Doan's Kidney Pills have done for me. I was troubled with my kidneys for a number of years, and my back was so lame I could not sweep the floor. A friend of mine advised me to try a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, which I did, and after using three boxes I am as well as ever. I highly recommend them to anyone suffering from lame back or kidney trouble."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box, or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

HOCKEY HAPPENINGS

Callaghan Out.
(Lindsay Warder)

In the game at Peterborough tonight the Lindsay Juniors will be without the services of their speedy captain, Walter Callaghan. This will be sad news indeed to the hockey fans and to "Cal's" team mates, but nevertheless the youngsters will visit the eastern city with lard in their hair, and bristling for the contest. McIntyre will, in all probability, be in the game, and the counter hopper is some player.

Owing to Callahan having left Lindsay on August 1 for Oshawa, where he worked a few days, and then returned to Lindsay, his status is being enquired into by the executive of the O. H. A. In the meantime "Cal." has taken an affidavit to the effect that he never went to Oshawa to play hockey, and the said affidavit has been forwarded to the O. H. A. secretary, but as the executive will not meet until Saturday next, the Midget captain will be out of the game to-night.

The Lindsay fans hope to see Callaghan in the game again next week. He was a resident of Lindsay on August first, the day set aside under the residence rule, and has been living in Lindsay since.

Practice To-Night.

The Intermediate O. H. A. team will practise to-night, in preparation for the big game against Belleville, in the Dead City on Friday night. Every member of the team is asked to be out at 7 o'clock, sharp.

A Good Crowd.

Lindsay brought down a good crowd of fans with them on their special train last night. Owing to the snow blockade it was 9.30 when the train reached the Brock Street crossing.

T. A. S. Line-up.

The T. A. S. line-up for to-morrow night's game at Brock Street Rink, against Campbellford, will be as follows:

Goal—McFadden.
Point—Meagher.
Cover—E. Lancefield.
Rover—McPhee.
Centre—Halpin.
Right wing—O'Dette.

Campbellford are running a special train to-morrow night and will bring a good crowd.

The team will practise to-night between 7.30 and 8 o'clock, at Sacred Heart Rink.

IN GENERAL

Choir Practice.—The Charlotte St. Methodist choir will rehearse Thursday evening, after prayer meeting.

Fresh westerly to northwesterly winds, fair and very cold, to-day, and on Thursday. Temperature much below zero, in nearly all places.

To Sew at Shelter.—The Women's Auxiliary of All Saints church will meet at the Children's Shelter to-morrow (Thursday) afternoon at 2.30 o'clock to sew.

Special Price. — New Red Brick House, splendid location, with modern improvements. Price $1950. Must be sold at once. Phone 822, M. Carton, C. W. Carroll, 372 Water street.

Latest in Woolens.—Latest in style, and at surprising prices. This is what you find at 313 George street. T. L. Anderson, ladies' and gent's tailor. Next week we will show our spring woolens. dtf.

More Delay. — The abundance of snow is still the cause of delay on the G.T.R. system to-day. Most of this morning's trains were late and the yard engine became stationary for some time at Jones crossing.

Interment To-morrow.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Timothy Whaley of 272 Westcott street, who passed away yesterday morning, will take place at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning from the Sacred Heart church to St. Peter's cemetery.

Final Rehearsal.—The Conservatory Orchestra will hold its final rehearsal for the Alexander concert, which will be held on Monday next at 8o'clock, this evening, at the Conservatory of Music. A full attendance is requested.

Skater and Hockeyist.—The long delayed winter is here and the skater and hockeyist are in their element. Such will find the sporting goods department of the Peterborough Hardware Co. carefully chosen and every article guaranteed to be the best possible at the price.

No Police Court.—There was no Police Court this morning. So far this year there have only been three cases up, two minor liquor cases, and one of theft, all of which were up yesterday morning. This was the first of the year, which forms a record for many years previous.

Tea! Tea!—Special for the balance of this week 1,000 lbs. of Green, Black and Mixed Tea, our own blend worth 35c. Bargain price, 25c. Oranges, sweet, regular 30c, for 20c. per doz., or 2 doz. for 35c.—James R. Bell, 161 Hunter St. 43 Hunter St.; 'phones 455 and 584.

They Didn't Know.—Josh Billings used to tell of a man who wore coloured glasses. When he walked on the avenue he would wink at the girls and then wonder at their unconcern. He knew what he was doing, but they didn't. Some business houses operate on the same principle in the conduct of their business. The firm knows what it is trying to do, but the customers often do not.

Patronize Home Industry.—There is no need of sending to Toronto, or elsewhere, for showcases, or store-fixtures of any kind. Patronize the Peterborough Showcase Co., a well-equipped factory, for turning out large contracts, as well as small ones. The material and workmanship are of the best. Prices are right, and terms to suit all people. Any one intending to equip their stores with showcases, wallcases, etc., for the coming Christmas trade should send in their order as soon as possible, before the rush begins and not leave everything to the last two weeks.—W. THEOBALD, manager; Factory, 709 Water St. Telephone 1153.

BUGS THAT LIVE INDOORS

Use Keating's Powder to rid the house and furniture of bugs that live indoors. Keating's Powder kills bugs. Odorless stainless and harmless except to insect life. For sale by all druggists.

In tins only : 10c., 20c., 35c.

Poll Tax Must be Paid.—Citizens are again reminded of paying their poll tax. Mr. Green has notified several taxpayers during the last few weeks. Some have paid promptly, while others have at least written him, giving an explanation for non-payement; but there are about 800 more, who have neither paid nor acknowledged receipt of his communication. This is a final notice, and after its appearance, those who have not paid the poll tax, are liable to a fine, and will certainly be brought before the Magistrate, where they will be obliged to give an explanation.

8 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Comeson, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis, and one said I could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and am entirely cured—not a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mr. Wm. Taylor has taken up residence at 334 Water street.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart of Toronto, are guests at the King George.

Miss Ethel Sheppard and Miss Elsie Daynard, left to-day to spend a week's holiday with relatives in Port Hope.

Mrs. A. S. Elliott, Bethune St., has returned from Detroit, where she was attending the funeral of her mother.

Miss Jean Shaw, daughter of Dr. J. M. Shaw, formerly of Keene, but now of Regina, is the guest of Miss Huldah Dobbin, George street.

Mr. W. S. Taylor, of Elstow, Sask., formerly of Bridgenorth, is home on a visit. Mr. Taylor is in the hardware business in the west and is thriving satisfactorily, as are the many other Peterborough boys in Elstow and vicinity.

The numerous friends of Miss Rose, 524 Weller street, formerly of Montreal will regret to learn that she is at the Nicholls hospital, so dangerously ill that her physicians hold out no hope of her recovery. A short time ago she suffered a paralytic seizure, and her condition has changed for the worse from day to day.

If your children are subject to attacks of croup, watch for the first symptom, hoarseness. Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the child becomes hoarse and the attack may be warded off. For sale by all dealers.

BAD FIRE AT LINDSAY

Special to The Examiner.

LINDSAY, JAN. 10.— A fire broke out at noon to-day in the cellar of Fox and Brady's grocery in the main business section to-day and before being extinguished by the firemen at 2 o'clock, had completely gutted the store and destroyed the stock. The Benson house nearby was threatened with destruction and the boarders and travellers in the house removed their personal effects to the lobby. The building was damaged by smoke and water, but was saved by the efforts of the firemen, who had a hard fight in the cold. Fox and Brady's loss on their stock will be $4000 or $5000. Had the fire occurred at night the whole block might have been wiped out.

A NEW ORANGE.

The Lue Gim Gong is a new orange, originated by a Chinese fruitgrower of De Land, Fla. According to a writer in Country Life in America this new variety is going to revolutionize orange growing throughout that part of the country. It is declared that the fruit has been known to hang on the tree for one, two, or even three years, and that the tree bears well even when it is still carrying the crop of the previous year. This is not true of most other varieties. It is also said that the fruit can be shipped as early as June, although it is still too acid then. It is good in July, but better in August and September.

"The fruit is full of juice," says the quoted writer, "and hangs on the trees through the rainy summer weather. It can therefore be placed on the market when oranges are scarce and the highest prices can be secured."

ESTIMATES ARE TABLED

Main Figures for 1912-13 Amount to $149,789,677

NAVY LESS; MILITARY MORE

Ottawa, Jan. 11.—The first main estimates of the new Government were laid on the table of the House yesterday afternoon by Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance. They show a total appropriation of $149,789,677, as against $136,679,536 for the year 1911-12. As compared with the total estimates presented to Parliament by the Laurier Government last year, this shows a decrease of $6,289,861, but as compared with the main estimates brought down by Mr. Fielding, there is an increase of $10,926,477.

Mr. Fielding's main estimates totalled $135,863,200, to which were subsequently added three supplementaries aggregating $17,250,980. Until the supplementaries of the present are brought down later in the session it is impossible to make a definite comparison as between the expenditure for the current year and the year which will commence on April 1 next.

The total for 1912-13, as brought down yesterday, is made up of $104,-919,314 on consolidated account and $44,870,373 on capital account. As against $109,416,917 and $46,469,621 respectively in 1911-12, showing decreases of $4,497,612 on consolidated revenue account and $1,599,248 on capital account.

The largest decrease occurs in the Public Works estimates, amounting to $4,038,650, the total for the year being $14,839,380. Under the heading of arts, agriculture and statistics, there is a decrease of $910,000 accounted for by the absence of the appropriation for the census. The total for this year amounts to $1,945,500 as against $2,855,500.

Another large decrease is shown in the naval service column amounting to $885,000. The appropriation amounts to $3,091,500 as compared with $3,976,500. The principal decrease in the naval service is one of $1,340,-000 in the item including the purchase and maintenance of ships, upkeep of dock yards and maintenance of training schools, the drop being from $3,000,000 to $1,660,000. Most of the other items in this service show increases in part accounted for by the proposed purchase of two new fisheries protection vessels for the Pacific, and a new survey ship for the Atlantic.

Capital expenditure shows appropriations of $2,000,000 for the Hudson Bay Railway, $25,000,000 for the National Transcontinental, $3,000,000 for the Quebec bridge. There are no large appropriations for either the Georgian Bay or Welland Canals, though in connection with the latter there is a vote of $50,000 for surveys.

Trent Canal appropriation is $1,-900,000 as against $2,250,000. The promised car ferry across the strait of Northumberland and the standardisation of gauge of the P. E. I. Railway are provided for in an appropriation of $400,000.

Militia appropriations include an increase of $400,000 under the heading of drill, and another $25,000 under the heading of cadet corps.

Provision is made in the estimates of the Department of Agriculture for additional branch experimental stations, to cost $200,000, an increase of $100,000. There is also a new vote of $100,000 toward the erection of a Dominion building in connection with the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto.

There is a capital expenditure of $15,000 under railways, for the purchase of the car carried for His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught.

The Port Colborne elevator is to be enlarged, at a cost of $200,000, and the breakwater extended at a cost of $75,-000, in addition to which there is a vote of $145,000 for general improvements at Port Colborne.

Proposed capital expenditure on harbors and rivers include $1,000,000 for harbor and river improvements at Port Arthur and Fort William, $180,-000 for a deep water wharf at Levis, Que., $360,000 for navigation improvements in the River St. Charles, $1,-050,000 for St. John, N.B., improvements, $137,000 for Three Harbor, Ont., $164 for Victoria Harbor, Ont., $50,000 for Victoria harbor, B.C., and $500,000 for Vancouver, B.C.

Under income there is an expenditure of $195,000 for harbor improvements at Toronto. That city also gets $300,000 for a new customs examining warehouse and a similar amount will be spent on an examining warehouse for Ottawa.

The only charge in the votes for mail subsidies and steamship conventions is an addition of $5,[illegible] for the steam service between Sarnia and Sault Ste. Marie.

The appropriation for the St. Lawrence ship channel in the marine estimates is decreased by $80,000, but there is an additional $77,000 to the vote for the construction of a dredging plant for the River St. Lawrence from Montreal to Father Point.

Twenty thousand dollars is appropriated to provide expenses of delegates to the International Association of Navigation Congress to be held in Philadelphia and the entertainment of members of the congress while in Canada.

Following the recent census the subsidies of all the provinces with the exception of Manitoba and Prince Edward Island are increased. Manitoba loses $4,604. The total increase amounts to $1,188,870, divided as follows: Ontario, $287,857; Quebec, $285,-125; Nova Scotia, $26,207; New Brunswick, $16,614; British Columbia, $191,-704; Alberta, $87,663; Saskatchewan, $318,913. Prince Edward Island's subsidy remains stationary.

There is an appropriation of $355,-000, an increase of $100,000, for the protection of timber in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the territories and the British Columbia Railway belt.

There is a new vote of $100,000 provided for the national battlefields commission. The cost of the new public service commission which is to investigate the civil service is provided for with an appropriation of $75,000.

There are several heavily increased expenditures provided for in the postal service, including $15,000 for the administration of the annuities branch salaries $278,064, and $100,000 for the railway mail service.

Victim of Persecution?

Chatham, Jan. 11.—A. W. Green, ex-reeve of the Township of Zone, charged with the theft of $99.10 of township moneys, got his preliminary hearing before Magistrate Stanworth yesterday afternoon, when he was committed for trial at the June sessions.

Four charges were preferred by the crown. One for the theft of $16, another for $19.10, another for $21, and the fourth for $41.

The defence did not attempt to put in any evidence yesterday, but J. M. Pike, K.C., solicitor for Greene, declares they have a strong case, and that it may be proved that the prosecution was pushed by interested parties, because of a certain political antipathy.

Minnesota Hard Hit.

Duluth, Minn., Jan. 11.—Cook, Minn., forty miles north of Virginia, broke the cold weather record yesterday with 56 below zero. All the thermometers there burst at that figure.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 11.—Twenty-two below and no relief in sight was the word given out from the weather bureau last night.

At Minneapolis the cold was intense, the thermometer recording 23 degrees below.

TO EXTEND THE I. C. R.

Cochrane Agrees to Suggestions of Hon. Mr. Emerson

FIRST DAY A BUSY ONE

Ottawa, Jan. 11.—Parliament got down to business with a rush when it met yesterday afternoon after the Christmas adjournment.

The estimates for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1913, were laid on the table and the House indulged in a debate on the advisability of purchasing branch lines as feeders for the Intercolonial, the question being brought up by a resolution of Hon. H. R. Emmerson. Hon. Frank Cochrane, intimated that the Government favored the suggestion.

Alfred Thompson, the new Conservative member for the Yukon was introduced and took his seat.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier asked if a writ had been issued for an election to fill the vacancy in South Renfrew. The Premier replied that the matter was under consideration.

Sir Wilfrid took exception to a memorial presented to the Government under date of Nov. 24, 1911, criticising the work of the Ottawa Improvement Commission. It was not accurate, he said, to say that the commission had proceeded in a haphazard way. They had done a good work, in which not only the citizens of Ottawa, but of all Canada could take pride.

Mr. Borden stated that the memorial in question dealt not only with the work of the commission, but with the sites for new Government buildings, etc., as well. In a matter of this kind there had been the widest co-operation between the commission, the Government and the city authorities.

The motion of Hon. Wm. Pugsley for papers in connection with the appointment of boundary waters commissioners and despatches between the Governor-General and the British ambassador at Washington or the British Government on the subject stirred up the Premier to enquire whether the late Government dealt with the Home Government through the ambassador at Washington. He did not see why a recommendation to the Imperial authorities should not go through the regular channels.

Hon. H. R. Emmerson proposed the following resolution: "That, in the opinion of this House, it is desirable in furtherance of the transportation interests of this Dominion that the sphere of influence of the Intercolonial Railway as a Government operated railway should be widened and extended by securing by lease or otherwise such of the branch lines of railway now connecting the Intercolonial, as will serve as direct and profitable feeders to the traffic of the said railway."

There should be no difference, he said, between the methods of the C.P.R., the G.T.R., and the Government railway system. As a business proposition the I.C.R. should acquire feeders the same as the other systems. It had suffered from the lack of them in the past by the diversion of traffic to other roads. The sooner action were taken the better.

Hon. Frank Cochrane declared that the ex-Minister did not make the reforms he now advocated when he was in power. The present Government would investigate and take over all branch lines that would be profitable.

Hon. Wm. Pugsley expressed regret that the Minister limited his acquisition of branch lines to those that were profitably operated. The revenue point of view was not the only one. Would the Government deal with the Georgian Bay Canal merely as a revenue-producing proposition?

Very few of the branch lines of Ontario were paying their way until they were taken over by the great railway systems. It would be the same with the Intercolonial, which was the most profitable venture the country had ever made, even though as a matter of bookkeeping it might not show a balance on the right side.

J. G. Turriff (Assiniboia) has no use for Government owned railways. He wanted the Government, instead of buying branch lines, to consider selling or leasing the I.C.R. to a private company, which he claimed would develop the system as no Government could.

Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden introduced a bill to amend the act respecting the Department of External Affairs, to place that Department under the Premier instead of the Secretary of State.

In asking J. G. Turriff (Assiniboia) to allow his bill to amend the Railway Act, by providing for the submission of special tariffs to the Railway Commission to stand pending the consolidation of the Railway Act, he gave no hope that this would be undertaken at the present session.

In answer to a question by J. A. Barrette (Berthier), the Premier declared that the administration of the marine yards at Sorel would be included in the investigations of the commission recently appointed to enquire into the civil service. Mr. Lemieux was informed that an order-in-council had been passed making the usual grant to the dismissed annuities' agents.

Kingston's Power Policy.

Kingston, Jan. 11.—Hon. Adam Beck has advised the city to temporarily supply the G.T.R. with power to run their drilling plant while awaiting connection with the Trent River power for Kingston. Hon. Mr. Beck says he believes Hydro-electric power will be brought to Kingston by July, and the local plant can supply the company with 500 horsepower. The Seymour Company has reached Napanee, and a transmission line will be run from there to this city.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

King George and Queen Mary embarked yesterday on the steamer Medina, homeward bound.

More than 180 veterans of the National Soldiers' Home near Leavenworth, Kan., are seniors ill of ptomaine poisoning, resulting from eating hash.

Fire broke out in Fox & Brady's grocery store in Lindsay yesterday, resulting in a complete loss. A tank of oil in the cellar helped to spread the flames.

The lockout of wool combers at Bradford, Eng., has been averted. The lockout was expected to follow a strike of 1,500 combers and would involve 12,000 man.

The holdings of the Electric Co., Ltd., the concern that was merging electric power companies in the Trent Valley, will, it is reported, be soon taken over by the Hydro-Commission.

In the death of Sergt.-Major Bland, which occurred yesterday, one of the old residents of Belleville passed away. Deceased was 82 years of age and had been a soldier over three-quarters of a century.

Six-year-old Anna Laves of Niagara Falls was burned to death yesterday. The child was wrapped in a blanket in front of a stove, having been ill. The mother went out and, upon returning, found the child dead.

Richard Gorman was sentenced to one year in the Central Prison for deliberately smashing three plate glass windows of the Anglo-American Hotel at Belleville, because he was ejected from the hotel. He claims Toronto as his home.

The schooner John Harvey, Captain Curling, went ashore at Winning Point, four miles off Gabarus, N. S. Tuesday night in a hurricane and is a total wreck. Two of the crew, John Foote and John Kerping of Balloram, Nfld., are reported to have perished.

William Twiman, an insane negro, ran amuck at Scottsville, near Rochester yesterday, killed his father and barricaded himself in a house. After a siege, Twiman walked out of the barricaded house with his hands above his head and surrendered to the posse.

China Has to Disband Troops.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 11.—An explicit statement on the course of Russian diplomacy in the Mongolian controversy was made last night at the direct instance of M. Kokovsoff, the Premier, and Minister of Finance, who is the author of Russia's announced policy with regard to that province. The alleged distorted account of Russia's action, as given out at Pekin, which affected the bourse unfavorably, hastened the publication, which is tantamount to the recognition of the Mongolian Government.

The statement says that the interest of Russia began with efforts at mediation with the rebels. The Russian consul at Urga sought to save Chinese institutions and to safeguard the Chinese governor through Russian territory. The official appointed by the Chinese Government to carry on negotiations in Mongolia, requested mediation by the Russian legation at Pekin, and Mongolia made the same request. Russia responded that one ground for an understanding between Mongolia and China lay in the preservation of Mongolia's autonomy, including the disbandment of the Chinese troops in that territory, and that such recognition on China's part would be of advantage to Russia.

Chilman and Acheson Indicted.

Hamilton, Jan. 11.—J. D. Chilman and Joseph Acheson will have to face trial on the charge of robbing the Canadian Express Co.'s office here last September, of $8,500, the grand jury yesterday afternoon having returned a true bill against the two young men on the charge. The grand jury hearing in the case, which was in camera, and which began Tuesday afternoon, occupied nearly all yesterday, and it was not until late in the afternoon that the case was finished. The trial is set for this morning. This is the only case with which the present grand jury has to deal.

Two Trainmen Killed.

Barwick, Ont., Jan. 11.—Two men were killed and another injured at midnight Wednesday in a head-on collision of two freight trains two miles east of here. The accident was the result of an eastbound train, loaded with grain for Duluth, running by the station without observing the signal, which was duly displayed by the man in charge. They were both going at a fair rate of speed.

Fireman Warner and Brakeman Ingle, both of the westbound train, were killed. Engineer Corbett of Rainy River, on the eastbound train, was injured.

Andy Beat John D.

Washington, Jan. 11.—"It does my heart good to think that I got ahead of John D. Rockefeller, my fellow millionaire, in that Lake Superior ore deal."

Andrew Carnegie, former ruler of the steel industry of the United States, gloated thus in testifying yesterday before the House committee of inquiry into the U.S. Steel Corporation. Mr. Carnegie had just told the committee about his deal with Mr. Rockefeller whereby he obtained control of Mr. Rockefeller's iron ore holdings in the Lake Superior region.

Not True, Says Guthrie.

Guelph, Jan. 11.—In regard to the story that Hugh Guthrie, K.C., M.P., will become leader of the Opposition in place of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. Guthrie characterises it as a "deliberate falsehood, every word of it."

He has not been in Ottawa, and has had no communication with anyone there.

Diner—Say, waiter, here's a piece of ribbon in my pumpkin pie.

Waiter (with great presence of mind)—Ah, sir, you are a lucky man! That was the prize pumpkin which took the blue ribbon at the fair, and they cooked it with the ribbon on.—Judge.

MINISTRY RESIGNS

Caillaux Government Comes to an End in France

PORTFOLIOS ARE REFUSED

Paris, Jan. 11.—The downfall of the Caillaux Cabinet came suddenly last night. That the Ministry would be overthrown in the Chamber of Deputies in the next few days was the general belief, but the announcement of the Ministry last night caused considerable surprise. It was logically due, however, owing to the failure of Premier Caillaux to secure timber to complete a political combination which was practically confronted with the certainty of speedy collapse.

The resignation Tuesday night of the Foreign Minister, Justin De Selves, resulted in immediate dissensions in the Cabinet. Theophile Delcasse, the Minister of Marine, accepted the portfolio of Minister of Foreign Affairs, but M. Millerand, ex-Minister of Public Works, Admiral Germainet and Pierre Baudin, to whom the Marine portfolio was successively offered, in turn declined the honor.

Finally, M. Delcasse sought the Premier and declared that he had agreed to accept the Foreign Ministry only on condition that a Parliamentarian of distinction could be found for the important portfolio of the navy, for the regeneration of which he had labored for months. M. Caillaux therefore accepted the inevitable and went to Elysee Palace and announced to President Fallieres the retirement of himself and colleagues. Later he issued a statement regretting that he was unable to retain the Premiership and mount the tribune and defend himself against charges and calumnies.

Among the names mentioned as most likely for the new Cabinet are Mm. Delcasse, Bourgeois, Raymond Poincare, Millerand, ex-Premier Briand, and possibly ex-Premier Clemenceau.

The Paris newspapers, which unanimously regret the De Selves-Caillaux incident, as likely to do harm to the prestige of France abroad, quickly lined up for and against the Premier. The Liberte accuses M. Caillaux of secret negotiations with Germany before the despatch of a German warship to Agadir, and while he was Minister of Finance, and after the Agadir incident, while he was Premier, the result of which would have been the transference of the Congo to Germany, the overthrow of all French foreign policies, the compromise of the dignity and security of France both in Africa and Europe and the abandonment of the triple entente, through the entente with Germany.

Protecting Railway.

Pekin, Jan. 11.—Capt. J. H. Reeves, the military attache of the American legation at Pekin, and Capt. Thomas Holcomb, jr., a special attache, have returned here after making an inspection of the section of the Chinese Railway between Tangshan and Lanchow, which American troops will guard. They say it will not be necessary for the Americans to go into camp. The British troops, who are guarding the American section, in addition to their own, are occupying the railway buildings.

The British commander at Tientsin, Brig.-Gen. E. J. Cooper, informed Captain Reeves that the foreign force is not intended against serious attack. The several nations, in the event of attack, could send sufficient reinforcements from Tientsin to resist a large body of troops. At Tientsin there are 1,900 British soldiers, 700 Indian, 900 French, 200 German, 200 Japanese and 200 Russians.

Youthful Outlaws Sentenced.

Cornwall, Jan. 11.—The winter assizes held here this week by Mr. Justice Clute was principally concerned with the trial of three boys, Fred White, William Arthur Tyo and Jas. Tyo, against whom there were two charges of assault with intent to murder, and assault occasioning serious bodily harm with intent. The victim was George Gallinger, aged 81, a resident of Cornwall Township, and a brother of Jacob Gallinger, U. S. Senator from New Hampshire, who on Nov. 26, 1911, was badly beaten.

White, being 18 years of age, and the Tyos, who, are not relatives, being both under 16 years, they had separate trials. White was sentenced to three years in the Kingston Penitentiary. Arthur Tyo was sentenced to St. John's Industrial School, Toronto, for three years, and James Tyo, who had previously a good record, was let go on suspended sentence.

Population of France.

Paris, Jan. 11.—The official returns of the census of France taken last year, which have just been published show that the population now numbers 39,601,509 as compared with 39,-252,245 at the last census in 1906, showing an increase of 349,264.

The figures show a steady movement of the population from the country districts to the cities. Paris now has 2,888,110 inhabitants.

The population of France in the past forty years has increased only 2,500,000.

Woes of Niagara Falls.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 11.—With a poor supply of natural gas and the coldest weather in years, this city is suffering terribly to-day. Because of the cold, the separate school was closed yesterday. In the city building gas stoves were yesterday supplemented with oil stoves. A majority of citizens who heat and cook with natural gas have their sufferings intensified by diminished pressure.

Grain Expert Says Much of Wheat Yield is of Low Grade.

Montreal, Jan. 11.—In reviewing the present Northwestern crop situation, F. W. Thompson, vice-president and managing director of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., said:

"The total quantity of wheat marketed to date exceeds 100,000,000 bushels. The bulk of what is now remaining in the country is low grade. A large proportion of this, variously estimated at from 25,000,000 to 30,000,-000 bushels, is totally unfit for milling.

"From a milling standpoint the grading of this year's crop has been most disappointing. Up to Dec. 31 less than 4 per cent. of the total crop inspected was No. 1 and not over 18 per cent. No. 2.

"In view of the existing conditions the question naturally arises as to there being a sufficient quantity of good wheat for seed requirements next spring. It may become the duty of the Government to make a thorough and early investigation of these conditions.

"Even Canadian millers may experience considerable difficulty in getting sufficient high grade wheat to fully meet their requirements and the question of an export duty on the high grade wheats as a matter of protection to home requirements and seed may with every justification be seriously considered."

It's 46 Below at Edmonton.

Edmonton, Jan. 11.—The coldest weather this winter now has Edmonton in its grasp. At six o'clock yesterday morning the thermometer registered 46 below zero. The cold wave was general, as the following readings from various points indicate:

Peace River Crossing, 60 below; Criforard, on Lesser Slave Lake, 65 below; Fort Saskatchewan, 55 below; Saskatoon, 51 below; Lloydminster, 50 below.

Traffic is carried on under increasing difficulties, and telegraph wires have been snapped all over the west.

Securities Are Safe.

New York, Jan. 11.—More than $50,-000,000 in stocks and bonds was recovered from one of the smaller vaults in the burned Equitable Life Assurance Society building late yesterday, but it will probably be a week, perhaps two weeks, longer before the great vaults of the society and the Mercantile Safe Deposit Co. give up their half billion or more in securities.

Further examination of the gaunt, ice-shrouded building, swept on Tuesday by fire, showed more conclusively yesterday afternoon that the vaults are still intact. In the opinion of those who have inspected the premises—an opinion reinforced by the revelation yesterday, that the smaller vaults had kept their treasure safe—their contents will suffer little, if at all. But, buried as they are, under hundred of tons of ice and debries, it may be a matter of weeks before it will be advisable to open them.

What Value Do You Put On Your Eyesight?

We have people come to us, after they have tried all kinds of cheap Glasses, bought from some house to house fakir, or picked out of an assortment of "cheap glasses" in a haphazard way. In buying glasses to suit your sight, you cannot afford to take any chance. The small difference of price should not be considered when the question of Eyesight is involved. Remember we guarantee all our work, and our prices are very reasonable, considering the quality of goods we handle.

OWES HER HEALTH

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Scottville, Mich.—"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-five years old, and am the mother of thirteen children. Many people think it strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them of my good friend, your Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and bearing down pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house.

"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls to build them up and make them strong and well. My oldest daughter has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for painful periods and irregularity, and it has always helped her.

"I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for the Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies. I tell every one I meet that I owe my health and happiness to these wonderful medicines."—Mrs. J. G. Johnson, Scottville, Mich., R.F.D. 8.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases.

"THE SECRET OF PAUL FARLEY"

By JOHN MARCH

Continued from Wednesday.

"Tell me, Miss Fleming, are you going to the ball at the Larches?" asked Paul, holding out the rose.

"Yes, I am, Mr. Farley, and I shall expect you to sit out all the waltzes with me."

"Rather a large order, when nowadays every other dance on the programme is a waltz. Are you going, Mr. Fleming?" he asked.

"I am going to take Agnes," he said. "I think this affair will be a shade out of the ordinary dull routine. You see, there's precious little dissipation in the country, and I don't want the child to get hipped. I shall run up to town next week and get her a domino. What do you say, Farley, to a jaunt with me? How will the 'Cecil' suit you, a first-class recherche dinner, a theatre, and home next day?"

"Admirably!" he said, pushing his chair back into the shadow of the curtain, "that is if I could get away for a night, which I am sure is next to impossible."

"Pooh, nonsense."

"Now, Mr. Fleming, if you will purchase me a mask when buying for yourself I shall be much obliged."

"I will with pleasure," he said cordially, "but, on my soul, I don't see why you should not come with me. There's no necessity to launch out too extravagantly; we could——"

"I can quite understand why Mr. Farley demurs," Agnes interposed; "he has been such a short time at the Hall; it would seem like taking advantage of Sir Thomas's good nature to ask leave of absence so soon."

"I would much prefer not to ask permission unless some very important and unavoidable business called me away," he said, with intense earnestness.

"Very well, Farley, don't bother," he said. "I'll run up for a few hours and take Agnes," a shade of disappointent on his brow.

"So you mean to face the music," he inquired after a pause, "and put in an appearance at the Widow Wycherly's?"

"I promised—"

The sharp report of a gun rang out on the still night air. Felix sprang to his feet, ran down the steps on to the grass, and stood searching the horizon with his keen grey eyes.

"What is it?" Paul asked, joining him.

"Someone after the pheasants in the plantation yonder. I think I'll slip down there, and find out who the rascal is. Are you in the mind for a chase?"

"Yes," he said, "I'm in very good trim just now."

"I suppose you are a crack shot?"

"Great Scot! I've never had a gun in my hand."

"I'll give you a day's shooting later. I don't think it will take much tuition to ensure your getting a rabbit. Agnes," he called, "fetch a couple of caps and the lead bludgeon from the keeping-room, and then run in, that thin dress is no protection when a heavy dew is falling."

Paul stopped and turned up his trousers at the ankle.

"You think that thing sufficient defence?" he asked, as they left the gravel and walked on the edge of the damp grass'

"Plenty," he said, swinging the ugly cudgel airily round. "If it's Denham and his kidney, they're the most cowardly scamps unhung."

"So Denham indulges in poaching as a pastime?"

"He gets a few rabbits, and snares a young leveret now and again, but the lout hasn't the hardihood to do much harm. He knows I'm wedded to my gun, and rarely ever off the land. He takes it I'm at East Weyberne meeting to-night, which accounts for yon stray shot."

They crossed the turnpike into a field, kept along in the shadow of a fence, and then, leaving the open, clambered over huge clumps of prickly yellow gorse into the plantation. The moon was not so full as on the previous night, and stumbling among the tangled undergrowth, it seemed as if a double handful of darkness had been flung broadcast betwixt the aged and blackened trunks of the pine trees'

Suddenly Felix stopped to listen, and Paul came plunging against him breathless, half-stupefied by the dark mass of luxuriant growth and foliage, and stared at him with a dazed glance of inquiry.

The Squire put his hand on Paul's arm and drew him close.

"What's the matter?" he whispered, bending down the better to discern his features; "you are all in a tremour!"

"It's terribly dark and oppressive here," he said. "I should like if possible to keep beside you instead of tumbling aimlessly about behind. I have a vague indefinable feeling that we shall come upon something horrible directly."

An arm came around his shoulders, and Paul heard a sound similar to that of a stifled laugh.

"What are you waiting for?" he breathed.

He could feel the beating of the Squire's heart, and the throbbing of the pulse in the wrist around his neck and the heavy bronze moustache tickled his ear.

"I can hear the sound of snapping twigs," he said, "or it may be only the dropping of fir-cones; still, I think there's life about, though not human, perhaps. What a bundle of nerves you are," he added, feeling in his vest pocket for his match-box, and resting his chin on the crown of Paul's head.

"This kind of recreation is rather novel, and I should say a trifle hazardous," he answered, "and I have a decided preference for a whole skin."

"We are running no risk at all, I assure you," Felix said. "Had I scented a possible danger I should have come alone and brought a pair of pistols with me, I always keep loaded. I know every one of Denham's pals by sight. They're a lot of crass, good-for-nothing loafers, who want to make a few shillings out of snared game at the nearest market town. I don't think the men are vicious or desperate enough to spill blood over the business."

"Denham has a grudge against you, though," Paul said, his mind all at once harking back to the scene opposite the "Popinjay." "I noticed an evil look in his small eyes the other night when you threatened to sack him if he didn't go quietly home."

"I've had dealings with Denham ever since I was a nipper of a lad. He's a good laborer, though nearly always in drink. I should be loth to think it more than a momentary anger at being pulled up short in the presence of an admiring and applauding audience."

It was a still night, and although the moon was hid, the heavens above the dense blue-black plantation trees were studded with myriads of stars.

"The best thing we can do is to hug one another," Felix said, "until her Majesty comes out from behind the cloud, and—hello! wha's his coming? By Jove, it's a dog, and he seems to know me, too!"

The animal cringed and sniffed, leaped and then fawned upon him. It ran a little way and returned, wagging not only his tail, but its whole body seemed in an ecstacy of delighted satisfaction at his timely find.

"He looks like one of the Weyberne Lodge dogs," Felix said, stooping and rubbing the collie's ears. "I wonder what he's after down here. I believe there is something wrong, Farley, and the intelligent creature has stopped the first human beings he has met to tell them in his dumb dog fashion."

The animal whined, ran forward, looked behind to see if they were following, and then came dejectedly back and looked up pathetically at Felix.

"We had best follow his lead," he said, drawing Paul's arm through his. "Right you are, old man," he said, addressing the dog, "get ahead if you insist on dragging us into your affairs."

With a glad bark, he rushed on in front, and they lost sight of him in the dim distance, but turning an angle, and looking down one of the narrow, devious paths, they spied him midway, patiently and expectantly awaiting them.

"What is he standing over?" Paul asked.

Felix paused, unclasped his friend's hand, uttered an unintelligible exclamation, ran forward, and bent over the prostrate form of a man. Paul reached him just as, after fumbling with the matches, he struck a light. It was a young man, tall and fair, in evening dress. He lay on his side, his gun near him, a crimson stain upon his shirt bosom between the gleam of his diamond studs. His blue eyes were half open, and his teeth clenched under the small blonde moustache. Felix turned the boyish face towards the light as it flickered out, but they had seen enough, there was no one anything like him in the neighbourhood, there was no mistaking him. It was Anthony Pelham.

CHAPTER IX.

A Turning Point.

With a choking cry in his throat Paul staggered back against the friendly trunk of a tree, his face cold his forehead damp, his mind full of horror at what he had seen. Stifled by the thick atmosphere of dread he was afraid to inquire, almost to imagine, how the fearful catastrophe had come to pass.

"I told him I hated him. I said he had been a plague and a nuisance to me all my life, and I wished he were dead!"

Judith's passionate, careless words came seething and surging around in wild chaotic tumult until the awful truth had penetrated every corner and cranny of his brain. Pelham, despised, rejected, miserable, goaded past endurance, had chosen what seemed to him in his agony the only way of laying aside a burden too heavy for his young shoulders.

"You mustn't take this too much to heart," Felix said, with a kindly sympathetic pressure on his arm.

"Tell me," he gasped, "is it—"

His voice failed him, only his quivering lips framed the word "suicide."

"Hush!" Felix whispered, looking around about through the glimmering indistinctness, and raising his hand to impress caution, "it was an accident, he is still alive, and please God, he will live to be a hale old man. I want help, I want medical aid, I want you to warn Agnes. He must be taken into the Manor—the nearest place. I can carry him; have you a nerve to run on ahead and tell Agnes? Get a doctor, from somewhere, and, remember, Farley, it's an accident, one of those unfortunate, deplorable, unforeseen accidents which will happen at times in spite of all precautions."

City born and bred, custom and habit gripped him fast. He hesitated, looked through the gloom, and shivered. The thought, however, that life might be slowly ebbing from that long, slim figure on the ground acted like a potent cordial and sent him rushing along the zig-zag, spongy footpath til lhe reached the clump of scrubby, dwarfed trees and the welcome yellow gorse. Once across the open field and the high road he was within the radius of light from the parlour window, and he was able to see Agnes pour out a cup of coffee and rearrange a little tasty dish Rose had placed on the table.

"Agnes," he said, going over to the decanter and mixing himself half a glass of brandy and water, "there has been an accident in the plantation, and——"

"To whom—not Felix?" she asked, growing white.

"No; to Anthony. It was an accident, Agnes, you understand, an accident. Felix is bringing him here. Who and where is the nearest medical man?"

His lips were tightly compressed, his great eyes glittered in the lamplight. He was holding himself superbly in check, and spoke with preternatural calmness.

"We have no doctor nearer than East Weyberne; you can't go that distance to-night. You are too upset; you are not fit. I shall send Rose down to Denham's cottage to tell him to go."

"No, Agnes," he said, decisively; "I'll go myself; Pelham's life may depend upon opportune surgical aid. An empy-headed, drinking dolt like Denham is as likely as not to visit the 'Goose and Gridiron,' and forget all about the doctor. Besides, I must bestir myself; I couldn't bear to be inert when so much hangs on the passing of each moment. Tell me the man's name and I'll bring him back with me if he's above ground."

"Hunter—Dr. Hunter," she said; "but should he be called out there's a Mr. Snell, who——"

He gulped down the spirit, and disappeared before she had finished speaking.

After twenty minutes of alternate running and walking, he heard the sound of wheels behind him, and looking back, distinguished the outline of a man driving a thoroughbred which even at that distance appeared to possess a great deal of action. It was a dogcart he perceived, a high, solid, useful vehicle, carrying a second man lolling with folded arms at the back of it, and in a few seconds they had overtaken and slowed down beside him.

"Hello, there!" the driver exclaimed. "Are you Anthony Pelham?"

"No," he answered, twisting around and peering intently into the man's face; "do you know him? Are you a friend of his?"

"Yes to both questions," the man said, laughing. "I've just been to Weyberne Lodge, and found him out. When I saw you in the distance I thought I had spotted my man."

"Will you tell me your name?" Paul asked.

"My name? Why, John Hunter."

"Are you Dr. Hunter, of East Weyberne?"

"Certainly; I thought everyone for miles around here knew Jack Hunter."

"Then, for Heaven's sake, turn back to the Manor House, and drive like the devil'," he said, springing on to the step and scrambling into the vehicle.

"I suppose you were on your way for me?" the doctor remarked, backing into the hedge to turn around, and hooking the leather apron over Paul's knees.

"I was on my way for anyone I could get," he said.

"What has happened Something serious, by your manner."

"Yes; Anthony Pelham has met with a gun accident."

"How long back?"

"I don't know—an hour, a year, perhaps ten; I haven't been able to keep count of time."

"Pelham is a friend of yours?"

"Yes. For goodness' sake drive a little faster."

Dr. Hunter cracked his whip, curling the lash around the shoulders of his powerful, energetic steed, and they sped along the turnpike at a reckless rate.

"Anthony came around to me the other morning to ask for a pick-me-up, and said he had a fit of the blues," the doctor remarked, wishing he had given the matter more consideration at the time. "I didn't like the look of him—he's been losing flesh much too rapidly; neither did I like the expression in the boy's eyes, so I thought as I was passing the Lodge to-night I'd look in and see what I could make of him. How long have you known our mutual friend?"

"Some few weeks now," he returned, shortly.

"Oh, well, come, you can't be such tremendous allies! I've known Anthony all his life. Five and twenty years ago I was present on an interesting occasion, that is to say, when he first opened his blue eyes on this comical old world. Twenty-five years ago! Good gracious! I lay abed this morning in a comfortable half drowse, making business plans for to-day, philosophizing and speculating on the probability of the next twenty-five years. 'Jack,' I said to myself, 'you came to East Weyberne as assistant to old Bayles at the age of twenty-five, and you've plodded steadily and soberly along through fair weather and foul for another good five and twenty years. Therefore, two-thirds of a quiet, happy, busy life have slipped past, the years bringing with them the meed for which we have toiled. Now, Jack, my laddie, another twenty-five will carry you beyond the span allotted to man, and in spite of your robust health, your firm, fresh face and your agile limbs, there's not a portion of the last third you can stake a small bank note on—not on what you may fairly call your own. To me, you know, I cannot account for the inane feeling, it may be sheer vanity, but to me there is infinite grimness and pathos in having lived half a century. Age begins then to steal like a sad twilight over one's figure, and writes unwelcome legible records of sorrow, worldly selfishness, and hypocrisy, as the case may be, nolens volens across one's countenance. I expect you are inwardly cursing the hippish moralizings of a garrulous old fogey eh, young man?"

"I beg your pardon, I didn't hear what you were saying."

"I'll be bound you didn't. I've seen folk in trouble before Now, if you'll excuse me, I'll tell you something. I am afraid, with those eyes and that mouth of yours, you have the capacity for suffering abnormally developed. If I am not greatly mistaken you are the kind of individual to deliberately cut and lash yourself, rub the wound with salt, grind your teeth with the smart of it, and continue to repeat the operation at intervals You are stubborn of purpose, too young man. You are the sort to take a whim, a quixotic idea, like a bit between your teeth, and go through life in headlong fashion with it suffering untold agonies, until your heart breaks at last beneath its own weight of penitence."

"I hope and trust you are wrong, doctor," he said with a little shiver "I should be unhappy and ill at ease if I thought I was predestined to break my neck in riding a hobby too near the edge of a social precipice."

"Ah, no doubt, we hope to do well We trust we intend to be virtuous. But then hell is paved with good intentions. Still, I'm not unarmed, a seer and forewarned, you know, is forearmed. What's that on the road?" he added, as they neared the Manor, "your eyes are younger than mine."

"It's Mr. Fleming; I know by his extraordinary height."

"Ah, Felix Fleming!" Dr. Hunter repeated, "the prince of good fellows; if ever you and I meet again, my lad, I'll tell you a story worth hearing of his same Felix Fleming."

He threw the reins to Paul, looked over his shoulder and said "Dick," jumped down and walked quickly through the garden with Felix. The necessity for further exertion, the need to curb his strong emotional nature, having all at once subsided, Paul's mood changed.

He entered the parlour by the glass doors with a lagging step, looked around the empty room with a sinking heart, and shivered from head to foot. The rambling old house was unnaturally quiet, no sound of life broke the stillness in the low, winding passages, nor in the room above him. He paced the dingy carpet for what seemed to him an eternity, until the slamming of a door somewhere overhead set every nerve in his body tingling.

She suffered from nervousness by day and sleeplessness by night.

"Up to three years ago," writes a young woman, "I was in the habit of drinking coffee freely and did not realize that it was injuring my health," (tea contains caffeine — the same drug found in coffee) "till I was suddenly made the victim of nervous headaches so violent that I was compelled to give up household activities and stay in bed much of the time. Then insomnia came upon me and the wretchedness of sleepless nights was added to the agony of painful days.

"This lasted till a year ago, when I was persuaded by a friend to give up coffee entirely and try Postum. The result was in less than a week I began to feel the change for the better, my nerves grew stronger and I began to sleep nights. Day by day the improvment continued and in a short time, I was restored to health. My headaches left me, the nervousness passed away entirely, and I enjoy good, sound sleep at night.

A Marvel Of Healing

Salt Rheum of Ten Year's Standing Healed as if by Magic

Hands Cracked so Could Not Work —Cures Effected by

Dr. Chase's Ointment

It does not take long for Dr. Chase's Ointment to prove its magic healing power. A single night is often sufficient to produce the most startling results.

Internal treatment for skin diseases is nearly always disappointing. By applying Dr. Chase's Ointment to the diseased parts relief is obtained almost immediately, and gradually the sores heal up and disappear. Here are two letters which will interest you:—

Mrs. Chas. Gilbert, Haystack, Placentia Bay, Nfld., writes:—"I was a sufferer from Salt Rheum for ten years, and had almost despaired of ever being cured, so many treatments had failed. Reading of the wonderful cures effected by Dr. Chase's Ointment, I commenced using it, and was entirely cured by eight boxes. I want to express my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Ointment, and to recommend it to all sufferers."

Mr. Stanley Merrill, Tidnaware, Ont., writes:—"For years I was troubled with my hands cracking, often becoming so sore that I could hardly do any work. I got some of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and happily found that one or two applications of same to the affected parts made them well. I have had no trouble since using the ointment for sore hands."

UNDER CHOCORUA'S SPELL

(Short Story.)

Arthur Norris listened intently for a moment, then an impatient frown crossed his pale face.

"Oh, here come a lot of explorers, Sid! Seemed as though this spot was far enough away from the hotel to be left undisturbed."

"I wonder how they found it?" Sidney Eliot replied, looking with good-humoured eyes in the direction of the voices. His sunburned face and air of general good health formed a noticeable contrast to his companion, a young artist who was just convalescing from an attack of typhoid fever.

He could answer his own question a moment later, for the old guide, Allan, entered he grassy enclosure, followed by a group of tourists. Hidden behind the leafy screen which concealed their resting-place they heard him say:

"This is called 'Chocorua's retreat.' There is a legend that the Indian chief, Chocorua, laid a spell upon this place so that anyone drinking of the water which once dropped in a steady stream from the rocks above would take something into his blood which would ever call him back to these mountains. As you see, the water no longer falls, but the spell was a potent one while it flowed."

Arthur Norris and his friend had often heard this legend, the hills about were full of Indian legends; but to one of the party listening the old guide's story was of thrilling interest.

Cathleen Preston walked eagerly to the spot indicated by the guide. She put her hand into a cleft in the rock and bending her small head, crowned with its wealth of black hair, listened.

"There is a sound of dripping water inside," she said, turning about ,and the two young men saw a flash of violet eyes.

She pushed her arm in as far as the shoulder, the rest of the party watching with amused interest, then drawing it slowly back she withdrew her hand carefully. In the palm were a few drops of water.

"Hail to Chocorua!" she exclaimed, looking mischievously at the guide. "We shall see if his spell still holds its magic charm."

The guide stepped forward, holding up a warning hand. "'Tis as I tell you, Miss, don't drink of it!" His eyes gleamed. "Chocorua will call you back, I know—I once drank of the water!"

Cathleen smiled as she sipped the drops from her hand, but the underlying note of the dreamer was in her voice, robbing it of defiance, as she said:

"We shall see!"

When the party disappeared from view Arthur Norris walked over and thrust his arm into the cleft. Withdrawing his hand he sipped the few drops of water which lay in his palm.

"Trying the spell, too, Arthur?" his friend remarked with an amused laugh.

"The spell is already upon me!" was the unexpected answer. "I have found a subject for that picture embodying the spirit of those hills, the elusive something I have been trying to grasp. It shall be called, 'In Chocorua's Retreat.'"

"And the young lady who defied Chocorua?" a teasing smile played about his friend's mouth.

"Yes—she shall be the central figure." He refused to notice the smiling inference.

A few hours later as they returned to the hotel Arthur boyishly laid his plans.

"The proper introductions, you know, Sid, and then the rest is easy. They must have arrived this morning."

He eagerly questioned the hotel clerk. "Yes, I know now you mean," that dignitary replied after a moment's reflection, "six-day touring party from New York. Left on the noon train."

"Gone!" Arthur cried in consternation.

For the remainder of his stay he tried in vain to put that piquant young face with its exquisite colouring on his canvas. Even the inspiration of Chocorua's retreat was no help without the living model. In despair he returned to his city home, restless in mind, though stronger in body.

That winter saw some fine work from his hand, but ever and again he returned to his elusive picture. In his heart he felt that only when this was completed could his best work be done.

The restlessness grew upon him so as spring advanced that he resolved to once more seek out the mountain retreat and make a final attempt.

There was a merry twinkle in Sidney Eliot's eyes as he saw the valises packed for the trip.

"So Chocorua is calling you, old pal?"

His friend shrugged his shoulders. "Chocorua is calling, perhaps, but I am only too happy to answer."

At about the same time in the office of a busy New York firm Cathleen Preston listlessly dropped her hands from her typewriter.

"I'm tired," she murmured, and her whole body showed intense weariness.

The door of the office opened and the senior partner entered. She straightened up and tried to look business-like.

"Miss Preston," he said briskly, seating himself beside her, "Mr. Platt and I have decided you need a rest, and in appreciation of the way you stood by us in the rush of the past winter, we are going to pay the expense of a vacation for you and your mother or sister. Now, wait a minute," as she started to protest. 'In doing this we are only repaying you in part for the faithful work you have done. Now is there any special place you care to visit?"

Cathleen was overcome for a moment at the generosity of the offer. then suddenly across her mind swept a picture which had haunted her of late—of mountain and valley and woods, of pines and silver birches—and water trickling in a cleft in a rock.

"Chocorua!" she cried breathlessly.

A week later Arthur Norris stood watching the arrival of the train at the mountain hamlet. As yet only one stopped each day, for it was too early for the rush of summer visitors. An elderly lady stepped down and then his heart gave a sudden thrill. Following her was the girl whose face had haunted his dreams, waking or asleep. Her expressive face was pale, but her wonderful violet eyes sparkled as she looked towards the mountains.

Old Allan, the guide, was standing by the depot door. He had a record for never forgetting a face. A sudden flash of recognition and then he stepped right up to her and his voice rang out triumphantly:

"What think ye now of Chocorua's spell?"—Boston Post.

Big Price For Photographs

Twenty thousand pounds is a big sum to offer for a series of sixty-eight photographs. It works out at about three hundred pounds apiece, says London Answers.

The photographs in question represent different parts of the interior of the wonderful Mormon Temple at Salt Lake City. This temple, which is outwardly shaped like a gigantic beehive, took forty years to build, and cost over a million sterling.

Gentiles are rigidly excluded from its sumptuous interior, and the temple is always protected by guards. How the photographer, who is a German, managed to take the pictures no one knows, but there they are, and the man demands from the elders the sum of $100,000 as the price of the negatives. If he does not get his money, he vows that he will publish the photographs, and reveal to the world the long-hidden extravagances of the Mormon sect.

A DANGEROUS WEAPON.

The instantaneous picture taken by a modern camera is a very dangerous weapon in the hands of the blackmailer.

Some time ago a man called on a member of the Hungarian Chamber of Deputies with a negative which he offered to sell him for four hundred crowns. Not unnaturally, the M. P. demurred, but when a proof was shown him, he could not pay up quickly enough. The photograph showed the presiding officer of one voting district keeping a number of voters in close confinement, in order to prevent their counting for the rival candidate.

The deputy, as we have said, paid up, and smashed the plate. But the blackmailer had made about half a dozen different exposures, and whenever he wanted money would return and offer to sell one of these. The badgered deputy at last lost patience, and violently assaulted the blackmailer. And then the whole story came out.

Rome was the scene of a similar scandal. In this case the blackmailer's victim was a lady well known in society, and the picture represented her on her knees before another lady, who is wife of a minister. The inference was clear — that first lady was supplicating the other to get her lord and master an important position.

The blackmailer made the mistake of putting too high a price upon his wares. The lady, who was impecunious, could not pay, and the snapshotter, in revenge, made the picture public property.

The unfortunate victim committed suicide.

CATCHING THE CONTRACTOR.

A contractor bidding for street work under the notoriously corrupt municipality of Pittsburg, got the following letter: "Christmas is coming. We need money. Bring it."

He was given to understand that he would have to pay ten thousand dollars as the price of renewal of his contract.

It occurred to him to try a little blackmail on his own part—a sort of tit for tat. And with this idea in view he arranged a meeting at the Fort Pitt Hotel.

The leader of the corrupt councillors turned up at the agreed rendezvous, and the contractor was in the act of handing over the notes, when there was a blinding glare. A flashlight had been exploded, and by its aid a confederate of the contractor got a capital photograph of the councillor actually receiving his bribe.

It is said that the contractor had no further difficulty in getting all the work he wanted.

SOME JOBS THAT MAKE MEN'S HAIR TURN GREY

St. Louis Republican:—How would you like to work in a powder factory, knowing all of the while that you are likely to go skyward like a rocket almost any moment?

Or, how would you like to be a window washer in the big buildings, and hang out on the narrow ledge day after day, while applying cleansing preparation to the glass?

Don't you feel as if such occupation would make you nervous?

Don't you feel as though your hair might turn grey as the result of such work?

In St. Louis, as well as in every other large city, there are many jobs that turn the hair grey.

Take the street-railway motorman, for instance. Just taking a cursory view of him at his work, you do not pause to consider that his is a most nerve-wrecking employment; but it is so, nevertheless. The motorman, stalwart fellow, is not of highly organised nervous temperament, as a rule —if he were he could not last on his job. But even so, stolid and phlegmatic as he is, the constant strain on his nerves in time develops what the doctors describe as "motoritis." It is not the fact that the motorman must stand cramped in one position all day that plays havoc with his nerves, but rather because he must ever have a clear eye focused on track ahead, must watch constantly for obstructions, taking care all the while that he does not run over some absent-minded pedestrian, or perhaps some reckless, playful child, who tarries along the tracks.

Perhaps the most dangerous of all occupations in St. Louis and vicinity is the powder-mill worker. There is a powder factory at Grafton, Ill., which is practically a suburb of St. Louis, and a large force of men is employed there. They become inured to the constant jeopardy and go about their work as calmly as though they were making entries in a harmless ledger, yet they are ever mindful that their lives are in danger and their work in time tells seriously upon the nerves. Every powder worker may be said almost literally to be dallying within the jaws of death, and, while explosions are rare, considering the constant risk, when one does come the funeral list is almost invariably large.

You seldom hear of a window washer falling to death, yet their occupation is extremely hazardous, and it is enough to make the timid man shudder to see the window washer hanging far out from the sill, ten, twelve or perhaps fifteen stories from the stony walk below. Apparently they are not afraid, yet the work gets on their nerves in the course of time.

Everybody knows the strain under which the train dispatcher works, for that is an old story, discussed in publice prints many times. There is nothing hazardous, of course, about the mere matter of sending the Morse alphabet over the wire, but there is a mental hazard in the fact that hundreds of passengers on various trains put their lives in the keeping of the dispatcher, and it is this responsibility that makes the dispatcher's nerves jerky and causes his hair to turn grey before he is out of his thirties.

Did you ever notice how many train dispatchers are prematurely grey? Never did?

Well, just observe the men who work at dispatching trains and you will find many prematurely grey. What makes the hair turn grey prematurely?

Dr. C. H. Hughes, neurologist, explains that whenever there is deep mental worry or constant responsibility of important character, the hair is likely to turn grey.

"The greatest cause of hair turning grey," said Doctor Hughes, is profound brain strain, business, matrimonial, social or financial perplexities that appear unescapable, perilous impendings, false impeachments and a sense of being unequal to any occasion, may be, all tend to whiten the hair.

"The rush and hurry of city life, with no relief day or night, and the noise of the city, such as street cars bumping over stony streets, and the speed-crazed automobilist, all tend to wreck nerves and whiten the hair. All of these keep the human brain in a condition of unrest, leaving no time for the repair process of either body or mind. These break down the brain and rob the hair of the nutriment that otherwise would feed the colouring matter."

Jealousy Among The Pugilists

There is supposed to be a vast amount of jealousy extant among the members of the theatrical profession, but if you want to listen to some fine, guaranteed, gilt-edged knocking, take a stroll among the fighters and lend an ear to the opinions of each man regarding the other performers who happen to belong to the same class with himself. You may hear a few kind words spoken of a heavyweight regarding one of the smaller pugilists, anything from the lightweight class down, but when it comes to the bigger fellows his remarks are usually lurid in the extreme. He won't even venture on too much praise of a likely middleweight, for, you see, there is danger that the said middleweight may grow into a rival some day.

It's the same with the other classes; a lightweight may express admiration for a crack bantam, but he holds back from wasting words of commendation on a feather, who may possibly hop up a notch in the weight scale. The bantam possesses a longer admiration range from any of the others, because there is small chance of his getting to be anything bigger than a feather.

One would suppose that when veterans of the square circle retire from active service they might afford to drop all grudges existing between them and old-time foes, but such is not generally the case. For many years Jim Corbett and Joe Choynski did not speak as they passed by, and it was not until they came together as assistants in the Jeffries training camp, when that gent was preparing for his walloping at the hands of Johnson, that they buried the hatchet. It was also at Reno that a reconciliation was effected between John L. Sullivan and Jeffries, the old-time champ having been snubbed by the Californian after a fashion that John never forgot.

Nearly a year ago it chanced that Sullivan and Fitzsimmons hit Chicago at the same time, each having a vaudeville show in tow. Jack Johnson was also present in the Windy City, and Joe Choynski was running a physical culture school on the south side. Sullivan had Jake Kilrain with him in the role of partner. It occurred to a resourceful press agent that a fine group consisting of Johnson, Choynski, Fitzsimmons, Sullivan and Kilrain could be posed before the camera. It would have been quite an interesting picture, and the various sporting editors expressed their willingness to print it. But fierce and totaly unexpected kicks were registered by most of the parties interested. Fitzsimmons smiled bitterly.

"Wot, me stand up alongside that nigger after the way 'e fouled me w'en Hi boxed 'im?" he queried. "Hi should sye not. Count me hout h'on thet gyme, old chap."

Sullivan uttered a hoarse growl when the proposition was broached to him. "Me help out that freckled freak by giving his show a boost," said the former champion of champions. "Not on your life."

Johnson was equally emphatic: "Say, man, yo' all mus' think mah haid ain't screwed on straight," snorted the dusky star. "Jack Johnson couldn't get a pleasant look from one of dem white trash fossils when he was in hawd luck. An' now they wants me to hop along an' do a brudder act wif dem. Ah'm a real champion an' Ah can't afford to mix up wif hasbeens."

And so the great press scheme fell to the ground. Choynski was the only one of the bunch, with the possible exception of Kilrain, who appeared to be unprovided with a grouch against some member of the proposed combination. In passing, it might be observed that Jim Corbett's hatred of Johnson has lost none of its virulence, and it is generally believed that the one cankering sorrow in James J.'s otherwise happy life is fostered by his inability to dig up some one who can whip the coloured wonder.

The Puzzling Punch

BY ELLIS PARKER BUTLER

(Copyright, 1912, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

THE train from Port Washington, L. I., pulled into the Woodside station, where all passengers transfer from the steam cars to the electric trains that carry them under the river. Close behind it came the electric train to which we were to transfer, and I was one of the first to step to the platform, but not quite the first.

Ahead of me was a well dressed man of perhaps fifty years. I noted him particularly, for when the train began to slow down he crowded to the door hastily, pushing the rest of us to one side rather rudely, and stood on the lower step ready to jump off as soon as the train came to a stop. Even before the train had stopped he began looking up and down the platform in an anxious manner, as if seeking some one he had expected to meet there. There were already a number of passengers on the platform, dumped there by the Whitestone train that had preceded us, and the gentleman of fifty looked from face to face. He was so intent in his search that he did not alight from the car step, and he was so stout that I was obliged to push gently against him, as a hint that others wished to descend from the train. He looked up at me for an instant, and I saw he had a quiet, benevolent expression, although he looked worried. His was just the expression of a nice, fatherly man intent on taking his daughter to a matinee and worried because she was not meeting him as agreed.

He uttered an apology and stepped to the platform, and the rest of us crowded out of the car, the steam train pulled away and the electric train pulled in. There was immediately the usual pushing and rushing as the passengers sought to get aboard, but the benevolent looking gentleman did not join in this. He continued to look up and down the platform, glanced nervously at his watch and seemed more worried than ever. Then, as the last passenger was getting aboard, his face frightened.

From the street, half a block away, a young man was hurrying, and as he came he waved his hand. As he saw how little time was left before the train would move the young man broke into a run, and as he ran he drew back his right fist. With all the strength of his arm and all the impetus given him by his run he struck the gentleman of fifty full in the face with his fist. The older man went down like a tenpin. His hat went in one direction and his small handbag in another and his head struck the station platform with a thump.

The next instant the younger man was bending over him solicitously, gathering up his hat and satchel. With the utmost gentleness and affection he raised the victim from the platform, brushed the dust from his clothes, and, as the train began to move I saw the elder man's look of painful surprise give way to a smile of pleasure. Not a word had been said, although the younger man seemed distressed and apologetic, but now the elder man put out his hand and shook hands warmly, saying, "Thank you! Thank you! I am very much obliged!" as if, in knocking him down, his assailant had done him the greatest possible favor. So great was his gratitude the young man had to push him aboard the moving train by main force, and while he stood on the platform, smiling as the train departed, his remarkable victim waved and smiled at him and dropped into a seat.

Naturally I took a seat as near the elderly man as I could, but being a woman I could not engage him in conversation. When the conductor passed through the car he said a few words to him in a low tone, but the gentleman shook his head and actually chuckled with glee as he caressed his face, which had already begun to swell and discolor. At the Pennsylvania station I lost sight of this remarkable man, who seemed to enjoy being struck a sledgehammer blow in the face.

During the next few months I told this story a hundred times, for it was the most puzzling thing I had ever seen, but none of my friends could give me the slightest solution. "Funny things happen," they would say, and I began to fear I was doomed to let the incident slip from my memory unsolved, as such things do slip, when one of my friends called my attention to a "personal" advertisement in one of the Sunday newspapers:—

WILL any witness of a vicious assault upon an elderly man by a younger man on the Woodside station platform, Wednesday, June 10, kindly communicate with CRAMER & WARBURTON, Attorneys at Law, 15 Pine st., New York?

"There!" I said to my husband when I had read this. "You have laughed at me and you have said I was fooled by a moving picture imitation assault. Read that!"

He read it.

"What I told you," he said, "was that it was either a moving picture affair or some advertising fake. You had better keep out of the whole thing. The first thing you know your curiosity will get you into trouble."

"Now, Edward," I said, "I may be curious, but you did not see that affair. If you had seen a kindly, benevolent looking old gentleman struck a terrific blow in the face, and had seen him get up and thank the man that hit him, you would want to know what it was all about. You would have been in conversation with that man inside of three minutes."

"You keep out of it!" said Edward.

"And I feel a duty," I said. If that old man was seriously injured his assailant should be brought to justice."

"See here, Eleanor!" said my husband flatly, "this is all nonsense. That man would have plenty of witnesses without you. The two trainmen and the engine driver and the news stand boy and the train announcer must all have been watching that assault, and five witnesses are ample in any court. This is some advertising scheme. You keep out of it!"

Meeting the Assailant.

I am a native of Iowa, and as such I have been a member of the Iowa New Yorkers, which I can describe as the female offshoot of the Iowa Society of New York, and at the annual banquet, attended by both societies, I was promenading with my husband in the reception room during the half hour before the banquet was served when, on turning at the end of the room, I found myself facing the young man of the mighty fist. I managed, by pressing my husband's arm, to call his attention to the young man, and as soon as we had passed him I explained that the young man was the assailant of whom I had told so often. My husband promised to discover if he could who the young man might be, and left me with some friends while he set about it.

"It is certainly odd," he said, when he rejoined me to lead me into the banquet room, "but nobody seems to have any idea who that young man is. I asked the officers of the Iowa Society, and none of them knows, and none of the Reception Committee knows, and no one else seems to know, but they tell me he could not have got in here without an official invitation. Some of them are going to look it up for me."

I had to be satisfied with that. The banquet was served on a number of small tables, each seating perhaps six or eight, and I craned my neck in a rather unladylike manner, seeking to catch another glimpse of the young man, but I could not see him, and I turned my attention to the long table on the platform at which sat the president of the society, the toastmaster and those who were to make the speeches after dinner. The fourth man on the left of the toastmaster was the middle aged gentleman that had received the blow in the face. On the menu card the name of the fourth man to the left of the toastmaster was the Rev. Orpheus Williams.

The banquet proceeded as such affairs do, and after the final ices we settled down to listen to the speeches. The president introduced the toastmaster, and the toastmaster introduced one celebrity after another. Finally it came to the turn of the Rev. Orpheus Williams.

"The best laid plans of mice and men," said the toastmaster, 'gang aft agley,' as Burns says, but it is not often that they can be righted so satisfactorily as we are able to right them this evening. The Rev. Orpheus Williams is not able, for adequate reasons, to be with us this evening, but we have in his place one you will all be glad to hear. Iowa has produced many notable philanthropists, but she has given the world one of whom we are all especially proud. I introduce to you the Honorable Cephas Maxwell."

"Edward," I whispered, "that's the man that was hit by the young man."

"Nonsense, Eleanor!" said my husband. "You are mistaken. No one would strike dear old Cephas Maxwell."

"But he liked it," I protested. "He smiled joyfully."

"He may have grinned with pain," said my husband.

"But he shook hands with the young man," I expostulated.

"You were doubtless too excited to notice closely," said my husband good naturedly. "He was probably trying to hold the young man so that he might be captured."

It was no use trying to convince my husband. When I had first come to New York I was always calling his attention to faces that resembled some face I had known in Iowa, and he had not forgotten this. He called it my "seeing resemblance mania." But for all that I was sure Cephas Maxwell was the man I had seen struck.

His speech was just such a talk as one would have expected from Cephas Maxwell. It was kindly and good natured, with a vein of helpful philosophy, but it was not until the last words that I heard anything to connect him in any way with the incident I had witnessed. One of Mr. Maxwell's pet charities was being assailed by a part of the press at that time, and in closing his talk Mr. Maxwell referred to this briefly, saying he bore no ill will.

"Indeed," he concluded, "when such an attack is made we should turn the other cheek, and so far as I am concerned I am beginning to get the reputation of being a professional cheek turner. If a man strikes me on one cheek and runs away I hunt him up and ask him to strike me on the other. And then he subscribes to one of my philanthropic institutions."

This brought a gale of laughter, in which the dear old man, or dear middle aged man, took his seat, and when the final speeches had been made and the guests crowded up to be introduced to the speakers I took my place among them. When I was introduced to Cephas Maxwell he smiled pleasantly, but I had a word to say other than the conventional greeting.

"Mr. Maxwell," I asked, "when the young man struck you on the Woodside station platform was that the first cheek or the second?"

I do not know what I expected, but the smile immediately left his face.

"You saw that?" he asked eagerly. "I must have your name and address," and he scribbled them hastily in a memorandum book he drew from his pocket.

"Now," said my husband, when we drew away, "now you have done it. You'll be called as a witness, probably when you can least well afford the time."

"But he was the man!" I crowed triumphantly. "And I'll know why he was struck and why he liked it so well."

"Inquisitive woman!" said my husband laughingly.

We moved toward the cloak rooms, and in the hall we separated. Hardly had my husband left me to get his coat and hat when the young man I had noticed touched me lightly on the arm.

Recalls the Blow.

"Pardon me," he said politely, "but Mr. Maxwell has just asked me to speak to you. I believe, since you recognized Mr. Maxwell, you will remember that I am the young man that walked up to him at Woodside station and knocked him down?"

"Yes," I admitted. "I was sure of that when I saw you earlier in the evening."

"Thank you," said the young man. "That is all I have to ask you, and I beg your pardon once more."

With that he was gone. There was nothing mysterious about his going. He turned and walked into the men's hat room—to get his hat and coat, I suppose. I got my wraps and was waiting for my husband to appear when Mrs. Wilton, whom I had known in Iowa, came into the cloak room with her daughter and another young woman. She smiled when she saw me and we chatted for a moment, and then she introduced the young woman.

"You ought to know each other," she said. "Miss Frankton has just taken up her residence with her aunt in your town on Long Island. You know her aunt, Mrs. Garth?"

"No," I said, "but I know who she is."

"You must meet auntie," said Miss Frankton. "She is lovely. Won't you call on us? I'm destined to be your neighbor for a while, at least."

"She expects to be married in the spring," explained Mrs. Wilton. "A very worthy young man, too. A Mr. Geering. He came with us to-night. Think of me as a chaperone, my dear! What would we have thought so few years ago in Iowa if any one had suggested we needed a chaperone!"

What I might have thought does not matter, for just then my husband appeared at the door and beside him was the young man of the virile fist. Mrs. Wilton took my arm.

"This is Mr. Geering," she said, going through the formal introduction and including my husband.

"The Other Man Went Down Like a Tenpin."

We went down in the same elevator to the street floor, and Mr. Geering took the opportunity when we were crowded away from the rest of the party to beg me to say nothing to Miss Frankton or Mrs. Wilton of the affair of the Woodside platform. Of course I promised.

Mr. Geering went with us as far as the Pennsylvania station, and when we entered the car I managed to get a seat beside Miss Frankton. She was a most charmingly sweet young woman and my heart was taken instantly by her face and manner, and her tinge of sadness was explained when she told me her father had been dead less than a year. I judged, from her appearance and a few remarks she let fall, that he must have been a man of wealth, but I did not at the time suspect he was the great Frankton, the artist, whose works were only more celebrated than his bodily infirmities. He had been a cripple for many years, and during those years his greatest works had been produced—works so joyous and bright and full of sunshine that it seemed as if they must be the work of some other than the suffering invalid from whose brush they came.

Within a reasonable time I called on Mrs. Garth and Miss Frankton. Miss Frankton did not happen to be at home, but Mrs. Garth received me most graciously. From her I learned that Miss Frankton's father had been the great artist.

"He was my brother," said Mrs. Garth, "but I saw very little of him during his later years. I think his illness changed him. Grace—my niece—thinks many of the peculiar things he did were done while he was in great pain. He was so peculiar! Grace doesn't know to this day whether she is an heiress or a pauper. The will is not to be opened until eleven months after my brother's death, and Grace is forbidden to marry until the will is opened."

"She seems very much in love," I suggested.

"And Mr. Geering is a charming young man," said Mrs. Garth. "For some reason, however, my brother objected to him most strenuously. I really believe he thought Mr. Geering was too kind hearted, too considerate of the feelings of others. They had a long interview just before my brother's death. What it was about I cannot guess, but Mr. Geering evidently refused to accede to my brother's wishes. He refused to speak to him after that. He even refused to allow him to enter the house."

"It was the suffering," I said.

"Yes," said Mrs. Garth, "and it was aggravated by the 'Europa' affair."

"I don't remember that," I said.

"No wonder," said Mrs. Garth. "It was nothing at all. 'Epropa' was one of Mr. Frankton's greatest nudes. It was a wonderful painting—the whole world admitted that—but, my dear, it is not true that 'to the pure all things are pure.' Things that are pure to the pure of Paris and New York may seem very impure to the pure of New England. Brother had given one of the New York dealers permission to exhibit the 'Europa' in his window.

"He seldom did this—his market needed nothing of the sort, and he was averse to such things—but this time he was overcoaxed, and what was the result? The president of a virtue-on-ice society of some sort stepped in and made the police have the picture removed on the ground that it was indecent. Imagine my brother painting an indecent picture! But this virtue-on-ice man was a New Englander of"——

"Or an Iowan?" I asked, smiling.

"He was an Iowan," said Mrs. Garth. "He was—he was—Maxwell! Maxwell! That was his name. Of course, he thought he was doing his duty, but imagine the crudeness of the virtue that would think the 'Europa' indecent! At all events, brother was furious—bitterly furious. He tried to go out of the house as he was, bent and crippled, to chastise the 'vandal,' but he fell in a faint at the door of the room. Then he tried to get Mr. Geering to chastise Cephas Maxwell. It is hard to imagine Mr. Geering chastising any one, isn't it?"

"I think I could imagine it if I tried very hard," I said.

"It would tax the imagination," said Mrs. Garth.

So that was the secret, was it? Evidently Mr. Maxwell had received his chastisement. But why had Mr. Geering plucked up ferocity enough to administer it? And why had Mr. Maxwell received it so gratefully? Philosophy is all very well, but somehow, when I think of "turning the other cheek," I think of a slap, not of one of those cruel, stunning blows such as Mr. Geering gave Mr. Maxwell. At least the philosophy of non-resistance is not often carried that far in the present day and age.

It was not until a few months later that my curiosity seemed likely to be fully satisfied, and in the meantime I became better acquainted with Miss Frankton. She seemed to take as great a liking to me as I felt for her, and as the eleven months drew toward an end she became more and more dejected and confided in me more and more. She said she feared she could never marry Mr. Geering. Against her father she never said one word, but she told me she feared he had taken a violent dislike to Mr. Geering and that the will probably forbade their marriage.

"But, my dear," I said, "your father was ill, he was suffering, and sufferers have hallucinations. It would not be right to spoil your life for a sick man's whim. I should not consider an order of that sort binding in the least. Of course he might legally leave his money elsewhere provided you did so: marry to suit his wishes"——

"Oh, money!" she said scornfully. "Let the money go! If I thought of the money or if Mr. Geering thought of it we would be unworthy."

"I did not know about that. Money is not such a bad thing. But what the will said I was to know as soon as Miss Frankton, for I received from the lawyer of the family a request that I be present at the opening of the will at the office, No. 2 Rector street. Had I known then how unusual it is for outsiders to be present at such times I would have been more surprised than I was.

I went in with Miss Frankton on the 11:04 train, and we had luncheon together. Our appointment was for one o'clock, and we were there in ample time. We had to wait until Mr. Ullmer, the lawyer, returned from his luncheon, and before he arrived Mr. Cephas Maxwell came. I nodded to him, but Miss Frankton ignored him. Mr. Geering arrived soon after Mr. Ullmer. There were one or two others, minor legatees.

Mr. Ullmer, as soon as we were all assembled, broke the seal of the envelope that held the will. "On the exterior of this envelope," he said, "Mr. Frankton has written with his own hand the following words:—'This contains my last will and testament; not to be opened until eleven months after my death. I have, however, instructed my attorney, Henry C. Ullmer, to deliver a copy of this will to Cephas Maxwell as soon after my death as possible.'"

Miss Frankton looked at Mr. Ullmer blankly. "What did he do that for?" she asked.

"Perhaps if I read the will," said Mr. Ullmer, "you will understand."

"Then read it," said Miss Frankton.

"The first clause of the will," said Mr. Ullmer, after he had read it to us, "means, freed from legal terms, that Miss Grace is forbidden to marry John C. Geering except under the restrictions of the third clause."

"Read the third clause," said Miss Frankton.

"I will read the second clause first," said Mr. Ullmer, and he did so. "Which means," he continued, "that Mr. Frankton leaves his entire fortune and all he may possess to Cephas Maxwell, subject to the provisions of the third clause."

Grace was very white. In one instant nearly her lover and her wealth had been wrested from her. "Read the third clause," she whispered, clasping and unclasping her hands nervously.

"This is the third clause," said Mr. Ullmer, reading it. "'Third clause:—First a copy of this, my will, shall be placed in the hands of Cephas Maxwell within five days after my death, and I have so instructed my attorney to do, but any infraction of this section of this clause shall not invalidate this, my last will and testament.' I will say," said Mr. Ullmer, "that the copy was placed in Mr. Maxwell's hands as desired."

"Please read on," begged Grace, and he read on.

"'Second,'" he read. "'It is my will and desire that my daughter Grace shall marry John C. Geering, provided John C. Geering shall, within one year from the date of the signing this will, assault Cephas Maxwell and with his full muscular strength strike him upon the face, knocking him down in the presence of public witnesses, in some public place within the city of New York.

"'Third:—Should John C. Geering not assault the said Cephas Maxwell within one year as above set forth the second clause of this, my will and testament, is annulled, and I give and bequeath all the property of which I may die possessed to my beloved daughter Grace, excepting'" (here followed some minor legacies).

Perhaps I have not the correct legal language, for I am quoting the will from memory, but the effect on Grace was instant. She threw herself upon Mr. Geering and clasped her arms around him.

"You shan't! You shan't!" she cried. "It would be ignoble to strike him! We do not want the money, John!"

"But Miss Grace," said one of the minor legatees, who saw her little legacy fade away unless Cephas Maxwell was soundly assaulted, "you are forbidden to marry unless John knocks the old rascal down. Let him do it!"

Grace turned on her angrily. "Be still!" she cried, and then, covering her face with her hands, she put her head on my shoulder and sobbed.

"I can't give him up! I can't give him up!" she wept.

"Listen, Grace," I begged, but before I could say the word John Geering was at her side. "Grace," he said, "there is no need for us to give each other up."

"What!" she cried, with blazing eyes. "Would you hit a man older than yourself? Are you a coward, John Geering?"

He blushed. "Miss Frankton," said Mr. Ullmer, "the deed has been done. Mr. Geering has already struck Mr. Maxwell with the full strength of his arm, and has knocked him down in a public place in the city of New York, before witnesses."

If Mr. Ullmer imagined this would calm her he was much mistaken. "Have you done that, John Geering?" she asked. "Oh! What have I done to be tossed about among such men? Money, anger, revenge!"

She clasped her hands until her fingers were white. She bit her lip. She pressed her hands against her cheeks.

"Money! Money!" she moaned. "That is why you hit an old man, John Geering"——

"Pardon me," said Mr. Maxwell softly and with his usual good natured smile, "but I'm not quite an old man. I believe I could, if so minded, stand up with John Geering and he would drop nine times to my one—fair rules and no favors."

"And he clinched you in an underhand way, then?" cried Grace. She glared at all of us. "The coward!"

"Not at all," said Mr. Maxwell. "He hit me by request. I begged him to hit me. I had to use my utmost powers of persuasion, didn't I, John? And I am not a weak persuader. I truly enjoyed being knocked down by Mr. Geering."

Grace looked from one to the other of us as if she thought we were all crazy.

Mr. Ullmer turned to me. "It was in order to satisfy any doubts Miss Frankton might have that I asked you to be here," he said. "Will you tell her whether the knockdown was a hearty one, and how Mr. Maxwell received it?"

I told the story of what I had seen on the Woodside platform. "Mr. Maxwell," I concluded, "used his head over here, Grace. The blow was like a sledge hammer blow. And then he arose and thanked Mr. Geering and shook hands with him. It was a very pleasant little affair, altogether."

"I don't believe it. I can't believe it!" said Grace, in dismay. "I believe Mr. Geering struck Mr. Maxwell, but I hate the motive that made him strike an older man. It was for the money. It was a mean, mercenary affair."

"One moment!" said Mr. Maxwell. "Miss Frankton, how do you suppose Mr. Geering knew the provisions of the will?"

"I"—— Grace began, and then hesitated. "How did he know them?"

"He knew them because I, who alone had an open copy of the will, told him," said Mr. Maxwell. "I knew John and I liked him, and I knew you, and the money given me in hatred could do my work as good. I wanted two fond hearts made happy." He smiled at the triteness of the phrase.

"I did not enter into the affair willingly," said John.

"I had to beg and coax," said Mr. Maxwell. "I had to use all my persuasive powers. But I think we carried the thing off very well. We chose a public place in the city of New York, as the will demanded, but a station platform when every spectator is eager to board the train is the place where the public pays least attention to other men's affairs. We timed the event to the instant."

"Mr. Maxwell," I said, "do you mind telling me what the conductor said to you when he whispered to you in the car?"

"Not at all," said Mr. Maxwell. "He came to where I was sitting and said he had seen me delaying the passengers when they were trying to disembark from the other train, and that so far as he was concerned if I tried to make any trouble for the young man that had hit me he would testify that I was trying to prevent him from getting on the train and that the licking I got served me right. Then he asked me if I meant to make any trouble about it, and I said I did not."

"But why?" insisted Grace; "why did you want a man to strike you so hard? Why did you want to be assaulted? The thing is not possible!"

"I admit that," said Mr. Maxwell, smiling. "And your father would have said it was impossible that any one should consider the 'Europa' indecent. But both things happened."

"I don't see," said Grace.

"There!" said Mr. Maxwell, and he led Grace to one side and whispered to her. Gradually, as he spoke, Grace's perplexity gave way to a smile. Then she laughed.

"It is all right," she said when she rejoined us. After she was married she told me what Mr. Maxwell told her then. John Geering and Mr. Maxwell had practiced the blow for weeks, with soft gloves, until, like the famous steam hammer, John could come within the tenth of an inch of Mr. Maxwell's face without striking it. And Mr. Maxwell could fall as if struck, without, in fact, being struck. It was to carry this out best they had chosen the station platform at the moment of the departure of a train, when every witness' attention would be more or less distracted by other things. But John had been just a moment late and had not counted on the impetus of his running approach. Mr. Maxwell had received a real blow and had fallen a real fall.

Of course, when Grace understood everything she was grateful, and she insisted that Cephas Maxwell accept one of her father's paintings as a souvenir. And which do you think he chose? The "Europa!"

HIGH SOUNDING WORDS.

WORDS are made to play strange feats in the languages of uncivilized peoples. Savages, it would appear, like ignorant folk in civilized lands, are fond of high sounding words, of which the following are specimens:—

"Day" in Fawuse is said to be chookoocoochairet. In Katakana, a language of Abyssinia, in the north of this continent, the word for "tooth" is said to be khotsishatathasis, and that for "tongue" is such as one would wish to utter but once in his life. It is thus—Khotsishkhisitshkhitsho. "Star" in Chinook is thlikhekhamma.

"These," it might be said, in the language of De Quincey, "are sesquipedalian enough to split the teeth of a crocodile."

Certain peoples of Mexico are famous for their long words. In one Mexican dialect the common address to a priest is one word, Notiaxcanahuatzcopinotzin, which is said to mean "Venerable priest, whom I honor as a father."

A faget in thatlotiplotitotzin, and in the same tongue "I love you" is rendered nimitz-tehuahuhatlauiltia. The lover asking for a kiss in this strange language calls it a tetemamiquiltiliztli.

A TRAGEDY IN A MEAN STREET

(AUSTIN WEIR, IN THE LONDON DAILY NEWS.)

I should have loved her if she had not already been engaged to marry another man. He was something in the city—no one seemed to know quite what—and he courted her with a condescension which, while it set my teeth on edge, served only to enhance his value in her eyes. It was for this that I detested him, though perhaps, mixed with anger for his attitude towards her, there may have been the feeling of dispossession. As it was she married neither of us.

She was one of the daughters of the house, the house in which, for six shillings a week, I became a tenant of the front bed-sitting room. It was not an over-clean house, which is not to be wondered at; for Mrs. Ainsworth had three sons and four daughters living beneath the roof, coming in to meals at all hours of the day; and with the exception of Diesy none of the girls ever lifted a hand to do a stroke of housework. It was going out to take a breath of fresh air that I met her in the passage. Of course, her real name was Daisy, but I write it as nearly as possible to correspond with the pronunciation given it by her mother, her brothers and sisters, and her "young man." She was tall, slim, and exceedingly fragile. That much I could see by the light of the dim oil lamp that hung out a bracket in the passage. Her hair was like fine spun gold; her eyes large and wistful, yet capable of flashing with humour, as I afterwards found out. In any surroundings she would have arrested my attention, but coming face to face in that dim passage—for some moments I stood and gaped. Her self-possession made my awkwardness the greater.

"I suppose you are the new lodger," she said, looking me up and down with a critical but not unfriendly eye.

I admitted as much. A few more words passed between us, and we went our different ways, she downstairs to the kitchen, I out into the street.

* * *

We became great friends in the course of time. It is impossible to convey an adequate idea of the charm she held for me. Her ignorance of all that lay beyond her own narrow sphere, her quaint ideas of a larger life taken from the books she obtained at the neighbouring free library, her shrewd criticism of things and persons, her slight Cockney accent, all combined to make conversation with her a thing of sheer delight. For six days in the week, from eight in the morning till seven at night, she worked at an envelope factory employing several hundred people. She was a hand folder, employed in making odd sizes of envelopes that could not be run off on the machines. From what she told me I gathered that the work was clean; that it was not altogether unpleasant, though it often made her back ache; that it often brought her as much as twenty-five shillings a week, but, taking her money week by week, it did not average more than a pound.

In her spare time she read a good deal, and because I was a struggling journalist, because I could sometimes proudly point to stories and articles under my name in popular papers, she stood rather in awe of me. But her awe did not go beyond crediting me with a certain amount of book-learning and cleverness.

I have said that her fragility impressed me at the first glance. As I grew more accustomed to seeing her this fragility became more and more evident. Like the majority of her class, she had no idea of the science of living. Tea—tea so black and strong that I shuddered to look at it—was conspicuous at all the meals; that, and a few hasty mouthfuls of bread and butter, comprised her breakfast. At least three days in the week canned food of some description appeared on the dinner-table. When "butcher's meat" was provided it was rarely accompanied by vegetables. It was easier to cut up a loaf than to wash and cook potatoes and greenstuff. Tea was always taken with the mid-day meal. For supper fried fish and chips from a near-by shop played the principal part—the aroma was rarely absent from the kitchen.

* * *

Apart from the question of food, the hours she kept were ridiculous. Her lover called in every night to see her, rarely before ten o'clock, often later; and he never left before midnight. Often it was one o'clock in the morning when, as I was about to turn into bed after a hard evening's work, I heard the front door bang upon him.

She grew thinner and thinner day by day. When I told her that she was not eating as she ought to eat, she pointed to her brothers and sisters. They lived as she lived, and, strangly enough, they seemed to thrive on it. When I told her she ought to go to bed earlier, she retorted that I did not practice what I preached, and, in any case, she had to spend some time with Percy every night.

She knew that she was losing her grip on life; her mother, her whole family knew it; but the strange apathy of her class, she did nothing. A doctor? She laughed at my suggestion to scorn. Doctors were all right, no doubt; but how could one tell what a doctor was going to charge? A hospital? She turned upon me as if I had suggested that she should enter the workhouse. I have found the same hostility to hospitals since among the working classes, who regard them as charities or torture chambers. Many are ashamed to enter and many afraid.

I cannot describe in detail the last phase. How, one morning, when the hooter from the factory sounded, she remained lying in bed; her brother and sisters went out to work in the usual way; how her kind-hearted but wholly incapable mother reckoned that Diesy was a little more run down than ordinary. Without consulting anyone and half ashamed of my interference. I went and fetched a doctor. Coming from her room the medical man gave me one look and demanded curtly: "Why didn't you call me in before?"

She did not get up from her bed again after that. They fed her upon expensive foods and wine with prodigal disregard for the money spent, every member of the family contributing his or her share. Sometimes I would take her in a few cut flowers; sometimes I would sit beside her bed and read to her.

"You are awfully nice to me," she would say. "You make as much fuss of me as Percy does. Poor old Percy! Don't you go loving a girl who is likely to give you the slip before you have time to marry her, that's all."

She died just a month after I had called in the doctor, and was buried in one of the huge London cemeteries which are a wilderness of granite and marble memorials.

* * *

And, that is why I, a Tory "bred and born," would like to see the insurance bill become law. I should like ailing men and women to seek doctors without fear of a long bill; I should like them to rest from their labours when necessary without fear of destitution; and I should like them to learn from the doctors a little of the science of living which is at present a sealed book to them.

The Quickest Cough Cure—Cheap, But Unequaled

Sixteen Ounces of it for 50c. Saves You 62. Does the Work Quickly or Money Refunded.

For quick, positive results the 16 ounces of cough syrup that you make with a 50-cent bottle of Pinex, cannot be equaled. It takes hold instantly and will usually stop the most obstinate deep-seated cough inside of 24 hours. Even croup and whooping cough yield to it quickly.

The user of Pinex mixes it with home-made sugar syrup. This gives you 16 ounces—a family supply—of better cough remedy than you could buy ready mixed for $2.50. Easily prepared in five minutes—full directions in package.

Pinex soothes and heals the inflamed membranes with remarkable rapidity. It stimulates the appetite, is slightly laxative and tastes good—children like it. Excellent for hoarseness, asthma, bronchitis and other throat troubles, and has a wonderful record in cases of incipient lung trouble.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of Norway White Pine extract, rich in guaiacol and other natural healing pine elements. Simply mix with sugar syrup or strained honey, in a 16-oz. bottle, and it is ready for use. Used in more homes in the U. S. and Canada than any other cough remedy.

Pinex has often been imitated, but never successfully, for nothing else will produce the same results. The genuine is guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. Certificate of guarantee is wrapped in each package. Your druggist has Pinex or will gladly get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

SEEN AND HEARD

A RED-HOT PARTISAN.

Garrett P. Serviss, the noted science writer, said at the Brooklyn University Club apropos of Halley's comet:

"The ignorant and superstitious dread that the comet evoked in some quarters reminds me of the Millerites.

"The Millerites, back in '72, when Grant was up for a second term, were preaching the immediate destruction of the world. They were even giving their property away.

"Well, at a Millerite camp meeting one night in Maine a Millerite preacher preached that the end of the world would come in October, just a month before election.

"The preacher noticed a man in a front seat who manifested every symptom of satisfaction whenever this date was driven home. Perplexed, he accosted the man at the end of the service and asked him why he had shown pleasure over such a terrible matter.

"'Anything to beat Grant!' was the reply."—Human Life Magazine.

A BRAGGART TAKEN DOWN.

A passenger who recently came over on one of the smaller boats relates this incident: There was a chap on board who was much given to boasting about his skill with the rifle. The captain thought he'd take the boaster down a peg, so he said: "I don't think you could hit this bottle placed on the rail at 20 yards distance." The other replied that it would be mere child's play, whereupon the captain said: "I'll bet you $10 you don't hit it three times out of six." The boaster promptly took him up and the test was made. At the first shot he hit the bottle and it disappeared in fragments in the sea. "Trot out another one," cried the shooter triumphantly, getting his rifle ready. "Not at all," replied the captain. "The conditions were that you should hit that one three times out of six. You have to hit it twice more."—Boston Transcript.

THE STAGE SOUTHERNER.

A clerk in a Washington street hotel tells this one:

"My first hotel job was in a Texas city. One morning a guest who had been celebrating unwisely the night before swayed up to the desk and asked for some information. His name was Colonel Hawkins, and he was the soul of politeness under all circumstances. And this morning he was looking worried.

"'Frank,' he whispered, 'my memory of last night, I regret to say, suh, is pretty hazy. Confidentially, now—what did I do?'

"'Colonel,' said I, 'you got drunk and shot a man.'

"'Anything else?'

"'Gee, isn't that about enough?'

"'It's unfortunate, yes, suh. But I was afraid I had insulted somebody.'"—Boston Traveler.

NOT ALL THE NERVE EXTRACTED.

A patient entered a dentist's office the other day, and, after showing a swollen cheek for admittance to the chair, was told that the tooth was "very bad," and that the nerve would need to be removed.

The operation finished, the stranger placed his hat firmly on his head, leisurely drew on his gloves and requested that the account be charged.

After he was gone, the dentist turned to a friend who had been in the room and said:

"Tom, I don't know that man. I am sorry the operation wasn't successful."

"But it was successful," returned the other, astonished. "The man was feeling fine when he left here. Why wasn't it a success?"

"I didn't extract all the nerve," responded the dentist.—Philadelphia Evening Times.

OMELETTES OR BRILES.

Senator Martine, of New Jersey—the "farmer Senator," as it is his pride to be called—was relating in Washington memories of his farm life.

"What quaint minds," he said, "have those New Jersey coloured folk who work New Jersey's farms! I remember an old uncle who once paused in a job of potato hoeing to sing in my ears the praise of chickens.

"'Chickens,' he said, 'is so accommodatin'. Dey's so accommodatin', suh, yo' can eat 'em befo' dey's bawn, an' yo' can eat 'em ahftah dey's dead.'"—New York Tribune.

EXPLAINING HORSE POWER.

In connection with steamship propulsion the average man is apt to speak very glibly of so many hundred or thousand horse power. But it is extremely doubtful if one person in a hundred really has a due appreciation of what the phrase actually means. On this point some very interesting remarks were made by John Heck, the Glasgow engineer surveyor.

He said that, calculating the strength of 12 men to be equal to one horse power, it would require 840,000 men to produce as much energy as the 70,000 horse power developed by the turbine machinery of the express Cunarder Lusitania. Then if the men were to work on the eight hour day system three shifts would give a total of 2,520,000 being the number of men whose strength would be necessary to drive the vessel across the Atlantic Ocean. So it would take all the men in Scotland to supply the energy produced all the day round by the wonderful turbine machinery of this great ship.—Railway and Traction Engineer.

The Ferocious Mr. Pitts

Edward Pitts, who said he hailed from Denver, was one of the most awe-inspiring fighters—to look at him—that ever donned the gloves. Mr. Pitts was a large person, about 6 ft. 1, scaling maybe 200 pounds, and had an expression of deep and dire ferocity. His bullet head housed two cavernous and savage eyes; his short nose was set above a grim mouth well filled with broken teeth; his voice was rumbling and terrifying in its timbre, his neck was thick and thewed, and his body that of Hercules and Sandow put together. Hence, when Mr. Pitts dawned upon the fighting field, way back in 1894, he was received with vast respect, and the big men of the day sidestepped him with unanimity.

Mr. Pitts announced himself as the knockout child from Denver, and averred that he could whip them all, only James J. Corbett wouldn't meet him and Bob Fitzsimmons wasn't heavy enough to face him. Just to show what he could do, he would take a week's engagement at some local theater, and guarantee to knock out anyone who might oppose him in three rounds.

He got the booking, and his first opponent, scared to death by the fearful face of Mr. Pitts, dived to the floor and took a ten count before the first round was really started. On the following night the police notified Mr. Pitts that these knockout stunts must be discontinued, and the Denver terror went through the week punching the bag and delivering speeches to the admiring throngs.

Several attempts were made to match Mr. Pitts, but something always interfered, and still his reputation grew. People began to regard this fierce-looking man, whom nobody wanted to tackle, as the greatest fighter of the century, and he throve upon his fame until, about six months after he came out of the West, a fight was arranged with one Frank Childs. Childs was one of the toughest black men that ever lived, and a ring general of class and skill. Mr. Pitts accepted the match, but on one condition only, that he should knock Mr. Childs out inside of three rounds. "I won't fight nobody no other way," said Mr. Pitts. "I agree to stop 'em all in three rounds, see? That shows me class, young fellow."

The mill was pulled off in a quiet place, with the announcement duly made that "Ed Pitts of Denver agrees to stop Frank Childs of Texas in three rounds." The big negro's eyes rolled uneasily at this announcement, and still more so when he confronted the majestic bulk and dreadful face of Mr. Pitts. They squared off; Mr. Pitts led with his right, and missed. The negro came back with a mulekick hit that laid the direful Mr. Pitts upon his beamends—and just then the police broke in.

Mr. Pitts said it was a fluke hit, that the fight had just begun, and that he would have taken terrible vengeance in another round. So the public fell for him, and insisted that he should have another battle. A different club, with safer protection, matched him with one Jack McDonough of St. Paul. Many fans turned out to see the cutting—and got the upset of their lives. McDonough lit into Mr. Pitts, belted him hither and thither, and in one round demonstrated the fact that the Denver demon didn't even know how to put up his hands. After it was all over, Mr. McDonough remarked, wonderingly: "Say, man, you can't fight. Not a lick on earth." "I know it perfectly well," responded the fallen idol. "Then," continued Mr. McDonough, "what did you go into the game for, and how did you get the reputation?"

"On me nerve," responded Mr. Pitts. "I knew blamed well that I couldn't fight a Chinaman. If I'd gone into preliminary bouts and told 'em how punk I was they'd have killed me. I told 'em I was b——l on wheels; me face backed up me assertion; I threw the bluff about stoppin' 'em all in three rounds—and for two years I ain't done a stroke of work an' I've lived easy. The American public likes to be stung, an' the only trouble with me was that after throwin' the bluff so long I go so that I believed it meself—an' now I've got me finish!"

GOOD RECIPES

TURBOT.

Blend a quarter of a pound of flour with a pint of milk and cook until a little thick. When cool add two well-beaten eggs and quarter of a pound of melted butter. Season with minced parsley. Let it get perfectly cold. Put a layer of any kind of fish in a buttered baking dish, then a layer of sauce, and continue till the dish is full. Put bread crumbs on top. Bake for half an hour.

CHUTNEY SAUCE.

Put eight ounces each of chopped tart apples, sliced tomatoes, salt, brown sugar and seeded raisins in a jar.

Add four ounces of powdered ginger, two ounces of garlic, two ounces of shallots, three quarts of vinegar, and one quart of lemon juice. Mix well and cover. Keep in a warm place and stir every day for a month, taking care to cover the jar after each stirring. Strain, but do not squeeze it too dry. Put away in sealed glass jars or bottles for use. The liquor will make a good flavouring for soups.

NUT AND POTATO CROQUETTES.

Cook one-fourth cup soft stale bread crumbs with one-fourth cup cream until of the consistency of a thick paste; cool and add one-half egg yolk and one-fourth cup pecan nut meats, broken in small pieces. To two cups hot riced potatoes add three tablespoons cream, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, a few grains cayenne, a few drops onion juice, add the yolk of one egg, beaten. Shape in small nests, fill with nut mixture. Cover with potato mixture, shape, dip in egg and crumbs, fry in deep fat, and drain on brown paper. Arrange on a hot plate and garnish with parsley.

SALTED LIMA BEANS.

Soak dried lima beans in cold water over night, in the morning drain, and cook in boiling salted water until soft. Dry, saute in butter until browned, and pour over tomato sauce.

SHAPLEIGH CHEESE.

Cut stale bread in three-fourth inch slices, remove crusts, spread with butter, and cut crosswise in finger-shaped pieces. Stand pieces close together around the edge of a buttered pudding-dish. Pour in the following mixture, and bake in a hot oven thirty-five minutes. Serve very hot.

Beat two eggs slightly, and add one cup thin cream, one tablespoon butter, one teaspoon salt, one half teaspoon mustard, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, a few grains cayenne and one-half pound soft, mild cheese, cut in small pieces.

FAIRY MUFFINS.

To two beaten eggs add a cupful of milk and two tablespoonfuls of sugar; then add a tablespoonful of butter, not melted; one and a half cupfuls of flour, one and a half teaspoonfuls of baking powder and half a teaspoonful of salt. Mix well and bake in gem pans.

SANDWICH FILLING.

A delicious filling for sandwiches or crackers is made by mixing equal parts of cream cheese and plain cheese with French dressing to a smooth paste, then stirring in it chopped red peppers or chopped olives. This paste should be very creamy and put on thick, at least a quarter of an inch. It is nice between salt wafers or on thin rounds of brown or rye bread.

When Your Throat is Sore

It may be only a slight cold now—just a tickling in the throat.

But little colds soon grow large and dangerous. Often they become chronic, develop catarrh and end in consumption.

Catarrhozone is the remedy. It draws inflammation and soreness out of the throat. Relieves the cough, cuts out the phlegm, makes breathing easy, kills any germs lodged in the mucous lining of the throat or lungs.

STATE OF NEW YORK } ss: ROCHESTER, N. Y.
COUNTY OF MONROE }

Nancy A. Herrick, being duly sworn, deposes and says: When I was a girl I had a head of heavy, long, dark brown hair which was the envy of my friends and which attracted the attention and remarks of strangers, but as I grew older, it commenced to come out. When my hair was quite thin and grey, I was induced by many good reports I had heard of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur to try a bottle; and you can imagine my satisfaction when I found my hair was fast coming back to its natural condition. I continued to use Sage and Sulphur until my hair was as heavy, dark and smooth as when I was a girl of sixteen. It is now four years since I began using Sage and Sulphur and my hair is in splendid condition.

A UNIQUE CLUE.

New School of Women Writers Gaining Fame Abroad.

It used to be said, and is said still, that Nova Scotia and New Brunswick head the other Canadian Provinces in the making of poets. One province does not seem to be favored more than another in the work of Canadian woman writers. Miss L. M. Montgomery of Prince Edward Island, who as Mrs. Ewan Macdonald, the wife of a Presbyterian minister, is changing her home this autumn to Leaskdale in Ontario, is the best representative we have of a Canadian writer whose native province by itself furnishes her with ample material for her charming stories. Miss Marshall Saunders has traveled much, both in the Old World and New, but she is as individual a citizen of Halifax and as characteristically a Nova Scotian as any Canadian loyalist, "Marian Keith," Mrs. MacGregor of Orillia, is as unmistakably an Ontarian as Miss Montgomery is native in Prince Edward Island and Miss Saunders to Nova Scotia. Mrs. Elizabeth Roberts MacDonald, sister to Charles G. D. Roberts, is a true New Brunswicker and her verses reflect Confederation and the province round about as faithfully as a looking-glass. Mrs. McClung was born in Ontario, but she was taken as a child to the West, and her stories are completely, triumphantly Western. Mrs. Murphy, author of "Janey Canuck in the West," also a native of Ontario, would never have written in exactly the same vein as she does if she had not lived in Edmonton, Alberta. Mrs. Isabella Ecclestone MacKay, who was born in Woodstock, Ontario, is now a native of Vancouver. Miss Agnes Dean Cameron is a native of Victoria, B.C., where she taught school for many years, and where the style of "The New North" must have been formed; its author is now writing and lecturing in England, with headquarters in London. Such a list as this should convince anyone that Canadian woman writers are not to be reckoned last among the forces which are building Canadian nationality.

One of the best known Canadian women novelists is Mrs. Everard Cotes. Mrs. Cotes was born in Brantford, Ont. She won her first recognition as a writer for The Toronto Globe, using the pen name "Garth Grafton"; she went round the world when the journey was something of a novelty for a woman, and wrote a series of articles on her experiences for The Queen. These articles appeared later in book form as "A Social Departure." Shortly after its publication, its author, Miss Sara Jeannette Duncan, married Mr. Everard Cotes of the Indian Civil Service. Since then she has spent most of her time in India, with long visits to London and journeys to Canada every few years. Mrs. Cotes visited Canada this year after finishing an English political novel which is to appear serially in The Queen. The best known of Mrs. Cotes' novels are: "An American Girl In London," "Those Delightful Americans," "A Daughter of To-day," "The Crow's Nest," "The Pool In the Desert," "The Path of a Star," "The Imperialist," "Set In Authority," which appeared serially in The London Times, and "The Burnt Offering," an able novel dealing with East Indian affairs. Mrs. Cotes is a thorough workwoman. Her style is excellent. Her influence on the women writers of Canada who have begun to write since Mrs. Cotes made her name as a novelist is all in the direction of perfecting what the writer at first may be prone to consider her best.

How the Duke Is Here.

Here is a story concerning the Duke of Connaught which contains a useful hint to the notabilities of Canadian society as to the etiquette to be observed in entertaining His Royal Highness.

Before leaving to take up his position as Governor-General of the Dominion, the duke made many farewell visits to friends in England, Scotland, and Ireland. In the latter country he was the guest for a time of Sir John Leslie and Lord and Lady Erne. At Crom Castle a large party was invited to meet him, and at one of the meals a guest learned a little lesson in an out-of-the-way sort of etiquette. At the end of the feast, finding his fingers imbrued in the juice of a peach, the guest in question asked the servant for a finger-bowl. The servant looked intelligent, but did not bring it. His neighbor volunteered an explanation.

"You can't have a finger-bowl; nobody is allowed to wash in the presence of royalty."

This, of course, was a gloss on the old tradition which still banishes finger-bowls from some loyal tables when royalty is a guest, and all because Jacobites made the finger-bowl their unconscious ally in drinking the health of the King—over the water.

The King himself, however, does not thus under-bowl his guests.—Toronto Star Weekly.

Earl's First Visit.

Earl Grey having made possibly his last visits to Canada, it may be interesting to recall the circumstances of his first visit to Toronto. It was years before his appointment as Governor-General, and he had come over to Canada to see his sister, Lady Minto, then at Rideau Hall. Earl Grey was then president, or, as they call it in England, chairman, of the Public Home Trust—not a hotel merger, but an organisation formed to protect the people's interests in connection with the liquor problem. And, in response to a pressing invitation, he came to Toronto to give an address on this philanthropic work in which he was engaged.

He spoke in the schoolhouse of St. James' Cathedral, and spoke well, closing in the customary way of English speakers dealing with public matters by saying that he would be pleased to answer any questions on the subject in hand. A number of local "characters" had evidently gone to hear the address, for the earl was bombarded with questions, not only concerning temperance, but any other issues, in a fashion that almost took his breath away. No doubt he thought he had struck a city of queer people.

MARKET REPORTS.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Lower, Chicago Higher—Live Stock —Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Reports that the interstate commerce commission had decided to refuse permission for reduced freight rates from the Canadian Northwest, helped rally the wheat market to-day, after a decline due to better weather in the Argentine. Closing figures were firm, a shade lower to 1-8c higher than last night. Corn finished 1-8c to 3-8c up, oats unchanged to 3-8c advance, and hog products varying a nickel each way from 24 hours before.

The Liverpool market closed to-day on wheat, ¼d to ½d lower than yesterday and corn ¼d to ½d lower. Argentine wheat was to lower. Paris wheat closed ½c to ⅝c lower. Antwerp unchanged. Berlin ½c higher and Buda Pest ½c higher.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Jan. 10.—Business in Manitoba spring wheat over the cable was quieter and the prices bid showed a decline of 2d to 4d per quarter. On the other hand the demand for spring wheat flour was good and millers reported sales of 15,000 to 18,000 sacks. The local market is firm with a fair volume of business doing. Millfeed is scarce and firm under a good demand. A fair business is passing in cheese at strong prices. The demand for butter is good. Eggs, desire. Country dressed hogs have advanced 25c per cwt. Demand for potatoes is good.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Jan. 10.—At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market the receipts for the week ending Jan. 6 were 350 cattle, 250 sheep and lambs, 825 hogs and 200 calves, while the offerings on the market this morning for sale amounted to 800 cattle, 400 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 150 calves.

There was no further change in the condition for cattle since Monday, prices being firm at the advance noted, owing to the fact that the supply was not large and the percentage of good to choice stock was small, as compared with the requirements of such. The demand was good, owing to the favorable weather for keeping stock and the fact that butchers had no surplus supplies on hand. A few choice steers sold as high as $6.75 per cwt., but the bulk of the trading was done in good stock at $6.15 to $6.50, while choice cows brought $5.50, and good bulls $5.

The market for sheep was firm under a good demand, but lambs were stronger and prices ruled 10c per cwt. higher, with sales at $7.10 per 100 pounds. Calves were scarce, there being no good to choice stock on the market and the highest price realised for the best was $10.

A stronger feeling developed in the market for hogs and prices scored an advance of 10c to 25c per cwt., owing to the good demand from packers and butchers and sales of selected lots were made at $7.10 to $7.25 per cwt., weighed off cars.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.75; medium, $6.50 to $6.50; common, $4 to $5; canners, $2.50 to $3.50; choice cows, $5.00 to $6; medium, $4.75 to $5.25; bulls, $4 to $5; milkers, choice, each, $70; common and medium, each, $50 to $60; springers, $60 to $60.

Sheep, ewes, $4.50 to $5; bucks and culls, $4 to $4.25; lambs, $7.10.

INTERESTING FIGURES THAT SHOW GROWTH OF CITY

Population and Assessment Have Increased Greatly in Past Five Years---Sewers, Sidewalks and Water Mains Have Been Considerably Added---Police Court Figures, Alas, Also Show An Increase.

An Examiner reporter, this morning, succeeded in gleaning some statistics regarding the development of the city in the last five years, which may prove interesting to the readers. The figures show the progress of the city to be very rapid and very gratifying to its citizens. The city's present possibilities may truly be regarded as unparalleled, and the following figures speak for themselves:

Population Increase in Five Years.

The following figures show the increase in population for the last five years: In 1908 the population was 14,802, and in 1911, 19,200,, showing an increase of 4,338 in five years. In 1907, the population was 16,600; 1908, 16,907; 1910, 16,923.

Increase in Taxation.

The following statistical report shows the increase in taxes: 1906 for 1907, $7,988,422.00, and in 1910 for 1911, $11,439,930.00, showing an increase in taxation for the five years of $3,451,508.00. The assessment for the other years are as follows: 1907 for 1908, $10,590,458.00; 1908 for 1909, $10,674,982.00; 1909 for 1910, $11,193,-682.00.

The total amount of sidewalks and sewers built in this city, up to 1906, were: Concrete sidewalks, 26 1-2 miles; sewers, 16 3-4 miles. Up to 1910, the total amount was: Sidewalks, 51 1-2 miles; sewers, 26.42 miles. In 1911, 3.52 miles of sidewalk were built, and 1.20 miles of sewer; 1.26 miles of water mains, and 208 water services.

In 9107, there was a total of 29.18 miles of water mains, and in 1911, there were 36.35 miles of water mains. The amount of water mains laid from 1907 to 1911, was 7.17 miles. The increase in mileage of sidewalks from 9106 to 1911 is 28 13-25 miles. The increase in mileage of sewers, from 1906 to 1911, was 16 3-5 miles.

Water Pumped.

The water pumped each year, from 1907 to 1911, was as follows: 1907, 571,146,920 gals.; 1908, 631,466,800; 1909, 640,895,200; 1910, 695,164,840; 1911, 750,375,734.

Building Permits.

In 1907, the building permits were $761,321.00, while in 1911, they were $345,372,00; 1908, $238,963.00; 1909, $343,489.00; 1910, $517,958.00. This shows the permits this year to be $172,596.00 less than last, but an increase on the preceding two years.

Police Court.

In 1911, fines gathered in the Police Court were a little over $1,900.00, while in the preceding year they were $1,200.00, showing an increase in that respect of $700.00. There were also a little over 200 more cases in the Police Court during last year than the preceding year. This increase is due to the growth of the city.

LARGE CROWDS VISIT THE PETERBORO' POULTRY SHOW

Many New and Attractive Features Have Been Added This Year---Show Will be Open This Evening Until Ten O'clock---Mrs. Dawson's Address.

Yesterday was a banner day for the Peterborough Poultry Show, and the large number of people from city and country, who visited the Market Hall greatly exceeded the expectations of the directors. It evidenced the growing interest which the people of this city, and the surrounding country are cultivating towards the poultry industry, and will serve to give greater impetus to the furtherance of the industry as a whole.

The work of judging the fowl is a very formidable one, and as a result it is proceeding slowly, and will take up a greater part of to-day. Mr. J. Baptie of Springville has charge of the judging in the Bantam class.

Mr. Joe Kelly captured several prizes in the White Rock class, embracing two silver cups, and two special prizes for Barred and White Rocks, respectively.

Last evening Mrs. Dawson of London, Ont., gave a very instructive and interesting address, dealing with the best methods of washing and preparing fowl for the show, and also the preparation of fowl for the market. Her remarks were listened to with eagerness by the large crowd who were present, among whom were many prominent poultry fanciers. Many were the exclamations of surprise, and approval, following the close of Mrs. Dawson's lucid address.

While a large number visited the show yesterday, and the day before, there are still a large number of citizens, who have not yet availed themselves of the opportunity to visit the show. This is the closing day, and in order that all may have a chance to visit the exhibit, it will remain open until 10 o'clock to-night.

In view of the high price of eggs, and poultry, it behooves all who are interested to call around to the Market Hall this evening. To see the beautiful exhibit of pheasants is worth the price of admission alone.

Among the exhibitors from a distance are Messrs. G. Lamer, Bogarth and Mecaslin, all of Napanee; Mr. C. H. Wilson of Hewestone, Mr. Ball of Midland, Mr. J. Morrow, Colborne, and Mr. Empringham, Unionville.

Notes on the Show.

Don't forget to visit the Silverware Department, where a miscellaneous collection of prizes, consisting of silver cups, tie pins, etc., are on exhibition.

A heated argument took place in a George street restaurant last night relating to the supposed existence at the Poultry Show of some blue Rocks.

There is an unusually large collection of special exhibits, such as pigeons, rabbits, etc.

Who said Blue Rocks?

Don't forget the Show this evening. Arrangements have been made to handle a large crowd.

There are between four and five thousand birds on exhibition.

IMPERIAL PREMIER IS STILL READY TO FIGHT

Special to The Examiner:

PEKIN, CHINA, JAN. 11.—In a statement issued this morning Yuan Shi Kai, the Imperial Premier of China admits the possibility of the abdication of the Manchus before the National Assembly can take action, but warns the Republicans that the Exchequer of the Government is not so depleted as they suppose, and his Generals are prepared to make a strong defence to maintain law and order, and secure the rights of those who should possess them. This is regarded as a sort of declaration of war against the new provisional presidency and developments, followed by bloodshed, are hourly expected.
